SOCIETIES AND SOLDIERS ATTEND DIVINE WORSHIP

Special Sermon to Volunteers of the Second Contingent and Members of Fraternal Socities--A Large Turnout, and Appropriate Sermon by Rev. A. R. Sanderson

Yesterday afternoon members of the Orange, 'Prentice Boys, True Blues, and Sons of England Societies attended divine service at Holloway street Methodist Church. Many of the young men who have enlisted for the second overseas contingent were also present in military uniform. Col. Marsh, commanding Officer of the Fifteenth Regiment, accompanied the boys. Rev. A. R. Sanderson, Pastor of the church, preached an appropriate sermon and Rev. S. A. Duprau assisted in the service by offering a prayer. After the usual devotional exercises the sermon was given. The text was from I. Corinthians 1th chapter and the latter clause of the 13th verse—"Quit you like men."

The divine in his opening remarks said the words he had chosen as the basis of his remarks he considered were appropriate especially as they had with them the young men who had enlisted for the defence of the British Empire. We always admire and appreciate young manhood. They not only wore the soldier's uniform, but they had the soldier's heart. The root ideal of manliness is strength. When the Apostle Paul gave expression to the words of the text he added, "Be strong." He wanted to impress manliness upon all. Strength can be exerted upon wrong lines and that was demonstrated in the war that is in progress today. The Rev. gentleman spoke at some length upon the war and the countries engaged in it. The British flag, which is being defended, stands for freedom, the open Bible, and for religious liberties. These young men by their action say they are going to offer their services to the King and the British Empire. We welcome you who are going to fight for us and may God give you the courage of your convictions. May you also fight the good fight of faith. Germany is at war, and behind that German Empire and the Kaiser is the thought that all are enemies. There is no doubt that the great goal of Germany was Great Britain and even Canada. This idea has, however, been frustrated and right will prevail. Courage enables a man to risk his life for a true cause. All the world despises a reckless or a timid man. What a courageous man was Admiral Nelson, and he was also a good man, living and dying heroically and true. The noblest courage that makes a man is moral courage to do the right even when the right is unpopular. It is the man that will stand by his conscience and his God for the right. A manly man is a reverent men. There is an idea abroad that irreverence is manly. Nothing shows a weaker mind than this. Even the greatest infidels could not afford to be irreverent. If you have lost reverence for God, you have also lost reverence for nature and beauty. You must have a reverence for God if you are to understand God's nature. The Christian religion urges upon its disciples not only strength and courage, but reverence. Christianity does not make a weakling of a man, but a stronger and more courageous man. Oliver Cromwell, Lattimer the martyr, and John Knox were men of God, and they were not weaklings. The Rev. gentleman then spoke, more particularly of the Orange Society and of men who had done much for the Protestant religion and th open Bible. In concluding the speaker said the young soldiers would be ever in the thoughts and prayers of the people. What an allied army you will be with—Great Britain, France, Russia and Belgium, fighting for the integrity and safety of manhood and womanhood. They are all your brothers. Take the word of God with you whether in battle or not and all will be well.

During the service Mrs. A. R. Sanderson sang "The Death of Nelson."

MILLIONS FOR CHICAGO

Packers Have Enough War Orders to Run for a Year

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—War orders for clothing, trucks, harness, tinned meats, and the like in the Chicago and neighboring markets amount to between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000, and purchasing agents of the British and French Governments are still buying. England has $3,000,000 gold in a local bank to be used for purchases. The meat packers have enough European orders on hand to keep them running full time for a year.

The opposing Governments have agents watching the purchases of each other in this market. They begin by apparently sincere correspondence about prices and quantities, but their queries invariably lead to details of transport. With this information their warships are kept on the lookout for shipments to hostile Governments.

INVASION UNLIKELY SAYS SIR OLIVER LODGE

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(Special).—Regarding article by H. G. Wells on the invasion of Britain, Sir Oliver Lodge, writing in The Times says: "The invasion of Britain is, to say the least, unlikely; the invasion of Germany may soon have been undertaken. May it not add to the difficulties of our troops if the policy of arming every woman, child, cat and dog is favorably regarded by us? Is not such a policy a sort of left-handed outcome of the Prussian contention that even their own unarmed civilian population is contemptible and may be slaughtered without mercy if military procedure is resisted or even if supplies are not forthcoming? I suggest that the fair procedure in the case of invasion is for each civilian to choose whether to be a combatant or not and to incur the danger of an affirmative choice in a sufficiently conspicuous and premanent manner."

RED CROSS ENTERTAINMENT WAS A GRAND SUCCESS

It was estimated that upwards of two thousand persons were on Saturday evening crowded into the armouries. The occasion was the entertainment under the auspices of the Red Cross Society. The various booths, elaborately decorated, and the midway were sources of great attraction. It being Hallowe'en night, many present were costumed and their dress attracted much attention. The regimental band under the able command of bandmaster E. R. Hinchey, was in attendance and during the evening rendered a number of selections which were appreciated by all present.

Upon the stage erected several numbers were given, including drills by the girls of the High School and the boys and girls of the Ontario School for the Deaf. The latter if possible excelled themselves and their marching and club swinging was of especial interest.

Mayor Wills and Mr. R. Tannahill were judges of those in costume and they awarded the first prize for ladies to Miss Mary Yeomans, who was dressed as Britannia, and the first prize for gentlemen to Eddie Taylor, dressed as a Highlander.

There were several who were successful in securing valuable trophies. Miss Reid, who resides on Charles street was the fortunate winner of a handsome lamp, donated by those of the flower booth, of which Mrs. L. W. Marsh was in charge, and Mr. Cordis, who is a member of the second contingent, won a barrel of selected apples, the gift of Mrs. Marsh.

Sergt. J. Douch, assisted by Mr. Wheatley, had charge of the rifle range at the Armouries and collected not a few shekels from those who were desirous of demonstrating their abilities as marksmen and markswomen.

Deposed From The Seaforths

German Title Holder is Ousted from Colonelcy of Highland Regiment

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(Special.)—The Duke of Saxe-Cobourg and Gotha, formerly the Duke of Albany, has, it has been reported, been removed from the Colonelcy of the Seaforth Highlanders.

Born July 19, 1884, Charles Edward, present holder of the German title was the posthumous son of the Earl of Clarence, the first Duke of Albany. He succeeded Alfred, Duke of Edinburgh as the Duke of Saxe-Cobourg and Gotha, when the latter died in 1900. In 1905 he was married to Princess Victoria Adelaide, daughter of the Duke of Schleswig-Holstein. On his 21st birthday he was made Colonel of the Seaforth Highlanders.

The deposed leader of the regiment, which regiment has seen active service in practically every war since 1806, recently attracted individual attention to himself by declaring that Great Britain's war with Germany was "criminal." He is the owner of several fine estates in Germany and Austria inherited along with his German title.

Indians Amused By German Shells

Troops From Orient Think the Projectiles are Merely Fireworks

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(Special.)—The following extract from the letter of a cavalry officer gives an account of how the Indian troops behaved in their first encounter under shell-fire:

"The night before last we were told that our regiment was going to be relieved by the Indians. I was delighted till I heard that I and my troops were to stay out and give them moral support, as it was their first go, a compliment I supposed, though I didn't think so at the time. It was the most weird sight I have seen. There were six farms and a windmill blazing all set alight by shell-fire, when these fellows with turbans and flashing eyes and teeth came up out of the darkness. The undefeated Dragoons, of course became firm friends with them at once. These natives had hardly got into the trenches on either side of me when the Germans opened fire. It was the worst half-hour I have ever spent, as, of course, I couldn't make them understand, as they had never been under shell-fire before, I didn't know what they would do. They behaved splendidly, and I think they thought the shells were fireworks let off for their benefit. One fellow attracted my attention in the heat of the engagement by waving his turban wilding. Of course, I couldn't make out what he wanted, but thought he wanted a doctor for someone, as he kept pointing at a cartridge, so I sent down for him but when he arrived it was discovered it was more ammunition they wanted and not the doctor."

Canteens Placed out of Bounds--Soldiers Forbidden to Tipple Before Six P. M.

KINGSTON, Oct. 31.—It has been published in orders here that the regimental canteen at Tete de Pont Barracks is placed 'out of bounds' for all the troops except members of the R.C.H.A. and attached men and members of the permanent force stationed at Kingston. The men are also forbidden to enter the bars of the city and vicinity before six o'clock each evening and the officers will be held responsible that these orders are strictly obeyed.

Word was received at Tete de Pont Barracks this morning announcing that the Independent Order of Foresters have donated from their farm at Oakville, Ont., a consignment of apples for the troops being assembled here for overseas service.

Instructions have been received here from Ottawa stating that as this is a depot the men enlisting in the R.C.H.A. are to be taken on, not for overseas but for the permanent service on the regular pay and allowances. As many of the men are very keen for overseas service, they are more or less dissatisfied with the arrangement. A meeting of the officers was held in Tete de Pont Barracks, and it is likely that the men desiring to do so will be permitted to withdraw from the R.C.H.A. and join the 21st Battalion now being formed in this division.

Belgian Minister Must Leave Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—Paul May, Belgian Minister to Mexico, was handed his passports yesterday by Minister of Foreign Affairs Fabella. Senor Fabella declared he was compelled to take this course because of certain aggressive and disrespectful notes directed to the Mexican government by the Belgian representative.

The minister of foreign affairs would say nothing regarding the nature of the correspondence, but it is believed that the notes referred to the operation by the Mexican government of the property of the Mexico Tramways Company, a large percentage of the stock of which is held by Belgian capitalists.

The resignation of General Venustiano Carranza as provisional president and first chief of the Constitutionalist army, based on the condition that General Villa and Zapata retire to private life, was read to the peace convention at Aguascalientes yesterday.

In the document General Carranza even expressed a willingness to leave the country if his absence would tend toward the re-establishment of peace.

The message caused a turmoil in the convention hall and at one time spectators tried to intervene and break up the meeting. Order was finally restored and business proceeded. What action, if any, was taken on the resignation was not known here last night.

Roosevelt Warns Unprepared U.S.

Says Two Of Powers Now At War Had Plans To Seize New York

PRINCETON, N.J., Oct. 31.—Theodore Roosevelt, addressing Princeton students here yesterday, on behalf of Progressive candidates, sounded a grave warning against the military unpreparedness of the United States. He declared he had personally seen plans prepared by two powers to capture New York and San Francisco.

"It is the country's duty to put itself in shape to defend our rights if they are invaded," said Colonel Roosevelt. "I hope the time will come when this country provides in marksmanship and in military tactics. It is also my earnest hope that we shall finally achieve international status by which there shall be a posse comitatus to coerce any recalcitrant power, but we have seen the utter uselessness of scraps of paper.

"I myself have seen plans prepared deliberately by at least two empires now involved in the war to capture our great cities and to hold them for ransom because our standing army was too weak to protect them. I have seen plans prepared for the capture of San Francisco and New York, and holding them for ransoms that would cripple our industry and supply funds to the enemy for carrying on the war.

"In such an event I would do all I could to secure the destruction of the cities rather than pay one cent of the ransom.

"A fight never was won by tarrying. You have got to hit to win a fight, and you must not hit soft, either."

SHELLS HIS OWN HOME, DELIGHTS IN ITS RUIN

Count De Chambrun, Artillery Officer, Turns Guns Of His Battery On Germans Occupying It

PARIS, Oct. 29.—The Countess de Chambrun, formerly Miss Clara Longworth of Cincinnati, and a sister of ex-Congressman Nicholas Longworth, has received a letter from her husband, who was at one time the French Military Attache at Washington, and is now an officer of an artillery company at the front. In his letter Count de Chambrun says:

"I am now having the great pleasure of directing the artillery fire against our own chateau, and I take great enoyment in seeing piece after piece come down."

The de Chambrun chateau is near St. Mihiel, where a stubborn struggle has been going on for six weeks since that point has been occupied by the Germans.

RANGE CATTLE SOLD AT $157.20 A HEAD

Animals that Never ate Grain Sell for Record Price

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—Range cattle "off the grass," that is, cattle that never haven eaten grain, were sold for $157.20 a head at the union stock yards, a record price for the Chicago market.

"It is easy to understand why beef is high when cattle bring such prices as this," said Melville F. Horin, statistician of the Union stock yards.

"One dealer from Montana sold 18 choice grass-fed steers averaging 1,572 pounds each, for $10 a hundred, or $157.20 a head. The price he received for his stock ranged from $8.50 to $10 a hundred pounds, except heifers at $7.85, and a few poor beeves at $7.50. His entire consignment of 756 head of cattle brought $81,000, or an average of $110 a head, and not one of them ever tasted grain."

"Commandant De Villiers was out reconnoitring when he met a strong rebel commando with white flags attached to their rifles. De Villiers approached the band, whereupon the rebels attacked him captured 110 of his men. The rebels then advanced against Col. Alberts' force from two directions, but Alberts defeated them and chased them 20 miles across the border. In their flight the rebels discarded their carts and bicycles."

Registration of Alien Citizens

Brig-Gen. Otter of Toronto is in Charge of Guarding the Interned

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Special—The Department of Justice announces that offices for registration of citizens of hostile countries will be opened at once in Montreal, Ottawa, Sydney, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. Other offices at various cities may be opened up later if it is found necessary. Special registration officers are to be selected for each district, and the whole work of guarding any concentration camps of interned Germans or Austrians will be placed in charge of Brigadier-General Otter of Toronto.

The department will first ascertain the approximate number of aliens of hostile countries in the various districts, and secure data as to their character and business. It is not proposed to proceed at once to intern all these aliens, but only such as are considered likely to be dangerous to leave without strict surveillance. The work of registration will be begun at once, and every German or Austrian will be compelled to promptly report to the registration office.

A Cable From Capt. E. D. O'Flynn

A cable was received this morning from Capt. E. D. O'Flynn, who is absent with the Over Seas Contingent. He states that the boys are all well, that they are now at Bulford Camp, Salisbury Plains, England. He says the Belleville boys won the tug of war and the light weight boxing championship on the voyage over, and that the boys were well and happy and ready to do the best they can for the honor of Canada and in defence of the Empire. Before landing a nicely worded message was received from Lord Kitchener welcoming the Contingent to Britain. It was very much appreciated by the troops.

Captain O'Flynn sends his best wishes to his many friends and his desire for the welfare of the city.

"Turkey has now joined our enemies and added to our difficulties," said the speaker. "I hope the Government will take efficient steps to meet the difficulty. We must not underrate it. We must remember that if Germany and Turkey do succeed we might as well say good-bye to civilization."

He succeeded his father in the title only last year. He was educated at Eton, and served with his regiment in the South African war 1901-2, being mentioned in despatches. ECOMOMY HURTS THE DRESSMAKERS

Even Well-To-Do Ladies Said To Be Buying Only Cheap Clothing

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The economy being practised by English women at present is causing lack of work in certain branches of trade. At a meeting here to-night, it was stated that one-third of the 66,000 dressmakers in London are on short time because even the well-to-do are buying cheap ready-made clothing. It is also said that one-fourth of the 14,000 millinery workers are on short time, due to women buying hats which are cheaply trimmed.

YOUNG MAN WAS SHOT BY AN ENRAGED FARMER

MEAFORD, Ont. Nov. 2.—Special—Hallowe'en pranks at Grensville, five miles south of here, resulted last night in the death of Joseph Ferry, of the 3rd line, who was shot by an enraged farmer. Quite a party of boys had assembled from the 3rd and 4th lines, and, according to reports, considerably annoyed E. H. Knoll, who is a bachelor farmer living in the district. He phoned to neighbors and also to Chief Clarke at Meaford to go out and drive the boys away, but no help was offered, as the boys pranks were not taken seriously. Knoll declares he grew quite alarmed when he heard a revolver shot from the party, and getting out an old rifle he shot a couple of times in the air and then on the ground, until Joseph Ferry dropped with a bullet between the eyes. Another man was wounded, though not seriously. Knoll says it must have been a glancing bullet that hit the boy. Medical aid was summoned, but Ferry died at 6:30 this morning. He was 18 years of age. Chief Clarke of Meaford went out to-day and arrested Knoll, who is now in Meaford lock-up. Knoll is 40 years of age. An inquest was opened this morning at Griersville.

TURNED BACK AT CAPE

American was Refused Admittance to His Country

KINGSTON, Oct. 31.—An American named Boland was refused admittance to the United States at Cape Vincent yesterday on the grounds that he was a deserter from the Canadian army, and returning to the city, immediately took steps to find out why he could not enter his own country; as he stated this morning that he was an American citizen, having taken out his naturalization papers at Watertown some years ago. He is a veteran of the Spanish-American war.

The man went over to Wolfe Island on the ferry boat on Friday afternoon and hired a man to row him to the Cape. He states he did this on account of missing the Cape boat his train, took this means of getting over. When he arrived there he states that he reported to the immigration official, who would not allow him to stay in the country, but sent him back.

When seen by a newspaper representative this morning the man stated that he had written to the authorities concerning the case and would wait here until he heard from them.

BANCROFT HOME GUARDS

If the Kaiser has any spies in Bancroft they will probably advise him to call off his threatened invasion of Canada. Such a move on his part would be very ill-advised at the present time. We venture this remark after witnessing the enthusiasm displayed by the citizens who gathered in the town hall on Monday evening for the purpose of organizing a Home Guard.

On motion M. W. E. Detlor took the chair, with D. H. Morrison as secretary. Mr. T. E. Ewen, through whose efforts largely the meeting was called, spoke at some length upon the necessity for being prepared for such emergencies as the present one. The countries that neglected to drill ceased to exist, and he cited the example of Greece and Rome. A company of well-drilled men are superior to ten times their number of raw recruits. He urged the citizens to take the matter up, and not be misled with the idea that we will never have another big war. The present struggle for supremacy in Europe may be the means of precipitating a still more serious uprising in the eastern countries, and if China and Japan turn with longing eyes towards Canada we will have our work cut out for us.

Mr. W. A. Ward followed Mr. Ewen. Although not a fighting man in any senses of the term (from lack of avoirdupois) he was willing to get into line and render any assistance in his power to protect home interests in the present crisis.

A committee consisting of Messrs. T. E. Ewen, W. A. Davy and D. H. Morrison were appointed to arrange the details and open a list. Volunteers were called for and in a very short space of time twenty-seven names were enrolled. Sergt. Fuller and Geo Paton agreed to undertake the task of drilling the Guard—Bancroft Times.

The ladies who handled the flag campaign on Saturday, gathered in many a dime, some of the flags bringing a much larger sum. Many hundred flags were disposed of, nearly everyone you met on the street being decorated with the emblem. The returns must have been very large.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS

On Saturday evening Miss F. Brough, assisted by Miss P. Rupert, entertained a few of her friends at her home on Everett street. After a delightful lunch was partaken of by all present, Mr. M. Barlow rendered a delightful solo, and J. McIntosh gave a recitation, which was very much appreciated. All enjoyed themselves and left before the early hours in the morning.

If we could only borrow money on our good intentions, poverty would soon be an obsolete word.

LOCAL PHILANTROPHY

The philanthropic citizens who have done so much for neglected children heartily deserve the thanks of the community. The consensus of opinion of the citizens as to the choice of the Bonnett property for a "home" seems to be that it would be detrimental to the interests of Belleville. We look with pleasure at the beautiful residences in that vicinity, and we feel that everything ought to be done to encourage the people to continue to build homes of beauty in that locality.

Situated on a gore at the divisional point of two of the best and most ornamental streets in the city this property attracts the attention of visitors by its architectural beauty and lovely grounds. A "Home" with groups of noisy children cannot be considered as a desirable adjunct to such a neighborhood. The grounds are not large enough and in fact, it is not at all a suitable place for such a Home. In the interests of the city, it it to be hoped those who have the project in hand, will reconsider their intention.

Yours truly,
JOHN J. B. FLINT.

Leading Britons Leave on a Mystery Trip

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The British Government has sent three of its highest officials to the continent on a most mysterious and important mission. The delegation consists of David Lloyd George, the chancellor of the exchequer; Lord Haldane, the Lord Chancellor, and Lord Reading, the chief justice.

The destination of this mission is being kept a profound secret as well as its object. Its importance is evident from its membership, and apparently the business to be transacted concerns both financial and legal matters.

Lord Haldane and the chief justice, who as Sir Rufus Isaacs before his elevation to the bench was the keenest light at the English bar, ranked as about the foremost authority upon the law in the United Kingdom.

The most plausible report has it that the three have gone to Holland and will possibly extend their journey to the Scandinavian countries to deal with the matter of the shipment of goods from neutral countries into Germany.

If the statements of the English papers are correct, Holland and the three Scandinavian nations are conducting a thriving trade with Germany through the transhipment of supplies from the United States and even from England.

The newspapers of all those countries assert that their importations are for their own needs alone, while English papers insist that they are receiving consignments of petroleum, grain and foodstuffs generally, which far exceed their normal requirements.

NO NEARER TO COAST

Germans Haven't Gained a Mile in the Last Week

Although They Have Suffered Appalling Losses, the Kaiser's Troops Have Not Profited by Desperate Attempt To Get to the Channel—Destruction of Dykes Drives Them Back.

LONDON, Nov. 2. — While in the centre of the battle line in France, the Kaiser's forces have made gains of great importance, for instance, in the locality near Vailly, where the French troops were beaten back to the south bank of the River Aisne, the Germans were checked yesterday in their latest attempt to advance on the line of battle between Nieuport, Belgium and Arras, France.

The Germans, as though beginning to obey with a will the Kaiser's reputed order: "Take Calais or die," with renewed fury and desperate vigor hurled themselves against the French and British near La Bassee. It is the Kaisers' great desire, apparently, to gain possession of the canal routes to the sea coast, and probably assemble on the coast in time to check the rush of Italian troops into the northwestern theatre of war. The British this time checked the Germans in the vicinity of La Bassee.

In the meantime French troops are marching from important defensive positions west of Roulers.

The German army headquarters issued the following yesterday morning: "The operations in Belgium have been rendered difficult owing to inundations of the Yser and the Ypres canals by the destruction of the sluices at Nieuport. Our troops have advanced near Ypres. At least 600 prisoners were captured, also some British guns.

"Forces fighting to the westward of Lille also have progressed. A number of prisoners were taken near Vailly—about 1,500.

"In the region of Verdun there has been only insignificant fighting.

"In the northeast the battle against the Russians is still indecisive."

The fighting in Flanders and in France has been but a repetition of that which has been going on for days past. The Germans have continued to push their attack, which was aimed at placing them in possession of the French coast ports, but, as before, it has been a ding-dong affair, first one side making progress only to lose the ground gained on the next day or night.

From the point of view of the allies, their position is satisfactory, as the Germans are no nearer to their goal than they were a week ago. There have been tremendous losses, which for once cannot be exaggerated, while the capture of a few prisoners and guns from one side or the other is a matter of daily occurrence, fighting has become more severe along the River Aisne, in the Argonne forest, and along the River Meuse, between Verdun and Toul, but so far without making any appreciable change in the fronts of the two armies.

A despatch from Rotterdam to The Evening News, dated Saturday, says: "Esschen, a Belgian town on the Dutch border, directly north of Antwerp, has been occupied by German soldiers and marines, who are preparing winter quarters there.

"The Germans are strengthening and mining the roads around Brussels, Grammont, Antwerp, Lokeren and Ghent.

"Six submarines which arrived at Antwerp by rail are now being fitted and tried in dock."

"The way to Bruges is now open to the allies owing to their recapture of Roulers, and the Germans are digging new trenches behind Ghent with feverish energy. To do this is to announce their retreat." This statement is made in The Observer in a despatch dated "near the Franco-Belgian frontier."

The Paris War Office announces that in spite of the statements from German sources that Verdun was destroyed, the town never was struck by German shells. One fort, called Bouamont, was bombarded at long range by the enemy, but no damage was done, notwithstanding the cannonading of 24 hours' duration.

The French troops continue to bar the road to Verdun.

Reports of German victories in the Argonne region are asserted to be without foundation.

It is officially reported, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Paris, that when the French captured Quesney-Sur-Deule, six miles northwest of Lille, Saturday they took 200 prisoners, two guns and a large number of quick-firers.

MILLIONS FOR BELGIANS.

Rockefeller Foundation Will Render Aid to Non-combatants.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The Rockefeller foundation has determined to employ its immense resources for the relief of non-combatants in the countries affected by the war, and stands ready to give "millions of dollars" if necessary for the purpose. This was announced Saturday night by John D. Rockefeller, jr., president of the foundation.

In pursuance of this philanthropy, the foundation will send a commission to Europe in a few days to report first hand as to how, when and where aid can be rendered most effectively. At a cost of $275,000 it already has charted a ship and loaded it with 4,000 tons of provisions for the relief of the starving Belgians.

Mr. Rockefeller has been in communication with Ambassador Page at London, and makes public a cablegram in which the Ambassador says that "it will require a million dollars a month for seven or eight months to prevent starvation."

The more money a man has the less he worries about what people think of him.

After children grow up their parents often prove a disappointment.

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractor permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

Making Ammunition For the Naval Guns

Close by the west bank of the Hudson River, in the lower passage to the Highlands, and lying between Stony Point and West Point, in a region made famous by the Revolutionary War, is Iona Island, the ammunition base of the United States Navy.

"At this little-known place, a reservation of slightly more than a hundred acres, several hundred men are employed in the preparation of ammunition for the guns of our warships. Back of the hills which seclude most of the island from general view are magazines and storehouses holding approximately 3,000,000 lbs. of smokeless powder, 1,000,000 lbs. of black powder, and tens of thousands of shells.

"Skirting the island, joining its laboratories and storage places, and connecting with the landing pier is a small railroad, the locomotive of which is operated by compressed air. This is used in the transportation of the deadly cargoes from one building to another and in carrying ammunition to the dock where it is received for the warships. The precaution of having a locomotive which will not throw off sparks, radiate heat nor require connection with high-voltage electric wires is necessary to avert the danger of an explosion.

"Four separate fireproof wall surround each of the magazines, which are divided into compartment in order to safeguard against the complete destruction of the works in the event of a fire or small explosion. Careful inspection of all the cartridge stores and powder buildings is made at frequent intervals during both day and night. After sundown every visit at one of these places is recorded at the administration building by electric instruments. Close attention is paid to the temperrtures wherever explosives are kept, the heat being regulated to remain between 85 and 90 dgrees at all times. The interior walls and floors of the magazines are so made that not a single piece of iron or steel is exposed. Upon entering one of the structures inspectors and workmen wear a special kind of clothing and soft shoes without nails, carrying absolutely nothing composed of iron nor anything which in any possible manner might produce a spark.

"Similar precautions are taken in the filling rooms, where the charges are placed in the shells. Here everyone is dressed in white serge, and the tools, such as measuring cups, scales and funnels, are made of copper, which does not give off sparks even when struck by stone. The supply of powder to be used during the day is brought to the filling rooms each morning, where it is emptied into a long wooden trough. Over half of the smokeless powder used here is manufactured at the navy proving ground at Indian Head Md., while the rest is supplied by private firms at the rate of 70 cents a pound."

GREATER DEMAND FOR CANADIAN EXPORTS

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Special—Canadian Trade Commissioners in Great Britain report a large increase in the number of applications from British importers for Canadian commodities to replace supplies formerly drawn from the continent and now cut off by war. Among commodities largely in demand are mentioned wheat, household and hardware sundries, brushes, flannels, tool handles, matchwood, office desks, tissue paper, etc.

Kroonland Case at Prize Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Special—Great Britain has ignored this Government's demand for the release of the Red Star liner Kroonland at Gibraltar, a cable message to the Department of State to-day from American Consul Sprague saying that her cargo of 1,400 tons of copper and 300 barrels of oil was being discharged, and that the case would be taken to the Prize Court.

The demand made by this Government for the release of the liner, which has 1200 passengers aboard, was that "unless investigation on the part of British authorities has disclosed facts in relation to the detention of the vessel and cargo other than those known to this Government, both ship and cargo should be released at once."

There is a probability that this Government may protest against the listing of copper as absolute contraband. Acting Secretary of State Lansing indicated, however, that the Administration had not yet made a complete study of the new contraband list and had reached no decision as to the revision of the original list.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED

Violent Assaults Have Been Thrown Back at Several Points.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The following official communication was issued in Paris last night:

"In Belgium there is nothing new to report.

"During the day we have repulsed violent attacks of the enemy in the vicinity of Lihons, Lequesnoy-en-Santerre, Vailly on the Aisne, and in the Bois de la Grurie, in the Argonne forest.

"To the north of Souain we have continued to make slight progress.

"In the Vosges, through our offensive movements, we have taken possession of the heights of Varsines de Sainte Marie."

The French official statement issued at three o'clock yesterday afternoon says: "There is nothing new to report on the Nieuport and Dixmude front.

"The Germans have continued their fierce attacks throughout the region to the northeast and south of Ypres. All these attacks have been repulsed, and we have made slight progress to the north of Ypres and progressed perceptibly to the eastward of this locality.

"At daybreak hostile forces debouching from the Lys succeeded in seizing Hallebecke and Messines, but these two villages were retaken towards evening by vigorous counter attacks on the part of the allied forces.

"Upon the rest of the battlefront yesterday (Saturday) was marked by violent cannonading and several counter-attacks of the enemy, which were intended to recover the ground conquered by us during the last few days.

"The struggle is still very violent in the Argonne region, where the Germans, however, have made no progress.

"According to statistics furnished by our service in the rear, 7,683 German prisoners were interned during the week of Oct. 14-20 alone. These figures do not include the convalescent wounded in our field hospitals, nor the detachments which are ready to be sent from the front to the rear."

REAR GUARD ROUTED.

Russians Administer Further Defeats to Retreating Germans.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 2.—The Russian General Staff makes the following communication:

"On the East Prussian front our troops are progressing in the direction of Wladislow, government of Zuwalki and the forest of Romentin.

"The German attacks in the direction of Bakalarzevo, on Oct. 31, have ceased, following terrible losses suffered by the enemy.

"Beyond the Vistula we have advanced victoriously along the whole front. We have occupied Petrikau, Opotozno and Ojoroff. Battles took place on the roads leading to Opatoff, where we routed the rear guard of the enemy. We took 40 prisoners and captured six rapid fire guns, convoys and provisions.

"Upon the San river, near Lesachovo, a Russian regiment which had entrenched itself step by step, reached the enemy's position and, profiting by the panic among the Austrians, took by assault a temporary fort. Five officers and 500 soldiers were taken prisoners and five rapid-fire guns were captured.

"A column of the enemy which descended from the Carpathians and fortified itself near Nadvarna, was attacked and put to flight.

Crown Prince Was Leading.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Daily Mail publishes a despatch on the Russian campaign, saying that the German Crown Prince especially requested that he be allowed to command the assault on the Vistula river lines.

"For this plan," says the despatch, "very large forces were assembled. The best Prussian troops were allotted to the Crown Prince in the centre with heavy siege guns and Austrian cavalry.

"The unexpected vigor of the Russian counter-attack carried all before it. The Crown Prince's army gave way, abandoning much material and 36 heavy guns which were bogged in the mud. The attempt to rally at Radom proved an utter failure and the pursuit continues."

DEATHS.

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractor permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

Making Ammunition For the Naval Guns

Close by the west bank of the Hudson River, in the lower passage to the Highlands, anl lying between Stony Point and West Point, in a region made famous by the Revolutionary War, is Iona Island, the ammunition base of the United States Navy.

"At this little-known place, a reservation of slightly more than a hundred acres, several hundred men are employed in the preparation of ammunition for the guns of our warships. Back of the hills which seclude most of the island from general view are magazines and storehouses holding approximately 3,000,000 lbs. of smokeless powder, 1,000,000 lbs. of black powder, and tens of thousands of shells.

"Skirting the island, joining its laboratories and storage places, and connecting with the landing pier is a small railroad, the locomotive of which is operated by compressed air. This is used in the transportation of the deadly cargoes from one building to another and in carrying ammunition to the dock where it is received for the warships. The precaution of having a locomotive which will not throw off sparks, radiate heat nor require connection with high-voltage electric wires is necessary to avert the danger of an explosion.

"Four separate fireproof wall surround each of the magazines, which are divided into compartment in order to safeguard against the complete destruction of the works in the event of a fire or small explosion. Careful inspection of all the cartridge stores and powder buildings is made at frequent intervals during both day and night. After sundown every visit at one of these places is recorded at the administration building by electric instruments. Close attention is paid to the temperrtures wherever explosives are kept, the heat being regulated to remain between 85 and 90 dgrees at all times. The interior walls and floors of the magazines are so made that not a single piece of iron or steel is exposed. Upon entering one of the structures inspectors and workmen wear a special kind of clothing and soft shoes without nails, carrying absolutely nothing composed of iron nor anything which in any possible manner might produce a spark.

"Similar precautions are taken in the filling rooms, where the charges are placed in the shells. Here everyone is dressed in white serge, and the tools, such as measuring cups, scales and funnels, are made of copper, which does not give off sparks even when struck by stone. The supply of powder to be used during the day is brought to the filling rooms each morning, where it is emptied into a long wooden trough. Over half of the smokeless powder used here is manufactured at the navy proving ground at Indian Head Md., while the rest is supplied by private firms at the rate of 70 cents a pound."

GREATER DEMAND FOR CANADIAN EXPORTS

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Special—Canadian Trade Commissioners in Great Britain report a large increase in the number of applications from British importers for Canadian commodities to replace supplies formerly drawn from the continent and now cut off by war. Among commodities largely in demand are mentioned wheat, household and hardware sundries, brushes, flannels, tool handles, matchwood, office desks, tissue paper, etc.

Kroonland Case at Prize Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Special—Great Britain has ignored this Government's demand for the release of the Red Star liner Kroonland at Gibraltar, a cable message to the Department of State to-day from American Consul Sprague saying that her cargo of 1,400 tons of copper and 300 barrels of oil was being discharged, and that the case would be taken to the Prize Court.

The demand made by this Government for the release of the liner, which has 1,200 passengers aboard, was that "unless investigation on the part of British authorities has disclosed facts in relation to the detention of the vessel and cargo other than those known to this Government, both ship and cargo should be released at once."

There is a probability that this Government may protest against the listing of copper as absolute contraband. Acting Secretary of State Lansing indicated, however, that the Administration had not yet made a complete study of the new contraband list and had reached no decision as to the revision of the original list.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

Violent Assaults Have Been Thrown Back at Several Points.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The following official communication was issued in Paris last night:

"In Belgium there is nothing new to report.

"During the day we have repulsed violent attacks of the enemy in the vicinity of Lihons, Lequesnoy-en-Santerre, Vailly on the Aisne, and in the Bois de la Grurie, in the Argonne forest.

"To the north of Souain we have continued to make slight progress.

"In the Vosges, through our offensive movements, we have taken possession of the heights of Varsines de Sainte Marie."

The French official statement issued at three o'clock yesterday afternoon says: "There is nothing new to report on the Nieuport and Dixmude front.

"The Germans have continued their fierce attacks throughout the region to the northeast and south of Ypres. All these attacks have been repulsed, and we have made slight progress to the north of Ypres and progressed perceptibly to the eastward of this locality.

"At daybreak hostile forces debouching from the Lys succeeded in seizing Hallebecke and Messines, but these two villages were retaken towards evening by vigorous counter attacks on the part of the allied forces.

"Upon the rest of the battlefront yesterday (Saturday) was marked by violent cannonading and several counter-attacks of the enemy, which were intended to recover the ground conquered by us during the last few days.

"The struggle is still very violent in the Argonne region, where the Germans, however, have made no progress.

"According to statistics furnished by our service in the rear, 7,683 German prisoners were interned during the week of Oct. 14-20 alone. These figures do not include the convalescent wounded in our field hospitals, nor the detachments which are ready to be sent from the front to the rear."

REAR GUARD ROUTED.

Russians Administer Further Defeats to Retreating Germans.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 2.—The Russian General Staff makes the following communication:

"On the East Prussian front our troops are progressing in the direction of Wladislow, government of Zuwalki and the forest of Romentin.

"The German attacks in the direction of Bakalarzevo, on Oct. 31, have ceased, following terrible losses suffered by the enemy.

"Beyond the Vistula we have advanced victoriously along the whole front. We have occupied Petrikau, Opotozno and Ojoroff. Battles took place on the roads leading to Opatoff, where we routed the rear guard of the enemy. We took 40 prisoners and captured six rapid fire guns, convoys and provisions.

"Upon the San river, near Lesachovo, a Russian regiment which had entrenched itself step by step, reached the enemy's position and, profiting by the panic among the Austrians, took by assault a temporary fort. Five officers and 500 soldiers were taken prisoners and five rapid-fire guns were captured.

"A column of the enemy which descended from the Carpathians and fortified itself near Nadvarna, was attacked and put to flight.

Crown Prince Was Leading.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The Daily Mail publishes a despatch on the Russian campaign, saying that the German Crown Prince especially requested that he be allowed to command the assault on the Vistula river lines.

"For this plan," says the despatch, "very large forces were assembled. The best Prussian troops were allotted to the Crown Prince in the centre with heavy siege guns and Austrian cavalry.

"The unexpected vigor of the Russian counter-attack carried all before it. The Crown Prince's army gave way, abandoning much material and 36 heavy guns which were bogged in the mud. The attempt to rally at Radom proved an utter failure and the pursuit continues."

TURKEY'S MENACING TACTICS

According to high authority the strictly military effect of Turkey's action in taking up the sword against the allied forces is not likely to prove of a serious nature.

What is most to be feared is not the Turkish army, but Turkish mobs; not a Turkish attack on the territory of any of the allies, but the massacre of Europeans generally within the Turkish dominions. It may well appear to the Turkish fanatic that now is the time, when the great powers of Europe are at each other's throats, to give vent to the rage against Christendom which has been accumulating for centuries. If the Turks should go to Berserker, not only all Asia Minor, but the whole Mohammedan world, might be swept by a wave of massacre and devastation. It would not be war in the civilized sense. It would not be the kind of war which could affect the campaigns in France and Poland. But it would be war upon defenseless non-combatants — merchants and missionaries—throughout the Ottoman empire, and it might extend to Egypt, Algeria, Morocco and even India. Already Bedouins are said to be gathering on the borders of Egypt and Turkish cavalry has begun to occupy points on the Red Sea.

A THOROUGH BRITISHER

Those who are familiar with the life and political record of Hon. Thomas Chase Casgrain, will admit that no mistake has been made in the selection of a Postmaster-General, to succeed Hon. L. P. Pelletier.

The keynote of Mr. Casgrain's life has always been a passionate devotion to the British constitution and Crown. In season season and out of season he has preached the doctrine of British greatness and liberty. Thus, in a time of national stress he has been promot- [illegible] of "great" influence, where he can assist in the task of sending aid to Britain. He is the right man in the right place. In a recent speech he stated: "No sacrifice is too great when we are confronted on another continent with a situation which might spell disaster to British arms and prestige and absolute ruin and disaster to Canada."

There is not and never has been any doubt of where the new Postmaster General has stood upon the question of British connection. He has first, last, and all the time been a great Canadian, and his inclusion in the Borden Cabinet will be welcomed from one end of the Dominion to the other by all parties, for he has the confidence of his political foes, who have always seen in him a manly and straightforward fighter.

THE TEST OF ADVERSITY

It takes adversity to test the mettle of a brave people. The British nation never gets fully roused till it knows there is some national calamity just across the road. In this business of keeping industrial and commercial calamity out of Canada, every Canadian is getting his war blood to boiling point. If we can't shoulder rifles at the front, we can make every dollar we spend for goods made in Canada a national bullet for keeping out the calamity of hard times. This kind of fighting needs no drill. It entails no sacrifice. It means just enthusiastic common sense in the greatest cause ever faced by the Canadian people.

CURRENT COMMENT

"Made in Germany"? No! Made in Turkey—the Turkish Cigarette. Don't smoke them. Be patriotic.

Hamilton Herald: "We are told by the Winnipeg Telegram that there was no agreement between the political parties in Canada not to hold an election during the year. Such information is hardly necessary. The political party which is not in power could not bring on an election or prevent the holding of an election. How then could there be any such agreement?"

Montreal Gazette: "The assessed value of the real property in Montreal is this year some $51,000,000 higher than in 1913, and stands at $843,337,000. And the year was not a notably good one. They have reason who hold that, whatever happens, this city will continue to go ahead."

The placing of contracts in Canada for sweater coats amounting to $900,000, for shrapnel shells amounting to $2,000,000, for 100,000 rifles, for large numbers of boots and shoes, and other war materials will go a long way to offset the losses caused by the war.

At the convention of the Ontario Sunday School Association Mr. John L. Alexander, of Chicago, made the statement that there are 14,000,000 children in North America who do not belong to Sunday schools and who should, and that of this multitude 15,000 are in the city of Toronto. According to this, the outlook for a better church attendance on this continent is not very promising.

Smallpox is becoming so prevalent in Chicago that the Department of Health has issued a warning calling upon all residents who have not been vaccinated to take that precautionary measure at once. In East Chicago the schools have had to be closed. The situation in the western metropolis should cause other municipalities to be on the watch. Smallpox spreads quickly and the careless community is the first to be seriously attacked.

WAR NOTES

London Chronicle: "Into the Kaiser's motives for trying to grind further into the dust the little nation whom he has so deeply wronged, we need not stop to inquire. It has cost him tens of thousands of German lives and the German Government condemnation for all time before the bar of history; and he can never finally retain of the soil which he has sullied one square inch."

Prince Louis of Battenburg has resigned as first sea lord of the British Admiralty. This resignation was inspired by criticism of his holding such a high place while having such close family connections with Germany.

New York World: "Considering the dogged Briton in the trenches, the United Kingdom seems unconquerable. Reading London's talk about invasion by sea, Britains' worst enemy seems to be a foolish fear. If such clamor should keep a large army at home to meet an impossible danger, what Berlin says of London would be justified. Lord Kitchener is too old a soldier, however, to forget the place to fight an enemy's fire is where it is."

Grand Rapids, Mich., Press: "During the Spanish-American war the United States seized and condemned before a prize court a Spanish vessel transferred to British registry after the declaration of war. The case was appealed to the Supreme Court, and the seizure sustained. Therefore we cannot become vexed over the Brindilla incident, now that the rule happens to pinch the nation which under other conditions established it as proper conduct."

It is announced on behalf of the Allies that the entrance of Turkey into the war has been fully prepared for, and that as a result the ancient Ottoman Empire in Europe will in due course be but a memory. The move of the Turks seems to be a suicidal one.

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking up First Allotment But More On The Way

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Intelligencer's distribution of the greatest Bible ever published. It did look for a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Intelligencer recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles ever published. "Illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying test matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait, but bring in your certificates and get your Bible. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

Berlin Threatens Arrest of British

BERLIN Oct. 40.—Germany has notified Great Britain, through American Ambassador Gerrard in Berlin, that if German civilians in England, excepting those against whom there are ground of suspicion are not liberated by November 5 all British subjects in Germany will be similarly arrested. The feeling on this subject in Berlin is high.

What is Butter Fat?

Butter fat is composed of several fats varying in degree of hardiness, also in relative amounts. In the summer time when the cow has plenty of green succulent grass the soft fats are present in comparatively large amounts. In the winter time when the cow is on dry hay and grain feed just the reverse is true—the hard fats being relatively high. To overcome this feed the cow on corn silage or root crops to supply the necessary succulence in her feed so to keep the proper balance between the hard and the soft fats in her milk.

WHAT THE GERMANS THOUGHT

A journalist who is particularly well informed with regard to naval affairs is Mr. Hector C. Bywater, who for some years was the Berlin correspondent of the Navy, the organ of the Navy League, and of the Naval and Military Record. In the latter paper he not long ago made some interesting remarks upon the German attitude towards the British. He first commented upon the exploit of the British Submarine E 9 in sinking the German destroyed S 126, and continued:

German papers recently to hand have contained allusions to the British Navy which read somewhat strangely when contrasted with German Press utterances on the same subject before the war. We are now given to understand that the enemy entertained a wholesome respect for our fleet. The events of the last two months appear to have convinced them that there may, after all, be something in the fighting traditions of the British sea service, which they had been assured by their "experts" were largely based on legend and myth. A great change in the tone of their Press comment set in after the fight off Heligoland. The consummate skill, dash and courage which distinguished the conduct of that engagement obviously came as an eye-opener to the Germans We may be sure that later events at sea, including the dual exploit of E 9, has deepened the same salutary impression. Even the leading German papers now admit that the Fatherland must look to the land campaign both for its laurels and substantial successes, as the prospect at sea is not encouraging. In a word, they are beginning to realize that the British fleet is a fact–or whose power has been grossly underrated, and it is clear from their guarded admissions that they have no great confidence in the ability of the German Navy to fulfil its much advertised mission of protecting the commerce and the colonies of the Fatherland. It may be remarked, in passing, that unless it does something, and that very soon, the German Navy will suffer a severe loss of prestige in Germany itself. German patriots, we may well imagine, are already beginning to ask themselves what return are they getting for the enormous expenditure on naval armaments during the last fourteen years. It is literally true that up to the present this great fleet has been utterly powerless to affect the course of the campaign in any direction whatever. It his, perhaps, prevented a hostile landing on the German coasts, but this elementary form of coast defence could have been equally well undertaken by small flotillas costing but a fraction of what the the High Sea fleet has cost. Indeed the reliance which has always been placed on shore batteries and minefields proves that the navy was never intended for coast defence, in the narrow sense of that term. Sooner or later the German public will demand some decisive action by the fleet. Whether the hands of the Navy Department could be forced by public opinion is another question, but the officers and men of the fleet cannot be feeling very happy in the knowledge that their comrades of the army are doing all the work while they remain absolutely idle.

One of the most widely-held opinions in Germany before the war was that the British Navy was a thoroughly effete institution. Time after time it has been the writer's duty to record in these columns statements by prominent Germans which showed how completely they believed this to be the case. To take the material first, every type of vessel in the British Navy, from super-Ddeadnought to submarine, was subjected to the most scathing criticism by German wiseacres. Our ships were ill-designed, badly built, unstable and unseaworthy, owing principally to the absence of scientific methods in naval design and the decadence of the British workman. Our guns were of very inferior quality, inaccurate, and short-lived, while the very last issue of "Nauticus," published in July, contained an article in which British gunnery methods were treated with supercilious contempt. It was the personnel, however, which these critics professed to consider responsible for the alleged decline of the British naval power. Certain amiable writers, who, were supposed to know the sentiments of German naval officers, were went to assure us that these gentlemen had a high respect for the personal character and professional attainments of the British naval officer. Such, however, was not the impression one gained from a perusal of German service literature, in which our officers were uniformly set down as lacking in that zeal for hard work and the purely professional side of their duties which were held to distinguish the German "sea officers." As for the men, they were mercenaries who had taken to the sea because they were not much good for anything else. Drunkenness was rife among them, and insubordination frequent, with the result that discipline was at a low ebb, and the war training of the fleet suffered in consequence.

Much as we may smile at these views, the fact remains that they were commonly shared by the vast majority of intelligent Germans, and, there is reason to believe, by many high naval authorities in Berlin. The prevalence of such opinions helps to explain the supreme confidence with which the Germans looked forward to an encounter with Great Britain. They knew their fleet to be much smaller, but they really believed that the superior skill and devotion of their personnel, together with the incomparably finer ships they mannel, would achieve victory in the teeth of heavy odds.

As we have said, Heligoland came as the first rude shock to this characteristic self-complacence. Other events followed, minor in themselves, but all pointing the same way. Meanwhile it must have been brought home to the meanest intelligence in the Fatherland that Britain's grip on German sea commerce is remorselessly complete. With the exception of some good work by its submarines, the "successes" of the Germany Navy to date have been of the negative order.

BUSY WINTER FOR WORKERS ON G. T.P.

Company to Build Terminal Facilities in Rich Territory in British Columbia.

Montreal, Oct. 30.—Mr. D. E. Galloway, Assistant to the President, stated to-day that, while no details have yet come to hand, it is true that the Grand Pacific Railway have let contracts to the value of $300,000 for terminals in British Columbia.

This construction work will take of a large number of mechanics and laborers during the winter months and will be an important factor in improving the labor situation along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific in British Columbia. The contract work comprises the erection of divisional point facilities at Endako, Smithers, Prince George and Pacific, and will include round houses, machine shops and other Railway buildings. Preparations are also being made for oil storage buildings along the line, as it is understood that oil burning locomotives are to be used in the fast transcontinental services of the company.

It is into this country between Prince George and Prince Rupert that the Company hopes to introduce a large number of Belgian settlers. Between Endako, one of the new terminal points, and Prince George, is the Nechaco Valley, through which the Railway runs, and which averages about 15 miles in width. There are still good lands open for pre-emption from six to ten miles back from the Railway, and this Valley is proving suitable for raising hay, grain, vegetables and fruit, and is also a good dairy country. Adjoining the Nechaco Valley is the Stuart Lake country, where there is also considerable good agricultural lands for preemption.

These regions can be considered practically in exhaustible in their productiveness for agricultural pursuits The timber growth is comparatively light, although general, and sufficient natural meadows and grazing are to be had for stock purposes without clearing. The growth of natural grasses of the most nutritious kind for fodder is everywhere particularly noticeable where the timber is not so thick as to prevent any growth. The climate is mild. Settlement is not very extensive as yet, owing to the entire absence of transportation facilities up to the last month, and there has been no opportunity to get building material into start small towns around the railway stations,

THE PACKING OF APPLES

British Importers Favor Boxes Rather Than Barrels For Finer Grades

Interviews with British apple importers on the subject of packing in boxes or barrels indicate that the package is becoming a more important factor in trade than formerly, says a report issued by the Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce. "Which is the better package" cannot just be answered categorically. One class of package suits one trade, while another class of package is looked for by a different trade, a good deal depends on what trade is being catered for. There are certain varieties of apples more suitable for the box trade, and others more suitable for barrels. Apples of coarse texture, and whose appearance, so far as color is concerned, is not so good, can very readily be packed in barrels, while the apple with good appearance, whose texture is finer, and more suitable for dessert, can be packed in boxes. It will pay to do so, even at the extra cost of the box, packing and freight.

Feed For Sheep

In feeding sheep in winter hay is all-important, and, although a heavy root or cabbage crop may be an inducement to give them an extra bite to save it, it is a risky proceeding. Sheep need hay, and good hay. Sweet, well-made hay, the produce of young grass, is both easily digested and nourishing, and, after all, a daily ration costs very little in the end. Being a dry food, it is splendidly adapted for supplying to sheep on a watery root crop, which is by no means rich in nutritious matter. It sometimes happens that the turnip crop fails and then, if cabbage or kale are grown, all will be well. But where there is no such crop to fall back upon the pasture is the only resource, with the assistance of food in the trough.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolverton's"

COPYRIGHT, 1914, BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

"Missy," he cried, "yo' cert'ly done us proud. My soul! I couldn't er b'lieved' de baby I toted yeahs en yeahs ago ud ebber a' lived to act ex fine ex yo' done. I used to play I was yo' black mule. I reckon yi' don' 'member, honey, ridin' mule on ol' Uncle Jason's back, do yo'? En dar yo' was, honey, a-workin' me up till I 'clar to goodness I mos' cried my ol' eyes out. When Marse Enoch come out en made dat speech folkses hollered en got to der feet clappin' en bangin' sticks on de floor, I 'clar to de Lawd dar wa'n't a prouder ol' darky in New York den Uncle Jason."

Dorcas began to laugh and cry at once.

"I don' wonder yo's all done up, Missy. I's got de fines' supper ready fo' yo' yo' ebber see."

Dorcas was too unnerved to eat. She swallowed a cup of coffee and nibbled at the good things Jason had prepared. Then she went upstairs and began to undress. She brushed her hair, plaited it in two long braids, and slipped into a gray kimono, which folded itself about her in sheeny waves. The coffee had driven sleep away. She tossed a shawl about her shoulders and ran down through the silent house to the library. Wentworth often read there until long after midnight, and a coal fire was burning brightly.

She pushed an armchair close to the hearth and dropped into it wearily. She realized that she was very tired. She had not thought of nerves or body during the long weeks of rehearsal, with the incessant study, the multitude of detail, and the strange irregularity of life.

She began to live over again the last few hours and drew a long breath as she remembered the strangling terror which laid hold of her before she made her first entrance. When she heard her cue she felt dumb, crippled, almost blinded for one moment. The smile on Zilla Paget's face, as she stepped from the wings, stung her into action. There was scorn in it, and cruelty smoothed over by a sweet, beguiling perfidy, which aroused in the girl a sudden hate that she had never felt in her life before. The hatred made her forget everything except her part.

The recollection of a bit of gossip had flashed to her memory: Zilla Paget had prophesied that her "Cordelia" would be a dead failure. Before the end of that second act the intense loathing and scorn which Merry had put into her lines became real. The woman understood. She shrank with a terror which was scarcely simulated during the girl's denunciation of a mother who had lost all claim upon a child for love or respect. Seven times the curtain rose and fell upon the two women. Once a volley of hisses was hurled at Zilla Paget, and she smiled in happy triumph. Oswald and Merry stood in the wings watching the act. The intensity which Dorcas threw into her part stirred both men strongly, as it did the audience. They had anticipated womanly sweetness and tenderness, but they had not gauged her emotion to the depths.

"I never dreamed she could do anything like this," said Oswald slowly.

Merry did not speak. He had caught Zilla Paget's subtle smile. He knew there was more than acting in the scene.

While Dorcas sat gazing into the red caves of the coal fire she went over each situation in the play, step by step. Once she buried her face in the folds of her shawl; her cheeks were throbbing hotly. She felt Merry's kiss burn upon her lips. There had been no real kisses at rehearsal. The trust and love and gratitude with which the broken old convict turned to his child seemed real for a moment; she felt it when the actor touched her lips. Then she had fallen sobbing into his arms. She heard the audience sob with her. When she turned to glance aside through half-blinded eyes, she met the derisive smile of Zilla Paget, who stood in the wings. There was jealousy in her scorn. Her part was over for the night; she was dead to people in front. They had forgotten her, in spite of the applause she had won a half hour before. It hurt her vanity.

Dorcas came out of her reverie with a start. The door behind her closed, and Enoch walked in. His face was glowing with eager, impetuous triumph, his cheeks were flushed, and his eyes shone. He stooped suddenly to kiss his sister. She did not speak. It seemed years since she had seen him in such a mood.

"Dorry," he cried, "why did you rush home? Everybody was waiting to congratulate you. You lifted people off their feet; I swear, you took me off mine! The critics went wild over you and wanted to interview you. Tomorrow you'll be the talk of the town."

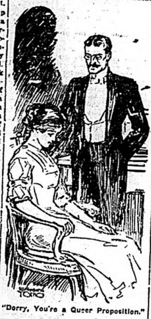
Everything that had blurred life seemed to vanish. It was wonderful that in a few hours the dreams of a lifetime should have come true. The girl laughed. Her heart had suddenly grown light.

"Enoch, I cannot make myself believe it."

He stood beside her with a proud smile upon his lips "Dorry, you're a queer proposition. Any other girl would have had her head turned by the triumph tonight. Why, child, in three hours you climbed straight onto a pedestal that many women work half a lifetime to reach. Even then they often miss it."

Enoch bent and lifted her face till her eyes looked into his. "There were minutes," he said fondly, "when I actually questioned whether it was the little sister herself or not."

Dorcas had never seen her brother so strangely excited. She wondered for a moment if he had been drinking, but she saw it was the intoxication of sudden success, not of wine. He paced about the library, talking, laughing, building a thousand plans for the future. The girl watched him curiously. It was a strange transition from the sullen silence of months.



"Dorry, You're a Queer Proposition."

The Enoch of light-hearted boyhood days had returned.

"You have a great future, Dorry." He stopped abruptly and his voice grew grave. "There is one thing I want to say. Don't," he hesitated and began to pace the room again, as if choosing his words carefully, "don't make a hero of Merry. He did well tonight. I have seen him set the whole town talking as he did in 'Esterbrook,' then topple back and go down, away down."

Dorcas rose from her chair and tossed the long braids of hair over her shoulders. Her eyes and cheeks were blazing. Wentworth's face grew inexorable. "Enoch," she cried, "how dare you say such a thing—to me?"

"What do you mean?"

"You know what I mean!" He saw her chin tremble. In spite of her anger she was on the verge of tears. "When people were calling for the author, how did you dare to go out and take the applause? Have you no conscience, no honor left?"

"Merry got as much applause as one man could stand." He looked at her with dogged defiance.

"That makes you none the less—a thief."

Enoch did not answer. He pulled a cigar from his vest pocket, lit it, and began to smoke. He did not flinch before his sister's gaze.

"I should have been the happiest girl in the world tonight, almost foolishly happy." There was a pitiful quaver in her voice. "I feel now as if I were disgraced. Men have gone to the penitentiary for stealing—less than you did."

Wentworth laughed scornfully. He tossed his cigar into the heart of the fire and turned upon Dorcas in sudden rage. "Stealing is not a nice word."

"It is nice enough for what has happened."

"Do you know," asked Wentworth with grave deliberation, "what did happen? Has Merry ever taken you into his confidence about this transaction?"

"Merry has never said one word against you—to me."

"Then reserve your judgment until he does. If you were to ask him, and if he played fair, he would tell you that it was a straight, honest bargain, a bargain bought and paid and signed for. Merry, with all his failings, is no welcher."

"Bought and paid and signed for?" repeated the girl in slow bewilderment. "How could you buy and pay for something conceived by another man's brain and written by another man's hand."

"That is my business, wholly," answered Enoch coldly. "It is an affair no woman would understand." He paused to light another cigar; then he turned to Dorcas with such authority as he had never used to her before. "I want to say one thing before you leave this room. It is about the question of the authorship of this play. It is not to be brought up again at any time between us. Do you understand?"

"I understand," Dorcas answered quietly. "I understand it is perfectly useless to appeal to a conscience which is dead."

Enoch shrugged his shoulders. "If that is the way you choose to put it, well and good. It seems to me a pity that you cannot drop this altogether and—forget. The future looks bright for both of us. We could easily go back to our old happy life if you would."

Dorcas moved toward the door. "I cannot forget. I promise you one thing, Enoch, I will never speak of it again."

"Thank you," said the man brusquely.

CHAPTER XV.

Master Robin Tully.

When the curtain dropped on the last act at a Saturday matinee, Dorcas paused on the way to her dressing-room and glanced out at the stage door. Rain was lashing the street in furious, wild-blown torrents. The few people who braved the storm bent their heads against it and plodded on with determination. Nearby, a street organ was wheezing the "Miserere" in pitiful appeal to a heedless crowd at the theater door.

Dorcas returned to her dressing-room. It was a delightfully cozy retreat—Mr. Oswald had seen to that. Alice Volk sat repairing a gown.

"Where's Julie?" Dorcas demanded.

"She's asleep in our dressing-room."

The girl seated herself in front of the mirror and began to remove her make-up. At intervals she glanced over a bunch of letters which lay on the dressing table.

"I used to wonder how it would feel to be famous. Of course I am not famous yet," said Dorcas quickly; "I am merely one of the people you hear of in passing. Still, I cannot grow accustomed to the queer experience of seeing my name blazoned on every housetop when I ride on the L, or finding my picture in papers and magazines. People stop on the street to stare at me; occasionally they whisper my name to some one who is with them. A girl I went to school with wrote the other day and asked for sixteen autographed portraits to give as favors at a party. She was a rich child, and at school she snubbed me unmercifully."

"It's the way of the world," the other woman answered. "A little of it came into my own life."

GERMANY GIVING WAY

Allies Are Pressing Steadily Forward Into Belgium.

The Foothold of the Kaiser's Troops on the Allies' Side of the Yser Has Been Lost and German Offensive on the Coast Is at an End—Disheartened Soldiers Are Deserting Wholesale.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—All reports indicate that the Germans have lost their last foothold on the allied side of the Yser, and that the French-British-Belgian forces are pushing steadily forward into Belgium. It may be stated positively that the German offensive on the coast is definitely ended. However, no one believes for a moment that the Kaiser's commanders will relax their efforts to cut a way through to the French coast. The next operation, it is thought certain, will be directed against Boulogne. For this purpose heavy reinforcements are arriving at a point not far from Ypres. North and northeast of that town allied forces won favorable positions yesterday, emphasizing their successful advance of the last three days, which has resulted in pushing the German front backwards a good distance from the town.

The British official press bureau at 11.15 p.m. issued the following statement of conditions in the western theatre of the war: "Severe fighting continues with little intermission along the allies' line, especially towards the north. The German resistance is stubborn, and fierce counter-attacks are made by them frequently.

"Nevertheless, the British are steadily gaining ground. In a counter-attack one brigade delivered a brilliant bayonet charge, accounting for many of the enemy, whose losses throughout the fighting are heavy."

Both The Handelsblad and The Telegraaf report that the Germans have evacuated Ostend.

Dutch correspondents declare that the German base at Aix-la-Chapelle, across the river from Liege, is being heavily fortified, and that the invaders are preparing for a retreat by way of Namur and Liege in the event of complete disaster. Great stores of war material are arriving at Aix-la-Chapelle. Information from Holland also says that many German soldiers, disheartened by their losses and the ineffectual attempt to take Dunkirk, are striving to reach Holland and surrender to the Dutch.

In order to prevent these wholesale desertions, the Germans have organized a bicycle patrol that is watching all roads to Dutch territory. Many German stragglers found on both the Belgian and Dutch side of the border are crazed from their terrible experiences on the fighting line.

The entire front from Nieuport eastward to a point beyond Ypres is covered with the corpses of German soldiers. At Dixmude the streets are choked with dead, and half-mad stragglers hide in the few remaining buildings. Every village between Nieuport and Dixmude has been completely obliterated. The allies are taking such sanitary precautions as the exigencies of the situation will allow.

It is again asserted in a despatch published in London that Lille has been reoccupied by the allied troops.

The French advance in Alsace and Lorraine is seriously troubling the German plan of strategy. The armies of the republic are now menacing Strassburg, where hurried preparations are under way to withstand a siege. All wounded Germans at St. Louis have been removed across the Rhine. Applications for safe conduct in Upper Alsace are denied.

Breastworks are being thrown up all along the Rhine, and both Metz and Cologne are in a state of excitement, as guards are doubled and the fortifications strengthened.

The Telegraaf states that fierce fighting between the Germans and the allies was restarted yesterday in Flanders. Heavy firing was heard all night, and yesterday German troops continually were moving to Zeebrugge, where the garrison had been reinforced by 11,000 marines stationed near Heyst.

There is a persistent rumor here that the allies have re-occupied Ostend, but this is regarded as premature. But the situation in Flanders and northwestern France is steadily improving. Early yesterday the Belgians opened the dykes of canals west of the River Yser and flooded a great area. When the surging waters approached the German trenches the men scrambled out and started a retreat. Immediately the allies' warships and a number of the French land batteries opened on the fleeing foe. The loss of life is said to have been appalling. Rain is falling steadily in this zone.

Fresh regiments of the reserve and several Prussian footguard regiments were thrown back from Couckelaere toward Bruges. Between Lepe and Middlekerke fierce fighting has taken place. The German batteries in this region could not be trained on the allies without sweeping their own advanced lines, and the fighting has been at close rifle range, interspersed with desperate bayonet charges.

A great many actors are said to be stranded abroad. Just as many are that way over here.

No doubt it is worrying the czar a great deal these days to know whether his Poles are negative.

They were so successful in localizing the war in Europe that pretty much every locality gets some of it.

When this war is over there probably will be no complaint for some time that Europe is overpopulated.

To say that the unexpected always happens is merely to confess our ignorance of what ought to be expected.

WELL, BUT TOO WISE

Love Letter to Toronto Girl Removed By the Censor.

"Your friend is quite well, but he knows too much."

This short message, in a strange, official-looking handwriting, was received this week by a young Toronto lady, who gentleman friend—a naval reservist from Toronto—is serving on one of the British warships in the North Sea. The envelope was addressed in the sweetheart's handwriting all right, but it had been cut open, the original contents removed, and the plain sheet bearing the above message inserted.

Across the envelope was the explanatory word, "censored."

The young lady states that her friend is quite a descriptive writer, and the conclusion is drawn that his love-letter innocently contained more news of the British fleet's movements than the censor considered good for the welfare of the Empire.

This treatment may be given to lots of letters from Canadian boys at the front, now or later, and may explain the meagreness of news from the Canadian contingent.

Influential Americans have become acquainted with ocean travel in a way that may eventually lead to some improvement of steerage conditions.

has been announced that the mes remained afloat for 40 min- . Of her crew, which numbered two hundred were landed at er by torpedo boats.

he loss of life in the sinking of Hermes was much smaller than e destruction of other warships German submarines. Only two were known to have been killed, ough 40 are missing, and only 9 injured.

Moffatt, surgeon of the British r Hermes, which was sunk by rman submarine, speaking last to a recruiting meeting on the ine parade ground at Dover, gave rief story concerning the sinking is vessel.

"We were all sitting at breakfast," Dr. Moffatt, "and the first mation we received that anything wrong was when the plates on table flew about the ward-room our breakfasts fell into our laps. re was no panic. Every men flew is station in good order. I went he "sick bay" and saw to the re- al of the invalids and then went deck again and reported that all sick men had been put into ts."

Dr. Moffatt urged an immediate re- onse to the call for men to support King and the country.

ULTIMATUM TO BALKANS.

voe Vremya Says If Allies Accord With Turkey It Will Be Treason.

ROME, Nov. 2. — A great impres- sion has been produced in Rome by an article appearing in the Russian newspaper Novoe Vremya, which is considered in Italian political circles to be an ultimatum for the Balkan States and also a warning for the neu- tral countries.

"The Balkans," the newspaper says, "cannot forget their past slav- ery, and that they became free chief- ly through Russian intervention. Now, the moment has come, not for words, but for deeds. Whoever is not with us is against us.

"Bulgaria, freed by Russia, cannot remain a spectator in the war. Her attempt at accord with an en- emy of Russia will be considered trea- . Bulgaria must choose between Turkey and Russia.

"At the end of the war only the participators in the gigantic conflict," the newspaper concludes, "will be in- vited to the banquet. Whoever thinks will snatch a mouthful without having made the necessary sacrifices, will be much mistaken."

PRAYING FOR BRITAIN.

Mohammedans In India Offset Turkish Action.

BISLIN, British India, Nov. 2.—(Via London.)—The announcement of the unfriendly attitude of Turkey toward the allies was made throughout India yesterday in an official communication, wherein the Viceroy of India deplores "the endeavor of a Chauvinistic element to drive Turkey into a war with Great Britain for the benefit of Germany and Austria."

The reception which the announcement received in the outlying districts will not be known for some days, but responsible leaders of the Mohammedan community already are holding meetings in support of Great Britain, while the mosques are offering prayers for the success of the British arms. The Mullahs are preaching homilies urging Turkey to maintain a neutrality or side with the allies.

Hon. P. S. G. MacKenzie Dead.

QUEBEC, Nov. 2. — The sudden death of Hon. Peter S. G. MacKenzie at his home in Melbourne, Que., at an early hour yesterday came as a severe shock to his many friends in this city. Mr. MacKenzie's death is attributed to apoplexy or heart failure.

Hon. Mr. MacKenzie was born in Cumberland House, Hudson Bay Territory, on Dec. 19, 1862. He was married two years ago to Miss Penfold of the Eastern Townships.

TURKS INVADE EGYPT AT WAR WITH ALLIES

Turkish Troops Have Entered British Protectorate While Berlin Despatch Says the Porte Has Formally Annexed Egypt — Turkish Fleet Is Reported To Be Menacing Ports on the Black Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Turkey has definitely thrown in her lot with Austria and Germany, and if Portugal is counted, there now are eleven powers at war, with prospects of three more —Greece, Bulgaria and Roumania—being drawn in.

It is reported here to-day that eight army corps (240,000 men) of the Sultan have crossed into Egypt.

A despatch from Rome says that it is reported that 400,000 Turkish troops are massed on the Caucasian border, and that 300,000 are awaiting at Jaffa, Beirut and Syrian ports for transportation to the Sinai Peninsula. All of these ports are guarded by French and British men-of-war.

The same despatch says that official notice of the mobilization of the Greek army has been served on the Italian Government.

The brother-in-law of the Khedive of Egypt, Prince Asuouf, now in Rome, has issued a statement declaring that Turkey is making the worst move of her career by going to war with the allies.

The note which Great Britain presented to Turkey on Friday last, demanding an explanation of the actions of the Turkish fleet in the Black Sea and the dismantling of the former German cruisers, the Goeben and the Breslau, was really an ultimatum, to which Turkey was requested to make a reply by Saturday morning.

So far as is known here, telegraphic communication with Turkey being interrupted, no answer was made, and the Ambassadors at the Ottoman capital of the Triple Entente, it is understood demanded and received their passports.

Turkish troops, which have been on the Egyptian border for some time, already are reported to have crossed the frontier, while the Turkish fleet continues to menace Russian towns and shipping in the Black Sea.

Turkey has formally annexed Egypt, according to a German official statement, which has been received from Berlin by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co.

Petrograd reports that the Turkish ambassador was given his passports yesterday.

Turkey's communications with Europe and Asia have been cut.

The Turkish Minister of the Interior informed Mr. Morgenthaux, U. S. Ambassador at Constantinople, that Turkish warships within the last three days had bombarded Sebastopol.

Neither Russia nor Great Britain was unprepared for this move on the part of Turkey which, Government officials say, was known to have been under the influence of Germany and the allied powers have forces on hand ready to oppose a Turkish invasion.

When the regular forces were withdrawn from Egypt to take part in the war in Europe they were immediately replaced by troops from home, much greater in numbers at least, and only last week they paraded through the streets of Cairo, making a splendid impression.

The British Foreign Office statement says:

"The Turkish Minister of War, with his German advisers, has lately prepared an armed force for attack upon Egypt. The Mosul and Damascus army corps have, since their mobilization, been constantly sending troops south, preparatory to the invasion of Egypt and the Suez Canal. From Akabah and Gaza, a large body of Bedouin Arabs has been called out and armed to assist in this venture, and some of these have crossed the Sinai frontier. Transports has been collected and roads have been prepared up to the frontier of Egypt.

"Mines have been despatched to be laid in the Gulf of Akabah.

"The notorious Sheik Aziz Shawish has published and disseminated through Syria and probably India, an inflammatory document urging the Mohammedans to fight against Great Britain."

Dr. Pruffer, who was so long engaged in intrigues in Cairo against British occupation, and who is now attached to the German embassy in Constantinople, has been busily occupied in Syria to incite the people to take part in this conflict.

TSINGTAU BURNING.

Desperate Fighting Going On at Far East Fortress.

TOKIO, Nov. 2. — Official advices show that a desperate fight is being made at Tsingtau. For miles from shore the sea reflects the flames from the burning ship yards, gas reservoirs and houses that had been set afire by shells from the Japanese and British warships and land artillery which cover the rushes of the infantry.

The Germans are strongly entrenched, having at least thirty-five fortified positions, with 100 guns, while elaborate systems of barbed wire entanglements and subterranean mines have impeded the advance of the allies. Since Oct. 28 there have been casualties daily. The losses Saturday were slight.

ITALIAN CABINET CRISIS.

War Tax Disagreement Causes Resignation of the Ministry.

ROME, Nov. 2.—The members of the Cabinet presented their resignations to the King Saturday night. The King reserved decision and invited the Presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies and leading statesmen to confer with him on the situation. It is generally believed that Premier Salandra will be asked to form a new Cabinet within a few days.

Following the resignation of the Cabinet all Italy is aflame with the war fever. Public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of the allies, the people demanding to be led against the Germans and Turks. Demonstrations took place in many cities yesterday, and in some instances troops had to be called to prevent rioting.

The army is mobilized and one million men are ready to go on the fighting line. If Albania should be seized by either Turkey or Austria, Italy's control of the Adriatic would be seriously imperilled.

It is asserted that Gen. Zuppelli and Vice-Admiral Viale will retain respectively the portfolios of marine and war.

All the Cabinet Ministers who resigned Saturday met yesterday in the presence of King Victor Emmanuel, with whom they discussed the situation for about two hours.

Owing to the European crisis, Signor Rubini continued, the revenues instead of increasing had diminished by about $20,000,000, the new taxation bringing in $6,000,000 instead of $16,000,000. He added that he recognized that necessary for urgent military expenses, but wished to counterbalance them with new taxations.

A majority of the Ministers preferred to postpone the taxation until after the war.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—Liverpool cables were 1½d to 2d higher, and Paris 1½d higher, causing an extremely strong opening on the local market today to the extent of ½d to 1½d. The advance, however, did not last long. A decline set in owing to heavy profit taking, and the gain of the morning was lost, prices becoming steadier around yesterday's close.

A fairly heavy export trade is being carried on daily. One firm early in the day had worked 60,000 to 70,000 bushels of wheat, and fair sales are also being made of oats and barley. During the week the amount of sales for export has been heavy, and there appears to be enough wheat offered to fill requirements.

FEARS FOR MISSIONARIES.

Berlin, Ont., Mennonites Are In Danger In Turkey.

BERLIN, Ont., Nov. 2.—Fear for the safety of a number of Mennonite missionaries in Turkey is entertained here. The headquarters of these missionaries are at Everett and Hadgin, and although they have $2,000 in the banks in those places, they cannot withdraw their accounts owing to seizure by the Turkish authorities.

The British consuls, in these places are endeavoring to see them safe to the border. Their houses have been taken for military purposes by the Turkish Government.

Those from Ontario in that section of Turkey are Mrs. Barker and two children, the family of Rev. Mr. Barker who is now home on deputation work; Mr. and Mrs. D. Eby, Mr. and Mrs. Storms, while Misses Bredemus, Lambert, Tomey and Misses Bowman are from Indiana.

Fell Into Mine Shaft.

KINGSTON, Nov. 2.—Jas. Abrams, aged 25, was killed; Thomas Stevens had his leg broken, and another man whose name is not known, had a narrow escape. The men were doing some work around a dismantled shaft of a mica mine at Sydenham Village, when some of the timbers gave way and the men fell into the shaft, a distance of 40 feet.

Abrams met almost instant death. He was married. Dr. D. E. Mundell, coroner, of this city, has been notified and will hold an inquest to-day. Stevens, the injured man, was brought to the Kingston General Hospital.

King Albert Meets Poincare.

HAVRE, Nov. 2.—Having left the firing line in Belgium to receive President Poincare, who paid them a visit of ceremony, King Albert and the Queen are here "on furlough." The royal couple soon will return to the war zone. King Albert, whose democracy is patent in his sayings to the soldiers, "My skin is worth no more than yours," visits all parts of the trenches encouraging his troops, and Queen Elizabeth takes an active part in the field hospital work and does notably efficient work because of her medical training.

Used Lances on Foot.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—A semi-official announcement was made in Paris Saturday afternoon, as follows:

"In one of our attacks delivered the day before yesterday a village, strongly held by the enemy's infantry, supported by artillery, was taken by a detachment of French unmounted cavalry belonging to two dragoon regiments. The men charged with their lances in their hands. The enemy left in the village more than 200 dead, and abandoned 200 of their wounded."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

The British army list issued Friday shows that the German and Austrian Emperors have been dropped from the roster as British Field Marshals.

Gen. Otter will be in charge of the internment of the prisoners of war throughout Canada. He will have full power as regards the location of the internment camps.

Official warning of a German mine field off the north coast of Ireland was issued Saturday by the British Admiralty, which warned all ships not to pass within sixty miles of Tory Island.

A son has been born to Capt. Hamar Greenwood, M.P. for Sunderland, well known in Canada, who is now engaged in connection with home recruiting and ammunition supply in Britain.

Maj.-Gen. Sam Hughes sailed from England on Saturday by the St. Paul of the American Line. He is expected to arrive at New York next Saturday and to be in Ottawa the day following.

The French army casualty list issued yesterday contains the name of Col. H. Defrie, the son of a popular hero and the youngest superior officer in the French army, killed on the fighting line.

Kingston's war veterans have been provided with four machine guns for home defence by citizens. This action has been taken owing to the possibility of an attack this winter by Germans from the United States.

P. J. Stone, aged 58, died yesterday at the Collingwood General Hospital as the result of an accident from a fall at Oshawa at the races in September. He was widely known throughout the province for his interest in horses.

FATHER OF 17 ASKS STATE FOR AN AUTO

Tells Govenor Of Texas Big Family Entitles Him To Car

As a reward for having a family of 17 children, P. K. DeLany, Rural Route No. 8, box 12, Seguin, Guadaloupe county, has requested the governor to give him and his wife and children an automobile to convey them to and from church and Sunday-school, the church being seven miles from where they live.

The request came in a letter received by the governor, and accompanying it was a picture of the family. Mr. Delany writes:

"Our family group is supposed to be one of the largest in the state, consisting of 17 children, 10 daughters, seven sons, one son-in-law, one granddaughter, father and mother. All are alive and healthy, without a mark or blemish. 15 of the children are at home and two are married—Mrs. John Anderson, of Seguin, and Mrs. Rose McCullough, of Moore. We live seven miles from church and Sunday-school. Don't you think the state ought to give us an automobile to attend church and Sunday-school? We hope for an early reply."

Governor Colquitt answered, thanking Mr. LeLany for the great service he had rendered the state, but informed him that there was no appropriation for furnishing automobiles in recognition of such accomplishments.—Austin, Tex., dispatch to New York World.

Football

Grand Trunk Tigers Defeated by O. S. D. Team in Snappy Game

A splendid game of football was witnessed between the Grand Trunk Tigers and the O. S. D. on the Institute grounds. Two of the Tigers were hurt, one seriously. The score at half time was 1-0 in favor of the O.S.D. About the middle of the second half the deaf boys scored a goal, which the referee pronounced off-side. This decision was disputed by one of the spectators, who of course had no right to interfere with the game on any condition, being only a spectator. However, the referee, being the one to decide these things gave ut the final score as O. S. D. 1 and Grand Trunk Tigers 0.

LOSSES ENORMOUS.

German Casualties In Flanders Alone Total 150,000 Men.

LONDON, Nov. 2. — A correspondent of The Observer, writing from France, says: "The German losses have been enormous. A German officer captured yesterday estimated that there have been 150,000 killed or wounded since the occupation of Ostend, in Northwest Flanders alone. Whole batteries and battalions have been annihilated by the shell fire from the warships. Thousands have been drowned as the result of the opening of the dykes. In hand-to-hand fighting the German losses have far exceeded those of the allies. Thousands of bodies of Germans floating on the inland sea bear bayonet wounds.

"Only the main roads and railroad tracks remain exposed above the flooded area. The shattered German regiments are being given no time to re-form and amalgamate. They are abandoning their wounded, guns and transports. Unless their fleet comes out to create a diversion they will be driven from the Belgian coast within a week."

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The British official information bureau issued the following yesterday:

TIPPERARY SONG CAPTURES HOT SPRINGS

Several Hundred Society People Sang it for Hours at Hallowe'en Dance

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—It's a Long way to Tipperary," sang several hundred society people in the Homestead Hotel Saturday night, not once, but many times, until the song all warring Europe is singing was given the greatest ovation ever accorded a piece of popular music here. The crowd, as it whirled through the maddest dance of the season in the grill, celebrating Hallowe'en howled it twenty-seven minutes straight by the watch, and literarry sang it for four hours, with slight intermissions. It seemed to stir the people tremendously. During the longest rally the dancers shouted, men stood in their chairs along what might be termed the sidelines, waving their hands to the rhythm, while others taking seats with the negro jubilee singers, raised the roof with sound.

Among the most delighted of those present were the Canadian Premier, Sir Robert Borden, and Lady Borden.

SUFFRAGISTS WIN POINT OVER MEN

Entrees to Contest for $50 were Shy on Unanswerable Logic

CEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 31.—Suffrage leaders of Cuyhoga county announced to-day that three impartial jduges were unable to find one unanswerale logical and anti-suffrage argument among the hundreds offered in a contest which closed to-day.

The contest, which was for a prize of fifty dollars, was open to all male voters who thought they could tell in less than 200 words why women should not vote.

The essay competition was another novel move in the campaign to gain votes for the proposed suffrage amendment to the state constitution which comes before the voters November 3.

SAYS WOMEN SUFFER FROM "AMERICANITIS"

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—As a part of their program, the members of the Lakeview Women's Club had their blood pressure taken to determine whether they are affected with "Americanitis" Dr. W. S. Sadler made the test.

"Fifty per cent of you have "Americanitis," said the physician. "The disease is low blood pressure or high blood pressure. It is caused by 12 or 15 things. Six or eight of these causes may be operating at one time. Four of them are from eating high-pressure food, eating meat tao frequently, use of tea, coffee and drugs and worry."

The thread of many a discourse is merely a yarn.

DOGS MAY TRANSMIT MANY DISEASES

Appendicitis One of Them, According to London Physician—Don't Keep Animals in House

How many people know that appendicitis in a large number of cases is directly traceable to dogs? For years the grapepip or other equally inoffensive articles have been blamed unjustly for civilization's most fashionable affliction.

"Nothing on earth would induce me to have a dog in the house," said a prominent doctor in the West End of London. "Professor Metchnikoff has discovered that dogs are extremely liable to a form of very tiny threadworm. The spores get into the fur, and a lady eating her bread and butter after fumbling the dog about could very easily transmit them to her own body. Once a threadworm gets into the appendix you have appendicitis; in some parts of France about 75 per cent. of the cases are due to this particular form of threadworm in dogs.

"You see, domestic pets are so unhygienic. A dog cannot tell you of the earliest symptoms of a disease, which is thoroughly developed before you can diagnose it. From a sanitary point of view, houses are much healthier without animals in them.

"Dogs are not the only offenders. Diphtheria is chiefly promulgated by cats. Whenever you find it among schoolchildren, suspect the cat. Canaries are specially subject to mumps, and many outbreaks among children have been traced to these feathered pets.

"Human beings were not supposed to live herded with animals—the days of the Ark are over and gone."

Mr. W. Kirk, a well known London veterinary surgeon, took a different view of the matter. "There is no danger in handling dogs in the ordinary way," he said, "and there are few diseases except rabies which can be transferred to a human subject. You might have a low kind of fever from the infliction of wounds caused by the foul teeth of an old dog; but that is very infrequent."

OUTLOOK FAVORABLE TO THE ALLIED FORCES

Germans Have Completely Abandoned the Left Bank of the Yser--Determined Efforts of the Enemy Have Been Met Without a Reverse--Heavy Cannonading, and the Fiercest Efforts Checked

(Canadian Press Despatch Exclusively to The Intelligencer)

ALLIED FORCES ARE MAINTAINING POSITIONS

PARIS, Nov. 3.—An official announcement this afternoon says:—

"On our left wing the enemy seems to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser down stream to Dixmude, and reconnaisances by troops of the Allies undertaken on the highways of the inundated regions were successful in re-occupying the points of passage across the river without difficulty.

"To the south of Dixmude and in the direction of Gheluvit our advance was particularly perceptible.

"In the region to the north of the Lys, in spite of determined attacks by the Germans in considerable force, our front was everywhere maintained or re-established by the end of the day.

"Fresh attacks by the Germans on the environs of Arras resulted in failures.

"On the centre, in the region of the Aisne, to the east of the forest of Aigue, we have made some progress. To the east of Vailly, according to the latest news, those of our troops who had positions on slopes of the plateaus to the north of the villages of Chavonne and Soupir, had been compelled to draw back into the valley to the east of this location. We have maintained our positions at Anout on the right bank of the river.

"There was violent cannonading during the day between Rheims and the Meuse as well as on the heights of the Meuse.

"Further efforts on the part of the Germans in the forest of Argonne have been checked.

"We have continued to make progress to the northwest of Pouta Mousson.

"On our right wing there have been some engagements favorable to our arms along the River Seille."

"The Minerva then shelled the port and the troops. The town was evacuated and landing parties from the Minerva proceeded to destroy the forts, barracks, post office and stores.

"There was some loss to the enemy but no British casualties."

Valuable Steeplechaser Killed in Active Service

The horse had been ridden by the jockey Alec. Carter, who was recently killed in action while serving as a captain of the French Dragoons. The army, in requisitioning the horse, paid his owner 4,000 francs ($800).

Montreal Syrians Among The Enemy

They Will be Affected in Same Way as Germans and Austrians in City

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—The members of the Syrian colony of Montreal will probably soon be placed in the position of an "alien enemy," following Turkey's latest move, for Syria is a Turkish province. Many of the prominent members of the Syrian colony have become naturalized citizens of Canada but this, by no means, applies to all.

No orders have as yet been issued from Ottawa to the military authorities here with regard to treating Syrians who are not naturalized as hostile aliens. This step could scarcely be taken, however, before war is actually declared between England and Turkey, but as soon as Turkey is actually at war with Britain, all subjects of the Ottoman Empire, natives of Syria included, will become at once on the same footing as German and Austrian citizens. They may then be called upon to "prove up" if the authorities deem it necessary.

On the other hand, the same regulations which prescribe that German and Austrian citizens who follow their usual occupations in a peaceful manner shall not be molested, will also apply to the citizens of the latest Empire to be ranked as an "enemy" nation.

Aeroplanes Seen At Ogdensburg

FRANKLIN CENTRE, Que., Nov. 2.—The frequent reports of aeroplanes heard flying at night in the neighboring State have heretofore been credited largely to people who thought they saw moving lights in the sky, or heard the clatter of the motors of these aerial machines. But now there seems to be some tangible daylight evidence of these flights. At Ogdensburg on Thursday afternoon a number of persons in the business section of the city saw two aeroplanes fly over the city from south to north, at a great height and with tremendous speed. The machines were so high up that the exhausts of the engines could not be heard, one person describes the machine which he saw as outlined against the heavens like a great white bird. They seemed to be travelling in the direction of Montreal.

PETITION FILED IN INSOLVENCY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—An application was made to the courts today and a petition filed in the Insolvency Court for a winding up order against W. S. Scroggie, one of the largest dry goods stores in the city. The immediate claim is for $354.55 on a promissory note which was not met. The liabilities are said to be $700,000.

FINE APARTMENTS FOR THE BELLEVILLE CLUB

The work of rebuilding what is known as the Schuster block on the corner of Bridge and Pinnacle street, is progressing in a most satisfactorily manner. This block was virtually destroyed by fire last winter, and recently it was procured by the members of the Belleville Club limited, who are having beautiful quarters prepared for them.

On the ground floor there will be two stores as formerly, on Bridge street, and two new stores on Pinnacle street. The entrance to the Club premises will also be from Pinnacle street. The coat room and main lavatory are also on the ground floor, opening off the entrance lobby.

On the second floor the lounge room, which will be the main room of the club, is situated. This room will be 60x33, and will be handsomely furnished. The wood work and flooring will be in quarter oak, and the room, which has a ceiling height of 11'-6", will be panelled from floor to cornice. On Pinnacle street three French windows provide light to this room, and there will also be two windows facing Bridge street. On Pinnacle street side there will be a balcony, extending nearly the whole length of the building. The lounge room will be electrically lighted with the semi-indirect system.

The reception hall will be on the second floor, also a lunch room, 25x17, from off the reception hall. A pantry and service stair complete second floor.

On the third floor will be a commodious billiard and pool room, provided with first class tables and fixtures. Light for this room will be provided by four windows on Bridge street, and three on Pinnacle street. From off the billiard room two bed rooms and two card rooms will be provided, also a secretary's office and caretaker's quarters, with separate bath room. In addition to the main lavatory on ground floor, further accommodation is provided on the billiard room floor. The decorations proposed throughout the whole building will be elaborate. No pains will be spared by the management in making the Club apartment up-to-date in every respect. The estimated cost is $25,000, and it is expected the premises will be in readiness for opening on January 1st of next year.

Mr. E. H. Yeigh of Toronto, is the architect in charge, and the work is proceeding under the supervision of Mr. Joshua Lang of Belleville.

When completed there is no doubt that the Club will have one of the finest lounge rooms in Ontario.

GERMANY'S FIRST AID TO TURKEY, $50,000,000.

Copenhagen, November 2—It ais reported tht Germany's preliminary war contribution to Turkey is $50,000,000. Financial circles in Germany are preparing for the issuance of a new war loan of $1,250,000,000.

Mr. Gordon B. Johnson

Son of J. W. Johnson, M. P. P., En Route to Join Regiment

Mr. Gordon B. Johnson, C. E., is in Belleville paying a short visit to his father, Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.P., before leaving for the war. Mr. Johnson has just arrived in Canada from Japan on his way to England and was accompanied by his wife and little son (ten months old) as far as Ottawa, where they are visiting Mrs. Johnson's father, Mr. F. W. Avery. Mr. Johnson goes to join his old regiment, the Royal Engineers. He is a graduate of the Royal Military College of Canada, served for five years with the corps in England and Ceylon and resigned his commission to go into railway building in China. He was engaged in the construction of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway for five years and returned to Canada about five years ago and has since practiced his profession of Civil Engineer. About a year ago the Trade and Commerce Department of the Government of Canada was looking for a man of experience in the Orient to take up the duties of Trade Commissioner for Canada in Japan. The position was offered to and accepted by Mr. Johnson. Immediately after war was declared he cabled from Japan to the Canadian Government, requesting leave of absence before tendering his services to the War Office, which was granted. He sails from Montreal next week.

Soldiers Had "Soft Stuff"

Ginger Ale Was Strongest Drink the Thirsty Ones Got On the Voyage Over

MONTREAL Nov. 2.—The Canadian Pacific steamer Virginian is the first of the vessels which carried the Canadian troops of the First Overseas Contingent to England last month to return to Montreal. She reached port on Saturday night. Yesterday the officers told of the trip, and how ginger ale was the strongest drink the troops had had on the sixteen days' trip to Plymouth. For several hours before the ship left Montreal for Quebec men worked busily carrying cases of the "soft stuff" on board, but stronger drink was left ashore. The bar was closed on the voyage; its staff sold candy and cigarettes instead.

"We had 1,398 soldiers on board, from the First British Columbia Regiment and the Army Service Corps," said one of the boat's officers yesterday. They were kept pretty busy drilling, and I believe they complained a little because no liquor was to be obtained. They have the wet canteen on Salisbury Plain, so those who wanted their 'little drop' will be happy now, I suppose.

The Virginian brought about one hundred passengers from Liverpool. She had a rough trip for this time of year, experiencing three days of heavy sea and twelve hours' fog. She came by the straits of Belle Isle, but saw little ice.

OLD RAILWAY MAN DEAD IN TORONTO

Late Mr. Donald McDermid Worked on the C. P. R. Mountain Division

TORONTO, Nov. 2.—The death occurred yesterday of Donald McDermid, at his residence, 611 Jarvis street. Deceased, who was seventy years old, came from Scotland, and became connected with the Canadian Pacific Railway, being on the mountain division, where he constructed bridges, snow sheds and such works, at the same time that Mackenzie and Mann were contractors on the road. Mr. McDermid was at one time associated with Mr. J. S. Hendrie, now the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the firm being known as McDermid and Hendrie. Deceased had been living retired for some time and has been in poor health for the past two years. He is survived by five daughters, his wife having predeceased him in 1910.

Taken For Deer, Mayor Was Shot

Fatality Over Week-End at Chapleau Hunt Club Costs Life of Noted Guide

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—Mistaken for a deer by a party of Montreal professional and business men, Arthur Desmarteau, a noted guide of the Labelle district and mayor of the little village of La Minerva, was shot and killed on Saturday at Chapleau, Que. The accident occurred whilst the members of a hunting party were scouring the woods for their quarry. A movement in the branches of a thicket some distance away was taken as an indication that a deer had been rounded up, and one of the mebers of the party, it is supposed, fired in direction of the moving object. The shot found its mark and with a groan Desmarteau dropped to the earth mortally wounded. Horror-stricken members of the party rushed to his side and did everything possible to aid the injured man. He was hurriedly conveyed to the clubhouse of the Chapleau Hunting Club, where medical aid was quickly summoned. Despite the efforts of the physicains, however, Desmarteau's wound was found to have been in a vital spot, and he expired a short time later. The coroner of the district was notified of the circumstances and instructions were given to hold an inquest over the remains.

The deceased was one of the best-known guides of the district, and for years had served in this capacity with parties of the club members, both from Montreal and Ottawa.

MOVING PICTURE REUNITES COUPLE

TORONTO, Nov. 2—Fred Robeson, superintendent of a tunnel company, and Mrs. Robeson, held a happy reunion at Richmond, Cal., a search of four years' duration having ended in a picture theatre.

Robeson was injured in a mine explosion near Scranton, Pa., on Feb. 22, 1911, and was taken to a hospital. Mrs. Robeson was on the way to visit her parents in College City, O., but was so overcome by news of the accident to her husband that her mind became affected while on the train and she was taken to an asylum, where she remained for eighteen months.

Recovering from his injuries, Robeson searched for his wife, without success. A year ago he went to Richmond. The other day he visited a moving picture theatre there and as a film depicting a mine explosion was shown a woman in the audience screamed.

Lights were turned on and Robeson was overjoyed to find that the woman was his wife, who has been living in Richmond for several months.

2ND CONTINGENT LEAVE FOR TRAINING CAMP

Thirty-Nine Men and Three Officers from the 49th Regiment of Hastings County--The 15th Regiment Well Represented --the Addresses at Armories and March to Station

Thirty-nine young men who enlisted with the Fifteenth Regiment of this city, and thirty-nine who enlisted with the 49th Regiment of Hastings County left today for Kingston, as members of the second overseas contingent. They were a fine looking body of sturdy young Canadians, who, we have no doubt, will give a good account of themselves wherever they may be sent. The boys were given what they deserve—a hearty send-off, being cheered lustily along the line of march from the Armouries to the railway station, where they embarked. A large number accompanied the brave boys to the station and the 15th Regiment Band, playing stirring martial music, led the parade. Col. Marsh, of the 15th Regiment, and Col. Ketcheson, of the 49th Regiment, were amongst the officers in attendance. A goodly number of the members of the 15th Regiment turned out as an escort to their brothers-in-arms. The honor roll is as follows:—

It may be stated that three of those who enlisted with the 49th regiment are Italians, and one, R. Murrella, for deeds of valor in the Turkish-Italian war, won the Garibaldi scarf. All three are exceedingly anxious for the opportunity of fighting with the allies.

AT THE ARMOURIES.

There were hundreds of citizens, many of whom were ladies, at the Armouries to give the boys a send-off. The volunteers of the 15th regiment were each provided with a lunch, the same being the gift of Mrs. Col. Lazier. The men were then brought to attention by Col. Marsh.

Mayor Wills, being called upon, spoke briefly. He said he could assure the men that all citizens were proud of them. A number from the city went with the first contingent and now a number had volunteered for the second contingent. He was indeed proud to see so many of the Canadian boys offering their services. He could assure those who went away that if they left behind any who were dependent upon them they would be well looked after. That the honor of the city and country would be upheld by them he had not the slightest doubt. He wished them on behalf of the city good-bye and God's blessing.

Rev. Canon Beamish, Chaplain of the 15th regiment, said the men were going away to do duty for their country, and that they would do to same faithfully there was not a shadow of a doubt. Many of the boys were known to him and he was proud of them all. The Chaplain said that he wished he were going with them, as he would very much like to. The Lord's Prayer was then repeated in unison and the blessing of the Chaplain closed the proceedings.

Headed by the regimental band the march to the G. T. R. station was made and it was a triumphal march—not hundreds, but some thousands assembled at the station to give the boys a parting cheer and send-off. Whilst waiting for the train the band rendered some selections and the Albert College boys and girls sang some appropriate songs. Three students from the college are among those who volunteered. The boys were taken to Kingston where they will remain for some time drilling. Upon the train were volunteers from Port Hope, Cobourg and other places.

BRAVE VOLUNTEERS REMEMBERED BY THE BELLEVILLE LADIES

In the lecture room at the Armouries evening a number of ladies from the city and others gathered. The boys who enlisted with the second contingent as members of the 15th regiment, marched to the room, when the object of the gathering was apparent.

Mrs. Col. Lazier, in a brief but appropriate address stated that the boys had enlisted to fight for their country and the ladies had done some work for them by way of making some few necessaries for their comfort. Some of the supplies would no doubt be used by them. Whilst away they would be ever kindly remembered.

The boys were then called out one by one and given a parcel, and each gratefully acknowledged the same.

Col. Lazier said it was a pleasure to speak to the boys who were going away. He sincerely hoped all of them would return home. If they ever reached the firing line they would no doubt do their duty.

Col. Ponton spoke a few words of commendation to the boys, praising them for the sacrifice they were making. He said it would be a glad and glorious day when they all come back again, which he hoped would be the case. Theirs was an evidence of manhood which was wanted in this campaign. Hearty cheers were then given by the boys for the ladies and the proceedings closed.

HALF MILLION GERMANS ARM CANADA WARNED OF INVASION

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—The stories that the Germans of the United States are contemplating a raid of Canada have been given emphasis in a letter received by Mr. William Galbraith, former Mayor of Westmount, on Saturday. The letter which came from the vice-president of one of the biggest railways in the Western States said:

"I overheard a conversation last night on a steamboat going from Norfolk to Richmond. It was between Germans, and to the effect that all the German singing societies, which are 500,000 strong, are carrying on a propaganda of secret arming and other arrangements for the purpose of attacking Canada from this side. It will pay Canada to be on her guard against anything like this. The Germans here are bitter partisans will attempt anything to beat the British, and involve this country in the conflict."

Steps have been taken to bring this information to the attention of the Dominion Government.

CHILD'S PLAY TO COST HER HEARING

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—A child's play may cost the hearing of Mrs. Mylie Vingarofsy, 403 City Hall avenue. While the woman was holding her infant daughter on her shoulder while at work in the kitchen on Saturday afternoon, the child drew a hair-pin from the mother's hair and began to toy with it. The sharp wire was suddenly thrust into the woman's ear, and she shrieked, bringing her husband to the room. He found her in agony, the ear drum having been pierced.

The woman was rushed to the General hospital but the doctors have little the hope of saving her hearing in that ear, the drum having been ruptured.

SUDDEN DEATH OF ESTIMABLE LADY

At an early hour this morning death came suddenly to Mrs. Captain Pascoe Vanderwaters of Sidney Township. Hemmhorage of the brain was the cause of death. Last evening Mrs. Vanderwaters was apparently in the best of health. Deceased was formerly Miss Hetty Ketcheson being the only daughter of Col. and Mrs. W. G. Ketcheson of Sidney, and was born in Sidney and lived there all her life. She was only 26 years of age, having been born in 1888. A year ago she was married to her now sorrowing husband. Mrs. Vanderwaters was a lady well known and much esteemed by a large circle of relatives and friends. She was a member of the Methodist church. In addition to the husband and parents two brothers, Milton of Sask., and Lawrence, at home, survive. To those who have so suddenly been called upon to mourn the loss of a beloved one, will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of a host of friends.

An Oversight Re P.O. Improvements

Inadvertently, in our our sketch of the improvements at the Belleville postoffice a paragraph was omitted giving credit to the popular and aggressive Federal member for West Hastings, Mr E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., by whom the needed conveniences were obtained. This is but one of many favors the Government has conferred upon this district through our enterprising townsman, which, we feel assured, is freely appreciated by his constituents.

LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial? Especially if you could try it for fifty cents!

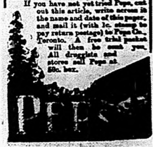
Peps is the discovery!

Peps are little tablets, neatly wrapped in air and germ-proof silver foil. They contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air sacs in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Peps are entirely distinct from the old fashioned liquid cough cures, which are merely swallowed into the stomach, and never reach the lungs. Peps treatment of coughs and colds is direct treatment.

If you have not yet tried Peps, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.



AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief; the Chiropractor permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (disease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect, (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chiropractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD GIVES FINE SOCIAL

St. Andrew's Sunday School room was gay in Hallowe'en attire last night when the Young People's Guild held their social evening. Grotesque looking pumpkin faces, apples on strings, false faces, in fact everything that goes to make up Hallowe'en, were in evidence everywhere. A short programme was provided, consisting of the following:—

Instrumental—Miss K. Dulmage.
Recitation—Mr. Geo. Kelly.
Solo—Miss M. Waters.
Recitation—Miss H. Ketcheson.
Solo—Miss L. Sharpe.

The peanut contest was won by Mrs. A. P. Allen and the advertisement contest by Miss H. Ketcheson.

Hallowe'en games proved great fun and enjoyment and finally the refreshments were declared the best part of a very pleasant evening.

MANY POSITIONS TAKEN

Allies Achieve Victory Upon Victory Along Entire Front.

French Are Advancing Steadily In the Vosges and Heavy Batteries Are Taken In Mountain Passes—Tremendous German Attacks on Dixmude-Lys Line Fail—Flooding of Land Stops Kaiser's Advance.

LONDON, Nov. 3. — While war clouds hung heavy over the Balkans and the Mediterranean yesterday, furious contests took place all along the allied front from the channel to Switzerland, with particularly notable victories to the French arms in the Vosges. With snow falling and bitter winds blowing, the armies of the republic are wresting one position after another from the German grasp in this mountain range. Versines de Sainte Marie is the latest fruit of victory. A late despatch says that several passes where the Germans had mounted heavy batteries were taken yesterday. It is claimed that the French not only captured the guns of the invaders, but have brought up a number of 75 millimetre pieces and succeeded in shelling the Germans as they fell back.

It is authoritatively stated that the Kaiser's forces were decisively beaten in a series of violent assaults on the Franco-British front from Dixmude to the River Lys. The Germans delivered tremendous attacks on the allied trenches and after losing thousands as the result of especially accurate French artillery fire, the French and British turned them back with the bayonet.

Despite all hammering the Germans continue to hold positions on the allied side of the Yser and are stubbornly contesting every effort to dislodge them. But the cutting of the dykes by the Belgians has effectually stopped any effort of the enemy to advance further. All of the fields in the country bounded by Nieuport and Dixmude are under several feet of water and Belgian troops, supported by their own very effective artillery and numerous batteries from the French and British armies, are posted along the railroad and electric road embankments, on the highways and every high spot of ground. To advance, the Germans must come up narrow routes a few feet wide. Such a target as their masses would offer in operations of this character could mean nothing less than utter annihilation for the foe.

West of Nieuport to the coast, the country is free of Germans and the allied fleet continues to frustrate every effort of the Kaiser's men to pierce this country. It is said on good authority that the allies are now within four miles of Ostend and can take that town at their leisure, as it is defended by only a handful of the foe.

A courier bearing despatches to the Duke of Wurtemburg, from the Kaiser, has been captured. Unless Ypres was taken by Nov. 1, said the German War Lord, the invaders must fall back. He bid the duke exert every means within his power to carry the town.

The outskirts of Arras were reached yesterday by an advancing column of the foe before a heroic charge drove them back several miles. Bloody conflicts have taken place around Lille, which appears to have been vacated by the Germans. The situation is very confused in this region and little can be accurately told. Following a previous defeat at Amont-de-Vailly the French have won a success of considerable importance.

North of the Meuse, French forces have driven the Germans further back. To the east, around Ban de Sapt, a number of high points have been taken depriving the Germans of artillery bases that commanded several towns, including St. Die. This is regarded as a victory of much value.

The communique of the Belgian Government, issued from Havre, lays great stress on the fact that Pelkapelle has been surrounded. This gives the allies command of roads leading to Dixmude, Ypres, Roulers and Thourout. The Belgians also rejoice over the compulsory evacuation by the Germans of Rasmacapelle, which they held in part. Many prisoners were taken, says the statement, and the Germans thrown back of an important railway line.

It is reported, the despatch adds, that the allies Sunday occupied Leffinghe, on the Ostend-Nieuport Canal, which, if true, means that the Germans suffered a heavy defeat.

VESUVIUS IN ERUPTION.

Inhabitants of Vicinity Have Become Greatly Alarmed.

NAPLES, Nov. 3. — Mount Vesuvius is again in eruption and the inhabitants in its vicinity have become greatly alarmed. On Sunday special prayers were made and processions of people went to favored shrines as a repetition of the disaster of 1906 is feared.

The activity of the volcano first manifested itself by deep detonations and rumblings. This was followed by gigantic columns of smoke and soon thereafter an abundant eruption of lava began.

The last serious eruption of Mount Vesuvius occurred in the spring of 1906. Several villages were destroyed and the property loss was estimated at $20,000,000. About 500 persons were killed and 50,000 made homeless.

Seven Hundred Men Strike.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 3. — A despatch to a local paper from Lepas says: "Engineers, conductors, firemen, brakesmen, and watchmen on the Hudson Bay Railroad were notified that their wages per hour would be reduced from 45 to 35 cents, 42 to 30 cents, 28 to 23 cents, 20 to 17 cents, to take effect Nov. 1. The men refused to accept the lower rate and all went on strike. The strike will affect about 715 men and will hold up construction until a settlement is arrived at.

The more money a man has the less he worries about what people think of him.

"Pat" Yeomans Writes From Across the Sea

Salisbury Plain
21/10/14.

Dear Mamma:

We received your letter dated Oct. 4th, last night, and certainly very glad to get it, for it is the first mail we have gotten since we left Canada. My! it was good to hear what is going on at home. I never realized before how much good mail was until now. I have written three or four letters and cards home before this, but of course have no way of telling whether you get them or not. They say that our mail is all censored, but I don't think they would do that, for it causes a great deal of trouble for nothing. We have to mark O.H.M.S. on our letters because we can't get stamps.

The scenery here is lovely. We are camping on the 'Downs of Wiltshire,' and the work is much more pleasant because everything is so nice in the surrounding country.

We go out for a ride, and instead of crossing bare fields and burnt meadows everything is interesting. We pass a grove of trees and on coming out into the opening, can see old churches, and ancient cottages with thatched roofs. Then the slopes of the "Downs" are nice too; for one can ascend and view all that he has just passed. They are not so far apart as they are home.

Yesterday afternoon we were signalling and the aeroplane squad came out again. There were four of them this time and they flew right over us and quite low down. We could see the men in them, and even the expression on their faces in one. We are getting quite used to hearing them buzzing around now, and are getting so we hardly pay any attention to them. There must be, about twenty of them at least around here.

The tents here are much smaller than the tents at home, and we are sleeping in a tent with nine others in it. You can imagine how we have to pack in—eleven in one tent! We sleep on top of each other, or any old way we can set our blankets; but when we do sleep—we sleep; and it takes a mighty strong-lunged trumpeter to wake us up. I am growing fatter and filling out more every day, and never felt better physically in my life. I think I must weigh twenty pounds more than I did when I enlisted, and seem to have energy to burn. I seem to have to find something to keep me busier—even when I am so busy I can't turn my head even.

Our food is not at all elaborate—but mighty good: and we certainly eat lots of it. The ordinary meal consist of dry bread, tea and jam; and sometimes we have stew or meat of some kind and cheese. I won't know how to eat when I get home. I think you will want to throw us out, for here we have to throw all manners to the winds if we want anything to eat at all.

Immediately the "turn out" from "stables" has blown there is a scramble for "mess-tins" and a long line forms with amazing speed, reaching from the cook-house almost to the horse-lines. Then there is a ten minutes wait while the men curse and swear for the trumpeter to blow "Cook-house Door." After that has blown the line moves forward and the motto seems to be "Deeds, not Words." Of course the horses are always fed before the men themselves get anything to eat, and they seem to appreciate it as much as we would do.

Our daily programme:—

A. M.

5.30—Reveille.
6.00—Early morning parade for roll-call and day's orders to be read.
6.15—Stables (cleaning, watering and feeding of horses).
7.00—Breakfast.
8.30—Morning parade—gunnery for the gunners—riding for the drivers—signalling for the signallers, etc.
11.00—Stables.
11.30—Dinner.

P. M.

2.00—Afternoon parade (same as morning parade.)
4.30—Stables. Retreat blows.
5.00—Supper.
9.30—First Post.
10.00—Last Post.
10.15—Lights out.

Besides this there are all the thousands of little things to be done which are not put down on any time-table. Also there are Guard and Picket Duty, Fatigues and Defaulters; so you can see we have lots to do.

This morning a man in our ammunition column was exercising a horse when he got tangled up in the halter-shank and was dragged along the ground. The horse was frightened and tried to jump clear, but he landed on the poor chap's head, killing him instantly. They are going to have his funeral this afternoon. His death was the result of his own carelessness, but it seems a severe punishment.

Well, good-bye for now,
Your affectionate son,
PAT.

How To Cure Stomach Troubles

Excessive acid in the stomach, or hyperacidity, as it is called, is primarily responsible for nearly all cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis, leads to stomach ulcers. The successful treatment for prevention as well as cure of such cases depends entirely on neutralizing the excess acid, stopping the food fermentation and healing the inflamed mucous membrane that lines the stomach. For this purpose specialists are now advising the use of pure bisurated magnesia, which has recently been found to be unequalled in the treatment of even the severest cases. A teaspoonful in a little water immediately after eating stops all pain almost instantly, neutralizes the acid, and soothes the inflamed stomach and if regularly used will quickly remove the cause of the trouble and effect and flatulence, and quite frequently complete relief.

High Court of Justice

At 1.30 this afternoon the fall sittings of the High Court of Justice opened here before the Hon. Justice Hodgins. The following composed the Grand Jury:

Archie Collins, A. Alexander, Geo. Brown, Jos. Burns, A. Corrigal, H. E. Fairfield, S. Cotterell, T. J. McAlpine, G. W. Roblin, W. Smith, R. Sullivan, A. Nicholson, C. G. King. Mr. A. Nicholson was elected foreman. After the jury had been sworn in His Lordship addressed that body as follows:

The court was meeting here to-day under circumstances which we all feel. The war in which the Empire is now engaged has absorbed our thoughts to a large extent. A hundred years ago a war was brought on by one man. Ten times the number of troops of Great Britain are in the field to-day in comparison to the number in the field at Waterloo. This we regard as a just war. He had spoken to them in this regard that they might make mention of their loyalty, etc., in their presentment.

There was little criminal business for them to consider, but two charges arising from one case. The prisoner is charged with rape and also commititng an indecent assault. These offences were explicitly explained by His Lordship.

THE INVASION OF EGYPT BY TURKEY

The movement on Egypt, suggests the Montreal Star, is probably more German than Turkish in conception. Turkey must know that she will never be allowed to permanently hold Egypt, even if she does overrun it today. Civilization has too much invested in that fertile land—"the gift of the Nile" and of the Assouan dam. Under Turkish neglect, all these excellent and costly works, which have enriched Egypt, would fall into decay. Egypt would become no more progressive or prosperous than Syria. This would be about as little welcome to the Germans as to the British or the French; and we may be very sure that Germany has no intention of permitting Turkey to ruin Egypt, even if she is now using her army as a "cat's-paw" to draw that fat prize out of the grasp of Britain.

Thus we may assume that the German officers in command of the Turkish army, have had much to do with any concentration of Turkish troops for the invasion of Egypt. But it is one thing to concentrate, and quite another to invade. If the Sultan's soldiers are gathered at Beyrout and Jaffa for transportation to Egypt, they might as well make up their minds to walk. Before this, the British and French warships will have assembled to close the sea-route to Port Said. And the walking is bad—most of it is desert which even camel caravans find hard going.

The British "army of occupation" in Egypt never has been large, and has, possibly, been depleted of late. Britain has held Egypt—as she would an island—by her navy, depending upon her ships to do exactly what they are doing now—prevent the transhipment of troops by sea to a country very difficult of approach by land.

Still, the Anglo-Egyptian force will probably hold the borders of Egypt, if the Egyptian army remains loyal. "Sergeant-what-his-name" has made a good fighting man of the Egyptian recruit, though he has never been tried against European soldiers. But if the Egyptian forces join their Turkish co-religionists, under the mistaken guidance of the Young Egypt leaders, the situation must then be regarded as very serious. The British authorities in Cairo have an excellent intelligence department, however, which has probably kept them well-informed of the feeling and any new movements among the natives; and they are likely to know what is liable to happen and upon what they can depend. The fact that there has been no exodus of Europeans from Egypt is an evidence that the Europeans have no notion that there is any danger.

JUSTIFYING GERMANY

That most strenuous of arguers in attempted justification of Germany, Professor Hugo Munsterberg, has become embittered by the failure of the efforts of himself and his co-workers in the crusade to convert the people of the United States to pro-Germanism. His irritation finds vent in a letter published in the Cologne Gazette. "Every fool outside Germany," writes the angry Professor, "is profoundly convinced that Germany is two hundred years behind the civilization of the other Western nations, that a breach of neutrality is the worst crime in the world, and that the Germans in Belgium are acting like Vandals." He writes also that the people of the United States formed their judgment in regard to the war "with unanimity of a flock of sheep." In this connection the Boston Transcript recalls that another eminent German professor wrote of the people of the United States several years ago: "Some of whom are civilized." And the great Treitschke, who, in the words of the poet, is "the daddy of the all"—meaning the professorial apostles of pan-Germanism—wrote that "there can no longer be any question that civilization suffers every time a German is transformed into a Yankee."

OUR DEMOCRATIC ARMY

(From Beck's Weekly, Montreal)

English journalists have not failed to note and to remark upon the camaraderie existing between officers and men of the first Canadian contingent, which is now encamped on Salisbury Plain. Officers and men have been seen walking out arm-in-arm and have been heard to address each other by their Christian names and otherwise acting as though they came of one family. Here in Canada the same acidents would have caused no comment for the simple reason that we should have seen nothing in them to comment upon. In England, however, things are entirely different. The officers of the regular army are drawn from the aristocratic class which is as much an institution with the average Englishman as the House of Commons or the Anglican church or afternoon tea. The idea of Capt. Smythe-Brown-Smythe, of the Mudshire Fencibles, walking down the street hob-nobbing with plain Private Smith or Corporal Jones would create a mild sensation in the military world generally and would certainly bring about reproof from the Colonel of the gallant Fencibles. Canadians would never take any particular notice of such an accident. In our little army of militia we are intensely democratic if nothing else. The man who sold up a pound of tea or a package of tobacco over the counter to-day may be out leading a company of militiamen to-morrow and we think him none the less a good officer because he keeps a shop when he is not soldiering. In fact I know of a captain in one of the companies who is a barber by occupation and whose soldiering qualities are none the less esteemed for that. The truth is that we have not yet arrived were not plain. The basque and skirt in Canada and perhaps we will be none the worse off if we never do.

CURRENT COMMENT

Toronto News: "The Toronto Star's story that the Duke of Connaught prevented a general election is an absolute fabrication."

The power of the British navy is reflected in the fact that September exports from the United States to Germany declined from $35,000,000 in 1913, to $2,378 in 1914, while American exports to the United Kingdom fell off only 27 per cent.

The Liberal politicians seem to have got the notion that they alone have the right to determine when Parliament shall be dissolved.

The setting of floating mines adrift in the North Sea—a policy begun by Germany on the Belgian coast is murder, not war. The floating mine may drift hundreds of miles away from the shores of the belligerent countries and destroy hundreds of innocent neutrals.

About a year ago the German farmers of South Bruce received circulars denouncing the Borden Government for taking steps to help the Imperial Government fight Germany. Col. Sam Hughes was singled out as a target because he had said in Vancouver that "Germany must be taught a lesson." The above statement of the facts carries with it its own comment.

Toronto Globe: "Mr. W. Morgan Shuster has contributed to November Century an article in which he attempts to account for the occurrence of the European war. It is almost unnecessary to say that Russia and Great Britain come in for a good deal of dispraise, but fortunately for Mr. Shuster's creditability with the public, his quarrel with these two powers in Persia is still well remembered."

Montreal Star: "British rule, whatever else may be said about it, has always been tolerent toward the opinions and desires of the peoples that have come under it. Local self-government is its key-note. Its guilding principle is to allow every nation to choose its own form of government. There is interference, of course, in order to make safe and sure British sovereignty, but there is a minimum of interference with a maximum of liberty. The Germans, however, do not so neglect their "duty" toward less advanced peoples. They would impose German precision upon impulsive France and German centralization upon liberty-loving Britain."

WAR NOTES

Archbishop Whateley once said in the House of Lords: "A man may hold any opinion with honor, but I don't like to see a man holding the opinion of one church with the revenues of another."

The Army Council and the Commissioner of Police of London are making an investigation into the allegations that there has been a large increase in drunkenness among the women of London. According to the Magistrates many of the offenders are wives of soldiers on active duty.

It is stated officially that the police are considering issuing an order prohibiting saloons to serve any women or to allow women to enter saloons.

The Durban correspondent of the London Daily Mail says the Government at Pretoria has granted General Christian De Wet, the rebel leader, a five days' armistice, presumely in order to arrange peace.

The British Official Information Bureau issued the following today: "In view of the action taken by the German forces in Belgium and France of removing as prisoners of war all persons who are liable for military service, his Majesty's Government has given instructions that all enemy reservists on board neutral vessels should be made prisoners of war.

The Prince of Wales Relief Fund now totals $17,825,000, of which $4,350,000 have been distributed for the relief of those in distress.

On Thursday last British aviators dropped three bombs in the midst of the German war materials at Lichtervelde (thirteen miles southwest of Bruges) inflicting great damage, and killing three German soldiers.

It is officially announced in London that the Turkish Government summarily shut off communications with the British Embassy at Constantinople on Friday last, and that the British Government must take whatever action is required to protect interests and territory and Egypt from attacks made or threatened.

The executive of the Queen's Political Club, Kingston, unanimously resolved to request Henri Bourassa to defer until after the war his address on "The National Duty and Responsibilities of Canada," and a letter to that effect has been sent to him. It was felt that in the present crisis it was inadvisable for the university to appear in any way to contenance Mr. Bourassa's views—sensible.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistc beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

The Montreal "Star" recommends Emperor William to confer his surplus of Iron Crosses on the Liberal Senators, who did so effective work for Germany. To this list might be added the editor of the "Globe," Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Dr. Michael Clark and others, who refused to believe in the "emergency.".

Mr. Manufacturer: You are asking the public to support you by buying Canadian made goods. What are you yourself doing to help the cause?

Few manufacturers take absolutely raw material from field or mine and turn out an absolutely finished product, ready for consumption.

A maker of biscuits, for example, uses flour, sugar, flavoring extracts, boxes, labels, etc., all of which have passed through various processes of manufacture before they come to his hands.

The wheat is ground into flour, the sugar is refined, the boxes fashioned, the labels printed by other manufacturers.

In the same way your industry is dependent on others just as others are dependent on yours.

Are you, Mr. Manufacturer, buying your "raw" material, which is really a manufactured product, from Canadian makers? Much of what you need is produced here. Your own markets depend on the continuous employment of every Canadian workmen.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Prominent Merchant Thinks His Life Was Saved By "Fruit-a-tives".

DRYSDALE, ONT., JUNE 15th. 1913.

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address, and on account of the great good I have experienced from using "Fruit-a-tives", I recommend them to my customers. They were a great boon to me, I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up in bed with vomiting and a terrific pain at the base of my skull. The pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to Inflammation of the Brain, but I took "Fruit-a-tives" steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives", and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness". J. A. CORRIVEAU.

WEATHER PROPHETS VERY UNRELIABLE

That is, the Unscientific Forecasters Who Base Their Guesses on Mere Superstition

There is no other subject around which such a mass of signs and superstitions has arisen than the weather. In spite of the repeated assertions of the most careful scientists, people will probably go on to the end of time talking of "wet" moons and "dry" moons and looking for weather changes with the varying phases of the moon. Most meteorologists are inclined to say that the moon can have no effect whatever in the making of weather changes, while some will suggest that the only possible influence it can have upon the atmosphere is similar to the tidal effect upon the ocean waters, but that even this must be so slight as to be insignificant.

Another favorite superstition is that of the equinoctial gales. Careful calculations made by the observatory officials at Toronto, based on tables of gales in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces covering a period of forty years, lead them to the conclusion that there is no marked increase in storm energy about the time of the equinox, and that a term of any other six days in any other part of the months of March or September would give quite as many gales occurring, whether moderate or heavy, as is shown to have taken place between the 19th and 24th.

There are millions of persons who cling faithfully to the belief that if rain falls on St. Swithin's Day—July 15—it will rain for forty consecutive days thereafter, and that in spite of the incontrovertible scientific fact recorded by the Greenwich Observatory for twenty years that not once did it rain for forty days.

On a par with these supersitions is our belief that a certain cold day is the "coldest ever"; and that when it gets really warm, "it never was so hot," and also that "the weather of the country is changing." It is of interest to note the information on this point in an article on Meteorology in Canada" as reprinted from the Journal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada:

"In order to gather information as to whether any attention was paid to Meteorology and Climatology in the early days of Canadian history, the 'Relations of the Jesuits' have been carefully gone over, and all references to climate phenomena have been copied and arranged under various headings, such as winter, summer, drought and other phenomena; and from these notes it has been possible to draw conclusions as to the general character of the seasons in Canada during the 17th and 18th centuries . . . and a study of the notes leads to the conclusion that the only valuable information to be gathered from this source is that this climate then was just about the same as it is now."

Pork Soup Stock

Roast pork bones will make an excellent brown soup stock. Remove all fat from bones. Add gravy if any was left. Add one quart of cold water one bay leaf, a bit of sage and one clove of garlic. Boil slowly one hour and strain. Cut cold boiled macaroni into small pins. Add to soup stock. Heat hot and serve.

Potato Pancakes

Peel six potatoes and allow to soak in cold water four hours. Grate them and allow to drain ten minutes. To every pint of grated potato allow one-half teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of flour, a little pepper. Beat this all together. Fold in two well beaten eggs. Drop by spoonfuls on a hot buttered griddle or spider. Turn, browning on both sides. Send to table at once with apple jelly.

Whole Wheat Griddle Cakes

Sift one quart of whole wheat flour with one teaspoon of baking powder and one teaspoon of salt into bowl. Add one tablespoon of melted butter, one tablespoon of sugar, two eggs, well beaten, and two cups of milk.

Beat all together for three minutes. Bake in even round cakes on griddle. Serve with quince honey.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

"It's a queer way," Dorcas continued, "and somehow already I feel blase. The love and trust I have from Julie and you is something worth while."

Mrs. Volk rose to hang up a gown she had been repairing. As she passed Dorcas she bent and kissed her cheek. The girl looked up with a grateful smile.

"Suppose," Dorcas suggested, "we have a little spread right here. I can order a hot dinner sent in. It's a wretched night—What do you say?"

"If I were to speak for Julie, you know how she would enjoy it."

"'Phone to the Beauclerc for a menu. It will be fun."

Half an hour later the dressing-room looked like a small banqueting hall, for the property man had put everything he controlled at their disposal.

"Listen," said Dorcas to the waiter, who stood ready to take their order; "bring us consomme, boiled salmon, celery, cucumbers, and sliced tomatoes, potatoes, string beans, roast chicken, lettuce, almond meringue pie, coffee, and—is that all?" she asked of Julie who stood peering over her shoulder.

"Ice cream and cake," suggested the child.

"Of course," cried Dorcas; "it's so long ago since I was a little girl I had forgotten that ice cream and cake is much more important than soup."

Julie turned to gaze at the table. "Isn't it a pity, Miss Dorcas, there are only three of us, when there are four sides to a table."

Dorcas laughed. "I'll let you pick out a guest for us, Julie. Who shall it be?"

"Well, let me think." The child paused. "There's Dick—Dick would do anything for us. He's only a call boy, but he's nice. Then there's Robertson. He loaned us the chairs and table. Robertson's the nicest man in the Gotham—almost. We could have had Brunton, but she's just going out. Then there's Mr. Merry. I believe," she added decisively, "I would rather have Mr. Merry than anybody."

Dorcas bent to rearrange a knife and fork

"How do you know Mr. Merry is in?"

"He is," cried Julie. "He called me into his dressing-room when I passed and gave me these." She unclasped her hand to show three caramels squeezed into a sticky lump.

"Would your mother like to have him here?"

Julie did not wait for her mother to answer.

"Of course. Mother and I love him."

"Well, you may be our messenger. Tell him he is invited to dine with three ladies. Dinner will be served in ten minutes."

Merry returned with Julie clasping his hand.

"This is unexpected! When the young lady tapped at my door, I was debating whether it was worth while going out to eat in the storm."

It was a gay little party. Dorcas ordered the waiter to set the dishes on the hot radiator, then she sent him away. Julie took her place delightedly.

"You're a clever waitress," said Merry.

"I used to plan to be a waitress when I was grown up," said the child, while she gathered plates neatly on a tray. "That was before I went on the stage. Playing the little 'Cordelia' is nicer than being a waitress."

"It means getting rich faster," said Merry gravely.

"Of course," agreed Julie. "Still, it must be delightful work to be a waitress. Before we found you, Mother and I used to go mornings to a little restaurant to get hot cakes, and I loved to watch the waitresses. Some of them were pretty. They had lovely hair and cunning little muslin aprons."

Merry laughed. "You were wise to decide on 'Cordelia.'"

"I know that. I would be quite happy to be 'Cordelia' with you, even if I didn't get any money for it. Of course, though, it's lovely to get my salary envelope once a week, and to have nice rooms at Mrs. Billerwell's, and all we want to eat, and clothes and shoes. I am growing rich—I have a bankbook!"

"Really?"

"I have four hundred dollars in the bank."

"Four hundred dollars!"

"When I have two thousand I am going to buy a little house out in the country. Mother and I picked it out one day when Miss Dorcas took us driving. We will keep chickens and a pony and a cow, and have cherry trees and radishes and pansies in the garden."

"I will come and board with you," said Merry, "if I don't have to milk the cow."

"Oh, Mother," cried the child impetuously, "I never thought of keeping boarders before!—only we can't charge Mr. Merry much."

"May I come too?" asked Dorcas.

"Oh, that would be lovely!" Julie laid down a chicken bone she held between her fingers to clap her greasy little hands joyfully. Merry was telling a ridiculous adventure which had once befallen him on a snowbound train when he was interrupted by a timid knock at the door.

Julie rose to open it. She turned to look back at her mother with a bewildered glance. A small, odd figure stood motionless in the doorway—a little boy with serious, brown eyes. His straight, yellow hair was cropped in a fringe about his eyes, then it waved upward. He wore a black suit with long, tight trousers. A round jacket, over a white shirt, reached to his waist. In his hand he held a hat like a small saucer.

"Hullo, David Copperfield, where did you come from?" cried Merry.

"That isn't my name." The child had a soft English accent. "I have heard of 'David Copperfield,' but I'm not 'David,' sir, my name is Robin Tully."

"Come in, Master Robin Tully," said Merry, "and have dinner with us."

The child stared at them steadily but did not move.

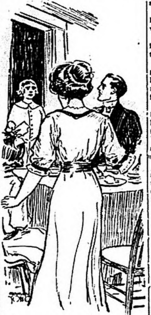
Dorcas jumped to her feet. "Oh!" she whispered, "the poor little boy is blind.!"

The child stood moving his darkened eyes about as if to place her voice, then he came straight toward her, groping with both his hands. He had tucked the small, flat hat beneath one arm Dorcas lifted him to her lap and laid his cheek against her own.

"Mother," he whispered as he dropped the hat and clasped his arms tightly about her neck.

"Dear little boy," she said softly, "I am not your mother. I wish I were."

He loosened his arms and passed his soft fingers over her face. Dorcas pillowed his cheek on her breast and whispered tender, foolish things to him between her kisses.



A Small, Odd Figure Stood in the Doorway.

Merry took one of the child's hands between his own. "What is your mother's name?" he asked gently.

"At home her name is Mrs. Tully. I have a letter for her. George, who brought me here, told me to show it to somebody, and they would take me to her."

He put his hand in the inside pocket of his tight coat and drew out a smeared envelope. Merry read it aloud: "Miss Zilla Paget, Gotham Theater."

Dorcas turned to look at Merry with unspoken pity in her eyes. "Your mother is upstairs. We will take you to her in a few minutes."

Julie crept close to Merry. She stood by his side, gazing curiously at the blind child.

"I did not know Miss Paget had a little boy," she said.

"Neither did I. Run upstairs, dear, and ask if she is in her dressing-room, but not one word to her or to any one about this boy."

Robin laid his cheek against Dorcas' face.

"I wish you were my mother," he murmured.

"You may have me as your friend." The girl kissed him softly, in response to which his chin trembled.

"Does your mother know you are coming?" asked Merry.

"No, I'm to be a surprise. George said I'm a sort of Christmas present."

Merry's eyes turned anxiously to Dorcas. He shook his head, and there was a perplexed frown upon his face.

Julie came in. "Miss Paget is not in her room. Emiline says she is out taking dinner with a gentleman."

Robin jumped to the floor and began to grope about for his hat. Merry lifted it and put it in his hand "You must stay here till your mother comes in."

"Of course, for you are just in time for dinner," said Dorcas. "We have lots of good things left—chicken and tomatoes and ice cream."

"His shoes ought to be changed," suggested Mrs. Volk; "they're awfully wet."

"Nothing is wet but my goloshes," answered Robin. He bent to take them off. "When we left the train, George brought me here under an umbrella."

"Who was George?" asked Merry.

"George took care of me on the way over on the big ship. I slept in a little bed over his. I hope I will never see George again."

"Wasn't he kind to you?" asked Dorcas.

"Not—very kind." The child paused a moment. "I don't believe George understands little boys—blind boys, I means."

"Was George a relative?"

"No. He came to the home to take me to America. That was what Father Shannon said."

"What home?"

"The home for little blind boys. There were hundreds of little blind boys there."

"Haven't you any relatives?" asked Merry.

"Why, yes, I have my mother. A mother is quite a close relative, isn't she?"

"She certainly is," agreed the actor hastily. "I mean, haven't you any other relative in England?"

"There is Aunt Fannie. She is not a real aunt, though. She used to know mother, and sometimes she came to see me at the home"

Dorcas lifted him into a chair beside the table. Mrs. Volk set a plate in front of him. She had cut the chicken and potato into small pieces. "Can you feed yourself, dear?" she asked hesitatingly.

"Why, yes." There was a tone of grown-up dignity in Robin's voice. "I have fed myself ever since I was a little boy."

There were tears in the girl's eyes while she watched him eat. He was still such a little boy! He had dainty, well-bred ways. Once he apologized as he accepted a second helping of meat.

"I could not eat on the ship today," he explained. "Things were nasty. Besides, I could not think of anything but meeting mother. Do you think she will be in soon?"

Merry pulled out his watch. "Julie, it is half-past six. Run upstairs again and see if Miss Paget has come in. Remember, not a word about the surprise for her."

The child returned in a few minutes. "She has just come in."

"Oh," cried Julie, "there's ice cream. You have not had any ice cream."

"I am not hungry. I want to go to my mother. You see I have been thinking about my mother for years and years."

"Do you remember her?" asked Merry.

Robin hesitated. "Aunt Fannie says I can't because I was a little baby when she went away. I think—I remember her."

"Come with me," said Merry.

"Don't you believe that I had better take him?" said Dorcas. "Miss Paget may have begun to dress."

Merry nodded.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weight and measure again It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all the new flesh stays put

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. J. S. McKeown's Drug Store and other leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight

It's easy for a woman to discover that a man has brains—if she's his mother.

Healed Severe Cut

Mrs. J. E. Bierwirth, of Carnduff, Sask., writes: "My little son cut the end off his finger at the first joint. As it was such a severe cut I was going to take him to a doctor, but in the meantime, to ease the pain, I applied some Zam-Buk on a piece of lint. This stopped the bleeding and gave him such relief that he ceased crying and seemed quite at ease. I therefore decided to see if Zam-Buk would heal the wound. Next day I replaced the dressing, and continued to do so each day, using nothing but Zam-Buk.

"From the very first the cut began to heal and did so without any further trouble. There was no inflammation, no festering; and each day, when dressed, the wound seemed perfectly healthy. Healing was very rapid, and the little fellow seemed to have no pain whatever. Zam-Buk is a marvellous healing balm, and I cannot too strongly recommend mothers to always keep it at hand."

Mrs. Dennis Goodine, of Springhill, York Co., N.B., writes: "Zam-Buk has cured a bad case of eczema on my ankle, which a doctor's treatment failed to cure."

Zam-Buk is obtainable from all druggists and stores, or postpaid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for 50c. box, 3 boxes $1.25.

M.P. Who Raked up an Act of Henry VIII. Was Bitten by It

An incident which highly diverted the House of Commons occurred recently when Mr. Rupert Gwynne announced with a sternly judicial air that under an Act of Henry VIII. which he had discovered, all members absent from the House were under a penalty.

The Act which Mr. Gwynne disinterred ordains that no member shall absent himself from attendance without the license of the Speaker and the Commons, the license to be entered on record in the book of the clerk, and the member's wages to be stopped. Mr. Gwynne suggested to Mr. Asquith that the Act should be enforced now that members are once more paid, or that it should be repealed.

Mr. Asquith was calm. "The matter does not appear to be one in which the Government are called upon to take any action," he answered.

Meanwhile, Mr. Joseph King had been so curious as to look up Mr. Gwynne's record. "The hon. member himself has been absent from 424 divisions," he announced solemnly, and the House laughed so loud and so long that Mr. Gwynne, palpitating with explanations, was quite unable to make himself heard in response.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

"It's a queer way," Dorcas continued, "and somehow already I feel blase. The love and trust I have from Julie and you is something worth while."

Mrs. Volk rose to hang up a gown she had been repairing. As she passed Dorcas she bent and kissed her cheek. The girl looked up with a grateful smile.

"Suppose," Dorcas suggested, "we have a little spread right here. I can order a hot dinner sent in. It's a wretched night—What do you say?"

"If I were to speak for Julie, you know how she would enjoy it."

"'Phone to the Beauclerc for a menu. It will be fun."

Half an hour later the dressing-room looked like a small banqueting hall, for the property man had put everything he controlled at their disposal.

"Listen," said Dorcas to the waiter, who stood ready to take their order; "bring us consomme, boiled salmon, celery, cucumbers, and sliced tomatoes, potatoes, string beans, roast chicken, lettuce, almond meringue pie, coffee, and—is that all?" she asked of Julie who stood peering over her shoulder.

"Ice cream and cake," suggested the child.

"Of course," cried Dorcas; "it's so long ago since I was a little girl I had forgotten that ice cream and cake is much more important than soup."

Julie turned to gaze at the table. "Isn't it a pity, Miss Dorcas, there are only three of us, when there are four sides to a table."

Dorcas laughed. "I'll let you pick out a guest for us, Julie. Who shall it be?"

"Well, let me think." The child paused. "There's Dick—Dick would do anything for us. He's only a call boy, but he's nice. Then there's Robertson. He loaned us the chairs and table. Robertson's the nicest man in the Gotham—almost. We could have had Brunton, but she's just going out. Then there's Mr. Merry. I believe," she added decisively, "I would rather have Mr. Merry than anybody."

Dorcas bent to rearrange a knife and fork

"How do you know Mr. Merry is in?"

"He is," cried Julie. "He called me into his dressing-room when I passed and gave me these." She unclasped her hand to show three caramels squeezed into a sticky lump.

"Would your mother like to have him here?"

Julie did not wait for her mother to answer.

"Of course. Mother and I love him."

"Well, you may be our messenger. Tell him he is invited to dine with three ladies. Dinner will be served in ten minutes."

Merry returned with Julie clasping his hand.

"This is unexpected! When the young lady tapped at my door, I was debating whether it was worth while going out to eat in the storm."

It was a gay little party. Dorcas ordered the waiter to set the dishes on the hot radiator, then she sent him away. Julie took her place delightedly.

"You're a clever waitress," said Merry.

"I used to plan to be a waitress when I was grown up," said the child, while she gathered plates neatly on a tray. "That was before I went on the stage. Playing the little 'Cordelia' is nicer than being a waitress."

"It means getting rich faster," said Merry gravely.

"Of course," agreed Julie. "Still, it must be delightful work to be a waitress. Before we found you, Mother and I used to go mornings to a little restaurant to get hot cakes, and I loved to watch the waitresses. Some of them were pretty. They had lovely hair and cunning little muslin aprons."

Merry laughed. "You were wise to decide on 'Cordelia.'"

"I know that. I would be quite happy to be 'Cordelia' with you, even if I didn't get any money for it. Of course, though, it's lovely to get my salary envelope once a week, and to have nice rooms at Mrs. Billerwell's, and all we want to eat, and clothes and shoes. I am growing rich—I have a bankbook!"

"Really?"

"I have four hundred dollars in the bank."

"Four hundred dollars!"

"When I have two thousand I am going to buy a little house out in the country. Mother and I picked it out one day when Miss Dorcas took us driving. We will keep chickens and a pony and a cow, and have cherry trees and radishes and pansies in the garden."

"I will come and board with you," said Merry, "if I don't have to milk the cow."

"Oh, Mother," cried the child impetuously, "I never thought of keeping boarders before!—only we can't charge Mr. Merry much."

"May I come too?" asked Dorcas.

"Oh, that would be lovely!" Julie laid down a chicken bone she held between her fingers to clap her greasy little hands joyfully. Merry was telling a ridiculous adventure which had once befallen him on a snowbound train when he was interrupted by a timid knock at the door.

Julie rose to open it. She turned to look back at her mother with a bewildered glance. A small, odd figure stood motionless in the doorway—a little boy with serious, brown eyes. His straight, yellow hair was cropped in a fringe about his eyes, then it waved upward. He wore a black suit with long, tight trousers. A round jacket, over a white shirt, reached to his waist. In his hand he held a flat hat like a small saucer.

"Hullo, David Copperfield, where did you come from?" cried Merry.

"That isn't my name." The child had a soft English accent. "I have heard of 'David Copperfield,' but I'm not 'David,' sir, my name is Robin Tully."

"Come in, Master Robin Tully," said Merry, "and have dinner with us."

The child stared at them steadily but did not move.

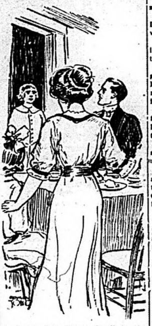
Dorcas jumped to her feet. "Oh!" she whispered, "the poor little boy is blind.!"

The child stood moving his darkened eyes about as if to place her voice, then he came straight toward her, groping with both his hands. He had tucked the small, flat hat beneath one arm Dorcas lifted him to her lap and laid his cheek against her own.

"Mother," he whispered as he dropped the hat and clasped his arms tightly about her neck.

"Dear little boy," she said softly, "I am not your mother. I wish I were."

He loosened his arms and passed his soft fingers over her face. Dorcas pillowed his cheek on her breast and whispered tender, foolish things to him between her kisses.



A Small, Odd Figure Stood in the Doorway.

Merry took one of the child's hands between his own. "What is your mother's name?" he asked gently.

"At home her name is Mrs. Tully. I have a letter for her. George, who brought me here, told me to show it to somebody, and they would take me to her."

He put his hand in the inside pocket of his tight coat and drew out a smeared envelope. Merry read it aloud: "Miss Zilla Paget, Gotham Theater."

Dorcas turned to look at Merry with unspoken pity in her eyes. "Your mother is upstairs. We will take you to her in a few minutes."

Julie crept close to Merry. She stood by his side, gazing curiously at the blind child.

"I did not know Miss Paget had a little boy," she said.

"Neither did I. Run upstairs, dear, and ask if she is in her dressing-room, but not one word to her or to any one about this boy."

Robin laid his cheek against Dorcas' face.

"I wish you were my mother," he murmured.

"You may have me as your friend." The girl kissed him softly, in response to which his chin trembled.

"Does your mother know you are coming?" asked Merry.

"No, I'm to be a surprise. George said I'm a sort of Christmas present."

Merry's eyes turned anxiously to Dorcas. He shook his head, and there was a perplexed frown upon his face.

Julie came in. "Miss Paget is not in her room. Emiline says she is out taking dinner with a gentleman."

Robin jumped to the floor and began to grope about for his hat. Merry lifted it and put it in his hand "You must stay here till your mother comes in."

"Of course, for you are just in time for dinner," said Dorcas. "We have lots of good things left—chicken and tomatoes and ice cream."

"His shoes ought to be changed," suggested Mrs. Volk; "they're awfully wet."

"Nothing is wet but my goloshes," answered Robin. He bent to take them off. "When we left the train, George brought me here under an umbrella."

"Who was George?" asked Merry.

"George took care of me on the way over on the big ship. I slept in a little bed over his. I hope I will never see George again."

"Wasn't he kind to you?" asked Dorcas.

"Not—very kind." The child paused a moment. "I don't believe George understands little boys—blind boys, I means."

"Was George a relative?"

"No. He came to the home to take me to America. That was what Father Shannon said."

"What home?"

"The home for little blind boys. There were hundreds of little blind boys there."

"Haven't you any relatives?" asked Merry.

"Why, yes, I have my mother. A mother is quite a close relative, isn't she?"

"She certainly is," agreed the actor hastily. "I mean, haven't you any other relative in England?"

"There is Aunt Fannie. She is not a real aunt, though. She used to know mother, and sometimes she came to see me at the home"

Dorcas lifted him into a chair beside the table. Mrs. Volk set a plate in front of him. She had cut the chicken and potato into small pieces. "Can you feed yourself, dear?" she asked hesitatingly.

"Why, yes." There was a tone of grown-up dignity in Robin's voice. "I have fed myself ever since I was a little boy."

There were tears in the girl's eyes while she watched him eat. He was still such a little boy! He had dainty, well-bred ways. Once he apologized as he accepted a second helping of meat.

"I could not eat on the ship today," he explained. "Things were nasty. Besides, I could not think of anything but meeting mother. Do you think she will be in soon?"

Merry pulled out his watch. "Julie, it is half-past six. Run upstairs again and see if Miss Paget has come in. Remember, not a word about the surprise for her."

The child returned in a few minutes. "She has just come in."

"Oh," cried Julie, "there's ice cream. You have not had any ice cream."

"I am not hungry. I want to go to my mother. You see I have been thinking about my mother for years and years."

"Do you remember her?" asked Merry.

Robin hesitated. "Aunt Fannie says I can't because I was a little baby when she went away. I think—I remember her."

"Come with me," said Merry.

"Don't you believe that I had better take him?" said Dorcas. "Miss Paget may have begun to dress."

Merry nodded.

Thin People
Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weight and measure again It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all the new flesh stays put

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. J. S. McKeown's Drug Store and other leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight

Mrs. J. E. Bierwirth, of Carnduff, Sask., writes: "My little son cut the end off his finger at the first joint. As it was such a severe cut I was going to take him to a doctor, but in the meantime, to ease the pain, I applied some Zam-Buk on a piece of lint. This stopped the bleeding and gave him such relief that he ceased crying and seemed quite at ease. I therefore decided to see if Zam-Buk would heal the wound. Next day I replaced the dressing, and continued to do so each day, using nothing but Zam-Buk.

"From the very first the cut began to heal and did so without any further trouble. There was no inflammation, no festering; and each day, when dressed, the wound seemed perfectly healthy. Healing was very rapid, and the little fellow seemed to have no pain whatever. Zam-Buk is a marvellous healing balm, and I cannot too strongly recommend mothers to always keep it at hand."

Mrs. Dennis Goodine, of Springhill, York Co., N.B., writes: "Zam-Buk has cured a bad case of eczema on my ankle, which a doctor's treatment failed to cure."

Zam-Buk is obtainable from all druggists and stores, or postpaid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for 50c. box, 3 boxes $1.25.

AUSTRIAN RALLY FAILS

Russian Offensive Beyond Vistula Almost Unopposed.

Germans Retreating From Warsaw Are Falling Back Towards Silesia and Austrians Are Returning to Galician Frontier—East Prussian Force Is Advancing Again, But Has Been Repulsed With Loss.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 3.—The following report from the General Staff of the Russian commander-in-chief was made public here last night:

"On the front in Eastern Prussia our troops have repulsed German attacks directed against Vladizlavoff, driven the enemy from the eastern edge of the Rominten Forest and advanced to the north of Lake Raigorod.

"Beyond the Vistula our troops continue the offensive without being opposed. Only in the region of Opatow the Austrians attempted to resist us with considerable forces. They were repulsed. Beyond the Opatow river the Austrians hold a fortified position.

"In Galicia, on the San river, our troops entered the Village of Nisko, where fierce fighting took place.

"On the rest of the front the situation is virtually unchanged."

The military correspondent of The Novoe Vremya, explaining the changing disposition of the enemy's forces, says:

"The Austrians are moving south and southwest toward the west Galician frontier and Cracow, while the Germans, retreating from Warsaw, are falling back west and southwest toward the Silesian frontier. As the Russian troops from Warsaw and Novoe Georgiewsk follow the Germans, the Russian East Prussian corps is moving in force on the regions northwest of Warsaw, covering Warsaw from the direction of Miawa and occupying both banks of the Vistula below Warsaw."

TO ENSURE PUBLIC SAFETY.

Primary Aim of Government Says Sir George Foster.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—In his reply to delegates of municipalities, which waited on the Government yesterday afternoon, about unemployment, Sir George Foster said it was gratifying to the Government to have its work commenced. It had been no light undertaking to deal with alien enemies in Canada, in the light of the different social customs and the desire to protect people at home without inflaming others. The Government in any event would see that public safety was ensured fully. It was now working out details of the registration system, and would announce them in a few days.

Speaking of the relief of aliens Sir George admitted that depended largely upon the Dominion, but in respect to the general principle of unemployment he said the primary responsibility rested upon the localities of the provinces, but the Government would assist in every way it could.

No Sacrifice Too Great.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A despatch to The Evening News from Copenhagen says:

"Headquarters at Berlin reports that at a special war council held on Sunday, over which the Kaiser presided, and at which the Kings of Saxony and Wurttemburg were present, the question of the advance on the north coast of France was considered.

"The unanimous agreement was made that no sacrifice whatever was too great to achieve the goal.

"After the council the kings visited Antwerp and Brussels."

Jews Not Persecuted.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 3.—A semi-official note denies the German allegations that Jews are being persecuted in Poland. The note points out that the war is being conducted by a united Russia, comprising all nationalities without exception.

"Unfortunately, in contravention of article 44 of The Hague convention," says the note, "the enemy's troops operating in Russian territory are exacting from the Jewish population information concerning our army and means of defence, thus making the population liable to inevitable responsibilites."

EFFORT TO AVOID WAR HAS NOT SCCEEDED

If Peace Party In Turkish Cabinet Has Secured the Upper Hand the Ottoman Empire May Recede on Original Terms Offered by Allies —Goeben Driven Off Sebastopol—Turks Are Raiding Egypt.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—An unconfirmed news agency despatch from Constantinople says that the Grand Vizier has tendered an apology for recent events in the Black Sea. To whom this apology was made is unknown. The British and Russian Ambassadors are said to have left the city Sunday night for Salonica, and the French diplomatic representative has arranged to make his departure to-day. It is also problematical as to whether such an apology has been made to Russia alone or to France and her allies. If the peace party in the Turkish Ministry has prevailed it means that Turkey can only recede from her perilous position by complying with all of the articles in the ultimatum of the Triple Entente, delivered a few days ago. The chief points involved are the disarmament of the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, "bought" from Germany, and the immediate discharge of all German officers in the Ottoman army and navy.

The Turkish Ambassador here, Tewfik Pasha, was given his passports yesterday, and the same applies to the Sultan's diplomatic agent at Petrograd. Similar action was expected at Bordeaux.

Despite the patience of the Triple Entente with Turkey and their willingness that the peace party in her Cabinet should extricate her from a position obviously the work of German agents, it was stated last night in an authoritative quarter that Turkey will have to do much more than apologize. The departure of the Ministers from Constantinople and of the Turkish diplomats here and at Petrograd indicate that the Grand Vizier's belated peace efforts have failed.

Simultaneously with the report of an apology by the Sultan comes a despatch from Athens, which says that the Turkish gunboat Dubakreiss and the Turkish armed steamer Kinaliada have been sunk in the Gulf of Techechme.

That the vessels have been lost is indicated by conflicting statements as to the means by which they were sunk. It is known that the Franco-British fleet entered the Gulf of Techechme yesterday morning, and one message says that the allied warships caught up with and destroyed the Turkish craft. Another report from Ottoman sources declares that the commanders of the vessels blew them up when the allied fleet appeared on the horizon.

That the cruiser Goeben has been driven off from the attempted bombardment of Sebastopol is the information contained in a cablegram from that famous fortress, at whose gates nearly every nation of Europe has hammered with small success. This message says that the guns of the Constantinowskawa battery compelled the Goeben to retire. Shortly afterwards a wireless was intercepted from the big battle cruiser, saying: "Damaged; will return to Constantinople for repairs."

Out of a mass of disconnected reports emerges the fact that Turkish gunboats have moved from the Red Sea into the Gulf of Suez and that Turkish soldiers have already started a formidable raid into Egypt from Sinai. Their objective is plainly the Suez Canal. British forces are well prepared to halt this raid, and both French and British warships command every point on the Mediterranean from which the 300,000 Turkish troops mobilized on the Syrian coast can be transported to the Sinai Peninsula.

It is reliably reported that 400,000 Ottomans are concentrated at a point near the Caucasus for a quick blow at Russia. But the Czar has not been caught unawares, and a force estimated variously at from 500,000 to 1,000,000 men is within a few days' march of all strategical points by which the Turks might enter. In addition, there is no hardier soldier in the world than the natives of the Caucasus, who have fought the Turk for centuries. It is also interesting to note that of the 13,000,000, or 14,000,000 Mahommetan subjects of the "Little White Father" in the Caucasian zone, practically every one is expected to remain loyal. German and Austrian efforts to spread a "holy war" propaganda have failed here, as they did in India. The situation is thoroughly comforting from all angles as concerns the likelihood of dangerous Turkish aggression in this quarter.

During Sunday Turkish warships again bombarded Odessa and also flung a number of shells into Anapa, at the extremity of the Caucasus. The Breslau and Goeben led the second naval assault on Odessa, supported by four Turkish torpedo boats.

The attack on Anapa is believed to have been in the nature of a signal to the Caucasian Mahommedans, whom, it was hoped by the Germans and the war party at Constantinople, would rally on the Crescent and slay their Russian neighbors. The uprising failed to eventuate, and the Mohommedan leaders and newspapers along Russia's southern border declaim against Turkish action, swearing fealty to the Czar.

Germans Will Win Says Kaiser.

BERLIN, Nov. 2.—(Via London.)—In addressing the Brandenburg Regiment in France recently at a point behind the front, Emperor William closed his speech with these words:

"When the war is finished we should see each other again. Under all circumstances the enemy will be beaten."

This information is conveyed in a letter received in Berlin from the front.

GERMANS DESERTING.

Arrivals In Holland Say It Is No Longer Battle, But Butchery.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The correspondent of The Amsterdam Handelsblad at Sluis telegraphs as follows: "All German attempts to break through the line of the allied forces between Nieuport and Dixmude have failed. In spite of the greatest sacrifices the Germans have not succeeded in gaining ground on the other bank of the canal.

"Communication with Ostend is almost completely interrupted. Permits to leave Bruges are no longer given, but tram cars are still running, and the German marine band gives daily concerts in the market place. German soldiers, tired of the war, continue to cross the frontier near Sluis in large numbers. They declare that it is no longer a question of battles but of butchering."

Peace Prize to Aid Belgians.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 3.—(Via London.)—The Handelsblad, of Amsterdam, has published a report from Christiania saying that the managers of the Nobel Institute have decided to give this year's peace prize, which amounts to about $40,000, to the Netherlands Government, to be applied toward the support of Belgian refugees in Holland.

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Immense export sales, possibly the largest ever known, gave the wheat market today an upward swing after a brief downward turn at the start. Prices closed firm, ⅝c to ⅞c above Saturday night. Other leading staples, too, all scored a net advance—corn ⅛c to ½c, oats ⅜c to ½c, and provisions 7½c to 20c.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—There was a good demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today at a further advance of 6d per quarter, and sales of 25 loads were made, but considerable more business would have been done if the ocean grain room was available. There was also a good demand from exporters for wheat on spot, and sales of 150,000 bushels were made. The local trade in coarse grains was fair at firm prices, there being an improved demand for oats and corn. A firm feeling prevails in the flour market, but the volume of business doing for both local and export account is still small. Millfeed is steady under a better demand.

The butter market is quiet, finest creamery at the auction sale selling at 27½c.

Cheese is also quiet. Exports for the week were 51,945 boxes, as compared with 41,622 for the same week last year.

Eggs active and firm.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, a weak tone developed and prices as compared with this day week showed a decline of 50c per cwt. for steers and 25c for bulls, while cows were unchanged. The bulk of the steers coming forward from Ontario points were contracted for by drovers with farmers and feeders sometime ago at much higher prices than they could be bought for today, and it is claimed that they are losing from $10 to $15 per head. A few loads of choice Ontario steers sold at $7.50 to $7.75, and northwest ranch cattle sold at $6.60, while picked lots of choice domestic cows brought $6.75 per 100 pounds. The supply of canning stock was large, and the demand limited, with prices 25c per cwt. lower. Bulls sold at $4.50 to $4.75, and cows at $3.50 to $4.25 per cwt.

And a sporran trim and neat.
Said I. "My word, young Sandie
You're a son of Scotland true";
Said he, "Hoots, awm no Scottie;
I'm a Britisher the noo."

I met a smiling Welshman
Just by Trafalgar Square
Said I "Hello, there Taffy
Are you off to do and dare?"
Said he, "I am no Taffy,
Whateffer no indeed;
To-day I am a bulldog
Off the good old British breed."

I say young Pat M'Ginty
And I said to him said I
"You're Irish to the backbone,
And you will be till you die."
Said he, "In peace I'm Irish,
Sure, I cannot get away!
But now the storm clouds gather,
I'm a British man to-day."

is unanimous that caffeine and tannin, the poisonous drugs in tea and coffee, should not be used unless as medicines under the directions of a doctor.

These drugs in tea and coffee are known to be one of the common causes of chronic headache, nervousness, dyspepsia, "coffee heart," and other aches and ills.

If you are troubled with any such ailments, suppose you do as thousands of others have done, get relief by quitting both tea and coffee and using

The Story of a Brave Soldier

One year ago on Saturday last Ernest St. Clair Salt, a first class reservist, and corporal of the Black Watch, left England for Canada, going to Edmonton, Alberta, and entering the employ of the post office at Beverley Heights as sorter. He was held high in the estimation of his associates and superiors, and purposed making Canada his home. Seven months ago Mrs. Salt came to Belleville on her way to join him, but a month before leaving for the West, war with Germany was declared, and Mr. Salt immediately returned to England, going at once to the front. The following letter, explains the fate of this brave soldier, who died as he had lived, true to his country.

No. 5 Ambulance Train,
British Expeditionary Force,
Oct. 20th 1914.

Dear Mrs. Salt,—It is with great sorrow I have to tell you that your husband was brought on to the train on Oct. 16th suffering from a gunshot wound in the abdomen, also the lower part of his body was wounded, which gave him a great deal of pain. Then peritonitis set in and he just gradually got worse and worse and became unconscious off and on until he died on Oct. 18th. We were all so very sorry and everything that was possible was done to relieve him. There seemed very little hope of him recovering from the first, but I had hoped to be able to get him to the hospital. I found your address on the back of a letter you had written to him. He had a good gold ring and some letters and a small book, all of which were sent to his regiment.

I wish I could say something that would comfort you. It will be a great thought, when you think that he died as he would have wished to, doing his duty, and we all know that God will bless him and comfort you. I wish there was something I could tell you he said, but he never spoke of his home people at all.

You will hear from his regiment and receive any personal things that he had.

Yours with all sympathy,
M. D. WOODHOUSE,
Sister in Charge.

P. S.—Since writing I have had permission to say your husband is buried at Rouen.

Mrs. Salt, who has been housekeeper to Mrs. C. J. Bowell, 161 Albert Street, is still in this city.

GERMANS KEPT IN TRENCHES BY WHIPS

German Captured Near Dixmude Shows Welts on Back to Support Story

PARIS, Nov. 2.—A German who was captured with some 1,200 others near Dixmude, and who is now a prisoner of war in Paris, says the German troops were whipped by their officers to force them to remain in the trenches. He showed welts made by a whip on his back, and declares that other men in his regiment suffered similar treatment at the hands of their officers to make them remain in the trenches.

The same correspondent, continuing his despatch, says that the reports of mutiny amongst the Kaiser's troops is confirmed, and adds that soldiers have committed suicide in the German lines, and that desertions to the French from Lorraine are reported in the French capital.

150 Miles from Paris

Centre of Fighting 90 Miles Farther Than Month Ago

PARIS, Nov. 2.—Comparisons of conditions a month ago and now made here show that on October 1 the centre of fighting was about sixty miles from Paris, while on November 1 it is 150 miles away. The allied position, indeed, is much better than it was a week ago, when—there is now no need to disguise the fact—matters were in a critical state.

Paris is animated with the spirit of calm confidence. The chambers will be convoked in special session about November 15th. Three days before the opening session the budget committee will meet to examine the financial proposals, which the government will present to Parliament.

OTTAWA MILITANT IS FREED BY HUSBAND

Mrs. W. W. Edgar, Social Leader Gets Self Arrested by Police

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—Ottawa's first militant suffragist case was heard in police court to-day though loyalty to a departed sovereign, not votes for women, was involved. Mrs. W. W. Edgar, a prominent society woman and member of the Equal Suffrage Association, last night poked her umbrella through a large plate glass window of the King Edward Hotel on Rideau street. Before the magistrate she justified her action on the ground that it was disloyal to label a hotel with the name of the late King, and expressed regret that she had not done more damage. She was ordered to pay the cost of the glass, $45, but declared that she preferred to go to jail. The woman's husband was present and paid the amount notwithstanding her strenuous objections. Mrs. Edgar won the prize for the best woman actress when the Earl Grey dramatic competition was held in Ottawa.

Dealing Directly With Contractors

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The Government is determined to put an end to any attempts at "graft" on the issuing of militia contracts. Any men who attempt to act as "go-betweens" or represent that they have influence to secure contracts will be summarily dealt with. One Toronto man has already been arrested and another warrant has been issued. The second man has apparently left the country as he cannot be located. Two other cases may be followed by warrants. All four were Toronto men.

The Government wants it clearly understood that it is dealing direct with manufacturers and contractors. School Report

Three Million Horses Annually

It is now conservatively estimated that there are 1,000,000 horses engaged in the war. By far the largest portion of these horses are not included in the permanent military equipment, but are drawn from the farms and the drays in the countries now at war. All told, these countries have somewhere in the neighborhood of 40,000,000 horses not counting those in the colonies, which would swell this by several million. If the war lasts for any length of time the loss of horses is sure to be very great, and must eventually have an effect upon prices. It is said that in the Cival War in the United states the life of a cavalry horse averaged only four months, and we are safe in saying that it will be even shorter in this war with all the modern means of destroying life, but even though a horse did last four months this would mean, if the numbers are kept up to what are now in the field, practically 3,000,000 horses a year. It will not take many months to deplete the supply, because every horse that is drawn from productive enterprise to fill his place in the army is missed. There should be, after the war is over, a steady market for good horses.

Story of an Exploit

French Killed 40 Germans Who Wouldn't Let Him Sleep

PARIS, Nov. 2.—An attendant on an English hospital motor car bringing wounded from the firing line told me today of a remarkable instance of French heroism. Among the wounded Friday night was a young Frenchman with a gold medal, about which he refused to speak, and a slight wound in the foot about which he made considerable fuss. Disgusted by these complaints among so much silently borne my informant elicited from the youth's comrades the following story, which was verified fully:

"At the point where the French trenches were barely fifty yards from the Germans' a party of the enemy sang songs during the night which infuriated the French. "They won' let us sleep with their howling," as one of the French soldiers put it. Finally one little chasseur, crying, "I will silence them," seized a rifle and disappeared before anyone could detain him.

"After a moment's silence came the crackle of rapid firing, followed by German shrieks and wild volleys. The firing continued, accompanied by shouts in French, as from an officer directing an attack; then in guttural tones: 'Stop, stop, we surrender.' A few minutes later the little chasseur reappeared escorting several unarmed Germans. He said: 'You can occupy the trench, there is nothing left but corpses to defend it.'

"Advancing, the French discovered forty dead Germans in the trench, killed by the little chasseur firing from the end, whither he had crawled unnoticed. In some cases the same bullet pierced several Germans.

"When the remnant had surrendered he ordered the Germans to pile their arms outside the trench. The last to emerge was an officer, who, seeing the Frenchman alone, tried to seize his revolver. The Frenchman bayoneted him through the head.

"The chasseur was promoted and rewarded with a medal by General Nanoeuy, saying: 'It is a reward for a daring deed worthy of the emulation of the rest of the army.'

"The chasseur escaped absolutely unscathed, but in a subsequnt skirmish received the flesh wound, which occasioned such loud lamentations."

Chances in the military uniforms throughout the world show a growing tendency to protect the soldier rather than making him a target.

Some men outlive their usefulness if they live to be a day over 21.

LITERARY NOTES.

In The Canadian Magazine for November Britton B. Cooke, in an article entitled 'Is This True?' almost charges the Canadian people with deloyalty in not demanding Canadian-made good whenever their is equal value and attention given. He cites instance where preference has been shown to articles of foreign manufacture, but the gist of his article is intended to prod the conscience of the Canadian people on the point of patriotism of this nature.

1,500 German in Montreal 1,000 Out of Work

But Unemployed Will be Looked After This Winter by Their Compatriots

SAYS MINISTER OF LABOR

Between 4,000 and 5,000 Aliens Will Require Outside Help This Winter

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—Statistics as to the number of Germans, Austrians and other aliens now in Montreal, the percentage out of employment, and the likelihood of their becoming a public charge, have been procured by the Labor Departmnet from its fair wage officer in the metropolis, who has been investigating the situation during the past two weeks. The conclusion drawn is that only between 4,000 and 5,000 aliens will be without employment or friends to assist them this winter, and will require help from outside sources.

According to a statement made by Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, today, there are 2,000 Chinamen in Montreal, all of whom are employed; between 5,000 and 6,000 Autsrians of whom 2,000 are out of work; 12,000 Italians, of whom 5,000 have left in the past two weeks for Italy, and more will go, leaving 1,000 who will probably need employment this winter. The number of Germans in Montreal is 1,500, and of thees about 1,000 are out of work, but Mr. Crothers states that these will be looked after by their own compatriots. There are 50,000 Jews in Montreal, who can all take care of themselves, as well as a number of Greeks, Roumanians and Syrians, who are self-supporting. There are 3,000 Polacks, of whom 1,000 will probably be idle. Allowing another 1,000 this means that 5,000 aliens will require assistance this winter.

The Government's regulations in regard to Germans and Austrians will probably mean the detention of a number, and the departure from the country of others, which may help to relieve the situation somewhat.

FOUR SOLDIER SONS

Mother With Three Sons in Firing Line, Asks Fourth to Enlist

RENFREW, Nov. 3.—Harry Dean, a Renfrew young man, received a letter from his mother in England saying she would be ashamed of him if he did not enlist for the war, and he promptly enlisted and is now one of about a score of young men ready to proceed from here to divisional headquarters at Kingston.

Previously his mother had advised him to keep out of the war if possible. Already having three sons under arms, she thought the Dean family was doing enough for the Empire.

But when Belgian refugees, with maimed children, began to arrive in England she became Spartan and wanted everyone of her sons to fight. Her Renfrew son is a skilled mechanic who gives up a position paying $25 per week.

BRITISH SUBMARINE IS VICTIM OF GERMANS

A Gunboat is Struck by Shells, Too, in Serious Naval Engagement in North Sea

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(Special.)—The British submarine D-5 was sunk in the North Sea early this morning by a mine which was thrown out by a German cruiser retreating before British cruisers.

Two officers and two men of the submarine were saved.

This information is contained in an Admiralty report issued here last night. The report says a German squadron fired on the British gunboat Halcyon, which was patrolling, wounding one man.

"Various naval movements were made," the report continues, "as a result of which the Germans retreated rapidly, and although shadowed by the light cruisers they could not be brought into sea action.

"The rearmost German cruiser in her retirement threw out a number of mines and the submarine was sunk by one of them."

The submarine D-5, which was built in 1911, was 150 feet long. She had a speed of fifteen knots above the water and ten knots submerged.

Gunboat Struck by Shells.

In connection with the sinking of the British submarine boat D 5 by a mine dropped from a German cruiser the Exchange Telegraph Company's Lowestoft correspondent says:—

"One of the survivors of the submarone has been landed here, and a number of other survivors were picked up by a trawler.

"At midday the action was still in progress.

"The British gunboat Halcyon was struck by a number of shells and clouds of smoke rose from her. Those in the trawler thought she was sinking but she was not seriously damaged, and after she had discharged one or two shots at them, the Germans vessels steamed away at full speed."

Trawler Sunk by Mine

A despatch from Lowestoft to the Central News says:—

"Considerable commotion was caused at Lowestoft this morning by a report of a naval battle a few miles north of the town, which was witnessed by several residents from the north Parade, and by many fishing vessels returning to Lowestoft, some of which ran in dangerous proximity to the fighting, but excaped unharmed, with one exception. The trawler Fraternal was sunk by a mine. Five of her crew have been landed at Lowestoft and the others at Yarmouth.

"The enemy attacked the Halcyon, the chief fishery protection cruiser at Lowestoft. One seaman is reported to to have been badly injured and taken to a hospital.

"The vessel itself had her wireless and her bridge damaged and her funnel pierced. She has returned to Lowestoft.

"The steam drifter Adeline, during the fighting, found herself between the enemy and the Halcyon. Shells passed over her and other drifts, which cut their nets in order to hurry back to port."

FIFTY TONS OF GOLD DUE HERE

$25,000,000 IN PRECIOUS METAL NOW ON THE WAY FROM DOVER

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—The largest single shipment of gold every made by the United States Government, $25,000,000, left Denver last Friday for the Sub-Treasury in this city. Great secrecy surrounded the preparations for shipping the gold from Denver, and no word has been given of the time that it is expected to arrive here, but it is believed that it will be locked in the sub-Treasury vaults some time today or tomorrow.

The gold, which weighs more than fifty tons, was put in three special cars, and was guarded by a large force of armed men. The shipment was made through the American Express Company, and the cars were sent by different routes.

As soon as the trains carrying the gold arrive in this city, they will be met by armed men, who will guard the auto trucks which will speed off with the precious metal to the Sub-Treasury. The gold is required in this city to fill the place of the large sums which were shipped abroad.

The less some people give the more they expect.

ATTACKED THREE WAYS

Submarines, Aeroplane and Destroyer Sought French Cruiser

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The Petit Parisian whose daily provincial edition before the war was three-quarters of a million, and is still the largest, prints a column in Flemish for Belgian readers, besides an English column, both giving an extract of the latest news.

The same journal publishes a letter from a sailor on the Waldeck Rosseau giving details of an attack on October 19th by Austrians on that Cruiser from the air, the sea, and under the sea simultaneously.

"On approaching the Cattaro coast toward 8 a.m. an aeroplane appeared which seemed intending to attack us. 'Clear decks for action' was sounded and quick firers aimed. The airman dropped three bombs. One burst fifteen yards from the ship's side opposite my gun. Our quick fires prevented further attacks by the aeroplane, and it retired apparently unhurt. At the same moment a periscope was seen six hundred yards away. Our guns demolished it. We advanced at full speed of 24 knots. A second periscope was sighted in the rear, and sent us torpedoes which we avoided by dodging. It also was demolished by our fire. We saw a swirl in the water as if the submarine was sinking, nothing else. A moment later a torpedo boat comes on to our starboard, obviously trying to draw us over a mine field. We don't follow, but our big guns inflict damage and flames rise from the enemy's stern. However, he escapes and the battle is ended."

SYRIANS ARE BITTER ENEMIES OF TURKEY

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—Mr. S. M. Tooton, manufacturer, of 15 Claude street, yesterday discussed at length the attitude of the Syrians in Montreal and throughout the Dominion toward the British Empire in view of Turkey's hostile action toward the allies.

"It has never been known in history that the Syrians were ever hostile to the British Empire," declared Mr. Tooton. "On the contrary, every Syrian in the Dominion, whether naturalized or otherwise, is very loyal to the British Empire. If you will refer to history you will find proof of the Syrians' loyalty to John Bull. When Great Britain practically took possession of Egypt, the Syrians in that country were the first to welcome the advent of British rule. It is true we know that Syria is a province of the Turkish Empire, but not by choice, and we deplore it." He declared that if Turkey had an enemy on earth it was the Syrian people, who remember, and always will, the years of oppression and slaughter wrought amongst them by the barbarous Turk.

"Our hatred towards the Turks is universally known," he said. "We have waged wars and wars against them on numerous occasions, but owing to our inferiority in numbers we were not able to obtain our objective. Our sympathy in the present struggle is with Britain, France and Russia, and without much trouble you can easily ascertain the fact that there are ten thousand Syrians enrolled and fighting at the front in the ranks of the allies today. If it is really true that Turkey has cast in her lot with Germany and Austria you can be quite certain that she can expect no sympathy or assistance from the Syrians, but on the contrary they will, if the opportunity provides itself, take up arms on the side of the allies, which means for them liberty and justice.

A TOUCHING TRIBUTE

Wounded French Soldier Asked Privilege of Shaking Hands With General French

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Field Marshall French is very popular with both the French and the British soldiers, despite the fact that he is the strictest disciplinarian.

A French soldier, who had just been brought to the base hospital from the front with a shattered leg, on hearing that the British commander was in the vicinity, requested his nurse to ask Field Marshall French to come and shake hands with a humble ally who did not know whether he would survive an operation. Sir John immediately complied.

The soldier kissed the commander's hands, saying: "I am ready to die after meeting this famous general."

Plowing Match Decided Success

2,000 Spectators Flocked to Witness Competition at Woodbridge

FIRST EVENT OF SEASON

Entry List Was Large, With the Matches Keenly Contested

WOODBRIDGE, Nov. 4.—(Special.)—The first plowing match of the season in York County opened yesterday on the farm of Heman Coles, lot 5 concession 8, Vaughan Township, one miles west of here. The match was held under the auspices of the Vaughan and King Township branch of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, and constitutes the 35th annual event held by the association. The affair attracted a large crowd, and it is estimated that nearly 2,000 people, including a big delegation from Toronto, were present.

The ground was in excellent condition; the light rain of the morning helping to lighten the soil and to premit easy plowing. All the classes in sod and stubble plowing were keenly contested, and 43 contestants were registered in the eight classes. The results were as follows: In sod—1st class, Thomas Walkington, King; 2nd class, John Hausgianser, Woodhill; 3rd class, Roy Wilson, Vellore; 4th class, Alexander MacDonald, King; in stubble—5th class, Thomas Cook Vaughan; 6th class, Clifford Knubb, Minesing; 7th class, Thomas Walkington, King; 8th class, Charles Plunkett, Vaughan.

Their Lips Gave No Information

220 Passangers, Chiefly Canadian Volunteers Arrive From New York

BELFAST, Nov. 4.—Special—Two hundred passengers, chiefly Canadian volunteers, landed at 3 o'clock at Belfast from the Olympic. Each one approached refused point blank, interviews relative to the incidents of the thirteen days' voyage. Their lips, they said, were sealed. "We had a splendid passage," said one. "The ship has been safely moored. What more could you wish to know?" Asked if the delay in Lough Swilly was not rather monotonous, the reply came, "Oh, no, we had a glorious time; plenty of music, plenty of games and a jolly good company."

The majority of the passengers cross to England and Scotland tonight. Sixty-[illegible] of the Olympic passengers were Britishers from the United States, who, after landing, promptly visited the central recruiting depot in Belfast City Hall in a body and enlisted in Kitchener's army, afterwards being drafted to the Victoria Military Barracks. Every one had seen previous military service. One man speaks seven languages; another, Private Condon, has the Victoria Cross.

THE EMDEN NEVER TALKS

Officers of German Cruiser Only Listen to Wireless of Other Ships

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Under the heading, "Why the Emden Lives," The Standard publishes the following letter from the wife of the Captain of the steamer Kabinga, one of the Emden's victims:

"They (the Germans) destroyed our wireless the first thing. The Emden's officers told us they listened to all the various ships talking, but never talked themselves, and that our naval ships were careless and used no codes, and that they knew the whereabouts of all in these Eastern station, and knew just how long they could make their raid without risk of meeting an English cruiser. They were quite right, for we had no protection in the bay whatever, and they did what they pleased."

GERMAN FORCES LEAVING WOUNDED AND PRISONERS

Terrible Fighting Along the Front—Advance of Enemy Effectively Checked—Turkey Still Aggressive—Some Ships go Down

(Canadian Press Despatch Exclusively to The Intelligencer)

NEW ATTACKS ON THE ALLIED FORCES

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Further instalments of the report of an eye witness of the British army operating in France and Belgium brings events up to Nov. 2nd. An extract is as follows: "On Nov. 1st our troops were attacked all along the line, but the enemy was everywhere repulsed and suffered very heavily. Our howitzers demolished two of the enemy's eight inch guns and every account shows prodigious slaughter has been occasioned by our artillery.

The maintenance of an unbroken line and the repulse of repeated assaults caused in some cases the loss of entire columns of the Germans and has greatly discouraged the Kaiser's troops. The fighting has naturally entailed losses on the defending forces.

"The position of the Allies has been strengthened and reinforcements of every kind have been sent to meet the attacks now threatened."

BRIDGES AND WOUNDED LEFT BY GERMANY

PARIS, Nov. 4.—This afternoon's official announcement says the Germans now occupy on the left bank of the Yser only one bridge head half way between Dixmude and Nieuport. The Germans have abandoned besides many prisoners and wounded, much material, including artillery, stuck in heavy mud. The fighting has continued at most points and the result has been the advance of the Allies in nearly all case.

In the eastern theatre the Russians are making satisfactory progress.

GERMANS RETREATING FROM DIXMUDE

LARGE SHIRT ORDER FOR A BELLEVILLE INDUSTRY

The British War Office is giving out orders for army flannel shirts to the extent of 800,000. The manufacturers of shirts in Canada, some thirty-five, have formed themselves co-operatively to take care of this business in this country. Orders are now being given out pro-rata to the different manufacturers in this country.

M. W. B. Deacon of the Deacon Shirt Company, of this city, has been made a member of the executive committee of five who are handling this work. This will mean that the Deacon Shirt Company who have already been working on shirt orders for the Dominion Government, will secure an order from the British War Office for from 25,000 to 30,000 shirts.

RAILROAD TRAIN WAS WRECKED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

MESSINA, Sicily, Nov. 4.—A railway train running between here and Palermo was wrecked this morning. Reports received up to the present time declare that all the passengers on board, with one exception, and all the members of the train crew, lost their lives.

A bridge on the line had been washed out by floods. Unaware of this condition the train crashed down into the river bed and the cars overturned in the water.

LONDON SCOTTISH ROUT THE ENEMY

Former Behave Splendidly While Getting Their First Baptism of Near Ypres

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Special—That crack territorial regiment, the London Scottish Rifles, acquitted themselves gloriously in their first engagement. Despatches from the front describe the advance of the famous corps to attack the German line near Ypres. Under fierce artillery fire, they reached the enemy's trenches, when the Germans in overwhelming numbers came at them with fixed bayonets. The Scotsmen charged the advancing enemy, and the impact was terrific. The Scots first recoiled, and then charged again and again, until the Germans turned and ran.

At least one Toronto man is serving with the London Scottish. Mr. R. E. M. Richards, who had been a student at Trinity College, left for England in the summer to visit his mother. When war broke out he enlisted, and not long ago he wrote Toronto friends that he was at the front in France. Mr. Richards was an Englishman by birth, but had lived in Canada for some time.

CLOTHING SHIPPED

CAMPBELLFORD, Nov. 4—Special—The Daughters of the Empire of this town shipped to-day one carload of wearing apparel and produce, valued at $3,000, to the destitute people in Belgium. The township of Seymour shipped two cars of produce through the Department of Trade and Commerce to the British Government.

Where are the farm implements and machinery? The fence corner, the deciduous tree or the middle of a ten-acre field is a poor shelter.

One-half the world may not know how the other half lives, but it spends a lot of time trying to find out.

Farmers Rushing Food to Britain

Seven Hundred Tons of Produce Are Now Assembled at Montreal

BIG SUPPLY TO COME

Gifts From the Ontario Farmers May Fill Several Ships

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Special—Seven hundred tons of farm products from Ontario have been assembled at Montreal for shipment to the British Government. This is part of the food gift of the Ontario farmers for the relief of distress in the Motherland. The Department of Trade and Commerce, which is transporting the contributions from points of rail shipment in Ontario asked that all the offerings be ready in time for assembling at Montreal by the first of the present month, and trainloads of apples, oats and other products are now passing over the lines of the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern to Montreal from all parts of the Province. From the fact that so large a supply has arrived already it is expected that by the time all the consignments have reached Montreal there will be enough for several shiploads. The department has no estimate of the total and will not know the amount until it is all assembled.

Women Are on The Firing Line

Don Male Attire and Fight Well—One Woman Wounded Four Times

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Special—The Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post says:

"The number of women coming back wounded from the Russian front proves that the contingent of adventurous females on the fighting line is considerable. These women, as a general rule, cut their hair, assume a soldier's uniform and get secretly with the connivance of friends among the soldiers. Others start alone on various pretexts, such as seeking injured relatives, and then don male attire when they reach the front.

"A Cossack girl trooper, Helen Choba by name, went with the full knowledge and permission of the authorities, having long been distinguished as a horsewoman, swordswoman and a markswoman.

"Colonel Tomilobbskayas' daughter, who in male uniform on the Augustowo front distinguished herself as a scout leader, has been wounded three times."

AMERICAN WOMAN GIVES FIELD HOSPITAL

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Special—Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who was Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, will sail to-morrow for Europe on the Lusitania with a staff of four surgeons and fifteen trained nurses, to establish, at her own expense, a large field hospital behind the firing line in northern France. Ten motor ambulances, a large quantity of medical supplies and clothing sufficient for 3,000 men women and children, all purchased by Mrs. Whitney as a part of her undertaking, were shipped to France last Saturday on the steamship Chicago.

Wounded soldiers of the warring nations will be treated at the field hospital, which is to be conducted in co-operation with the American ambulance hospital.

Mrs. Whitney's sister, Countess Seechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, is now aiding the wounded.

"TELL THEM TO COME" IS MESSAGE OF WOUNDED TO ABLE-BODIED CANADIANS

Soldiers in the Hospitals of the Old Land are Determined to go Back into the Struggle as Soon as Their Wounds are Healed--Hope That Canada Will do Her Part

MONTREAL, Nov. 3.—"Tell them to come" is the mesage brought to able-bodied men in Canada from wounded Britisr soldiers in Edinburgh by Miss Helen Boulnois, who arrived in Montreal yesterday on the Allan liner Hesperian. Miss Boulnois will shortly visit relatives in the United States but, meantime, may deliver a number of addresses in aid of the Belgian relief work. She was instrumental, soon after the war broke out, in having Craigleith Poor House, Edinburgh, turned into a hospital for wounded soldiers, and their talk convinced her of the great need of the Belgians.

"When I told the soldiers that I was coming to Canada they were glad, and asked me to impress on the men out here they should [illegible]ist without delay," she said yesterday. The soldiers were a quiet lot, but they were determined to return to the war just as soon as they recovered their health. They hoped that Canada would send a good proportion of men to help the Empire.

A Letter From George E. Cronk

Salisbury Plains,
England.

Dear Mother, Father, Sisters and Brother:—

We have arrived at Camp at last, but are going to move again in a few days but I am not sure. Anyway the address will be so arranged that I will get my mail forwarded to me anywhere I go. You should have seen the reception we got at Plymouth and Devonport when we arrived at these towns. I am in the best of health here and I was not sick on board the ship coming across the ocean.

I saw the biggest battleship in the world which is called the "Tiger." She is a super-dreadnought, and I don't think I will ever see such a sight again in my life. The people in England nearly went crazy when we got here. I have got enough tobacco and cigarettes to last me a couple of weeks or more. I have not been in a town or city where such crowds have assembled in such a short time before in my life. I would have had all the buttons cut off my coats if I did not watch out for them. Everybody wanted them for keepsakes. I had all the buttons of my old serges and greatcoat cut off before I left Valcartier Camp, and I gave them all away when we got here. We had to walk 12 miles from the station at Amesburg to here on Saturday morning and I was pretty tired all day Sunday. I am going to try to see some of the Belleville boys of the old 15th Regt. and 49th Regt. tonight at the Y.M.C.A. tent. I have some outfit to carry with me now; I have 2 suits of underwear, 1 clothes brush, 3 pairs breeches, 1 pair of boots, 2 outside shirts, 2 pairs socks, 1 comb, 1 hair brush, 1 overcoat, 1 serge, 1 cape, 1 pair of puttees, 1 water bottle, 1 kitbag, 2 haversacks, 1 bandolier, 1 pair canvas slippers, 1 mess tin, 1 hold-all, 1 shaving brush, 2 towels, 1 housewife, knife, fork and spoon. This was issued to me at Valcartier Camp, and besides I have my own personal kit, which consists of 1 sweater coat, 1 sleeping cap, 1 pair socks, 2 shirts, 1 towel, 1 belt, 1 ball pouch, 1 haversack, 1 housewife, 1 comb, and a number of small effects too numerous to mention. Well, I still got my old job on the transport wagon, and I have a big snap of a job when I go to work. I help to bring the rations and forage from the Army Service Corps headquarters to our camp. It is pretty cool here at night and hot in the day. Well, it is getting pretty near chuck-time now so I think I will close for this time hoping I will hear from you soon. Give my best regards to all and write a letter to Orvila telling her I am well. Wishing you good health, I remain.

Your loving son and brother,
GEORGE E. CRONK.

TIPPERARY

Dear Sir:

How would an additional verse to Tipperary answer to be sung by our gallant boys who are going to the front?

It's a long way from dear old Belleville,
It's a long road to go;
It's long way from dear old Belleville
And the sweetest girls we know.
Good-bye dear old Belleville,
Farewell our lovely Bay;
It's a long, long way from dear old Belleville—
But we'll all come back some day.

Yours truly,

Young Ladies of The Apex Club Visit Newly Wedded Quartette At Holloway

About twenty-five young lady members of the Apex Club, of the Tabernacle church, with an equal number from the young gentlemen of Miss L. Watson's Baracca Club, went to Holloway last evening, to pay their compliments to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bleecker (nee Miss Laura Cummings) recently wedded. To make the event more effective, they took along Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thompson of this city, (nee Miss Mary Post), also recently wedded, with the result that the Bleecker home was comfortably filled. During the evening the two brides were conducted to the parlor, seated gracefully on the centre of the floor, and surrounded by the lively company, were made the recipients of a bountiful shower, dealt out piece by piece by the president and secretary of the Apex Club. Refreshments games and a generally social evening followed. Mrs. Bleecker and Mrs. Thompson, who have been prominent workers in the Apex Club, and highly popular with their associates, were wished all sorts of joy and prosperity, the husbands promising to "love, honor and obey." The party broke up about midnight, arriving home at 1.30 this morning.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S DEATH ACCIDENTAL

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(Special.)—A verdict of accidental death was returned at the inquest to-day on Private Alexander Ogilvie of the Canadian contingent. He was found at King Cross Station without a pass, railway ticket or money. Thinking he was under the influence of drink, the military policeman took him to the guardroom for being an absentee. Next morning he had a seizure and died from angina pectoris.

The coroner remarked that it was evidently illness, not alcoholism, from which deceased was suffering when he was found.

GERMANY'S MINE THREAT

Not Able to Circle British Isles, Declares Expert

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Commenting on the rumors from Berlin that Germany intends encircling the British Isles with a chain of submarine mines, an American naval officer who is an authority on mines, said to-day that such a feat was utterly impossible. It would require more than two million mines, he said, and Germany did not possess a tenth of that number and could not manufacture five hundred thousand if she wanted to. Submarines are practically valueless in mine-laying it appears, for the reason that they cannot carry enough mines to make so perilous trips worth while. An American officer questioned does not believe that there are more than three hundred mines off the Irish coast, against. In his opinion these mines must have been laid by some ship flying a neutral flag which brought them from some Scandinavian port. It is not likely, he thinks, that more than one ship could sneak past the cordon of British cruisers and one vessel could not carry more than three hundred mines. The officer also remarked that he deemed it impossible that any floating mines had been used by either side, as these are worthless except under circumstances that have not yet arisen in this war.

A TORONTO TAILOR SUICIDES IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 4.—(Special)—Thomas E. Gorrill, aged thirty-two, a tailor of Toronto, committed suicide in Grand Circus Park here at 9 o'clock last night by swallowing carbolic acid. After taking the drug the man fell writhing beneath a clump of bushes and apparently soon became unconscious. A few moments later a policeman passing the spot saw Gorrill's feet protruding from the bushes. A hasty examination showed the man still breathing but he died before the arrival of the ambulance.

A card found in the man's pocket bore the name of L. Fred Mason, a tailor on Dix Avenue, Detroit, where he apparently had been employed. The letter in his pocket established Gorrill's identity. It was dated from Harriston, Ont., and signed "your sister, Susie Fallis." There was no money found on his person. The body is at the county morgue.

WANTS TO WIN AND RULE WORLD

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(Special.)—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Evening News has sent in a despatch, in which he says that a German subject who heard Emperor William on a recent occasion when he addressed his troops quotes his Majesty as follows:

"We are now fighting for the life of Germany. They wish to kill Germany, but I say if we win—and we must win—a new empire shall arise more spendid than the world ever saw—a new Roman-German Empire, which shall rule the world, and the world shall be happy."

MEMBER OF 48TH ASTRAY IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Special—Two men from the 48th Highlanders, Toronto, were in London today searching for a missing man from their ranks. The man is thought to have unduly extended his leave and not deserted.

Colonel Pelletier, Agent-General of Quebec, who paid a visit to the camps at Salisbury Plain on Saturday, returned convinced that his home province is not unique in its reputation for having bad roads. Reaching Bustard Camp in a motor he found himself floundering in a marsh. He intended to pay a visit to West Down South camp to see some old friends from the 65th, Montreal, but deferred until the weather is more favorable for motoring.

At the King's expressed wish, the reception on Wednesday in aid of the Army and Navy Male Nurses' Association will take place as planned, although Princess Henry of Battenberg will be unable to be present as intended.

SYMBOL OF EMPIRE UNITY

The reference of leading newspapers of the United Kingdom show to no little degree how much was done for the Empire when the Borden Government organized and despatched the first Canadian army of over thirty thousand men to serve in the great war for civilization.

Had the Borden Government been permitted to place three Canadian dreadnoughts in the North Sea, as proposed; the lesson to the world would have been of as great importance as the actual increase to the fighting strength of the navy. The failure to send those ships was a lesson of another kind, an encouragement of the belief by the enemies of England that the scattered dominions of the Empire would stand apart from the Motherland in the event of war.

The sending of the first Canadian contingent, and the promise of continuous reinforcements has shown how gravely Britain's enemies miscalculated; it has partly made up for the other lesson. The London "Morning Post," one of the best informed of the British dailies, deals with the aspect of imperial development in an editorial under date of October 16, as follows:

"We rejoice that the Canadian troops have safely landed in England. They will soon be of great value in the fighting line, for there is no better material anywhere than these rough-riders and yeomen of the Canadian plains, forests, and mountains. But they are also of great value to the Empire because they are a symbol of its unity and potential strength. The British Empire in most respects presents a remarkable contrast to the Empire we are fighting. The German Empire was organized to the last man and trained for the purpose of warfare in a manner altogether beyond our knowledge or conception. Their Government was forged for strength; it handled its entire forces at once as one man. Every detail of its plan of operations had been arranged beforehand. Hence the truly formidable danger of its attack. The British Empire, on the other hand, is a loosely-knit collection of units in all stages of government and self-government. The Germans thought it must fall to pieces at the first touch of war; on the contrary, war is knitting and drawing it together. It started the war unprepared for so gigantic a struggle; but as the war proceeds it is slowly gathering together its forces—and they are living forces.

"These forces take time in organizing themselves; the German press is full of sneers at the process of Imperial improvisation which is now going on in the British Empire. There are, no doubt, mistakes being made—mistakes of inexperience and unpreparedness, which are costing us dear. But with perseverance and courage, and initiative, none of which are lacking, we shall yet, perhaps, prove ourselves the equal of the enemy even in the business of war; and we may prove ourselves their superiors in elasticity and staying power. For a while Germany started at full blast and with her whole energy; we started in a little way of business, and are gradually increasing our strength as we proceed. Perhaps it may even be that we shall wax as they wane, until an equilibrium of strength is reached, and then a superiority.

"There are no limits to the resources and strength of the British Empire, if they are only gathered together by the loyalty and intelligence of the individual parts. Canada, for example, is said to have two hundred thousand men in training at the present time; Australia has no doubt as many; New Zealand is preparing according to her strength; in South Africa the Union and Rhodesia are fully occupied against a very active, enterprising and unscrupulous enemy; but there also time is on our side. Here in the United Kingdom the Territorial Army is not like the German Territorial Army, a force of middle-aged and elderly men, but an army of youth and vigor which is gaining in experience and discipline every day, and will soon be fit to take the field.

"We hear the most encouraging accounts of Lord Kitchener's new army, which is shaping itself with quite extraordinary rapidity. Lord Kitchener has inspired them with his own strength and confidence; their trust in their Chief leads them to believe that this great task of creating a New Army in the face of the enemy will be accomplished, and with success. In India, too, we are no doubt training up new forces to take up the place of the old, and in many centres throughout the Empire we are making arms, ammunition, and equipment, as well as training men, and besides we are growing food and creating wealth for the prosecution of the war. We point these things out, not in a spirit of pride, but of thankfulness. And we must be grateful, especially to our allies, the French and the Russian nations, whose magnificent stand enables us to carry on these preparations while the war is in progress."

JUSTIFIABLE PRAISE

The Liberal press has recently been indulging in some very ungenerous and uncalled for criticisms of Valcartier camp. They have also been hinting, in a vague and insidious manner of scandals in connection with this camp, but though challenged to expose them, have failed to do so, for the very good reason that none existed. As a matter of fact, the rapidity with which the preparation of Valcartier Camp was carried out, and the remarkably short time in which the 30,000 Canadian troops were assembled and dispatched to England reflects the greatest possible credit upon the Government and Major-General Sam Hughes, Canada's efficient and energetic Minister of Militia, in particular.

That veteran British soldier, Lord Roberts, who is the Honorary-Colonel of the Canadian overseas forces, recently gave unstinted praise to Major-General Hughes for his work. Lord Roberts said:—

"The prompt resolve of Canada to give us such valuable assistance has touched us deeply. That resolve has been quickened into action in what I consider a marvelously short period of time under the excellent organization and driving power of your Minister of Militia, my friend, Major-General Hughes. In less than three months from the declaration of war, I am able to greet this fine body of soldiers on English soil."

A Neighbor Told Him To Take Gin Pills
FOR THE KIDNEYS

If you want to know what Gin Pills will do for you, just drop a line to Mr. D. A. Yorke, at Bellrock, Ont. He will tell you what Gin Pills did for him, after he had suffered with Kidney trouble for 15 years. Here is his letter:

"I suffered for about 15 years with my Kidneys. I could get nothing to help me. The pain went all through my back and shoulders and down the calves of my legs. When I would sit down for a while, I could not straighten up again until I would walk a rod or more, the pain was so great. A neighbor advised me to take GIN PILLS. I did so and six boxes cured me. It is about two and a half years since I quit taking them. My back is all right; no pains and no more backache. I thank GIN PILLS for it all—they are worth their weight in gold." D. A. YORKE.

Swollen, Aching Veins

A COMMON CAUSE OF DISCOMFORT.

The army of people troubled with swollen veins is a large one and was steadily on the increase until the discovery a few years ago that a germicide-liniment of marked value for other ailments gave prompt relief from this aggravating trouble.

Since this accidental discovery hundreds of sufferers have proven its efficiency—it has made good even in cases of long standing.

Mr. R. C. Kellogg, Becket, Mass., before using this remedy, suffered intensely with painful and inflamed veins; they were swollen, knotted, and hard. He writes: "After using one and one-half bottles of Absorbine, Jr., the veins were reduced, inflammation and pain gone, and I have had no recurrence of the trouble during the past six years."

This germicide-liniment—Absorbine, Jr. is made of herbs and safe and harmless to use, which in itself makes it distinctive. Most druggists have it or send $1.00 to the manufacturer, W. F. Young, P.D.F., 457 Lymans Bldg., Montreal, Can.

CONSERVING $1,400,000,000

Let us get a notion of what this industrial fabric is that Canadian citizens are asked to maintain by taking part in the "Made-in-Canada" movement. In a matter of cold cash, it is an investment of $1,500,000,000 in factories and equipment. It is an annual output of $1,400,000,000. It is a yearly wages and salary list of $283,000,000.

These are figures that entitle Canada to be considered as a great industrial nation in the making. They are figures that if used a few decades ago by England, the United States or Germany might have been made the subject of great orations. The sum total of Canada's share in the world's work represented by smokestacks and boxcars and payrolls is a great fabric of business that has become a source of pride to a young nation. We boast of our railway system, our empire of farm lands, our free institutions, our worthy pioneers and our determined, clean-handed people. Let us also boast of the 23,000 factories that have become one of the bulwarks of the nation.

To help maintain this national asset is the privilege as well as to the advantage of every man and woman in Canada. This industrial fabric must not be endangered by war. It must be conserved, and in conserving it, we serve our own interests in obtaining better values, in many cases in saving money, and making ourselves more prosperous.

CURRENT COMMENT

Montreal Mail: "An Ontario paper describes Prince Maurice of Battenburg as "a member of the German royal family." He was a grandson of Queen Victoria, the son of Princess Henry of Battenberg, better known as Princess Beatrice, and was no more German than the King."

Toronto News: "The Globe accuses the Government of neglecting Toronto. It attempts to incite Conservative workmen against the Administration. As strongly as The Globe we urge the Government to carry on all possible public work in Toronto. But it is certain at least that the Government is not giving other communities any preference over this city. It has been enormously difficult owing to the demands from every quarter to continue public works and private employment adequate to the needs of an extraordinary situation."

Montreal News: "Holland will get this year's Nobel peace prize, Turkey having lost her claim to it. Also ran Rev. Dr. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto."

Hamilton Spectator: "Contractors in Toronto of one of its sky-scrapers were fined $5,000, for dropping such trifles as planks, redhot bolts, etc., to the manifest danger of liege subjects of His Majesty the King. And they didn't shout "Look out below." Such carelessness was evidently culpable with all that the term implies." No worse than the Germans. They don't tell anyone to "look out below."

Hamilton Herald: "It would be pleasant to be able to praise the farmers of Ontario for their patriotism in doubling the area sown to wheat in this province. But really, the farmers are just consulting their own interests like shrewd men of business." Let us at least give the Ontario farmers credit for doing their part toward suppling the needs of the country in their lines. And "the laborer is worthy of his hire."

WAR NOTES

The Bridgeburg, Ont., Council has passed a resolution pointing out to the militia authorities the necessity for a night patrol along the frontier. Reeve J. R. Mencke stated that he thought there should be a few men patrolling the bank of the Niagara River from Niagara Falls to Fort Erie, so that in the event of a raid of Germans from Buffalo the villages would not be surprised.

The statement that the new Zeppelins said to be designed for a raid on London have aluminum covers as a protection against bombs and shells is incorrect. In regard to the two airships now completing at Friedrichshafen it is learned that several experiments have been made with various substances, but so far these efforts to make the Zeppelins bombproof have been unsuccessful.

In formation reaching Paris shows that the recently raised new German army has a total strength of 580,000 men, and is made up principally by calling out the recruits of 1915. The remainder are volunteers of all ages. The army is divided into twelve corps, and will be used as follows: Six corps for service in Belgium and France; two to form a reserve force, and stationed around Strassburg, and the other four to be employed in a special effort to take Verdun.

The astonishingly large percentage of the officers and crew rescued from the cruiser Hermes appears to have been due to a most ingenious idea. When the vessel was torpedoed there was no assistance at hand. She was settling down, and great disaster was threatened, when someone thought of the petrol tins, of which 400 were aboard. The order was promptly given to empty the tins and screw down the stoppers, and on these tins scores of men who must otherwise have been drowned kept afloat until help arrived.

MUST PRINT WHITE PAPER.

Pro-German Press In West Given a Pill By the Government.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4. — So persistent is the anti-British campaign in some German newspapers of western Canada that the Government has been obliged to deal drastically with the situation. Orders were issued yesterday to the military authorities at Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton to notify newspapers in their districts that the further publication of articles of a seditious nature, or calculated to incite in the readers of these newspapers anti-British sentiment of a dangerous character, would be followed immediately by suppression of the newspaper.

The Government will also compel these German newspapers to print the British White Paper, showing the British side of the case against Germany in the war.

USING NOVEL SPADES.

Equipment of Canadian Troops is New To Englishmen.

BASINGSTOKE, Eng., Nov. 4. — Canadian troops arriving at Salisbury Plains carry an entrenching tool that is novel to the Englishman. It is capable of being used as a shield and is slung across the shoulder in a leather case. The tool is a spade weighing about four pounds and consequently can be carried at all times. The spade has an oval hole in the centre of it, through which a gun barrel can be thrust. This tool thus serves both as a rifle rest and shield to the soldier in the trenches.

All the spades have been subjected to heavy fire and the metal in them is practically bullet-proof. At a distance of 200 yards heavy ammunition only cracks the shields and does not penetrate them.

No Half Measures, Says Czar.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — A despatch from Moscow to Reuter's Telegram Co. says that Emperor Nicholas, in telegraphing his greetings to the Merchants' Association, on the occasion of the opening of its sessions, said:

"Peace only is possible when Russia reaches the heart of German soil. This is the unanimous opinion of all Muscovites. Any apprehension of peace being concluded before the enemy is completely crushed is unfounded."

Reach the World by the Bell System

A BUSINESS MAN told us the other day of how he is meeting the slackening up in trade. He was about to send a salesman to see a customer two hundred and fifty miles away, but he had little confidence in the outcome of the trip. He had not time to go himself, although he did want very much to have a personal talk with this customer.

This is the way this business man explained it to us:—

"All at once I thought of the telephone—why not call him up and talk with him myself? When I first spoke to him, he was a little nervous about buying anything, but by a little reassuring talk I was able to get a first class order from him. GERMAN FLEET OUT?

Kaiser's Warships Said To Be In Conflict With British.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — Reports are current of a naval battle in the North Sea, but with what result is yet unknown.

The German fleet is said to have come out from its base at Heligoland with the object of making an attack before the process of mine-laying, which the British planned to have completed by Thursday, should have restricted the naval offensive.

A Dunkirk despatch says four German battleships and four cruisers have also put to sea from Kiel.

A German cruiser, retreating before British cruisers yesterday morning, let go a mine at them and sunk in the North Sea the British submarine D5. Two officers and two men from the submarine were rescued, according to an Admiralty report last night.

The report says a German squadron fired on the British gunboat Halcyon, which was patrolling, wounding one man.

Various naval movements were made, the report continues, "as a result of which the Germans retreated rapidly, and, although shadowed by the light cruisers, they could not be brought into sea action.

"The rearmost German cruiser in her retirement threw out a number of mines and the submarine was sunk by one of these."

TO BRING UP STRENGTH.

Remaining 14,000 Troops Will Be Called For Soon.

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Since the Government's plan is to mobilize 30,000 infantry, and to keep that number constantly in training in Canada, and since orders have gone out for only 16,000, the supplementary orders for the other 14,000 will be sent out to the commanders of the various divisional areas within a day or two. Orders will also be sent out for artillery, engineers, army service corps, medical corps, etc., to go with the second contingent as soon as the quota to be taken from each division has been settled.

A considerable force of artillery will be mobilized, part of it to go overseas and part to remain in Canada for defence purposes.

Three or four thousand horses will be purchased for the artillery lines of communication, etc., of the second contingent.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

COPYRIGHT, 1914, BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

"Am I spick and span?" asked Robin anxiously. "Aunt Fannie said mother is beautiful and elegant and famous I want her to see that I am nice enough to be her little boy."

Dorcas dropped on her knees beside him. She untied the small bow at his collar and made it into a fresh knot. "Why, you will be her pride and joy."

There was a look of tense anxiety in the child's face. "Do you think so really? I am more trouble than little boys who—can see. I can't dress myself all over, and I can't part my hair straight. I can't always find things. Sometimes," Robin's voice dropped to a whisper, "sometimes I'm scared when I'm alone; I get afraid on the streets if they are noisy."

Dorcas laid her face against the soft cheek and whispered something in the child's ear. Robin's face shone with joy. "I am glad you think so. There is just one thing," his voice had a regretful tone in it, "I wish you had been my mother, I like you."

The girl held him out at arm's length for a moment. "I am wishing the same thing. I like you!"

He took her hand and they climbed the stair which led to the upstairs dressing-room. Dorcas felt an unspoken terror. She looked back from the head of the stairs. Merry stood watching them. She beckoned him, and he followed with a few springing steps. They paused for a moment outside the door of Miss Paget's room. When Dorcas tapped, Robin was clinging to her hand with a grip which almost hurt.

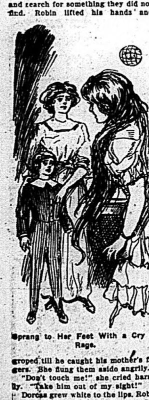
Zilla Paget stared at them with still curiosity. She sat in front of the mirror while the colored maid Emiline brushed her hair. It hung to her waist in long, shining waves. Her forehead wrinkled for a moment as if in perplexity. She could not see Robin's face. He was hiding behind Dorcas with his head wrapped in her gown. A sneering smile hovered about her mouth.

"This is a rare pleasure, Miss Wentworth," she said abruptly. "Something uncommon must have happened to make you honor me with a visit. Who is your young friend?"

Dorcas laid her hand upon Robin's shoulder and turned him gently so he could face his mother.

"This is your little boy," she said in a low voice.

Zilla Paget sprang to her feet with a cry of rage. In a second she stood at Dorcas' side. She turned the child's face up to her own and stared at it. The sightless eyes seemed to plead and search for something they did not find. Robin lifted his hands and groped till he caught his mother's fingers. She flung them aside angrily.



Sprang to Her Feet With a Cry of Rage.

"Don't touch me!" she cried harshly. "Take him out of my sight!"

Dorcas grew white to the lips. Robin was clutching at her in terror. She put her arm about him, sheltering him as a mother would have done.

Miss Paget turned her eyes fiercely upon the girl. "Who hatched this infernal plot?" she cried. "Who brought this little brat to America?"

The actress lost control of herself. She dashed up and down the narrow dressing-room like a caged tiger.

"What is the matter?" asked Dorcas coldly.

"It's hell and the devil—and all his angels. That's what's the matter. What right had you to stick a finger in my affairs? What do you suppose I want of that blind brat? I hate the sight of him. He is the image of his father, and good God! how I did hate him! I suppose you and your saintly Mr. Oswald are bent on ruining my career."

Dorcas opened the door and pushed the sobbing child gently into the lobby. Merry stood outside, where he had overheard the woman's shrill abuse. He took Robin by the hand and led him downstairs. Dorcas reentered the dressing-room. Miss Paget was tossing through a heap of letters which lay on her table as if in search of something. She picked up a sheet of paper and stood reading it. A savage smile convulsed her handsome face.

"I know now who did it," she cried. "That was the revenge he meant, the bally old rotter! I'll get even with him!"

"You don't want your little boy, then?" asked Dorcas.

She turned on the girl in blank amazement.

"Want that blooming, batty, imbecile Rob Tully's child? Not on your life! He goes back to the asylum where he came from. I can get the law on them for giving him up without his mother's consent."

"His mother!" cried Dorcas. "You do not act the part of 'Mrs. Esterbrook'!"

There was an ugly tone in Zilla Paget's laugh. "I have heard that before. Mr. Oswald was once so complimentary as to tell me something of the sort. Now, perhaps you will be polite enough to clear out. And before you go, let me give you a bit of advice, my lady: keep your nose out of my business if you have any regard for your own happiness!"

Dorcas turned to the door. The woman laughed as she closed it behind her. She paused for a minute in the empty hall trying to think of what could be said to the child downstairs. If the woman had struck him in the face, it would have been easier to recover from such a blow.

Dick came dashing up the stairs. "First call," he shouted hoarsely.

She ran down to her own room. Mrs. Volk sat in a low chair with Robin in her arms, cuddling him against her breast and crooning to him as if he were a baby. She looked up at Dorcas with pitiful eyes.

"Let me take him, Alice. I have plenty of time to dress after Julie goes out. She needs you to button her frock and fix her hair."

Robin did not speak when Alice laid him in her arms. His slender body was limp and quiet. Dorcas had never known any little boy intimately, and she did not know exactly how to comfort him. It occurred to her that if she were in Robin's place she would not want anybody to speak of what had happened. She bent down and touched his face with her lips. When the door closed and Mrs. Volk went out with Julie, he asked in a whisper,

"I don't belong then—to the—lady—upstairs, do I?"

"No, dear," there was a thrill of assurance in Dorcas' voice, "no, you could not possibly have belonged to her. Somebody made a mistake—an awful mistake."

"Then—do you know—who I do belong to?"

"Robin," asked Dorcas gently, "do you still wish that I were your mother?"

His arms clasped convulsively about her neck, and the slim body shook with sobs.

"I would like—to belong to somebody."

"Well," said the girl decisively, "I want you—forever—as my own little boy. Shall we shake hands on it?"

The small fingers were thrust into her own with a clinging grip.

That night at the close of the second act the audience sat breathless for a few moments. "Cordelia," with her face glowing beneath the rouge, turned in response to "Mrs. Esterbrook's" last plea.

"Stay with you because you are my mother? How dare you take the word 'mother' upon your lips? Do you know what that word stands for? I wonder if it would be possible to make you understand. It means love-self-denying, strong, tender devotion; it means faithful wifehood. Have you ever given that? The woman who is a good wife and mother forgives and forgets and loves. Behind it all stands love, simply love, unselfish love. I believe in God, but today I cannot understand why he should have allowed a woman such as you are to have become a wife and a mother—my mother!"

The curtain fell. Dorcas had reached her dressing-room when she had to turn and fly back to the stage. The applause had grown to a tumult. Zilla Paget stood by her side when the curtain rose. She was smiling a stage smile upon the audience, but the glance she turned upon Dorcas was one of malignant hatred.

CHAPTER XVI.

Wentworth Shows His Hand.

Oswald shut up a ledger and carried it to his safe. He and Wentworth had finished a study of their month's finances. The figures were satisfactory beyond their anticipation.

Enoch leaned back in his chair and lit a cigar. "If we can stay in New York till spring—and it begins to look as if we might—you and I are on the high road to become millionaires."

Oswald did not answer. He picked up a paper-knife and tested its pliancy by bending it almost double.

"Wentworth," he asked, "do you happen to think of any one who could take Zilla Paget's part?"

Enoch laid his cigar on a tray and sat bolt upright. "Were you in front last night?" he asked curtly.

"No." Oswald spoke gravely.

"Miss Paget and Dorcas had nine curtain calls at the end of the second act. The gallery began to hiss. People downstairs joined in. Can you think of any actress who is free, or engaged for that matter, capable of touching her in the part?"

"It was not acting last night. Were you back of the scenes?"

Enoch brought down his fist with a thud on the table. "I was not, and I'm sorry enough that I wasn't. I would have settled things differently. I have had the whole story rehearsed to me by several people. Do you know that Miss Paget's child is in my home?"

Oswald bent his knife to the point of resistance. It snapped in two pieces. He tossed the fragments in a waste basket. "You mean the little blind boy?"

"Yes." Wentworth's voice was fierce with irritation. "I have not seen him—I have no wish to see him. Dorcas told me this morning what she had saddled herself with. She and I thrashed the question out." He laughed unpleasantly. "It did precious little good."

"Would you have turned the child into the street?"

Enoch shrugged his shoulders impatiently.

"I don't want to go over the question again. It puts me in an awkward position with Miss Paget to have the child in my house. So far as I see I cannot turn him out unless my sister goes with him."

"What do you suggest?"

"Good God! there is only one thing to do—send the child to the asylum where he came from. The mother is in the right when she wants him sent back to England. He was in a good enough home there."

"Who took him out of it?"

"I don't understand the situation. Miss Paget knows, I fancy, but she has not given me the man's name. She says it was a piece of nasty revenge."

"She told you this?"

"Yes, I have had a nice morning. It was gone over step by step at home, then again with Miss Paget. She wants the child."

"To care for?"

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME
Tells How Vinol Restores Strength and Vitality to the Weak, Worn-Out Ones in Her Charge.
Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N.Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for run-down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. ALPHONSA LATHROP, O.S.D., Hawthorne, N.Y.
Such disinterested and reliable testimony should convince everyone of the merits of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic to build up health and strength for all weakened and nervous conditions, whether caused from overwork, worry or chronic coughs and colds. If Vinol fails to benefit we return your money.

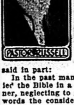
REGENERATION OF CHURCH AND WORLD

Life Everlasting Obtainable Only in Christ.

WHERE FATHER ADAM FAILED

Why Regeneration Is Necessary—Why It Began at the First Advent and Not Sooner—Why the Limitations of the Present Age—The Low and Narrow Gate—The Narrow and Rough Pathway—Why Different Kind of Regeneration During the Millennium—Why the World Will Have an Easier Pathway Up to Life Everlasting Than Is Now Granted the Church—What and Why the Differences Between the Two Regenerations.



PASTOR RUSSELL

New York City, Nov. 1.—Pastor Russell of New York City Temple, took for his subject "The Regeneration of the Church and the Regeneration of the World. What are They? Why Different?" His text was, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again." (John 3:7.) He said in part:

In the past many of us have studied the Bible in a very careless manner, neglecting to give to its inspired words the consideration and respect they deserve. In many cases, the original thought has been utterly lost because of some fanciful interpretation. Consequently very few Christian people have any concrete idea of the meaning of our text, and of other Bible statements respecting the future regeneration of the world.

Regeneration, or a second birth, is absolutely necessary if we would attain everlasting life. The fault lies not with our Creator, that He made us incomplete for, as the Bible declares, "all His work is perfect." The fault is chargeable to sin. "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin; so death passed upon all men, because all are sinners."

This sentence of death upon Father Adam hindered him from giving to his children the perfection of life in which he was created. His entire race has been born into the world for six thousand years under a death sentence or curse. God cannot alter that sentence. The forfeited life cannot be prolonged; the sentence of death cannot be set aside; the Supreme Judge of the Universe cannot for any reason declare that He erred in His condemnation of our race. He cannot set aside His own decision. But God could provide for the regenerating of Adam and his race. To generate, as all know, signifies to bring into life. Adam failed to generate a race to life; he merely generated a great race of thousands of millions possessed of only a spark of life—a dying race.

The Divine Provision is that our Lord Jesus left the glory of the Heavenly condition and became a man for the purpose of ransoming, or redeeming, Adam and his race, which shared his condemnation. The record is that this sacrificed life laid down by Jesus is sufficient as a cancelation of all Adamic sin. On the basis of that sacrifice, and in the carrying out of the Heavenly Father's Program, Jesus was raised from the dead "a quickening Spirit," a life-giving Personage, with a glory far higher than that which He had when He came into the world. "Him hath God highly exalted, and given Him a name which is above every name."—Philippians 2:9.

The glorified Jesus is Scripturally termed the Second Adam, the Life-Giver or Regenerator, and also the Everlasting Father—that is, the Father who gives everlasting life. The time for the giving of life to the world by this great Second Adam, whom God hath appointed, is to be the thousand years of His Messianic Reign. Throughout the Millennium, it will be the work of Christ Jesus, as the glorified Second Adam, to regenerate the first Adam and all his race. The regenerating influences will begin with their awakening from the sleep of death, in harmony with the Master's declaration, "The hour is coming in which all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man, and come forth."—John 5:28, 29.

The coming forth from the tomb will be the beginning of the regenerative work, but not by any means its completion. It will be merely a preparatory work. The awakened sleepers will be in the same condition of mind that they were in when they fell asleep—in a very similar condition to those who will be living on the earth at that time. Before any of them can be regenerated, they must be brought to a knowledge of the Truth. Their eyes and their ears of understanding must be opened. The Scriptures assure us that this will be accomplished. "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Isaiah 35:5.) "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."—Habakkuk 2:14; Isaiah 11:9.

The news of God's Love and of the possibilities of return to His favor through the atoning work of Jesus being clearly demonstrated to all, each will have the opportunity of deciding for himself whether or not he desires to return to human perfection and the blessed possibilities of everlasting life. To do so, he must be begotten again by the Life-Giver; and the Life-Giver will beget again only those who desire the new life. Wilful rejectors of the privilege, we are assured, will die the Second Death; while those who accept the Saviour's proposals will come under helpful and disciplinary experiences which will gradually lift them up, mentally, morally and physically, to perfection—to all that was lost for them in Father Adam's disobedience and its penalty, and all that was regained for them by the obedience of Jesus and the Divine arrangement of His Messianic Kingdom for the regeneration of the world.

The words beget, born and regenerated or born again, associate themselves in our minds with our natural birth; but we are not to expect, as Nicodemus queried, that any would again be born as an infant from a mother. The begetting to a new birth will be in the mind—a covenant relationship with the Life-Giver.

Nevertheless, there is a beautiful analogy, complete in every feature; for while Father Adam was designed to be the life-giver, or father, or generator of the race, Mother Eve was designed to be its nourisher, care-taker and instructor, to bring the race up to complete development. So while Jesus is the Life-Giver in the sense that He gave His own life as a Ransom-price for Adam, it is also a part of the Divine Program that there should be not only a Second Adam, but also a Second Eve.

The world will need not only the start of the new life during the Millennium, but also the care and nourishment necessary for their development and uplift—for restitution to perfection. God's provision is that the Church, called especially for the purpose and especially qualified for it during this Gospel Age, shall be the Antitypical Eve—the Mother of the world—the care-takers, nourishers, supervisors, in respect to all regenerated or rebegotten, by the Life-Giver Jesus. What a beautiful prospect of collaboration with the Saviour in His great work of rescuing Adam and his race from the effects of Adamic sin and the death sentence!

The Divine picture is very complete. While Adam was alone he did not become a father. God caused him to fall into a deep sleep, and from his side took Mother Eve to be his bride, his co-laborer, his joint-heir in his inheritance, and his assistant in the work of generating the human family. So our Lord Jesus has not yet become a father. But He has gone into the deep sleep of death, His side has been wounded, and the first result is the gradual development during the past eighteen centuries, of a Bride-class. As Jesus passed from the human condition to the spiritual before He could be ready to be the Second Adam, so the Church class, as the New Creation, must pass from the human condition to the spirit condition, and must share in the First Resurrection, before she can fulfil her part in God's great Plan as the Second Eve.

In view of this work that God has outlined for His Son and for the Church, is it any wonder that He should consider it necessary to give us lessons and tests in faith, loyalty and obedience? Is it any wonder, in view of the work which He has for us to do for mankind, that He declares that as the Redeemer Himself was given deep experiences in suffering, in order to be a merciful and faithful High Priest in the things of God in relation to humanity, so the Church, His Bride, members of His Body, must share these experiences? When we come to understand the High Calling of God to the Church and the great work that is yet to be accomplished for and in the world of mankind, we are amazed.

It was not Jehovah's program for His Son that He should change to human nature permanently. On the contrary, we are distinctly told that the Logos took the form of a servant for the suffering of death, and not for any other purpose. This purpose having been accomplished, the Father raised Him up by His own Power to spirit nature and glory—"where He was before," but to a still higher station on the spirit plane—"far above angels, principalities and powers, and every name that is named." This meant a regeneration, or second birth, for Jesus; for "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom."—1 Corinthians 15:50.

Our Saviour exchanged His spirit condition, or nature, for the human, but He could not exchange the human nature for the spiritual; else there would have been no object served in His humiliation. His human life was to be given up sacrificially as the Redemption-price for Adam's life and, therefore, as the Redemption-price of the whole world, since all lost life through Adam's disobedience. The application of the Master's sacrificed life would have left Him without any life-rights as a man, but God provided for His regeneration; that is to say, for His re-birth.

The sacrifice of Himself as a human being was made when Jesus was thirty years of age, and was symbolized by His immersion; and immediately the Father begat Him again, not to be a human being, but a spirit being. He was begotten of the Holy Spirit, which descended upon Him in a form like a dove. For three and a half years Jesus, as a New Creature, spirit-begotten, used His flesh body, consecrated to death, having no other. In it, "He was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin"; and having demonstrated His loyalty to God, even unto death at Calvary, the Father raised Him from the dead on the third day—not a man, but a New Creature.

In other words, Jesus experienced the same transformation that the Apostle mentioned, saying, "It is sown in weakness; it is raised in power; it is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory; it is sown an animal body; it is raised a spiritual body." After His resurrection, Jesus illustrated the lesson given to Nicodemus, of which our text is a part. He could, and did, come and go like the wind. Some seven times during the forty days, He appeared for brief intervals for the instruction of His disciples, just as angels have done. Later, He ascended up on High. "Now the Lord is that Spirit"—"the Second Adam."—2 Corinthians 3:17; 1 Corinthians 15:45, 47.

The Bible tells us that God from the very beginning had foreknown that Jesus would accomplish this work and become the Father of Adam and his race by regeneration; and the Apostle assures us that God foreknew also the Church as the Bride of Christ and His Joint-heir in His Kingdom. And Jesus said to some of the earliest members of the Church class, "In the regeneration (in the Millennium) * * * ye shall sit upon thrones." (Matthew 19:28.) Elsewhere He declared, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My Throne."—Revelation 3:21.

The Father purposed that the Bride class should be selected from amongst the members of the fallen race, and should be prepared for their work of future glory before the world's would commence. He purposed also that this Bride class should have a change of nature similar to that which Jesus experienced—it would begin with them as with Him, at the time of consecration and spirit-begetting, and culminate with them as with Him, in the resurrection change. Thus the Church has the promise that she shall be like her Lord, see Him as He is, and share His glory. (1 John 3:2; Romans 8:17.) St. Peter, speaking of the call of the Church, declared that God gave unto this class "exceeding great and precious promises"—that by these promises working in their consecrated hearts to will and to do God's good pleasure, this class might become "partakers of the Divine Nature."—2 Peter 1:4.

It is manifest that this begetting of the Church to a change of nature is very different from the begetting provided for the world—regeneration, or rebegetting, to the human nature which Adam lost, but which Christ redeemed for the world. So also we have noted that the Church has a different Father. Jesus is not the Father, or Life-Giver, of this Divine life. He did not redeem it or secure it for anybody. He redeemed human nature and secured the right to regenerate the world to human nature.

The Church's begetting, or regeneration, is by the Heavenly Father Himself; as the Scripturers distinctly say, "The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ hath begotten us." (1 Peter 1:3.) He alone can give this Divine Nature. This does not signify that the Church is not indebted to her Redeemer; for the Scriptures distinctly state that without Him we could do nothing; that "by His stripes we are healed"; and that before the Heavenly Father would deal with us at all—before He would accept our consecration, or sacrifice—it was necessary that Jesus should appear on our behalf as our Advocate and Surety, and thus open up to us a New Way of Life.

Thus, as St. Paul declares, "Christ brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel"—life everlasting to the world and immortality, or the Divine Nature, for the Church.

Prior to our Lord's First Advent, the way of life was not manifested; no provision has been made for it except in the Divine Promise. God had promised His friend Abraham that somehow, sometime, all the world would be blessed; and that meant that all the world would be released from the curse of death and experience the Divine blessing, which signifies life everlasting—not that the world will be given this blessing unconditionally, but the opportunity for this blessing will be extended to every member of Adam's race, and to himself, for acceptance or rejection at their will. Then came the second part of the statement to Abraham; namely, that this blessing should come through his Seed, his posterity. This implies that some special member of Adam's race, of a faithful line, would be greatly exalted to honorable positions, where they would be capable of blessing the remainder of the world, their brethren.

St. Paul points us to the fact that God offered this great privilege to the Natural Seed of Abraham, knowing all the while that they were sinners and would be unable to comply with the conditions, but making of them a typical people, and thereby incidentally blessing them, though with a lesser blessing. The true Seed of Abraham, through whom this promised blessing shall come, St. Paul most positively declares, is first of all the Lord Jesus Christ—the great Life-Giver, the Father who gives everlasting life—the Second Adam.

Then, with equal clearness, the Apostle points out that the Church, the Bride of Christ, selected during this Gospel Age from all nations and all denominations, is to be also a participant in the blessing work, and to be counted in as a part of Abraham's Seed. His words are, "Which Seed is Christ. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the Promise."—Galatians 3:16, 29.

Afraid to Go Alone.

Light is thrown on the question why the Germans use a close formation when it brings such disastrous results, as is described in frequent despatches from the front, by a conversation which Lord Roberts once had with the Kaiser when Lord Roberts went to Germany to witness manoeuvres.

Lord Roberts during these manoeuvres noticed the German close formation and remarked to the Kaiser that he supposed that this formation would not be used in actual battle. The Kaiser replied that it would. Then Lord Roberts expressed some surprise, having noticed the danger of such tactics.

The Kaiser said the formation must be used else the soldiers would not go forward, that being their temperament. They must have some one within reach, evidently just for psychological comfort before advancing on the enemy.

Neutralizing a Shock.

If you know that you are going to hear a loud sound it is well to open the mouth, as the shock will then be neutralized. Noises in the ears are most annoying and sometimes resist all treatment. They are often associated with deafness and should therefore receive due attention.

When Preparing Eggs For Cooking.

Often when separating the white from the yolk of an egg the yolk becomes broken and falls into the white. Dip a cloth in warm water, wring it dry and touch the yolk with a corner of it, when the latter will adhere to the cloth and may easily be removed.

"I know now who did it," she cried. "That was the revenge he meant, the bally old rotter! I'll get even with him!"

"You don't want your little boy, then?" asked Dorcas.

She turned on the girl in blank amazement.

"Want that blooming, batty, imbecile Rob Tully's child? Not on your life! He goes back to the asylum where he came from. I can get the law on them for giving him up without his mother's consent."

"His mother!" cried Dorcas. "You do not act the part of 'Mrs. Esterbrook'!"

There was an ugly tone in Zilla Paget's laugh. "I have heard that before. Mr. Oswald was once so complimentary as to tell me something of the sort. Now, perhaps you will be polite enough to clear out. And before you go, let me give you a bit of advice, my lady: keep your nose out of my business if you have any regard for your own happiness!"

Dorcas turned to the door. The woman laughed as she closed it behind her. She paused for a minute in the empty hall trying to think of what could be said to the child downstairs. If the woman had struck him in the face, it would have been easier to recover from such a blow.

Dick came dashing up the stairs. "First call," he shouted hoarsely.

She ran down to her own room. Mrs. Volk sat in a low chair with Robin in her arms, cuddling him against her breast and crooning to him as if he were a baby. She looked up at Dorcas with pitiful eyes.

"Let me take him, Alice. I have plenty of time to dress after Julie goes out. She needs you to button her frock and fix her hair."

Robin did not speak when Alice laid him in her arms. His slender body was limp and quiet. Dorcas had never known any little boy intimately, and she did not know exactly how to comfort him. It occurred to her that if she were in Robin's place she would not want anybody to speak of what had happened. She bent down and touched his face with her lips. When the door closed and Mrs. Volk went out with Julie, he asked in a whisper.

"I don't belong then—to the—lady—upstairs, do I?"

"No, dear," there was a thrill of assurance in Dorcas' voice, "no, you could not possibly have belonged to her. Somebody made a mistake—an awful mistake."

"Then—do you know—who I do belong to?"

"Robin," asked Dorcas gently, "do you still wish that I were your mother?"

His arms clasped convulsively about her neck, and the slim body shook with sobs.

"I would like—to belong to somebody."

"Well," said the girl decisively, "I want you—forever—as my own little boy. Shall we shake hands on it?"

The small fingers were thrust into her own with a clinging grip.

That night at the close of the second act the audience sat breathless for a few moments. "Cordelia," with her face glowing beneath the rouge, turned in response to "Mrs. Esterbrook's" last plea.

"Stay with you because you are my mother? How dare you take the word 'mother' upon your lips? Do you know what that word stands for? I wonder if it would be possible to make you understand. It means love-self-denying, strong, tender devotion; it means faithful wifehood. Have you ever given that? The woman who is a good wife and mother forgives and forgets and loves. Behind it all stands love, simply love, unselfish love. I believe in God, but today I cannot understand why he should have allowed a woman such as you are to have become a wife and a mother—my mother!"

The curtain fell. Dorcas had reached her dressing-room when she had to turn and fly back to the stage. The applause had grown to a tumult. Zilla Paget stood by her side when the curtain rose. She was smiling a stage smile upon the audience, but the glance she turned upon Dorcas was one of malignant hatred.

CHAPTER XVI.

Wentworth Shows His Hand.

Oswald shut up a ledger and carried it to his safe. He and Wentworth had finished a study of their month's finances. The figures were satisfactory beyond their anticipation.

Enoch leaned back in his chair and lit a cigar. "If we can stay in New York till spring—and it begins to look as if we might—you and I are on the high road to become millionaires."

Oswald did not answer. He picked up a paper-knife and tested its pliancy by bending it almost double.

"Wentworth," he asked, "do you happen to think of any one who could take Zilla Paget's part?"

Enoch laid his cigar on a tray and sat bolt upright. "Were you in front last night?" he asked curtly.

"No." Oswald spoke gravely.

"Miss Paget and Dorcas had nine curtain calls at the end of the second act. The gallery began to hiss. People downstairs joined in. Can you think of any actress who is free, or engaged for that matter, capable of touching her in the part?"

"It was not acting last night. Were you back of the scenes?"

Enoch brought down his fist with a thud on the table. "I was not, and I'm sorry enough that I wasn't. I would have settled things differently. I have had the whole story rehearsed to me by several people. Do you know that Miss Paget's child is in my home?"

Oswald bent his knife to the point of resistance. It snapped in two pieces. He tossed the fragments in a waste basket. "You mean the little blind boy?"

"Yes." Wentworth's voice was fierce with irritation. "I have not seen him—I have no wish to see him. Dorcas told me this morning what she had saddled herself with. She and I thrashed the question out." He laughed unpleasantly. "It did precious little good."

"Would you have turned the child into the street?"

Enoch shrugged his shoulders impatiently.

"I don't want to go over the question again. It puts me in an awkward position with Miss Paget to have the child in my house. So far as I see I cannot turn him out unless my sister goes with him."

"What do you suggest?"

"Good God! there is only one thing to do—send the child to the asylum where he came from. The mother is in the right when she wants him sent back to England. He was in a good enough home there."

"Who took him out of it?"

"I don't understand the situation. Miss Paget knows, I fancy, but she has not given me the man's name. She says it was a piece of nasty revenge."

"She told you this?"

"Yes, I have had a nice morning. It was gone over step by step at home, then again with Miss Paget. She wants the child."

"To care for?"

MOTHER SUPERIOR ROSARY HILL HOME

Tells How Vinol Restores Strength and Vitality to the Weak, Worn-Out Ones in Her Charge.

Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N.Y.—"I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for run-down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick."—Mother M. Alphonsa Lathrop, O.S.D., Hawthorne, N.Y.

Such disinterested and reliable testimony should convince everyone of the merits of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic to build up health and strength for all weakened and nervous conditions, whether caused from overwork, worry or chronic coughs and colds. If Vinol fails to benefit we return your money.

REGENERATION OF CHURCH AND WORLD

Life Everlasting Obtainable Only in Christ.

WHERE FATHER ADAM FAILED

Why Regeneration Is Necessary—Why It Began at the First Advent and Not Sooner—Why the Limitations of the Present Age—The Low and Narrow Gate—The Narrow and Rough Pathway—Why Different Kind of Regeneration During the Millennium—Why the World Will Have an Easier Pathway Up to Life Everlasting Than Is Now Granted the Church—What and Why the Differences Between the Two Regenerations.

PASTOR RUSSELL

New York City, Nov. 1.—Pastor Russell of New York City Temple, took for his subject "The Regeneration of the Church and the Regeneration of the World. What are They? Why Different?" His text was, "Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again." (John 3:7.) He said in part:

In the past many of us have studied the Bible in a very careless manner, neglecting to give to its inspired words the consideration and respect they deserve. In many cases, the original thought has been utterly lost because of some fanciful interpretation. Consequently very few Christian people have any concrete idea of the meaning of our text, and of other Bible statements resepcting the future regeneration of the world.

Regeneration, or a second birth, is absolutely necessary if we would attain everlasting life. The fault lies not with our Creator, that He made us incomplete; for, as the Bible declares, "all His work is perfect." The fault is chargeable to sin. "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin; so death passed upon all men, because all are sinners."

This sentence of death upon Father Adam hindered him from giving to his children the perfection of life in which he was created. His entire race has been born into the world for six thousand years under a death sentence or curse. God cannot alter that sentence. The forfeited life cannot be prolonged; the sentence of death cannot be set aside; the Supreme Judge of the Universe cannot for any reason declare that He erred in His condemnation of our race. He cannot set aside His own decision. But God could provide for the regenerating of Adam and his race. To generate, as all know, signifies to bring into life. Adam failed to generate a race to life; he merely generated a great race of thousands of millions possessed of only a spark of life—a dying race.

The Divine Provision is that our Lord Jesus left the glory of the Heavenly condition and became a man for the purpose of ransoming, or redeeming, Adam and his race, which shared his condemnation. The record is that this sacrificed life laid down by Jesus is sufficient as a cancelation of all Adamic sin. On the basis of that sacrifice, and in the carrying out of the Heavenly Father's Program, Jesus was raised from the dead "a quickening Spirit," a life-giving Personage, with a glory far higher than that which He had when He came into the world. "Him hath God highly exalted, and given Him a name which is above every name."—Philippians 2:9.

The glorified Jesus is Scripturally termed the Second Adam, the Life-Giver or Regenerator, and also the Everlasting Father—that is, the Father who gives everlasting life. The time for the giving of life to the world by this great Second Adam, whom God hath appointed, is to be the thousand years of His Messianic Reign. Throughout the Millennium, it will be the work of Christ Jesus, as the glorified Second Adam, to regenerate the first Adam and all his race. The regenerating influences will begin with their awakening from the sleep of death, in harmony with the Master's declaration, "The hour is coming in which all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Son of Man, and come forth."—John 5:28, 29.

The coming forth from the tomb will be the beginning of the regenerative work, but not by any means its completion. It will be merely a preparatory work. The awakened sleepers will be in the same condition of mind that they were in when they fell asleep—in a very similar condition to those who will be living on the earth at that time. Before any of them can be regenerated, they must be brought to a knowledge of the Truth. Their eyes and their ears of understanding must be opened. The Scriptures assure us that this will be accomplished. "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Isaiah 35:5.) "The earth shall be full of the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."—Habakkuk 2:14; Isaiah 11:9.

The news of God's Love and of the possibilities of return to His favor through the atoning work of Jesus being clearly demonstrated to all, each will have the opportunity of deciding for himself whether or not he desires to return to human perfection and the blessed possibilities of everlasting life. To do so, he must be begotten again by the Life-Giver; and the Life-Giver will beget again only those who desire the new life. Wilful rejectors of the privilege, we are assured, will die the Second Death; while those who accept the Saviour's proposals will come under helpful and disciplinary experiences which will gradually lift them up, mentally, morally and physically, to perfection—to all that was lost for them in Father Adam's disobedience and its penalty, and all that was regained for them by the obedience of Jesus and the Divine arrangement of His Messianic Kingdom for the regeneration of the world.

The words beget, born and regenerated or born again, associate themselves in our minds with our natural birth; but we are not to expect, as Nicodemus queried, that any would again be born as an infant from a mother. The begetting to a new birth will be in the mind—a covenant relationship with the Life-Giver.

Nevertheless, there is a beautiful analogy, complete in every feature; for while Father Adam was designed to be the life-giver, or father, or generator of the race, Mother Eve was designed to be its nourisher, care-taker and instructor, to bring the race up to complete development. So while Jesus is the Life-Giver in the sense that He gave His own life as a Ransom-price for Adam, it is also a part of the Divine Program that there should be not only a Second Adam, but also a Second Eve.

The world will need not only the start of the new life during the Millennium, but also the care and nourishment necessary for their development and uplift—for restitution to perfection. God's provision is that the Church, called especially for the purpose and especially qualified for it during this Gospel Age, shall be the Antitypical Eve—the Mother of the world—the care-takers, nourishers, supervisors, in respect to all regenerated or rebegotten, by the Life-Giver Jesus. What a beautiful prospect of collaboration with the Saviour in His great work of rescuing Adam and his race from the effects of Adamic sin and the death sentence!

The Divine picture is very complete. While Adam was alone he did not become a father. God caused him to fall into a deep sleep, and from his side took Mother Eve to be his bride, his co-laborer, his joint-heir in his inheritance, and his assistant in the work of generating the human family. So our Lord Jesus has not yet become a father. But He has gone into the deep sleep of death, His side has been wounded, and the first result is the gradual development during the past eighteen centuries, of a Bride-class. As Jesus passed from the human condition to the spiritual before He could be ready to be the Second Adam, so the Church class, as the New Creation, must pass from the human condition to the spirit condition, and must share in the First Resurrection, before she can fulfil her part in God's great Plan as the Second Eve.

In view of this work that God has outlined for His Son and for the Church, is it any wonder that He should consider it necessary to give us lessons and tests in faith, loyalty and obedience? Is it any wonder, in view of the work which He has for us to do for mankind, that He declares that as the Redeemer Himself was given deep experiences in suffering, in order to be a merciful and faithful High Priest in the things of God in relation to humanity, so the Church, His Bride, members of His Body, must share these experiences? When we come to understand the High Calling of God to the Church and the great work that is yet to be accomplished for and in the world of mankind, we are amazed.

It was not Jehovah's program for His Son that He should change to human nature permanently. On the contrary, we are distinctly told that the Logos took the form of a servant for the suffering of death, and not for any other purpose. This purpose having been accomplished, the Father raised Him up by His own Power to spirit nature and glory—"where He was before," but to a still higher station on the spirit plane—"far above angels, principalities and powers, and every name that is named." This meant a regeneration, or second birth, for Jesus; for "flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom."—1 Corinthians 15:50.

Our Saviour exchanged His spirit condition, or nature, for the human, but He could not exchange the human nature for the spiritual; else there would have been no object served in His humiliation. His human life was to be given up sacrificially as the Redemption-price for Adam's life and, therefore, as the Redemption-price of the whole world, since all lost life through Adam's disobedience. The application of the Master's sacrificed life would have left Him without any life-rights as a man, but God provided for His regeneration; that is to say, for His re-birth.

The sacrifice of Himself as a human being was made when Jesus was thirty years of age, and was symbolized by His immersion; and immediately the Father begat Him again, not to be a human being, but a spirit being. He was begotten of the Holy Spirit, which descended upon Him in a form like a dove. For three and a half years Jesus, as a New Creature, spirit-begotten, used His flesh body, consecrated to death, having no other. In it, "He was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin"; and having demonstrated His loyalty to God, even unto death at Calvary, the Father raised Him from the dead on the third day—not a man, but a New Creature.

In other words, Jesus experienced the same transformation that the Apostle mentioned, saying, "It is sown in weakness; it is raised in power; it is sown in dishonor; it is raised in glory; it is sown an animal body; it is raised a spiritual body." After His resurrection, Jesus illustrated the lesson given to Nicodemus, of which our text is a part. He could, and did, come and go like the wind. Some seven times during the forty days, He appeared for brief intervals for the instruction of His disciples, just as angels have done. Later, He ascended up on High. "Now the Lord is that Spirit"—"the Second Adam."—2 Corinthians 3:17; 1 Corinthians 15:45, 47.

The Bible tells us that God from the very beginning had foreknown that Jesus would accomplish this work and become the Father of Adam and his race by regeneration; and the Apostle assures us that God foreknew also the Church as the Bride of Christ and His Joint-heir in His Kingdom. And Jesus said to some of the earliest members of the Church class, "In the regeneration (in the Millennium) * * * ye shall sit upon thrones." (Matthew 19:28.) Elsewhere He declared, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with Me in My Throne."—Revelation 3:21.

The Father purposed that the Bride class should be selected from amongst the members of the fallen race, and should be prepared for their work of future glory before the world's would commence. He purposed also that this Bride class should have a change of nature similar to that which Jesus experienced—it would begin with them as with Him, at the time of consecration and spirit-begetting, and culminate with them as with Him, in the resurrection change. Thus the Church has the promise that she shall be like her Lord, see Him as He is, and share His glory. (1 John 3:2; Romans 8:17.) St. Peter, speaking of the call of the Church, declared that God gave unto this class "exceeding great and precious promises"—that by these promises working in their consecrated hearts to will and to do God's good pleasure, this class might become "partakers of the Divine Nature."—2 Peter 1:4.

It is manifest that this begetting of the Church to a change of nature is very different from the begetting provided for the world—regeneration, or rebegetting, to the human nature which Adam lost, but which Christ redeemed for the world. So also we have noted that the Church has a different Father. Jesus is not the Father, or Life-Giver, of this Divine life. He did not redeem it or secure it for anybody. He redeemed human nature and secured the right to regenerate the world to human nature.

The Church's begetting, or regeneration, is by the Heavenly Father Himself; as the Scriptures distinctly say, "The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ hath begotten us." (1 Peter 1:3.) He alone can give this Divine Nature. This does not signify that the Church is not indebted to her Redeemer; for the Scriptures distinctly state that without Him we could do nothing; that "by His stripes we are healed"; and that before the Heavenly Father would deal with us at all—before He would accept our consecration, or sacrifice—it was necessary that Jesus should appear on our behalf as our Advocate and Surety, and thus open up to us a New Way of Life.

Thus, as St. Paul declares, "Christ brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel"—life everlasting to the world and immortality, or the Divine Nature, for the Church.

Prior to our Lord's First Advent, the way of life was not manifested; no provision had been made for it except in the Divine Promise. God had promised His friend Abraham that somehow, sometime, all the world would be blessed; and that meant that all the world would be released from the curse of death and experience the Divine blessing, which signifies life everlasting—not that the world will be given this blessing unconditionally, but the opportunity for this blessing will be extended to every member of Adam's race, and to himself, for acceptance or rejection at their will. Then came the second part of the statement to Abraham; namely, that this blessing should come through his Seed, his posterity. This implies that some special member of Adam's race, of a faithful line, would be greatly exalted to honorable positions, where they would be capable of blessing the remainder of the world, their brethren.

St. Paul points us to the fact that God offered this great privilege to the Natural Seed of Abraham, knowing all the while that they were sinners and would be unable to comply with the conditions, but making of them a typical people, and thereby incidentally blessing them, though with a lesser blessing. The true Seed of Abraham, through whom this promised blessing shall come, St. Paul most positively declares, is first of all the Lord Jesus Christ—the great Life-Giver, the Father who gives everlasting life—the Second Adam.

Then, with equal clearness, the Apostle points out that the Church, the Bride of Christ, selected during this Gospel Age from all nations and all denominations, is to be also a participant in the blessing work, and to be counted in as a part of Abraham's Seed. His words are, "Which Seed is Christ. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's Seed, and heirs according to the Promise."—Galatians 3:16, 29.

Afraid to Go Alone.

Light is thrown on the question why the Germans use a close formation when it brings such disastrous results, as is described in frequent despatches from the front, by a conversation which Lord Roberts once had with the Kaiser when Lord Roberts went to Germany to witness manoeuvres.

Lord Roberts during these manoeuvres noticed the German close formation and remarked to the Kaiser that he supposed that this formation would not be used in actual battle. The Kaiser replied that it would. Then Lord Roberts expressed some surprise, having noticed the danger of such tactics.

The Kaiser said the formation must be used else the soldiers would not go forward, that being their temperament. They must have some one within reach, evidently just for psychological comfort before advancing on the enemy.

Neutralizing a Shock.

If you know that you are going to hear a loud sound it is well to open the mouth, as the shock will then be neutralized. Noises in the ears are most annoying and sometimes resist all treatment. They are often associated with deafness and should therefore receive due attention.

When Preparing Eggs For Cooking.

Often when separating the white from the yolk of an egg the yolk becomes broken and falls into the white. Dip a cloth in warm water, wring it dry and touch the yolk with a corner of it, when the latter will adhere to the cloth and may easily be removed.

OVER 15,000 MEN NEEDED.

Second Canadian Contingent Will Complete Another Army Division.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3. — The second Canadian contingent will be a complete army division, and its strength will be over 15,000 men. One of the four brigades of infantry now in England will be part of the second contingent.

Advices received from the British War Office yesterday indicated what in its opinion should be the compostion of the second Canadian force.

The following official statement was issued by the Militia Department yesterday afternoon:

"There has been received from the British Government a despatch to the effect that the Army Council wish the second overseas contingent to be so organized that in conjunction with one of the four brigades of Canadian infantry already in England it will form a division complete in itself as far as possible, with in addition a due proportion of army service corps units for duty on lines of communication.

"The contingent will accordingly consist of two brigades of infantry (eight battalions), a complement of artillery, engineer, cyclist, signal, and administrative units (army service corps and field ambulances) and the following units for line of communication purposes: Divisional ammunition park, field bakery, field butchery, railway supply detachment, and two depot units of supply.

"The numerical strength of the contingent will be over 15,000 men, and the total Canadian expeditionary force, first and second contingent, will exceed 45,000, not counting the reinforcements which will be required to maintain it in numbers and efficiency from the time it takes part in active operations.

"Reinforcements are calculated at a yearly rate of 70 per cent. of the total force engaged."

The policy recently enunciated by the Canadian Government of keeping 30,000 men under arms in Canada will make it easy to conform with the wishes of the British War Office.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

The death was announced yesterday in London of Alfred Booth, head of the Booth Line of steamships.

The Petrograd newspaper Ryetch reports that the Bedouins have occupied the British port of Berberik and made the officials prisoners.

Hon. J. D. Hazen, acting Minister of Militia, was in conference yesterday with the Duke of Connaught in regard to the War Office's advice re the second contingent.

Ten thousand sacks which brought Canada's gift of flour have been purchased in London at five shillings apiece. The proceeds will go to the Prince of Wales' fund.

The Government of Trinidad has closed all German business houses, the affairs of th latter being liquidated by a committee. The assets will be held at the discretion of the British governor.

The German steamer Asuncion has landed at Para, Brazil, the passengers and crews of the British steamers Vandyck, Hurstdale, and Glanto, which were captured by the German cruiser Karlsruhe.

Cadets MacAuley, Cassels and Cook of the R. M. C., have been attached as lieutenants in the R. C. H. A., and will go to the front. Cadet Duff-Stewart is attached to the Royal Canadian Dragoons to await a vacancy in the R. C. H. A.

MAY BE SENT TO EGYPT.

Some of Canada's Second Contingent Likely To Fight Turks.

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—Full instructions concerning the composition of the second Canadian contingent, have been received from the War Office. There may be some further negotiations. It is understood that the instructions are given on the supposition that the second force will comprise a full division of at least 22,000 men, of which the 16,000 men now being enlisted will form the infantry branch, but it is not considered that the same amount of artillery will be provided.

It is considered probable, in view of the situation which has developed in the Near East, that some Canadians may see service in Egypt. The recent massing of Turkish troops in the vicinity of that country may be the cause of drawing certain units thither.

DARDANELLES SHELLED BY ANGLO FRENCH FLEET

Great Explosion Is Reported To Have Occurred In Fortress, But Damage Cannot Be Ascertained—Russian Army of the Caucasus Is Marching Against Turkey—Germany Claims Invasion of Egypt.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that a combined British and French squadron bombarded the Dardanelles forts at long range at daybreak yesterday morning. The forts replied, but no ships were hit, only one shot falling alongside them.

The statement adds that the damage to the forts cannot be estimated, but that a great explosion, accompanied by dense volumes of black smoke, occurred at the Holles fort.

Reports that Turkish troops had crossed the border into Egypt lack confirmation.

One newspaper says: "The public in Egypt are calm and not even aware of a Turco-Russian rupture. A press censorship will be established. Meanwhile it is announced that Germany has been pouring officers and men into Turkey. Many of them speak Turkish, and will command Turkish detachments equipped with modern weapons, which the Germans are said to have supplied."

An official communication was given out in Constantinople yesterday as follows:

"According to official reports from the Caucasian frontier, Russian troops have attacked our frontier forces at several points, but were compelled to retire.

"The Russians suffered losses through the energetic resistance of the Turkish troops."

Ambassador Morganthau's latest despatches to Washington, dated Sunday, said he had been informed by a member of the Ottoman Cabinet of the sinking of two Turkish vessels by the British fleet off the port of Smyrna, and of the crossing of Russian troops on the frontier of Erzern. The cablegram of the American Ambassador revealed that the British, French and Russian Ambassadors finally got away from Constantinople on a special train at 12 o'clock midnight Sunday.

A telegram dated Nov. 3 was received yesterday by the official Press Bureau from the British Consul at Mohammerah, Persia, stating that the Consul at Basra, Asiatic Turkey, and a number of British merchants were being detained by the Turks.

There are about twenty-five British subjects ashore at Basra, in addition to those who may have taken refuge aboard the river steamers.

A despatch from Petrograd says the Turkish Ambassador to Russia, before he left here for Constantinople, made the following statement:

"I am firmly convinced that the war will be of extremely short duration, and that Turkey will assume the position maintained before German influence became paramount at Constantinople."

Germans Harassed In Persia.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The German Consul at Tabriz, Persia, was assaulted, and took refuge in the American Consulate, with other panic-stricken German subjects, according to a message late yesterday from the United States Minister at Teheran.

United States Consul Paddock at Tabriz is extending temporary refuge to the German subjects, but the Russians in Persia are threatening to arrest and expel all Germans.

The Persian authorities have gathered up the archives of the Turkish Consulate at Tabriz and sent them to Petrograd.

Ambassador Morganthau cabled the U. S. Government that before the British Ambassador left he had given Mr. Morganthau assurances that all Turkish subjects in the British Empire would be permitted to leave.

Greek Submarine Sunk?

ROME, Nov. 4.—(Via London:)—An official Turkish message says that the British fleet sank a Greek torpedo boat in the Mediterranean that was taken for a Turkish craft.

A Constantinople despatch states that Servia yesterday severed diplomatic relations with Turkey and the Servian Ambassador asked for his passports says the Rome correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co.

Essad Pasha and 20,000 Albanian Mussulmans are reported to be advancing on Scutari from the south, while 15,000 Catholic Malissori are advancing from the north.

Berlin despatches report that very large Turkish forces mobilized on the Asiatic shore of the Suez Canal are provided with 3,000,000 bags of sand wherewith they propose to form a dam whenever the Turkish army advances.

REPUBLICANS TRIUMPH.

U. S. Elections Show Change In Complexion of Federal House.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4. — Sweeping Republican gains throughout the country, which reached a climax in this state by the overwhelming victory of Chas. S. Whitman for Governor and James W. Wadsworth to succeed Elihu Root, in the United States Senate, were indicated last night in early returns of the general elections.

Heavy falling-off of the Progressive vote in many states, the return to Congress of former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, decisive Republican gains in New York and Illinois in the House membership, and the overwhelming defeat of Representative A. Mitchell Palmer by Senator Boles Penrose in Pennsylvania were features of the early returns. Democratic leaders, however, were pleased by a triumph in Massachusetts, where former Representative Samuel W. McCall was defeated for the governorship by Governor Walsh.

More Rebels Captured.

LONDON, Nov. 4. — The Colonial Office has been notified of further captures and surrenders of the Boer rebels commanded by Col. Maritz.

New German Army.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Information has reached here showing that the recently raised new German army has a total strength of 580,000 men, and is made up principally by calling out the recruits of 1915. The remainder are volunteers of all ages. The army is divided into twelve corps, and will be used as follows: Six corps for service in Belgium and France; two to form a reserve force, and stationed around Strassburg, and the other four to be employed in a special effort to take Verdun.

Coal For German Cruisers.

LONDON, Nov. 3. — German merchantmen regularly provide German cruisers in the Pacific with coal and provisions from Chilean ports and furnish the warships with wireless information, according to The Times' correspondent at San Diego, Chile.

The correspondent says that the merchantmen obtain "leave to depart from the ports by making false declarations regarding their destination to the Chilean authorities."

Bombs Intended For Rulers.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A Central News despatch from North France, under date of Monday, says that a German airman skimming 5,000 feet above the Belgian town of Furnes, apparently with the knowledge that King Albert and President Poincare were going to review the cavalry drawn up before the Hotel de Ville, dropped several bombs, which, however, missed the square and did but slight damage a short distance away. Thereafter French and Belgian aeroplanes kept the sky clear of the enemy.

Hearing Is Restored to Deaf

Without Mechanical or Artificial Hearing Devices. Deaf hear With Their Own Ears. A Wonderful English Discovery.

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread interest throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

The annual tea meeting of the Methodist church was held last Thursday. The supper provided by the ladies of the congregation quite sustained its excellent reputation of former years. Supper was served from six to eight in the lecture room and a concert was given in the main auditorium of the church. Owing to unforeseen circumstances Rev. Mr. Cragg of Grace Methodist church, Napanee, who was to have given an address, was unable to be present. Mr. A. A. Richardson, ex-M.P.P., and superintendent of the Sunday School, acted as chairman in his usual kindly manner. The elocutionists of the evening, Misses Mitchell and Vanblack of Albert College, Belleville, contributed several number, which were heartily encored. Vocal solos, instrumental duetts and a chorus by the choir made the programme enjoyable from the opening to the closing number. The success of the evening was "It's a Long Way to Tipperary", sung by Mr. Herkimer Aylesworth. Mr. Aylesworth, who is a great favorite with Deseronto, sang the song that all Europe is singing, with a lift and swing that stirred the patriotism of every person present and the audience joined in the chorus with a hearty goodwill. Mr. Aylesworth's second number was a patrotic song composed by Mr. E. Miller of Toronto, organist in that city. MR. ELLIOT SPEAKS TO EPWORTH LEAGUE

Bridge Street Parlors Well Filled to Hear Interesting Travel Talk

A large audience gathered in the parlors of Bridge Street church Monday evening, to listen to Mr. John Elliott's address on his recent journey through the British Isles. The "Citizenship" department of the Epworth League, under whose auspices the address was delivered, is to be congratulated upon maintaining its reputation for interesting and attractive evenings.

Mr. G. Holton, in his capacity as chairman of the department, performed the task of the presiding officer with his customary grace. Mrs. T. Clarke Lapp and Mr. Ernest Ridley sang patriotic solos, creating an atmosphere into which blended the ebautiful tribute which Mr. Elliott paid to the spirit of devotion which has united Ireland and rallied the representatives of every race in the Empire to the battle ensign of Great Britain in the time of adversity.

Apart from his description of the lake districts, and the great industrial centres, nothing appealed to the audience more than his telling of his sojourn in his native Ireland and of the fortuity that dwells in the Irish heart—the bravery that finds its expression in the recent news, that there are five hundred widows in Tipperary.

Before the meeting came to an end Mr. A. C. Wilkins, on behalf of the Epworth League and on behalf of the audience, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Elliott for his fine address. The motion was seconded by Mr. Wendell H. Osborne, after which the meeting was dismissed with the singing of the National Anthem.

THE COLORS OF THE FLAG

What is the blue on our flag, boys?
The waves of the boundless sea,
Where our vessels ride in their tameless pride,
And the feet of the winds are free;
From the sun and smiles of the coral isles
To the ice of the south, and north,
With dauntless tread through tempests dread
The guardian ships go forth.

What is the white on our flag, boys;
The honor of our land,
Which burns in our sight like a beacon light,
And stands while the hills shall stand.
Yes, dearer than fame is our land's great name,
And we fight wherever we be.
For the mothers and wives that pray for the lives
Of the brave hearts over the sea.

What is the red on the flag, boys?
'Tis the blood of our heroes slain
On the burning sands, in the wild waste lands,
And the froth of the purple main;
And it cries to God from the crimson sod
And the crest of the waves outrolled,
That he send us men to fight again
As our fathers fought of old.

We'll stand by the dear old flag, boys,
Whatever be said or done;
Though the shots come fast, as we face the blast,
And the foe be ten to one—
Though our only reward be the thrust of the sword,
And a bullet in heart or brain.
What matters one gone if the flag float on,
And Britain be lord of the main.

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractor permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expresion (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistc beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

Get this Bible by clipping certificates from The Intelligencer. Today's certificate is printed on another page, and the plan is fully explained there.

MET SUPERIOR FORCE

Two British Ships Smashed by German Squadron Off Chile.

Five Cruisers, Under Admiral Graf Von Spee, Engage Goodhope, Monmouth, Light Cruiser Glasgow and Auxiliary Otranto — Monmouth Is Sunk With All Hands, and Goodhope Is Set on Fire.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 4.—The British cruiser Monmouth was sunk and the cruiser Goodhope was badly damaged off Coronel, Chile, yesterday, when the German warships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst, Nurnberg, Leipzig and Dresden attacked the British fleet. It is declared that the crew of the Monmouth have all perished.

At last reports the Goodhope was on fire and it is believed she cannot be saved.

The British cruiser Glasgow sought refuge in the harbor of Coronel and is now interned there. The auxiliary cruiser Otranto has escaped to Puerto Montt.

At mid-day yesterday the German cruisers Scharnhorst, Nurnberg and Gneisenau were at anchor, unharmed, in Valparaiso harbor.

Admiral Graf Von Spee, commander of the German fleet in Pacific waters, arrived here yesterday morning and made the following report concerning a naval engagement with the British warships at sea off Coronel, last Sunday evening:

"On Sunday, Nov. 1, between six and seven o'clock in the evening, during a heavy rain and rough weather off Coronel, we sighted the British men-o'-war Goodhope, Monmouth and Glasgow and the armored cruiser Otranto.

"An engagement ensued immediately. All the ships opened a brisk cannonade with all their artillery. The Monmouth was sunk and the Goodhope after a great explosion on board, took fire. Her subsequent fate is unknown owing to darkness having set in.

"The Glasgow and the Otranto also were damaged, the darkness prevented our obtaining knowledge of the extent of it.

"Our ships, the Scharnhorst and Nurnberg, were not damaged. The Gneisenau had six men wounded. The rest of our ships were undamaged."

The British cruisers Goodhope, Monmouth and Glasgow were under command of Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, and had been searching the coasts of South America for several weeks with the object of engaging the German cruisers which had been destroying the British merchant vessels.

The British cruiser Monmouth, reported sunk in the engagement yesterday, was 440 feet long, 66 feet beam and of 9,800 tons displacement. She carried fourteen 6-inch guns, eight 3-inch guns, three 3-pounders and was fitted with two 18-inch torpedo tubes. Her complement was 655 men. The Monmouth was built in 1899.

The Goodhope, also reported lost, was the flagship of the squadron. She was 500 feet long, 71 feet beam and displaced 14,100 tons. She represented the British nation at the Jamestown Exposition in 1909. She had a complement of 900 men. The Goodhope was built thirteen years ago.

"The light cruiser Glasgow, which took refuge at Coronel, was built in 1909. She is 430 feet long.

The German armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, are sister ships of 11,600 tons. Both were built in 1906 and are 440 feet long on the water line.

The Nurnberg is a small cruiser of 3,540 tons and carries a complement of 295 men. She has ten 4.1-inch guns.

The Dresden and Leipsic, which are reported to have been engaged in the battle, but the whereabouts of which following it have not been divulged, also are small cruisers. The Dresden is of 3,600 tons and the Leipsic of 3,250 tons. They have respectively complements of 321 and 282 men.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistic beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

Get this Bible by clipping certificates from The Intelligencer. Today's certificate is printed on another page, and the plan is fully explained there.

MET SUPERIOR FORCE

Two British Ships Smashed by German Squadron Off Chile.

Five Cruisers, Under Admiral Graf Von Spee, Engage Goodhope, Monmouth, Light Cruiser Glasgow and Auxiliary Otranto — Monmouth Is Sunk With All Hands, and Goodhope Is Set on Fire.

VALPARAISO, Nov. 4.—The British cruiser Monmouth was sunk and the cruiser Goodhope was badly damaged off Coronel, Chile, yesterday, when the German warships Gneisenau, Scharnhorst, Nurnberg, Leipzig and Dresden attacked the British fleet. It is declared that the crew of the Monmouth have all perished.

At last reports the Goodhope was on fire and it is believed she cannot be saved.

The British cruiser Glasgow sought refuge in the harbor of Coronel and is now interned there. The auxiliary cruiser Otranto has escaped to Puerto Montt.

At mid-day yesterday the German cruisers Scharnhorst, Nurnberg and Gneisenau were at anchor, unharmed, in Valparaiso harbor.

Admiral Graf Von Spee, commander of the German fleet in Pacific waters, arrived here yesterday morning and made the following report concerning a naval engagement with the British warships at sea off Coronel, last Sunday evening:

"On Sunday, Nov. 1, between six and seven o'clock in the evening, during a heavy rain and rough weather off Coronel, we sighted the British men-o'-war Goodhope, Monmouth and Glasgow and the armored cruiser Otranto.

"An engagement ensued immediately. All the ships opened a brisk cannonade with all their artillery. The Monmouth was sunk and the Goodhope after a great explosion on board, took fire. Her subsequent fate is unknown owing to darkness having set in.

"The Glasgow and the Otranto also were damaged, the darkness prevented our obtaining knowledge of the extent of it.

"Our ships, the Scharnhorst and Nurnberg, were not damaged. The Gneisenau had six men wounded. The rest of our ships were undamaged."

The British cruisers Goodhope, Monmouth and Glasgow were under command of Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock, and had been searching the coasts of South America for several weeks with the object of engaging the German cruisers which had been destroying the British merchant vessels.

The British cruiser Monmouth, reported sunk in the engagement yesterday, was 440 feet long, 66 feet beam and of 9,800 tons displacement. She carried fourteen 6-inch guns, eight 3-inch guns, three 3-pounders and was fitted with two 18-inch torpedo tubes. Her complement was 655 men. The Monmouth was built in 1899.

The Goodhope, also reported lost, was the flagship of the squadron. She was 500 feet long, 71 feet beam and displaced 14,100 tons. She represented the British nation at the Jamestown Exposition in 1909. She had a complement of 900 men. The Goodhope was built thirteen years ago.

The light cruiser Glasgow, which took refuge at Coronel, was built in 1909. She is 430 feet long.

The German armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, are sister ships of 11,600 tons. Both were built in 1906 and are 440 feet long on the water line.

The Nurnberg is a small cruiser of 3,540 tons and carries a complement of 295 men. She has ten 4.1-inch guns.

The Dresden and Leipsic, which are reported to have been engaged in the battle, but the whereabouts of which following it have not been divulged, also are small cruisers. The Dresden is of 3,600 tons and the Leipsic of 3,250 tons. They have respectively complements of 321 and 286 men.

Vol. 48 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1914. No. 153

FOREIGNERS WERE TAMPERING WITH TRACKS ON THE TORONTO SUBWAY

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—(Special.)—Warned about nine o'clock last night that five men were acting suspiciously on top of the Grand Trunk subway at the second entrance to High Park from the Lake Shore road, Mounted Officer Hanson succeeded in stopping what is believed to have been an attempt by foreigners to blow up the subway and wreck a number of trains.

Hanson's informant was a motorist, who, by the headlight of his machine, when he was coming through the park, saw three men lying on the tracks apparently busy, and two others were walking around them as if on watch. The motorist, whose name the police would not divulge, hunted the locality till he found Hanson.

The police officer spurred his horse and hurried to the scene. When he had come quite close to the men they commenced to run. When the men refused to stop in answer to Hanson's command, he fired two shots over their heads, but they kept on their way. He then emptied his revolver at them but it is thought without success.

As soon as possible he communicated with No. six police station, from where a posse was sent out to search for the men. High Park and the country for miles around was scoured for hours without finding any of the men.

Just what damage was done to the railway tracks the police would not say, but it is understood that they had been tampered with.

SEPARATE SCHOOL CASE AT OTTAWA

Argument on Bi-Lingualism Question Occupied Court Throughout Long Sitting

TORONTO, Nov. 4.—For eight and three-quarter hours Monday, Mr. Justice Lennox heard argument in the Ottawa seperate school bi-lingual case. Occasionally there were rifts of humor in the clouds of legal authorities cited by the counsel, as, for instance, when A. C. McMaster remarked that it was only an academic question, anyway, as to whether there was a right to have teaching in French. We shall all be speaking German in a couple of years," he said, and the court smiled with him. W. N. Tilley, for the English-speaking supporters of the Separate School Board, argued that unless the alleged right to have French schools was to be found in sub-section one of section 93 of the B. N. A. Act, apart from all decisions, it did not exist.

At the conclusion of the argument judgment was reserved.

MacGregor Young, K.C., appeared for the Department of Education; W. N. Tilley for the English-speaking ratepayers; and N. D. Belcourt, K.C., with A. C. McMaster, for the defendants, the Separate School trustees of the city of Ottawa.

Mr. Belcourt took the position that the B. N. A. Act preserved to the French not only rights established before Confederation, but also rights acquired subsequent to Confederation.

SIX MEN BURNED IN LODGING HOUSE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Of fifty men sleeping in a four storey lodging house, No. 352 Eighth Avenue, last night, six were burned to death in a fire which gutted the building. The firemen made several thrilling rescues.

HINT AT CONSCRIPTION IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 5—Special—In view of the reassembling of Parliament a week hence, when an important debate on military matters is expected, it is interesting to note the trend of opinion as expressed in the newspapers, which, with almost complete unanimity, admit that the present methods of recruiting are not adequate to meet the crisis. With only one or two exceptions the entire London press today published editorials pointing out the need of more men being recruited, and even such radical organs as the Chronicle and the Daily News urge that steps be taken in this direction.

The Chronicle says that to beat the Germans back into their own territory we must be able to put in the field early next year more than a million men, and have at the same time vast numbers in reserve for reinforcements.

The parliamentary correspondent of the Glasgow Herald, generally well informed, makes the assertion that an interesting document has been prepared in the form of an appeal signed by Premier Asquith and Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, whose object is to obtain information concerning civilians suitable for military service. This document will be circulated by post over selected areas, the Herald says.

FROM THE WAR ZONE

(Canadian Press Special)

WILL NOT DAMAGE THE SUEZ CANAL

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Advices from Paris last night said there was no news of importance from the front.

A despatch from Constantinople to Rome says Turkey has given the Allies assurances that she will take no action that will damage the Suez Canal and that she will confine her sphere of hostilities to operations against Russia.

A despatch from Athens states that an American warship huas arrived at Beerut, Syria, for the protection of the Christian population.

A despatch from Petrograd says the Russian forces have advanced far into Armenia capturing towns and driving back the Turkish garrisons.

ENEMY ACTIVE ON THE CENTRE

PARIS, Nov. 5.—An official bulletin this afternoon says German activity on the sentre, particularly in artillery fire, was revived yesterday, but the enemy was everywhere repulsed after the fighting in some cases had lasted all day long. On the left the Allies' lines have at no point given ground and in several directions have made notable progress. German attacks, between Dixmude and the Lys River, although renewed yesterday, were less energetic, their infantry being particularly inactive. On the right there is nothing new.

GEN. VON CARLO STRICKEN ON FIELD

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A Reuter despatch from Amsterdam says a message reaching there from Berlin declares that the Saxon Minister of War, Gen. von Carlowitz, has been stricken with heart disease in the French arena of war, and has been obliged to proceed to Nauheim, where he will be cared for.

NO FURTHER NEWS

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 5.—No further news has been received concerning Sunday's naval battle. So far as is known here no British ship has entered any Chilean port nor has any wreckage come ashore.

GREAT BRITAIN ANNEXES CYPRUS

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Great Britain today formally annexed the Island of Cyprus, which, though nominally under the suzerainty of Turkey, has been occupied and administered by Britain since 1878.

Austria Sick of Hopeless Fight

Petrograd Story is That Germany's Allay Would Welcome Direct Peace With Russia

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Standard's Petrograd special correspondent says: "In spite of Germany's threats, promises and furious disgust, Austria, so the Russian Government is informed, would only too gladly retire from the war if she could make terms with Russia direct, with the approval of Great Britain and France.

The Russian Government is in communication on this subject with London and Paris, and important developments may shortly be expected.

Berlin is exerting the strongest influence at Vienna, but as a fighting force the Austro-Hungarian army has practically ceased to exist. The ravages of disease have contrived more than the Russian armies to bring about a desperate state of affairs in Austria-Hungary.

Ang arrangement Vienna makes with Petrograd would, of course, include Servia.

It is a question whether Austria-Hungary will not be compelled to capitulate ignominiously.

Disastrous Fire Visits Arden

Post Office, Hotel and Several Stores Were Destroyed

ARDEN, Ont., Nov. 4—A disastrous fire visited the business portion of this village today, destroying many buildings. The loss, which is heavy, is only partially covered by insurance.

The Royal Hotel, post offce, a hardware store, and an implement and carriage store have been destroyed, and many other buildings were damaged. The fire is still smouldering in many places.

As soon as the fie was discovered a bucket brigade was organized, the soundings of the alram by the village bell bringing many to the village. The volunteers worked valiantly but a heavy wind carried the flames in a straight path of destruction. Several men were slightly injured by the flames and smoke.

GERMAN CRUISER SUNK; ANOTHER OUT OF ACTION

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Special—The German cruiser Yorck has struck a mine in Jahde and sunk. Of the crew 382 were saved.

The information regarding the loss of the Yorck reached London in an Amsterdam despatch to the Reuter's Telegram Company. It stated that an official despatch from Berlin said that the Yorck, on the forenoon of November 4, struck a mine chain blocking the entrance of Jahde Bay and sank.

Jahde Bay is in the North Sea, just west of the Weser River. The naval station of Wilhelmshaven controls the Bay. The Yorck was an armored cruiser of 9,350 tons, with a speed of 21 knots, and carried four 8.2, ten 5.9, sixteen 3.4 and fourteen smaller guns. She was completed in 1905, and carried a crew of 557 men.

KOENIGSBERG OUT OF ACTION

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Times prints a report to-day that the German cruiser Koenigsberg has been put out of action in the Indian Ocean.

The Koenigsberg is a protected cruiser and was laid down in 1905. She is of 3,348 tons, is 354 feet long, and has a speed of 32 1-2 knots. Her main battery consists of ten 4.1-inch guns.

Marlbank Man Accidentally Killed

J. Bennett Shot Through the Heart While in the Woods in the Township of Madoc

A fatal accidental shooting occurred yesterday in the woods near Allan's station, in the Township of Madoc. The victim was Mr. Jay Bennett, whose home is near Marlank, in Hungerford Township. The victim with others, were in the woods shooting when he was shot through the heart, death being instantaneous. That the unfortunate affair was accidental there is no doubt. The body of Bennett was subsequently taken to Madoc and later to his home.

Official Raps Canada Press

Japanese Says They Help Germans by Publishing Too Much About Troops

OTTAWA, Nov. 4.—Consul-General Yoda, of Japan, when seen this morning was quite frank in admitting that the victory of the German squadron off the coast of Chili, if correctly reported, was a serious blow, but he was extremely reticent regarding the movements of Japanese war vessels on the Pacific.

"I do not know where the Japanese ships are but even if I knew I would not say," was Mr. Yoda's remark. He added that far too much had been published in British and particularly Canadian newspapers regading the movements of troops and vessels of the allies.

This was, he said, in large measure responsible for the successes of Germany. Throughout the whole world there was a perfectly woven web of German espionage and every particle of information published in newspapers was immediately transmitted to German authorities.

Mr. Yoda observed that this system of German espionage was strong in Canada, particularly on the Pacific coast. There were German spies, he stated, right here in Ottawa and Canadians could not be too careful as to what they said and did.

BELGIANS RENEWING CONSCRIPTION THREAT

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Renewed threats of conscription, unless able-bodied Belgians rally to the aid of the flag, are contained in an official proclamation which the Belgian Government has issued in London.

Speaking of the thousands of Belgian who have been driven from their own country this proclamation says;

"Among these many Belgian families there are still men capable of bearing arms. A large number voluntarily have come forward to join the army, but it is necessary that all do so without delay.

"We solemnly call upon all Belgians physically fit, between the ages of 18 and 30 to enlist for the duration of the war. Every facility will be given these men by the Belgian Consuls to enable them to join the centres of enlistment in England and France.

"Belgians between the ages of 18 and 30 who do not respond by November 15 may be requisitioned for military service in accordance with the law."

Vancouver Uneasy

Think Raid Might be Made Before Help Arrived

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 4.—The report of the reverse to British ships off the Chilean coast this afternoon caused more than a momentary gasp in Vancouver, the question rising whether or not the German ships could get up the coast quickly enough to make a raid on Vancouver and Victoria before help came. A careful survey of the situation looks as if the British Columbia cities need not worry. The Rainbow and Newcastle are attached to the Esquimalt station, as is also the Japanese battleship Idzuma, which is very much larger and heavier than anything the Germans have. There are two or three Jananese cruisers hovering around Honolulu, which is much nearer to Esquimalt than is Valparaiso. The Japanese battleship Kongo, one of the latest dreadnoughts, was reported a few days ago off the Golden Gate, so that the Germans will endeavor again to move towards the North Pacific.

NEW VEINS FOUND AT NIPISSING MINE

On Property Bordering Paterson Lake, Which will be Addition to Resources

COBALT, Ont., Nov. 4.—As the result of hydraulicking, the Nipissing has just found an important vein on its property bordering Peterson Lake. There are in reality two veins, one of which is two inches wide and the othed six inches wide in places. It has now been opened up for a distance of about 150 feet long and there are several patches of quite high grade ore. This vein may be considered as an addition to the Nipissing ore resources, since although it was discovered at the bottom of a trench some time ago. It was never worked and never believed to amount to anything. An open cut has been started on the vein with the intention of proving its value before the snow comes down.

THE 2ND CONTINGENT BEGINS HARD WORK

Are Losing No Time Getting in Shape for Overseas Service—Maj.-Gen. Hughes Delivered Stirring Address to the Troops—Different Regiments Warmly Greeted

KINGSTON, Nov. 4.—There is no other time in the history of Kingston when she was so much entitled to be called a military city as at the present. Last night over a thousand men, recruits for the new 21st Battalion, were quartered in the city in addition to the members of the R. C. H. A., 14th P. W. O. R. and the Queen's Engineers who are already stationed here.

The arrival of the detachments from the various regiments of the division continued from early yesterday morning until about eight o'clock in the evening, during which time over eight hundred men arrived, reported at the Armouries, received preliminary instructions, and were assigned to their quarters. The dispatch with which the work of preparing accommodations for such a number of men was accomplished reflects great credit upon the efficiency of the military authorities here.

Last night five hundred men slept in the Cereal Works on Ontario Street, while another five hundred occupied the dormitories in Artillery Park. The task of feeding such a large number is no small one, but is being handled with remarkable facility.

Medical examination was commenced immediately the troops arrived, and was resumed this morning. A number of recruits have already been rejected by the medical examiner. The work of equipping the men has begun and will be completed within a short time.

Drill was commenced this morning, the men being divided into squads and assembled in the Armouries, on the Cricket Field and on Artillery Park Square.

The left half of the battalion will drill on the Cricket Field under the direction of Major D. H. MacLean. Commencing to-morrow the Armouries will be used alternately by the half battalions, for musketry practice and instruction.

THE STRENGTH.

The detachments from the various regiments are made up as follows:—Governor General's Foot Guards, 4 officers, 69 men; 14th Regt., 2 officers, 65 men; 15th Regt., 1 officer, 38 men; 16th Regt. 1 officer, 11 men; 40th Regt., 3 officers, 106 men; 41st Regt., 1 officer, 46 men; 42nd Regt., 2 officers, 145 men; 43rd Regt., 4 officers, 75 men; 45th Regt., 2 officers, 59 men; 46th Regt., 2 officers, 69 men; 47th Regt., 1 officer, 50 men; 49th Regt., 2 officers, 37 men; 56th Regt., 14 men; 57th Regt., 79 men; 59th Regt., 3 officers, 31 men; R.C.H.A., 93 men.

MAJ.-GEN. HUGHES SPOKE

In the afternoon yesterday before about 500 men of the 21st battalion, gathered in the armouries, Lieut.-Col. Hughes, the commanding officer, delivered an excellent address. He complimented the men on their appearance and their patriotism in responding to the call of Empire, and then gave the soldiers some excellent advice. Colonel Hughes said: "Men, you have been brought to this old and historic military city for the purpose of being prepared to face the situation in Europe and to represent Canada on the firing line in the struggle now pending between Germany and our Empire. I expect you while here to quit you like men and soldiers and to remember the advice of the Secretary of War, Lord Kitchener, as to your conduct here as well as when you go abroad.

The bars of this city have been placed out of bounds until six o'clock in the evening, and I trust that you will emulate the example of the Russians in the practice of habits of temperance and strict sobriety. Let the principle of prohibition prevail as far as you are concerned, and if you do this the rigors and severities of no campaign will tell against you and you will be better able to do your sacred duty when the important hour comes for you to exhibit your manhood and your soldierly ability. With the officers of this battalion I expect to set you an example in this respect. I shall at all times stand ready to help you in all matters.

"You came here on a serious mission. You will have a lot of real hard work, but we intend to see that you have the best of care and attention during your training. You have good clean quarters, good beds and bedding, in fact everything is new. We expect to feed you well and look after your every need, moral and physical. Remember as you are brought in contact on the streets of this city with women that you act the part of men of soldiers of the King and be respectful and courteous in all your dealings."

At the conclusion of the colonel's address the men gave three rousing cheers for their commanding officer.

BOUND FOR BERLIN.

The feature of the mobilization so far was the coming of the soldier boys from Renfrew and Pembroke at five o'clock in the afternoon. Headed by a fine pipers' band, which the citizens sent down to this city to play their sons to their quarters, these men from the north came swinging into the armouries to the beat of the drum and the skirl of the pipes, and the cheers of the throng that lined the way to the armouries. They had large banners which they carried high on their fixed bayonets which contained the mottoes: "From Renfrew to Berlin;" "From Pembroke to Berlin." The men were of the finest physical type and reflect credit on the towns of Renfrew and Pembroke who have given them in this hour of the Empire's need. A large delegation of citizens accompanied the detachment to the city and will spend a few days here watching the soldiers work.

TROOPS FROM OTTAWA.

The 145 men, contingents from the Governor-General's Foot Guards and the 43rd Regiment, Ottawa, arrived by special train over the C. P. R. last evening about 7.45. A large crowd was at the station to bid the volunteers welcome. Little time was taken in disentraining and the troops soon formed in line and marched to the armouries, singing "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary." After receiving orders the men were sent to their quarters, where they were served with a hot meal, which was greatly appreciated, after the long journey.

Affinities may be all right in their place, but they seldom make good in the kitchen.

QUEEN'S CANADIAN MILITARY HOSPITAL

This sterling monument of Canadian philanthropy and enterprise and of English generosity is most beautifully situated at Shorncliffe in Kent, and is presided over by Sir William Osler and Dr. Don Armour, two most distinguished surgeons. Hon. Mr. Perley and the Canadian Overseas Contingent Committee are in charge. Already Canada Lodge of Masons alone have equipped over seventy beds. British victims of the terrible bombardment at Antwerp are being treated there now, the Canadians not being yet in the firing line. Subscriptions and gifts for this splendid Canadian Hospital will be gratefully acknowledged. Could any object make a stronger appeal to Canadians? Here is a concrete and beneficent purpose in which we can all take not merely a warm interest but also a special Canadian pride. It is our very own. A beautiful photograph of the spacious buildings and picturesque grounds has been sent to Colonel W. N. Ponton, K.C., a member of the Ontario Committee, who will be pleased to acknowledge subscriptions or gifts and forward them to Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, the General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, Treasurer for Canada. The beautiful view of the Queen's Canadian Hospital may be seen in one of the windows on Front street. The country house and grounds of Sir Arthur Markham were put at the disposal of the Canadian committee through Mr. George McLaren Brown, European Manager of the C.P.R., who has been one of the chief motive powers behind the great undertaking.

MONTREAL FORMS A STRONG HOME GUARD

Presence of Many Idle Germans Makes Citizens Uneasy

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Removal of so many of the military corps from the city, the presence here of unemployed Germans and Austrian reservists and talk of a raid by Germans from the United States has caused a number of prominent citizens to form a Home Guard of three thousand. The chairman of the committee which has the project in hand, is Mr. J. N. Greenshields, K.C., who today announced with such large stores of gold in Montreal, the question of protection was one that interested the citizens deeply.

Mr. Greenshields, Mr. Percy Cowans and Lieut.-Col. Starke went to Ottawa last Friday and interviewed the Hon J. D. Hazen, the acting Minister of Militia. They laid before him the scheme for the formation of a Home Guard in Montreal.

He was informed that the members of the Home Guard would provide their own rifles. Mr. Hazen approved of the plan, and agreed to allow the rifles to arm the guard to come into Canada free of duty.

The guard will be called out by a signal to be agreed upon. Each man will possess a rifle and 250 rounds of ammunition and the city will be divided into districts.

Montreal Woman Struck by Auto

Miss M. McLeary, 53 Victoria St. Run Down on Park Avenue

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—Struck by an automobile as she was attempting to board a south bound Amherst car at the corner of St. Joseph Boulevard and Park avenue at 9 o'clock last night, Miss M. McLeary, 34 years of age, boarding at 53 Victoria St. sustained a fracture of the skull and lies in a dying condition at the Royal Victoria Hospital.

The police at the Laurier avenue station had no report of the accident other than that given them by the hospital authorities, who stated that a man givinghis name as J. H. Labelle, of 2261 Hutchison street, brought the woman to the hospital in an automobile.

Mr. Labelle said that the victim had been waiting for a car going down Park avenue and alongside which he was driving. As the car did not stop, he drove straight ahead and struck the woman when she stepped out from the sidewalk to try to catch the car.

The victim was not at first thought to have been seriously injured, but at an early hour this morning lapsed into unconsciousness.

Little hope is entertained for her recovery.

LITERARY NOTES.

"GOOD-BYE" TORONTO. ADIEU MONTREAL"

H. R. Gordon, of the Queen's Own, is now a mere gun-bearing unit of the Overseas Force. Before he left he was a most observant newspaper man, and this is how he sizes up the difference between Hans and Tommy in the November CANADA MONTHLY:

"There are two kinds of soldiers in this War. The German brand is a carefully polished bit of mechanism in a great steam roller. His thought is censored to the point of annihilation, his initiative is deliberately drilled out of him. Von Kluk and the Kaiser will think for him, just as they think for the Reichstag.

"The British soldier—above all the Overseas Empire-defender—is just plain Bob Robinson in khaki instead of blue serge, handling a gun in place of a plough or a pencil—same Bob as he used to be—same songs, same slang, same girl down home to write to. He's earning one-ten a day in place of two or three or five, not because a conscription officer rang his front door bell and wouldn't listen when his mother said he was ill, but because he stood in line for two hours, waiting for the chance to volunteer.

"This War will see the last of one soldier-type or the other. If the Kaiser can swamp France with his unhuman gray-green waves of infantry, conscription and drill to automatization will have triumphed. But if Bob Robinson, thinking of his home in Calgary can shoot truer; and if Tommy Atkins from God-knows-where in the London slum can hold his bayonet tighter, while he sings Tipperary; then it's good-bye to the steam roller method in war, just as it's been a lengthened process all over Europe of good-bye to the autocrat in Government, the censor in journalism, and the slave-driver in the construction gang."

If we could only borrow money on our good intentions, poverty would soon be an obsolete word.

An enormous loss of tea has resulted from the actions of the Emden in sinking British liners in the Indian waters. In spite of the serious shortage caused the price of "SALADA" tea still remains at 35c for Brown Label, 45c for Blue Label, 55c for Red Label and 65c for Gold Label.

A Wonderful Discovery

An eminent scientists, the other day give his opinion that the most wonderful discovery of recent years was the discovery of Zam-Buk. Just think! As soon as a single thin layer of Zam-Buk is applied to a wound to a sore, or a cut, or to skin disease, it stops the smarting. That is why children are such friends of Zam-Buk. They care nothing for the science of the thing. All they know is that Zam-Buk stops their pain. Mothers should never forget this.

Again. As soon as Zam-Buk is applied to a wound or to a diseased part, the cells beneath the skin's surface are so stimulated that new healthy tissue is quickly formed. This forming of fresh healthy tissue from below is Zam-Buk's secret of healing. The tissue thus formed is worked up to the surface and literally casts off the diseased tissue above it. This is why Zam-Buk cures are permanent.

Only the other day Mr. Marsh, of 101 Delorimier Ave., Montreal, called upon the Zam-Buk Co. and told them that for over twenty-five years he had been a martyr to eczema. His hands were at one time so covered with sores that he had to sleep in gloves. Four years ago Zam-Buk was introduced to him, and in a few months it cured him. Today—over three years after his cure of a disease he had for twenty-five years—he is still cured, and has had no trace of any return of the eczema!

All druggists sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box, or well will send free trial box if you send this advertisement and a 1c. stamp (to pay return postage). Address Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Children's Shelter

Dear Mr. Editor,—

We think there is an entire misconception in the minds of some persons in regard to the proposed site for the Children's Aid Society. The cry raised that rights of property will be infringed upon, its value depreciated and the beauty and attractions of the neighborhood defaced, have naturally inflamed the minds of people in the vicinity. If they only would inform themselves and calmly reflect on the matter they would see that nothing of what is feared will happen. After the building is occupied by the Children's Aid Society the appearance of the premises will still be that of a private residence, most likely improved by the members with shrubbery along Commercial and Bridge Streets. The children when out of doors will always be in the ground, neatly enclosed South of the house and under supervision.

It is admitted that it would have been better if larger grounds were in connection with the home but this advantage was not available in a central locality, which is a most important condition for effectively carrying on the work.

The members, especially the benevolent ladies of the Society want a convenient place to meet in, to look after making up clothing for the children and in many ways attending to their needs, helping to improve their condition to fit them for adoption into foster homes and so, help those poor neglected and dependent children to become useful and respected citizens.

It may be stated that most of these Homes in cities and towns which are now being provided for the Children's Aid Societies, are situated in residential centres where contributions and aid are more conveniently given.

AT THE FRONT

Notwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractic permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4.—O. C. S. Lovelle, who has been arrested, charged with the theft of $1,387, which, it is alleged, he secured as a result of a real estate speculation, shot himself today when a detective permitted him to enter a bathroom alone. He died in the hospital later in the day.

Stops Stomach Pains in Two Minutes

The recent discovery by a leading specialist that pure bisurated magnesia will almost instantly relieve pains in the stomach resulting from indigestion, dyspepsia or acidity is of the greatest importance to thousands of people suffering from various forms of stomach trouble. As is well known nine-tenths of all stomach disorders are directly traceable to excessive acidity. A teaspoonful taken in a little water after meals not only neutralizes the acid and stops the pain, but quickly overcomes the cause of the trouble, soothes the inflamed lining of the stomach, and in a short time effects permanent relief.

THE CALL OF EMPIRE

(By Rev. Le V. Brule)

Canada, the storm is raging
Over Continent and sea;
Kings are fighting, thrones are shaking;
Men are slaves or men are free.

Have ye heard the Lion's thunder
'Round the world reverberate?
"Stainless honor, Ruthless plunder;
One I love and one I hate."

Haste ye to the field of glory,
Sons of Anglo-Saxon sires
Freedom spells our country's story!
Sshall we yield to base desires?

Cheer! as swords flash free from scabbard!
British cheers that far outring—
God and freedom! To the Standard!
Fight for Empire, Home, and King!

High Court Cases

Shewman v. Armstrong—This action came up for trial Wednesday before Hon. Mr. Justice Hodgins and a jury. It was brought by Percy Shewman of Trenton against the Rev. Canon Armstrong, Rector, of the town of Trenton, for $5,000 damages for libel, and arose out of an article written by the defendant which appeared in the Trenton Courier newspaper. The article purported to give a report of a criminal trial in which one Earl Henderson was convicted for setting fire to some property at the Trenton Cooperage Mill last year. The report stated that "in spite of solemn protest to the contrary on the part of the accused and his pal Percy Shewman, the Judge found the prisoner guilty," and it was alleged that this meant that the plaintiff, Shewman, was a companion and accessory to and an accomplice of the said Henderson in committing the crime of arson and that he had given false evidence upon the trial of Henderson and was therefore a libel on the plaintiff, Shewman. It was also objected that the offence was referred to in the article as arson whereas Henderson was found guilty of mischief.

At the close of the plaintiff's case, Mr. Mikel, counsel for the defendant, moved for a non-suit and delivered an exhaustive argument on the law applicable to libel. He was followed by Mr. Abbot for the plaintiff. At the close of the argument His Lordship allowed the motion, directed the jury to find a verdict for defendant and dismissed the plaintiff's action with costs. The case was of much interest to Trenton people, a large number of whom were in the court room during the trial, some as witnesses and others as spectators. A. Abbott of Trenton for plaintiff; W. C. Mikel, K.C., for defendant.

Shewman v. Young—This was an action for $5,000 damages for libel arising out of the same facts as the case of Shewman v. Armstrong, the defendant in this case being the proprietor of the newspaper in which the article appeared. The case was consolidated and tried with Shewman v. Armstrong, and the action also dismissed with costs. A. Abbott for plaintiff; W. C. Mikel, K.C., for defendant.

Doyle v. G. T. R.—An action to recover damages for the death of a man named Doyle on the line of the G. T. R. A settlement of a satisfactory nature was effected between the parties. Porter & Carnew, and Day, Ferguson & O'Sullivan for plaintiff; W. H. Biggart, K.C., for defendants.

York v. Steel Co. of Canada.—An action for damages for injuries. Settled between parties. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; O'Flynn, Diamond & O'Flynn for defendants.

Cournoyea v. Rollins—An action for damages for alleged assault. After a jury had been called and the plaintiff was about to be examined a satisfactory settlement was made. The parties reside in the Township of Hungerford. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; S. Masson, K.C., for the defendant.

Pelkey v. Belear—The plaintiff in the case is Mr. Fred Pelkey of 22 Strachan street, this city, and the defendant, James Belear of Trenton. The claim was for damages arising out of a postcard on which were written some words which the plaintiff contended were libellous, being injurious to his character and causing wounds to his feelings. Mr. Carnew and Mr. A. Abbott appeared for the plaintiff; and Messrs. O'Flynn, Diamond & O'Flynn for the defendant. The result was a verdict for the defendant.

The petit jury were this morning dismissed as there were no more jury cases to be tried.

The Grand Jury have about completed their labors and will be prepared to

Young Man Dies From Exposure

Merrickville Youth Meets a Sad Death While Hunting

KINGSTON, Nov. 4.—Roy Jakes, a young man of 28 years, engaged with his father, George Jakes, in business in Merrickville, met his death in the waters of the Rideau Lake, three miles north of that village, some time during Sunday night.

According to the Brockville Recorder the young man was fond of hunting and went out Sunday in quest of wild ducks. When he did not return alarm was felt and a search was continued until yesterday when his body was found caught in a stump in the lake. His boat had drifted from him but a number of decoys were close by. It is supposed that in picking up his decoys preparatory to returning home, he fell out of the boat and that it drifted so far from him he swam to the stump and there died from exposure.

The death has caused gloom throughout Merrickville, as the deceased was one of the best known young men in the village and a favorite with all. He was unmarried.

No payment shall be made by the Honorary Treasurer (or the Honorary Secretary-Treasurer) except by the order of the committee, and all cheques must be signed by him and countersigned by the chairman or vice-chairman.

6. Only those members, but not associates, who comply with the above rules shall be entitled to vote at any election of officers, at any meeting of the Branch, or shall be eligible to serve as an officer or on a committee. The Branch shall keep and maintain a list of its members and associates, together with a record of all subscriptions and all contributions received, and shall report annually, its position and proceedings, with the list of the names of its officers, of its committees and its members, to the Central Council, to which it shall forward at the same time its cash on hand, after deducting local expenses. 7. The Branch shall report to, and be directed from, the Central Council of the Society. All rules must be issued from the Central Council alone.

8. GIRLS KISS CANADIANS

Below is an extract from a letter from a member of the Canadian contingent. It is dated from Bustard Camp, Salisbury Plains, England

"We marched through three towns to a place called Friary, where we boarded the trains, and as we marched through the streets the people gave us cigarettes, chocolates, apples, and matches, and a great many of the fellows were kissed by the girls. One old lady called me her dear and kissed me good-bye, and I felt quite embarrassed."

PRUSSIAN MILITARISM

In the course of a recruiting (?) speech which he delivered to his compatriots in Montreal recently, Sir Wilfrid Laurier emphasized the fact that this is a war against German militarism; against the Prussian ambition to dominate Europe and the world. It has taken a terrible upheaval to remove the scales from the Liberal leader's eyes. The Prussian cult of war did not grow up in a night. It has been manifest to the world even since Prussia conquered Bavaria and Wurtemberg, humbled Austria, and brought France bleeding at her feet. It has been evident to all who wished to see in later years; in the Delcasse incident; in the episode at Agadir; in the "shining armour" threat to Russia; in the annual one hundred millions for the German navy; and in the twice that many millions for the Prussian war machine. Britain saw it, the Admiralty saw it, and British taxpayers gladly paid their millions year in and year out to be prepared for "the day" which German officers toasted, and of which German war lords dreamed. Not so, however, with Canadian Liberalism, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. While the German religion of war was being fed by every professor in every university in Germany; while the Kaiser had an army of spies seeking information in Britain, and in Canada too, preparing him for the blow he was impatient to strike, here is what Sir Wilfrid Laurier was saying about the Kaiser:—

"There is one fact in the situation which I think shows that there is no intention on the part of Germany to attack England, and that fact is the German Emperor. The German Emperor is undoubtedly one of the great men of the present age. By intellect, by character, by moral force, by moral fibre, he has shown himself wonderfully endowed. His patient influence was always directed toward peace."

This statement was made two years ago in the Canadian Parliament. It was made while there rested before him on the desk the information contained in the Admiralty memorandum regarding Germany's colossal preparations for war. Was this blindness real or affected? Before the bar of public opinion today Sir Wilfrid Laurier must plead hopeless ignorance, or craven disloyalty. To plead that he was ignorant is to take leave of the truth. He was told the danger which confronted the Empirei n 1907. He was told it again in 1909. In clear and unmistakable language that danger was emphasized in 1911. He saw Germany's expenditure on her navy mount from $20,000,000 in 1891 to $111,000,000 in 1913. He saw the German war machine grow with tremendous strides. And he saw the peace-loving Asquith Government strive with might and main to meet the approaching crisis. No, Sir Wilfrid cannot plead ignorance. As one who presumed to be a statesman, it was his duty to know, and know he did. And yet with a full knowledge of the danger which confronted the Empire, what measures did Laurier take to meet it? He did nothing in heroic attitudes. To a frank request for aid in 1907, he gave a point blank refusal. In answer to a national demand in 1909 that we do something, he gave us in 1910 a puny navy of useless ships. And finally, in 1911-12, he stood in the way of effective aid to the common navy, and gave us a eulogy of the Kaiser instead.

But lo, and behold, the scales have dropped from Sir Wilfrid's eyes. That which he could or would not see for fifteen years he now witnesses in all its hateful immorality. Prussian militarism must be crushed! Yes, Sir Wilfrid, but you and your blind disloyal followers have made that task infinitely more costly than it otherwise would have been, in treasure and in blood.

THAT INVASION

Despite alarming reports, we do not see the sense in becoming excited over the danger of an invasion of Canada by Germans and Austrians in the United States. In the first place, there is no reason for such an invasion; and in the second place, an invasion of any importance would have as much trouble getting started in the United States as in forging ahead in Canada.

The United States, as a neutral country, could not afford to permit a raid of any consequence on Canada from her territories. Furthermore, the Germans are not silly enough to risk raising the war spirit in Canadad to a still higher degree of enthusiasm by making an aggressive move against the country in a particularly aggravating manner, as any incursion from the United States would be. We may be sure that the military authorities of this country are not losing sight of the possibility of an hostile demonstration by Quixotic adherents of the German cause in the foreign-born element of the United States; but the attitude of the United States Government, combined with the attitude of the American people, supplies sufficient reason for the removal of fears that a raid of any consequence is liable from the United States.

Germany could spur American sentiment against her no better than by permitting a rabble of her adherents to violate the neutrality of the United States, and the solemn injunctions of President Wilson, by invading Canada. The idea is ridiculous and unworthy of sturdy Canadian sentiment in time of war.—Montreal Mail.

BRITAIN'S NAVAL POWER

Six thousand ocean-going Canadian vessels enter and clear at Canadian ports yearly, yet not a single one of them has been captured, nor has any loss been registered as a result of the outbreak of hostilities.

Mr. G. J. Desbarats, Deputy Minister of the Naval Service, points out that this happy situation is due to the care and strength of the British navy, which has kept the trade routes clear of enemy's ships.

Canadian ocean-going vessels voyage for the most part to South American ports on both oceans, and they also engage in the fish trade with Portugal.

Trade is going on almost as usual, the chief cause being the war risk insurance scheme of the British Government, in which Canadian mariners participate, and the benefits of which they have generally availed themselves.

The last heard of German warships on the Pacific was that they were five thousand miles away, and it is anticipated that they will not be able to do much further damage.

And yet the present Liberal opposition fought for months against Canada strengthening that navy that has made our country and commerce as secure in time of war as in time of peace.

GIVES GOVERNMENT CREDIT

The Manitoba Free Press, the leading Liberal organ in Western Canada, and a paper which certainly can not be accused of generosity in its criticisms of the present Government, nevertheless pays it a compliment in the course of a news dispatch from its Ottawa correspondent, and published in its issue of October 26th.

Referring to the letting of contracts for war supplies, the dispatch stated that:—

"The acting Minister of Militia (Hon. J. D. Hazen) and his colleagues have been engaged night and day allocating orders for the different articles required in order that the equipment of the contingent may be first class. The acting Minister of Militia and the sub-committee of the Cabinet, it is stated, are doing their utmost to distribute the orders for the various articles of equipment throughout the different portions of the Dominion, so that employment may be given to as many Canadians as possible in the various provinces. The government has made an effort to get as many orders for Canadian concerns from the British and French authorities as possible, and, largely as a result of these efforts, the Imperial Government sent Frederick Stobart to Canada for the purpose of seeing how many Canadian goods for the army could be supplied."

CURRENT COMMENT

The budget of Greater New York for 1915 contains an item of $46,080,697 for education and recreation. The people of the big city evidently believe in spending much money in teaching the child and looking after the health of its body.

Twelve men are reported dead at Bristol, Vermont, from the effects of drinking liquor which contained wood alcohol. There have been many tragedies recorded from time to time when men in their ignorance have swallowed wood spirits thinking it was a safe beverage. It takes long for knowledge of dangerous new things to become general.

Marie Tempest, the well-known English actress now visiting America, in an interview stated that it was curious to note that there was only one play of military character now running in London. It may safely be predicted that such a situation will not be for long. Perhaps the playwrights are girding up their loins for the avalanche of war plays later on to be let loose.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has upheld the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada on questions raised in Alberta as to the rights of a province to interfere with a railway created and operated under federal law. The contentions of the Government of Canada, which intervened in the argument, as summarized, were that the railway lands of a Dominion railway could not be expropriated by provincial authority nor encumbered by operations not sanctioned by the Parliament of Canada.

WAR NOTES

It is worth remembering that not a single battleship of modern type has been in action yet, neither has one of the big battle cruisers fired a gun. These are the ships which will have the decisive voice. Germany has 36 of these vessels, Great Britain has 62, and the comparison of armored cruisers is as 9 to 34. Are we downhearted? You can supply the answer yourself.

Toronto News: "The attitude of the United States since the war began is wholly satisfactory to Great Britain and to Canada. There has been no attempt by British agitators to affect American opinion. The judgment of the American people in favor of the Allies is a free judgment pronounced in open court upon the evidence.

Kingston Standard: "Of the several hundred war prisoners—Germans and Austrians—at Fort Henry, in this city, we venture it that there are scores there who have said less against the Empire at war, than has Henri Bourassa. And yet they are prisoners and he is free. We, of course, do not advocate Bourassa's imprisonment but we are frank to say we do not understand why his paper, Le Devoir, is not suppressed by the Government. It is a menace to a United Canada and a United Empire.

At the close of the third month of the war, Germany, despite her preparation, has been unable to reach a vital point in French defence or rout an allied army. Her enemies are constantly gathering strength, and her hope is approaching termination. But she will take a lot of beating and Great Britain must keep up a steady and unending flow of men to the front. In Canada we must realize our obligations and lose no time in recruiting and equipping a large number of men to be sent forward as needed.' We are fighting for the preservation of the vital principle of our civilization, and Canada must rise to its great and inspiring duty.

Montreal Herald: "Does it not seem a little too highly imaginative to picture a force of Germans, with possibly Count von Bernstorff at their head, marching on Canada through United States territory, and treating that territory after the manner of Belgium if the United States should offer objection to its neutrality being violated in that way? And if the Germans got over the border on their piratical expedition before the United States authorities became aware of it—a highly improbable proceeding—how could they hope to preserve a base of supply?"

General von Bernhardi, who was on the reserve of officers, is again in active service, commanding the home units of the fifth German army corps. The old advocate of extreme militarism will have to perform superhuman feats if he wishes to attract as much attention to himself by fighting as he did by writing his famous book.

A WEAPON AGAINST SUBMARINE

Anybody who has ever seen the trouble that can be made for a steamship when a rope, even though not very long or very large, gets tangled in its propeller, will wonder what happened to the submarine, presumably German, that was reported in yesterday's dispatches as having run foul of a fishnet off the Dutch coast.

No craft, probably, has a "margin of safety" quite as small as does the submarine, and hardly anything can happen to it that does not produce consequences serious or fatal. Now, the nets used in deep-sea fishing are large, strong, and heavy, but they do not cost much, as war expenditures go, and the little incident described all too briefly in the cable news seemingly suggests a convenient and effective means of reducing these much-dreaded little assassins to helplessness.

With a net once around her organ of profusion, a submarine certainly would either remain permanently under water, which would be bad for her crew, or she would have to rise to the surface and remain there for a considerable time, within sight of hostile marksmen, and that, too, would be attended with most positive inconveniences.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistic beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

Get this Bible by clipping certificates from The Intelligencer. Today's certificate is printed on another page, and the plan is fully explained there.

Germans and Austrains in Toronto are Being Disarmed

MANY FIREARMS SEIZED

Articles Confiscated Will be Returned at End of the War

TORONTO, Nov. 4—Special—Owing to the rumors of a raid upon Canada by Germans living in the United States, the local police, acting in conjunction with the military authorities, are taking all possible precautions to prevent aid being give to such an invasion by belligerent aliens living in Toronto. Germans and Austrians in Toronto, whether reservists or naturalized citizens of Canada, are being forced to surrender any weapons they may have in their possession. The guns, revolvers, knives and other weapons found in the possession of these men are being taken care of by the authorities, and if the owners conduct themselves in a pacific manner throughout the war they will be returned to them when the war ends. The extent to which the authorities intend to carry out this action may be inferred from the fact that yesterday a well known German-Canadian, who has been a naturalized citizen of Canada for 20 years, was forced to surrender a military rifle, a shotgun and a very powerful airgun. The latter was mdae in Belgium, and there are few like it in Canada. It is caphale of shooting a bullett that would easily kill a man at several hundred yards' distance with practically no sound at the time of discharge.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

"No." Wentworth turned his eyes studiously in another direction. "She intends to send him back to England immediately. Why shouldn't she? The woman has to be footloose in her work. A blind youngster would tie her down neck and heels. They understand that sort in an asylum. There isn't a doubt that he would be happier there."

"That is your honest conviction?"

"I'm sure of one thing. That brat is not to be harbored in my house. Suppose the mother made it out a case of kidnaping?"

"I had not thought of it in that light."

"Well, think of it now," Enoch burst out furiously. "I am as fond of Dorcas as any brother could be, but she is the sort of girl who can't be moved when she takes a stand on anything. Miss Paget is a clever, handsome woman. I cannot be wholly at odds with her, seeing her every day of my life as I do."

"That was in my mind when I spoke of letting her go."

Enoch was on the verge of checking him with an impatient exclamation, but the Englishman interrupted. "You have had your say, now I am going to have mine. You remember one day during the early rehearsals I told you all I knew of Zilla Paget's story. I was beginning, then, to have qualms of conscience about bringing her over and setting her among decent people. She is worse than I imagined. In the most degraded woman you find brute feeling—brute motherhood I mean. She lacks that."

"Who gave you the version of this story?"

"Merry told me last night."

"You have not seen Dorcas?"

"I have not met Miss Wentworth since yesterday morning."

"It was a case of stirred-up emotion with the whole bunch of them. They will take things normally in a day or two. You had better have a talk with Miss Paget. She is anxious to see you."

"I think," Oswald spoke coldly, "it would be better for Miss Paget if she did not come to me. I might tell her in plain English my opinion of her. Hadn't we better let her go?"

"If we didn't have to take into consideration the question of a woman fit to play her part, there's her contract. It is iron-bound for the whole season. There's nothing especially heroic about Miss Paget. Get her mad," Enoch laughed grimly, "and she'll give you trouble to burn."

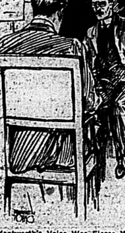
"I'll look out for that myself. I'm responsible for her being here. Clean-minded citizens should not have to herd in with a —moral leper."

"That's scarcely a fit name for a lady."

Grant Oswald's voice was emphatic. "I never did class Miss Page with—ladies."

"I might as well tell you before you go in for anything of the sort that I will fight you legally. It would be the worst sort of business proposition to drop Miss Paget in the middle of a successful run. It is not fair to her. If an actress does the work you ask of her, she has the right to make any sort of—domestic arrangement she pleases."

Wentworth's tone was conclusive. He lit his cigar again and stood silently beside his desk, blowing the smoke across the room in distinct rings. "You said you had several business matters to talk over. Is this everything for today?" He lifted his hat from the rack as if anxious to end the interview.



Wentworth's Voice Was Fierce With Irritation.

Oswald spoke stiffly. "I hate to think of a quarrel with you, Wentworth. I'll confess I have not a great deal of fighting blood in me. We don't seem to get along as well as we did at first; I don't know whether it is your fault or mine." He paused as if waiting for Enoch to speak. Then he continued, "There was one other thing. I have been meaning to speak of it for some time. Probably others have mentioned it to you. The newspaper men are asking me one question all the time—they want to know if you are at work on another play?"

Enoch gave him a savage look. It was a look which puzzled Oswald all day long. "I will think of that when I get good and ready. The 'House of Esterbrook' is good for one season more—probably for two." Then he flung out of the office and slammed the door behind him.

Oswald sat in silence for a few minutes. His face was full of anxious perplexity. He rose, put on his hat and overcoat, and went out. In the lobby he met Zilla Paget. She turned eagerly as if to speak to him. He lifted his hat with grave courtesy and walked past her. She followed to the door and watched him while he crossed the street.

Her face flamed scarlet and she bit her lips, then she laughed contemptuously and hurried through the dark theater to the stage. The place was deserted. She went straight to the letter-rack. In the shelf marked P she found several letters for herself. She was turning away when her eyes fell upon an envelope in the lower corner of the rack. She picked it out and stood for a moment staring at it blankly, then she gasped. The letter was not for her. It was addressed in coarse, shaky writing, "Mrs. Alice V. Bourne, Gotham Theater, New York." It bore the Madison Square postmark. The woman's eyes were furtively searching the gloomy theater in all directions. She did not hear a sound; nobody was in sight. She slipped the letter into her muff and ran upstairs.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Green Turquoises.

"Then," continued Dorcas, "Guleesh lifted the lady to the horse's back and leaped up before her. She put her arms about his waist and clung to him tightly. 'Rise, horse, rise,' he cried. The horse and all the hundreds of horses behind him spread out their wings and rose in the air. They went flying swiftly across the sea."

"Miss Dorcas," interrupted Robin incredulously, "I didn't know that horses could fly. I thought they trotted on the streets like this." The boy slipped down from his chair and kicked with his heels upon the floor.

"Guleesh's horse had wings—all fairy horses have wings," Dorcas laughed.

"Did you ever see a fairy horse?"

"I'm afraid I never did."

"Then how do you know that it's true?"

"Fairy stories tell us so."

"Oh." The child's brown eyes turned to her eagerly. They were interrupted by a knock at the library door. Jason entered.

"I reckon yo'se awful busy dis arternoon, Missy?"

"Not if there is anything I can do for you, Jason."

"Emiline's downstairs. You know who Emiline is?" He paused and glanced at Robin.

Dorcas nodded.

"If 't wan't be inconveniencin' she'd like to see yo'."

"Why does she want to see me, Jason?"

"I can't tell, Missy. She's des kep' a-pleadin' en a-pleadin' fo' yo' to see her, so I tol' her, I'd ask yo'."

"I'll see her. And, Robin, suppose you go with Jason for a little while. He keeps a doughnut jar in the pantry. Make Jason tell you a story. Flying horses are nothing to the wonderful things he has seen."

Emiline entered timidly and stood waiting until Dorcas pointed to a chair. She was a neat-looking yellow girl, but there was a worried look on her good-natured face.

"Anything wrong, Emiline?" asked Dorcas.

"Wrong! Eberyt'ing's wrong, Mis' Wentworth. I'se lef' Miss Paget fo' good en all. Lawd, what a whack she hit me when I tol' her somet'ings I thought!"

"She struck you?" Dorcas stared at the girl in astonishment.

"'Deed, Mis' Wentworth, she struck me hard, straight 'cross my mouf wid her han'. I could take de law to her, I reckon, en git damages, but I ain't a-goin' to. I'se scared to death ob havin' anyt'ing to do wid her." The girl's face seemed to whiten, and she clasped her hands in an agony of terror. "I wouldn't wuk fo' her nohow—I'd ruther go on de streets, Mis' Wentworth, her tuqquoises am a-turnin' green!"

"What do you mean?"

Emiline spoke in a frightened whisper.

"Her tuqquoises am a-turnin' green, I 'clar' fo' Gawd, dey is!"

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

MRS. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

K. OF K. DOES NOT "LIKE THE LADIES"

An English writer says: "Devonshire House gets daily more interesting as room after room is thrown open to accommodate those knitted belts and socks for which Lord Kitchener asked the Queen. When one sees the huge number of both belts and socks, as well as the kindly response in money, which Her Majesty's Lady-in-Waiting supervises personally each day. It seems that very much is being done; but 300,000 is a large number, and every possible help is still needed. The War Minister proved his personal interest in the response made to his own request by the presence not infrequently of a member of his staff and an intimate friend "to see how matters are going on." Lord Kitchener, by common repute, pays little attention to women, which reminds one of the quaint remarks of Queen Victoria of him after the Egyptian campaign when she said, "They say he does not like ladies, but he is always quite charming to me."

Thin Folks Who Would Be Fat

Increase in Weight Ten Pounds or More.

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

'I'd certainly give most anything to be able to fat up a few pounds and stay that way," declares every excessively thin man or woman. Such a result is not impossible, despite past failures. Thin people are victims of mal-nutrition, a condition which prevents the fatty elements of food from being taken up by the blood as they are when the power of nutrition are normal. Instead of getting into the blood, all the fat and flesh producing elements stay in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste.

To correct this condition and to produce a healthy, normal amount of fat the nutritive processes must be artificially supplied with the power which nature has denied them. This can best be accomplished by eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is a scientific combination of six of the best strength-giving, fat-producing elements known to the medical profession. Taken with meals, it mixes with the food and turns the sugars and starches into rich, ripe nourishment for the tissues and blood and its rapid effect is remarkable. Reported gains of from ten to twenty-five pounds in a single month are by no means infrequent. Yet its action is perfectly natural and absolutely harmless. Sargol is sold by J. S. McKeown's Drug Store, and other good druggists everywhere and every package contains a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in the treatment of nervous indigestion and general stomach disorders, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh producing effect, be used by those who are not willing to increase their weight ten pounds or more.

Contracts for Harness.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 4—Contracts for an aggregate of $1,000,000 worth of harness for the British army—part of a $6,100,000 order placed with a firm in South Bend, Ind.—were sublet to five saddlery companies of St. Louis yesterday.

The entire order is for 20,000 sets of six-horse harness. A saddle is required for every other horse. The equipment therefore will be comprised of 60,000 saddles and 120,000 harnesses. The hardware for the harness is to be furnished by firms in Canada and England.

Tragic Wager.

In 1805 three Irishmen agreed to undertake a journey around the earth on foot for a pool of $150,000. Each one of the party deposited one-third of this sum in the Bank of Dublin, and it was agreed that whoever survived the trip and returned should receive the whole amount. In case all died a Dublin hospital was to become the beneficiary. On Dec. 24, 1805, they started east across Europe and Asia Minor to Egypt, where they took passage for Australia. Their wanderings through the inner wastes of Australia proved the hardest trials of the journey, and the severity of this trip resulted in the death of two of the travelers. The third, Captain Trevelyan, completed the voyage and won the money.

BACK AT POSEN.

Germany's Great Warsaw Army Has Been Battered by Russians.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 4.—The Army Messenger states that the left wing of the German army that attempted to capture Warsaw has been driven back across the Russian frontier into Posen. It presents a pitiable comparison with what was months ago styled "the left wing of the northern army for the occupation of Warsaw."

"The column that passed through Kielce is now heading for Cracow. It has abandoned all rearguard action, so hurried is its retreat. The other column on the Czestochowa road is rather steadier, seeking to delay pursuit on the banks of the Warta, near Novoradomsk.

"On the Suwalki front the Russians have securely established themselves inside the east Prussian frontier. They have taken possession of the Kaiser's game preserves at Romintet."

An official communication from the Russian General Staff, made public last night, says:

"On the East Prussian front the Germans everywhere have adopted the offensive. Our troops have advanced in some districts, and in one place have taken two guns, a searchlight and a number of prisoners.

"Beyond the Vistula to the northwest of Politza our troops have advanced without any considerable fighting and have occupied Schadek, Lask and Rosprza. On the front from Radenzice and Kielce the enemy is retiring in the direction of Vloszcow."

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

The Australian Government has placed an embargo upon wool, wheat, and flour, and on meat and coal, except to the Mother Country.

The Niew Vandendag of Amsterdam states that 10,000 German infantry, all boys between 17 and 18, left Liege Monday for Brussels.

Gen. Carranza declares that he would not abide by the action of the Aguascalientes convention in naming a Provisional President of Mexico.

The Imperial Government has consented to assist Australia with a loan of $100,000,000. This sum will be advanced in two instalments of $50,000,000 each, repayable in five years.

It is surmised in New York that Charles M. Schwab's mission to England is in connection with negotiations for the sale of war material, including armor plate and heavy guns.

Col. O'Grady, who died yesterday in Winnipeg, went to Valcartier with his regiment, but his physical condition excluded him from active service. On Saturday last he took a sudden turn for the worse.

The American steamship Massapequa, chartered and loaded by the Rockefeller foundation to convey food supplies to starving Belgians sailed for Rotterdam yesterday afternoon with supplies worth $300,000.

EIGHT COLONELS PROMOTED.

British Officers Are Made Major-Generals For Gallant Conduct.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—It is announced that the following eight colonels have been promoted to be major-generals as a reward for gallant conduct in the field:

Sir David Henderson, Henry F. M. Wilson, James A. L. Haldane, Henry S. Horne, Frederick D. St. Wing, Hubert De La P. Gough, Edward S. Bulfin, and Aylmer Hunter Weston.

The President of France has bestowed the cross of an officer of the Legion of Honor on nineteen British officers and the Cross of the Chevalier on one hundred others for gallantry during the operations during October.

In a casualty list issued last night, Capt. Sir E. A. Stewart-Richardson of the Black Watch Regiment, and husband of Lady Constance Mackenzie, the dancer, is mentioned among the wounded.

THAT DEAR KRONPRINZ!

Belgian Officers Are Satisfied That He Has Been Killed.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Belgian officers arriving here state that they are certain that the German Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany is dead. They assert that in Brussels all the flags were at half-mast last Sunday, pointing to this as proof of their statement.

It has been rumored for a number of days that the Crown Prince was wounded rather severely in the fighting in France. Reports to this effect came from Basle, Switzerland, saying that he was ill in a Swiss hospital. Another story said that the prince had been taken to the palace at Strassburg for treatment.

A further story says it was he who led the German troops to disaster before Warsaw in Russian Poland.

Desertions Increasing.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 4. — From Ghent comes word that the desertions from the German army are constantly increasing. Sentries have been posted in tailor shops and the roads are blocked by convoys bearing German wounded.

German military headquarters have been transferred from Ghent to Thielt, in West Flanders, denoting German reverses.

Albanians' Raid Fatal.

ROME, Nov. 4.—(Via London.)—The Giornale d' Italia's Gettinje correspondent says that an army of 2,000 Albanians, commanded by Buiram Sura and numerous Austrian officers, invaded Montenegrin territory near Djakova. Gen. Vosovitch, a Montenegrin general, permitted them to enter the mountain, and when they were in a dark defile, they were attacked and almost completely massacred by the Montenegrins. Every one of the officers were killed, Austrian uniforms captured, 1,900 guns, Austrian rifles and hundreds of wagons were taken.

Some people are willing to take almost any old thing except a hint.

Many a politician with wheels thinks he is the whole political machine.

The Gurney-Oxford is a Splendid, Dependable Stove

SUPPOSE you buy a range, and that range is a disappointment.

Suppose it doesn't hold the fire between meals. Suppose it burns too much coal—or that it bakes well to-day and to-morrow "falls down." That is a serious matter—is it not?

If three times a day you have to deal with a stove that is a source of trouble and worry—that fact has an influence on your domestic happiness.

That is a strong statement—but isn't it true?

The owner of a Gurney-Oxford never takes anything from the oven with uncertainty as to results.

So before you buy your stove is the time to investigate. The Gurney-Oxford Stove has a nation-wide reputation for reliability. It's not the cheapest stove. It is impossible to make so good a stove as this and sell it for what a cheap stove costs. But, it's a thoroughly well-made stove. The material and workmanship in it are the very best. It's an economical stove inasmuch as it's durable: it will outlast two or three stoves less well made. And during its long life it never fails to do its work. It's there to cook every meal with no trouble or worry.

The Gurney-Oxford Economizer enables you to keep the fire in perfect control always. The grates are designed for perfect combustion.

The divided flues convey the heat from the fire to all sides and corners of the oven. The owner of a Gurney-Oxford does not know what it means to worry over a fire or to take a roast or a batch of biscuits from the oven with uncertainty.

The thousands of Canadian housewives who own Gurney-Oxfords rely on them without disappointment.

They have proved themselves to be splendid, dependable stoves, and extremely economical in fuel consumption.

We want to show you the Gurney-Oxford and demonstrate the features that have gained for it first place in everything that makes a stove valuable.

MOVEMENT ABANDONED

German War Office Now Admits Failure of Advance on Calais.

Six New Army Corps Are Being Moved Against Ypres, Where Gen. French and the British Forces Are Holding the Line — Kaiser Has Gone There Himself To Encourage His Men.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—That the German army has abandoned its attempt to hack its way along the Belgian coast to Calais is agreed by all the official reports last night. A combination of inundated country, the remnant of the Belgian army under King Albert and the activity of the British warships seemingly all contributed toward ending the costly struggle.

A Berlin official report attributes the failure of the Germans entirely to the flooded state of the country, where the water in places is over a man's head; but it is declared that the army of Emperor William withdrew in good order and without losses.

After nearly three weeks of desperate fighting, the brunt of the attack has now shifted to the Ypres region, where the British army of Field Marshal Sir John French, reinforced by Indians and territorials, apparently must meet another onslaught. To the scene of this contemplated battle, according to reports, Emperor William has gone to give encouragement to his men by his presence.

News comes from Havre that the Germans near the coast are retreating to the eastward, abandoning their dead and wounded. The Belgian troops are moving on toward the Yser. They are discovering numerous evidences that the Germans are in precipitate flight in that vicinity.

Germany yesterday began the assembling of six new army corps at Coutral, Belgium, for an attack on the allies' line between Ypres and Arras, France. British aviators report large forces of Germans marching toward Ypres, which is expected to be the vortex of the battling for the next week. The Germans seem to have abandoned their attempt to cut their way through to Saint Omer, southeast of Calais.

A special to The Times, dated Pas de Calais, says: "The desperate attempt of the Germans to take Ypres by storm has failed. The British still hold the town with rifle and bayonet. The German soldiers, even in overwhelming force, are no match for ours. Their infantry has been driven back eastward and their artillery has again come into action at long range. Their shells fall short of the town. That was the position yesterday. On Saturday and Sunday, when the situation was critical, thousands of the inhabitants left the town. It is not yet safe for them to return. The enemy's attack has been repulsed but not yet finally crushed. The outposts of the two opposing armies are almost within a stone's throw of each other. Our sentries can hear the gramophone and the singing of the soldiers in the enemy's trenches. The battlefield is strewn with German dead. In their advance our men had to leap over them.

The Standard has the following from Paris: "The newspapers here are not allowed to give any details to substantiate their belief, but more than one declares itself in a position to affirm that the Germans are hurriedly preparing to retreat and may start falling back in force at any time. Particulars have already appeared in the London press of different defence works thrown up by the enemy to enable them to clear out of Belgium in the best order possible. Nine telegrams have arrived here stating that similar preparations are being made on the eastern frontier and in Alsace, particularly near Strasburg."

The Germans resumed their bombardment of the city of Rheims with great violence on Sunday and Monday, according to a despatch from Bordeaux.

CHANGE IN E. PRUSSIA

German Forces Have Begun Suddenly to Fall Back.

Precipitate Retirement at Several Points is Cue For Vigorous Advance of Russians and Bakalarjevo Has Been Taken With the Enemy's Supplies—Army of Vistula Still In Retreat to Frontier.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—The following official communication from the Russian General Staff headquarters was given out here last night:

"A sudden change has been noted since Nov. 3 on the east Prussian front, where the enemy, which recently had been on the defensive almost everywhere, has begun to fall back at certain points. This retreat is precipitate on the left wing of the enemy, which was vigorously thrown back toward Biala and Lyck. Our troops took Bakalarjevo, capturing a large quantity of arms and ammunition and making prisoners of a German company.

"On the left bank of the Vistula the Germans continue their precipitate retreat towards the frontier. Their rear guards have been dislodged from Kolo and Przedborz. On the morning of Nov. 3 we drove back the Austrians beyond Kielce, which place our troops occupied, making 600 prisoners and taking machine guns. On the same day we won a decisive victory over the Austrians along the whole front from Kielce to Sandomir. The enemy fell back with all speed. Our troops took Sandomir, which is an important strategical point.

"In the region south of Kielce during the past week we have made prisoners of 200 officers and 10,000 soldiers and have taken a large number of cannon, as well as machine guns. During the night of Nov. 3 the Austrians made a series of attacks, which were fierce but futile, and they retreated. Our troops took a firm footing in the region of Nisko and Radnik.

"There is nothing to report from the rest of the front.

"The Turkish fleet is concentrated in the Black Sea, with a base in the Bosphorus. Apparently they are trying to avoid a fight with our forces."

Czar On Way To Front.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—(Via London.)—Emperor Nicholas stopped at Minsk, capital of the Government of Minsk, yesterday on his way to the battle front. He attended a service in the cathedral and visited the hospital, where he conferred medals of the order of St. George on many wounded soldiers.

Early yesterday afternoon the Emperor resumed his journey amid enthusiastic cheers from large crowds in the streets.

TOO HEAVY FOR BRITISH.

German Cruisers Won By Weight of Metal In Fight Off Chile.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 5.—Details of the naval fight, picked up from informal conversations with German officers who came ashore from the warships, show that the Germans, owing to the superior range of the guns on the armored cruisers Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, opened fire when six miles away. As the ships closed and the range came down to a distance of four miles, the British ships were able to reply, but by that time they were already seriously damaged.

The Germans declare that the British fought heroically, but that their artillery was ineffective against the superior weight of metal that the Germans were able to pour from the more modern guns of the armored cruisers.

Good Hope Afloat?

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—American Minister Fletcher at Santiago, Chili, reported yesterday the naval engagement off Coronel, Chili, and arrival of three German warships at Valparaiso. The damaged Good Hope is reported as having escaped with the Glasgow and Otranto.

HONORS WITH ALLIES ALONG BELGIAN FRONT

Battle of the Sand Dunes Is Now at an End With Notable Advantage of Position For the Franco-Anglo-Belgian Troops, But They Are Too Weary to Follow the Enemy.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—Alternate gains and losses by each side marked the great struggle between the allies and the Germans along the extended battlefront in France and Belgium Wednesday, according to officers who have returned here from the fighting zone. The French and English troops, these officers say, made considerable progress in the neighborhood of Dixmude and Lys. On the other hand the Germans are reported to have gained a small amount of territory in the region of Vailly and Chavonne.

The heaviest fighting of the day was in this region, where the Germans, heartened by Tuesday's appreciable advance, endeavored to continue their success. The allies, aided by reinforcements, are said to have blocked to a large extent the furious attacks of the Germans, and a small detachment of Frenchmen, although they met with heavy resistance at a bridge on the Aisne, succeeded in pushing on and gaining ground commanding the enemy's position.

From this point the French opened a raking fire on the Germans, but they were not sufficient in number to withstand the furious German onslaught that followed, and were compelled to retire to avoid being cut to pieces. The few cannon taken by the Germans, it is said, were put out of commission before the retreat.

That the battle of the sand dunes, as the contest along the channel coast is being generally named, has come to a definite end is proved by all reports from the front. As the French communique says, the Germans hold but one unimportant point on the allied side of the river, nad have given up all efforts to resume the offensive. Their losses have run into many thousands. When the invader fell back along the Dixmude-Nieuport front, the Belgian-British-French forces were too exhausted to pursue their advantage and deliver a counter-attack. Instead, they have been content to hold their hardly-won ground and give the men a chance to recuperate. Some regiments of the British force, particularly the Black Watch and the Coldstream Guards, have suffered severely.

But beyond Dixmude the pictures in the changing war film are more cheerful. Here French and British brigades have beaten off the new German drive at the French coast with considerably less trouble than was the case further east. Not only have they held their own, but an advance movement is progressing satisfactorily, and the Germans are losing advantageous positions in the vicinity of Roulers. This town has been taken and retaken several times by the contending armies and lies a mass of ruins. Important roads converge on its four sides.

The French are holding tenaciously to their own positions along the centre and in the east, and have scored heavily around the Argonne forest.

Two unsubstantiated but highly important reports were received last night, one saying that the British forces in Belgium have succeeded in penetrating the German lines between the armies of Gen. Von Boehm and Duke Albrect. The other declares that 3,500 French and British troops were cut off in the vicinity of Roye and taken prisoners by the foe. Advices say that the men fought valiantly until their ammunition was exhausted, and that they were completely surrounded by overwhelming forces. Neither report is given much credence until further information becomes available.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Amsterdam says: "According to the correspondent of The Telegraaf at Sluis, the fighting on the Yser was very severe yesterday. It is reported that the allies forced the Germans back to the Village of Jabbeke, between Ostend, passed through Bruges without stopping.

"The Germans at Bruges are expecting an attack from the allies. All the drawbridges are raised at nightfall."

A despatch to The Amsterdam Telegraaf from Sluis says: "Heavy gun firing is heard in the triangle of Dixmude, Roulers and Ypres, indicating that a severe battle is raging in that neighborhood.

"It is believed that the Germans now will attempt to break through the allies' lines there and force their way, by way of Ypres, to Dunkirk, but that they will find it very difficult to cross the morasses in the vicinity of the Upper Yser, caused by inundations."

Epidemic In Antwerp.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A despatch to The Exchange Telegraph Co. from Rotterdam says:

"Antwerp doctors predict an early epidemic owing to the fact that the only available water supply comes from the River Nethe, which is contaminated by the bodies of many slain soldiers. The rebuilding of the reservoirs which were destroyed by the bombardment has not been permitted.

ARAB TOWN SHELLED.

Cruiser Minerva Bombards Red Sea Port—Russians Victorious.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The British cruiser Minerva has bombarded the Arabian town of Jeddah on the Red Sea.

Jeddah, a town of some 30,000 inhabitants, is the chief seaport of Arabia in the Province of Hejaz, 65 miles northwest of Mecca. In the northern part of the town is a tomb said to be that of Eve. Nearly half the population is Arab.

A Central News despatch from Berlin says that large Turkish forces, assembled on the Asiatic side of the Suez Canal, intend to blow up that waterway and form a dam with bags of sand as soon as the Turkish army advances on Egypt.

Diplomatic relations between Turkey and Great Britain, France, Russia and Servia have been definitely severed. Turkey's diplomatic representatives in the capitals of these countries, acting on orders from the Porte, yesterday demanded and received their passports. Some of them already have left their posts, while the others will depart to-day. Tewfik Pasha left London yesterday.

The powers which the Ottoman Government thus defied are already taking warlike action against Turkey. The British have destroyed Fort Akabah, in Arabia; the Russians have invaded Asia Minor, and an Anglo-French fleet is bombarding the forts of the Dardanelles.

An official communication from the staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus, given out in Petrograd yesterday, says that Russian troops have crossed the Turkish frontier, driving back the enemy's advance guards and taking several Armenian towns. The Turks in their retreat abandoned their wounded and dead.

STOCK YARDS CLOSED.

Epidemic of Foot and Mouth Disease Shuts Down Chicago Market.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—The Chicago Union Stock Yards, the largest cattle market in the world, which has been in continuous business since 1865, last night was ordered closed for several days because of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease among cattle.

The stock yards probably will remain closed ten days. The closing order will go into effect at the close of business Friday, Nov. 6, and continue until the opening of business on the second Monday thereafter, or Nov. 16. In ten days, it is planned the stock yards will be thoroughly rid of contagion.

The immediate effect of the suspension order will be to stop the shipment of cattle, sheep and hogs to the Chicago market, which amounts to almost 100,000 head daily. This alone, outside of the meat-packing industry, amounts to a daily business of $1,000,000 and affects 35,000 employes.

Captain of Karluk In Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—Capt. Robert Bartlett, skipper of the Karluk, the ill-fated ship on which the main party of the Stefansson Arctic expedition left Victoria, B.C., in June, 1913, arrived in Ottawa yesterday to submit his report to the Naval Department, on the circumstances that led up to the sinking of the vessel and the subsequent death of eight of the party. With Capt. Bartlett is William L. McKinley of Glasgow, Scotland, meteorologist and magnetician, the only survivor of the six scientists who were aboard the Karluk.

"No more Arctic expeditions for me," said Capt. Bartlett to the Canadian Press, when asked if he was prepared to go on another trip north. "I am on my way to Florida, where it is warm."

No one has been heard to explain how the war will benefit the dairyman this winter. He is one class of farmer that cannot be accused of getting rich because of war prices.

UNRECORDED HEROISM

I watch her as she dons her little frock,
And sets the trim hat on her shapely head.
Her boots and gloves are good—a girl must dress,
Although her breakfast's simple tea and bread

Her big blue eyes are trustful. There is hope
Within her sweet young face, in her word.
She's not cast down by failures or rebuffs
Give up so soon? Why that would be absurd!

She sights of course, at times—what girl would not,
Remembering the care-free, happy days,
The pleasant office, all the hum of work,
While her deft fingers won her wage and praise?

She was so joyful, helping toward the home,
She, the first-born, a widowed mother's pride!
The younger children must be clothed, schooled, fed.
(God only knew what she herself denied!)

Then came the war. Great warehouses were closed,
All trade was paralyzed, the Street grey still.
No typists were required. Long weeks she's vowed—I'll find some work today! I must! I will!"

Her little savings melting fast away.
What soldier needs more pity in the field
Than she, frail girl, who, seeking work meets foes—
Despair, Temptation—yet who will not yield?

THE GREEN PAPER

(New York World)

Warriors and statesmen may well ponder this pledge drawn up by T. P. O'Connor and adopted with enthusiasm by a great meeting of Irish Nationalists in London.

> We will never sheathe the sword until Belgium has got back her freedom; until every inch of her soil is clear; until a treaty is made not on a scrap of paper, but on a foundation behind which stands the millions of the British race.

This is the answer of the Irish to Louvain. There is no doubt whatever that it expresses the sentiment of the overwhelming majority of that race, in all the ends of the earth. The Irish may now be better disposed than they have been for a century toward the British Government, but neither that feeling nor the old friendship for France counts most heavily. It is deep resentment at the fate of eBlgium, it is swift sympathy with its exiled people, its ruined cities, its shriens profaned, that feeds the Celtic battle fury.

It may never be known how many men of Irish blood are rushing to the defence of the stricken little land, or to vengeance where it is too late for defence. They do not all hail from Ireland. They are enlisting in Canada, in Australia, in New Zealand; they are leaving the United States to volunteer. In the British capital itself they do not content themselves with this trumpet-call of defiance but are taking up arms to make it good.

The world may quote and quarrel over the White Book, the White Memorandum, the Orange Paper, the Gray Paper of the belligerents' diplomats to tsudy the causes of the war. This Green Paper of Erin is short. It is easy to read. Its meaning is clear. The feeling it expresses is having a tremendous influence upon the outcome of the great encounter.

Notes From Melville

A pleasant surprise was given Mr. J. Wessels on Saturday evening, his seventy-sixth birthday, when a large numbers of his friends assembled at his home to tender congratulations and good wishes. On Mr. Wessels, the weight of the years rests easily, and this birthday, so near the four-score mark, finds him young at heart and as active as a boy. Brief addresses of a congratulatory and complimentary nature were delivered by Mr. D. H. Young and Miss L. Weeks, to which Mr. Wessels suitably responded. A delicious lunch of cake, pie, tarts and sandwitches was no small rapt of the evening's enjoyment.

On Friday afternoon a pleasant time was spent at Melville School, when a number of visitors assembled to enjoy the Hallowe'en programme prepared by the pupils. The school-room was prettily decorated for the occasion. Rev. Mr. Harston occupied the chair. Choruses by the school, "Jack O' Lantern Song" and "Witch Song" were well rendered and much appreciated. In the latter, Miss Edna Chase, in the garb of a witch, told the fortunes of the various pupils. Recitations and readings pertaining to Hallowe'en Eve were given by the younger pupils. Much credit is due the teacher, Miss L. Knepp, and the pupils, for the preparation and carrying out of so interesting programme.

The funeral service of the late Mrs. Lousia Belnap, who died on Thursday evening, Oct. 29th, was held at her late residence on Saturday afternoon, Rev. E. Harston, officiating. The deceased was one of our oldest residents, having attained the ripe age of seventy-three years and was most highly respected. She leaves to mourn, two daughters, Mrs J. Turner, Melville and Mrs. C. McVeen, Charlotte, N.Y. The remains were interred in Bowerman cemetery, the bearers being Messrs. James Morton, E. W. Carley, J. Wessels, John Kinnear, James Locklin and Robert Lauder.

On Friday evening, Rev. C. Harston presided at the re-organizationof the Melville Epworth League. Mr. Fred Morton was unanimously chosen as president, while other officers are as follows: Miss Ella Locklin and Mrs. G. Osborne, presidents of tfhe combined devotional and missionary departments; Miss Edna Vance, president of literary department; Mr. Thomas Mikel, president of social department; Miss L. Knapp, president of Sunshine and Lookout department; Miss Gladys Chase, organist and Mr. G. H. French, Secertary. The Epworth league will meet on Thursday evening of each week. All are welcome.

No little fun and excitement was occasioned in our village on Hallowe'en when several persons donned impenetrable disguises and called at the doors of most intimate friends, seeking a night's lodging, but from which, however, they were most unceremoniously repulsed. No thought of Hallowe'en jokes seemed to have entered the minds of many, as every unknown person, with any peculiarity of garb or manner, is immediately put down, in these troublesome war times, as a German spy.

Miss Lois Locklin, Trenton, spent the week-end at home.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Bovay spent a few days with friends at Frankford.

Mr. A. A. Ferguson, Mr. F. H. Jones, Mrs. L. Spriggs and Miss Pearl, all of Wellington, attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Belnap on Saturday.

Mr. Percy Chase and Mr. Clayton French spent the week-end with friends at Belleville and Point Ann.

Mrs. Jeffrey, Sidney is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jeffrey.

A party of young people from Picton, including Miss Mildred Eaton, Mr. Stanley Gillespie, Mr. G. Strawbridge, and others were the guests recently of Mr. A. W. Kinnear and Miss Mabel.

Miss L. Knapp spent the week-end the guests of Miss Elda Mikel, North Lakeside.

Misses Glady and Annie Chase spent Friday in Picton.

NILE'S CORNERS

Mr. Hilton Clapp has gone to the Northwest on business.

Mr. and Mrs. U. Noxon of Gilead, spent a day recently with Mr. and Mrs. B. Ellis.

Mrs. Fred Ellis and daughter, Miss Gladys, visited friends at Hillier on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ellis and Mrs. Clarke visited friends at Bloomfield on Sunday of last week.

Mrs. Fred Ellis spent Friday at Pleasant Bay, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hubbs and Miss Morrison spent a day recently at Wellington, the guests of Mrs. M. Clapp.

Mr. and Mrs. D. W. May of Little Kingston, visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Ryan on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Ellis were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Cruickshanks at Melville on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Nease were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Way at Consecon on Sunday.

HAD NEARLY REACHED THE CENTURY MARK

Mrs. Catherine Roddy died yesterday afternoon at the County House of Refuge, where she had been an inmate for over five years. Deceased was almost 100 years old, having, it is alleged, been born in Ireland in August, 1815. She had been a resident of this section of the county for many years. Relatives of the deceased are expected from the United States to claim the remains.

ROYALTY IN CAMP.

King and Queen and Lords Kitchener and Roberts Inspect Canadians.

BUSTARD CAMP, Salisbury Plain, Nov. 5.—Accompanied by a number of staff officers and attendants, King George and Queen Mary yesterday inspected the Canadian expeditionary force at Bustard Camp, and delighted the Canadians with their expressions of admiration and the informal manner in which they conversed with various members of the contingent. Accompanying their Majesties was Field Marshal Lord Kitchener, who frequently remarked that the showing of the Canadians was "Splendid! Magnificent!"

Others who motored with the royal party from London were Field Marshal Lord Roberts, Hon. G. H. Perley, Acting High Commissioner for Canada, and several members of the War Office staff. The visitors first stopped at divisional headquarters at Bustard Camp, where their Majesties shook hands with all the staff officials.

Following his inspection of the Ontario section of the contingent, King George told Col. Mercer, of Toronto, that the men under his command were "as fine as any in the British army." Both King George and the Queen chatted for a long time with several members of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto. Their Majesties commented upon the splendid physique of the "Kilties," and King George expressed his pleasure at the sight of the sporrans worn by the men.

LAST ASSAULT SOON?

Germans Will Make Supreme Attack, Says Belgian Senator.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A Belgian Socialist Senator, who returned yesterday from an official visit to King Albert, said that the allies were now within ten miles of Ostend, but he did not believe that the Germans are preparing for a general retreat through Belgium, but rather for a final supreme assault, which would be made at a point southeast of Ypres.

The Senator estimates that the Germans have 500,000 men in the vicinity mentioned, but he said that it was the general impression of the allied staffs that the German effort would be a failure, because their troops not only were very weary, but to a great extent were made up of youthful and aged recruits.

When the German march down the coast began, the Senator declares, scarcely anyone on the ground expected that they would be kept out of Calais. Now opinion was completely changed and freely expressed that the Germans would never reach their objective.

ABOUT CONSUMPTION

Every day, we are receiving letters from users of this medicine telling us of the benefit they have had by its use.

Mrs. Martyn, of 46 Garden Avenue, Toronto, who before taking "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" had been treated by different doctors for several years without benefit, writes to say:

Mr. Copeland:

Dear Sir.—After taking several bottles of your Consumption Cure, I would like to make known to others the benefit I derived from its use.

I was very much run down when I commenced taking your medicine, but now I have fully recovered, and in four months have gained 17 pounds. I cannot speak too highly of it, and will be pleased to recommend it to any who enquire as to its merits. You may publish this letter if you wish, and, if so, I trust that it will reach the eyes of some poor sufferers and save them from the dreadful disease of consumption.

Yours respectfully,
(Sgd.) MRS. MARTYN,
46 Garden Ave, Toronto.
Nov. 27, 1912.

That was written two years ago, since when Mrs. Martyn has enjoyed excellent health and has taken every opportunity to tell others what this medicine did for her.

Records are on file of some extreme cases of consumption, one of which, now a well-known case of a man given up as hopeless by his doctor and a specialist, who said that he could not live more than 8 or 10 days. To-day he is alive and well and it was "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" that pulled him through.

Letters have been received and are on file from individuals who have suffered from chronic bronchitis for over 30 years and never obtained any permanent benefit until they took this medicine. These letters were written by well-known people and copies will gladly be sent to any person desiring to know what "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" can do for cases of chronic bronchitis.

Those suffering only from weakened lungs and throats to the "down and out" consumptive all testify to the benefit obtained by taking this medicine.

If you are one of these, don't allow another day to pass without getting a bottle to try. It cannot possibly do you harm, but will do you, as it has others, much good.

Sold at drug stores, $1.00 a bottle. Ask your druggist or sent direct in a plain wrapper by Copeland Medicine Company, Limited, 511 Pape Avenue, Toronto. 3-14

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—The Belgian Relief Fund has recieved a cheque for $5,000 from the Kingston Board of Trade, and one for $3,000 from Maj. R. W. Leonard on behalf of his wi

The major's contribution was accompanied by a note expressing his deep regard for the heroic defenders of Belgium. The committee working in the city of Quebec reported last night that it had on hand $4,500 and 70,000 pounds of goods for the relief of distress in that ravaged land.

The biggest difficulty the relief committee is meeting now is to secure vessels to carry the aid to Belgium. Mr. J. E. A. Dubuc, of Chicoutimi, has offered the use of a couple of vessels to carry goods from that port to London and if a local shipment cannot be obtained this offer will probably be accepted.

Winnipeg Telegram: "The Czar has grappled with the liquor traffic with the vigor of a statesman who appreciated its evil. By one stroke of the pen Russia's ruler deprived his government of a revenue equalling $465,000,000, and yet Germany asks the world to believe the Russians are barbarians."

Many a stable would be brightened up and made more sanitary by an application of whitewash. Try it.

Many a fair woman is unfair.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

TO ORGANIZE NEW FIELD BATTERY AT KINGSTON

Will Consist of 145 Men, 126 Horses and Four Guns--Recruits For 21st Battalion Undergoing Medical Examination--Only Few Rejected

KINGSTON, Nov. 5.—Orders have been received here from Ottawa, to mobilize a field battery for overseas service with the next contingent. This unit will consist of 145 men, 126 horses and 4 guns of the "18 pounder" type. The work of recruiting will be commenced at once by the officers in charge of this division. When the battery of R.C.H.A. is brought up to its standard strength, Tete de Pont Barracks will be well filled so that it will be necessary to obtain accommodation elsewhere for the members of the new battery. It is likely that some large building will be rented for this purpose.

The work of examining the recruits of the 21st Battalion is proceeding rapidly and will be completed in a few days. As the members of each company pass the medical examination and are attested they receive their uniform and equipment. So far very few have failed to pass the rigid examination and those that have been rejected have been refused, chiefly because of poor teeth or defective eyesight.

Th right half of the Battalion still continue drill on Artillery Park Square and the left half on the Cricket Field. It is surprising how rapidly the men are mastering the elementary instructions and from present appearances will develop speedily into an efficient well-trained unit.

BANKS ARE VICTIMIZED BY ALLEGED SWINDLER

Two in Thorold Said to Have Lost $155--Scheme Failed in St. Kits

ST. CATHARINES, Nov. 6.—A florid faced man, five feet seven inches tall, dressed in a blue suit and black derby hat, is alleged to have swindled two Thorold banks out of $155 yesterday, and to have tried it on the Queenston street branch of the Imperial Bank in this city and disappeared while bank clerks were endeavoring by mail to investigate his standing.

At the Quebec Bank in Thorold he deposited a cheque for $365 on James Rice & Son, live stock dealers, Allanburg, in favor of William Bowman, drew $125 and left $240 to his credit. He then endorsed the cheque as Bowman, claiming that was his name.

After failing to work the game in this city he returned to Thorold and got $30 similarly on a $100 cheque at the Royal Bank. The police are looking for the man, who also tried the same trick on the Bank of Nova Scotia at Merritton, but without success.

MAY HASTEN RETURN OF SIR ROBERT BORDEN

Delays in Recruiting and Defense are Causing Some Uneasiness

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Special—Sir Robert Borden, who is holidaying at Virginia Hot Springs, and having a daily game of golf while he recuperates in preparation for the coming session of Parliament next January is not expected back in the capital until November 15. He may, however, be summoned back a few days earlier, as there is a feeling in Government circles here that the menace on the Pacific coast, and the delays which have arisen in dealing with matters of recruiting and general defence, through the absence of both the Prime Minister and the Minister of Militia, have caused uneasiness in some parts of the country.

GERMAN OFFICERS FREE ON PAROLE

Liberated from Gunboat Now Being Held At San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO Nov. 5.—Rear-Admiral Pond, in charge of the enforcement of neutrality, has released on parole the two officers and two petty officers of the German gunboat Geier, who were interned recently on the arrival from Honolulu. Admiral Pond's action was taken on the strength of a message from Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador at Washington, to Baron von Schack, the acting Vice-Consul here, in which the Ambassador said he had received assurances from the State Department that an order for release on parole would be given.

SOUTH AFRICAN REBELLION CRUSHED

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A Cape Town despatch to the Reuter Telegram Company declares that the rebellion of General Christian Frederick Beyers in the western Transvaal and the mutiny of Lieut.-Col. Solomon Gerharus Maritz in Northwest Cape Town now appears to be completely crushed.

Unofficial reports, according to the despatch, indicate that something resembling an armistice is being observed. The rebels are still collected at certain points in the northern Free State, but all these points are marked by adequate loyal commandos.

"It is abundantly clear," the despatch concludes, "that the rebels are ill equipped and have practically no organization."

MISSING WOMAN FOUND DROWNED

KNOWLTON, Que., Nov. 5.—The bodys of Mrs. William Carter was found yesterday noon in Brome Lake, at a point off Foster Parks. Mrs. Carter, who was about 24 years of age, had been in ill-health for a few days. She had gone out leaving her two year old child asleep.

SECOND CONTINGENT WILL BE EQUAL TO THE FIRST

Batteries Being Recruited at Montreal--Canada to Send 3,000--Artillery School at Tete des Pont Barracks Will be Reopened

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—It is probable that for the Second Contingent, or, at least to supply the necessary reinforcements and reserves, Canada will be asked to send another strong force of field artillery equalling in strength that of the first force. With the first contingent there are headquarters and three brigades of artillery. To duplicate this force Canada will require 2,500 to 3,000 artillerymen. Should such a force be called for, and it is believed here by garrison officers that it will, Montreal will again furnish three batteries. There are three Montreal batteries in the First Contingent, the 3rd, the 21st and the 39th, the two former being known as the Montreal and Westmount Batteries respectively. Efforts are now being made to recruit the 39th in Outremont in which event it will be known as the Outremont Battery.

Recruiting has been proceeding steadily for the local batteries. They were depleted by the call for men to join the first contingent, practically all the officers and men answering the call. Since then the batteries have been recruited almost to full strength in the case of the Montreal and Westmount sections while a good start has been made to again establish the 39th at normal strength. Instruction classes have been organized and qualified officers and men will be ready to answer the next call on this arm for foreign service.

G. T. R. Brakeman Fatally Injured

Mr. Frank Allore Lost His Footing and Was Thrown Beneath a Moving Car

As the result of an accident which occurred last evening on the G. T. R. line near Trenton, Mr. Frank Allore, a brakesman, lost his life. The victim was on a freight train and in some manner lost his footing and was thrown under a car, which passed over him, causing death. The victim was a married man residing on Canifton Road in this city. A wife and one child survives.

THE CORRECT POLICY

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—It is understood to-day that as soon as the Government has completed its enlistment of the fifteen thousand required for the second contingent, it wil continue along the line of the ambitious plan authorized by Sir Robert Borden.

This is, thirty thousand more men will be recruited at once and started training; they will form the basis of either a third contingent or reinforcements of the two army divisions in the field. As originally announced by the Premier, thirty thousand will be kept continually under arms in Canada and will be training for service abroad or ready for home defence.

BRITISH AND FRENCH MAKING MARKED GAINS

By Rapid Advances They Reach Beyond Armentieres--German Forces Suffer Heavy Losses--The Enemy's Trenches are Filled With Dead

(Canadian Press Despatch Exclusively to The Intelligencer)

NORTHERN FRANCE, Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The British have made considerable progress beyond Armentieres. On the night of Sunday and Monday they advanced seven miles, and are now close to Armentieres itself. The trenches there before the final attack were only 25 yards apart. No one could show a finger above the parapet without becoming a mark for a storm of German bullets.

The Germans had brought up several heavy guns from Antwerp, and they attempted to shell the British trenches It was found, however, that to do so the Germans themselves must evacuate their trenches, as the 'Black Marias" showed a want of taste as to where they fell.

The evacuation of these trenches was the signal for a general advance by the British, who stormed the German lines. Everywhere they found eloquent testimony as to the havoc of their field guns. The German trenches were piled with dead, many of whom had lain their for days.

French Get Deserters.

London, Nov. 5.—C. F. Bertelli, the Paris correspondent of The Standard wires:

"I have received information that 500 of the Kaiser's troops marched into the eastern fortress of Toul this week playing the 'Marseillaise.' They were Alsatian deserters and have now been incorporated in the French army."

REPULSED ALL ALONG THE LINE

PARIS, Nov. 6.—There was no perceptible modification during yesterday anywhere on the front. In Belgium and northern France the Germans seem to be reinforcing their reserve corps and their line troops, with the object either of undertaking new offensive movements or of endeavoring to mitigate the bloody checks they have been receiving. In the region of Nampoel a column of German wagons have been destroyed by French long range artillery fire. In isolated actions all along the front the Germans have everywhere been repulsed.

MADE WICKED CHARGE BUT HAD TO RETREAT

PARIS, Nov. 6.—A newspaper despatch from Boulogne tells of an attack on Arras by Germans in which a battalion of Guards, caught between dragoons and quick-firers, threw down their arms, while their supports beat a hasty retreat. French aviators dropped bombs, destroying a track behind an armored train which had followed the attacking column. On the train was found a 16-inch gun being transported in sections and several Krupp engineers were taken prisoners.

RUSSIANS RECAPTURE TOWN OF JAROSLAU

PETROGRAD, Nov. 6.—The Russians have re-captured the Galician town of Jaroslau and taken 5,000 Austrian prisoners, according to a telegram received here today from Lemberg. The Austrian attempt to cut off Russian attackers, the messages says, has finally broken down, and the Austrians are now in retreat along the River San.

GERMAN SAILORS GO TO TURKEY

A despatch from Munich via Geneva says a number of German naval officers and sailors have left Munich for Turkey. Germany is sending an army of agents to neutral countries in an endeavor to purchase supplies of all kinds for the army.

MAY HAVE BEEN A NAVAL BATTLE

DOVER, Nov. 6.—Heavy firing was heard off here this morning. It may be a naval battle or from the Belgian seaboard.

HIT TURKISH AMBASSADOR

Angry Russian Clerk's Ultimatum When His Pay Was Refused

PETROGRAD, Nov. 5.—When Turkey's diplomatic staff were closing the embassy here this morning they were reminded that some of the Russian employees had not been paid for four months.

Fahreddin Bey, the Ambassador, said there was no money for Russians, and when the employes insisted he jeered and told them they would be paid in Odessa when the Turks took it.

This evoked an ultimatum from the Russian clerk, who, acting as spokesman for his colleauges, delivered it in the shape of a blow on the Turk's jaw. The irate diplomat shouted for help and sent for the police, but the policeman guarding the door refused to interfere.

Fahreddin Bey will depart via Sweden for Holalnd, where, he says, he will continue to represent Turkey.

ALLEGED COUNTERFEITER IS HELD AS ACCOMPLICE IN FRUSTRATED ATTEMPT

Man Held for Attempting to Pass Worthless Cheque in Exchange for $20,000 Worth of Jewels Named Edward Painchaud as one of His Confederates--Three Arrests Made

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—Breaking down when charged with trying to exchange a worthless cheque for diamonds worth $20,000 Paul Lemire last night confessed to the detectives that his associates were Edward Painchaud and Alexander Caron. Painchaud is one of the six who were arrested when a deserted farmhouse near Joliette was raided last spring, charged with counterfeiting American money. He is now out on bail pending trial on that charge and also on a charge of having plates for the fabrication of money in his pockets, on which accusation he was arrested only two months ago on Chaboillez square. Caron is a brother of Bartholomee Caron, another of the gang of alleged counterfeiters, and who is now supposed to be fighting against the Germans in Belgium, having jumped his bail.

Shortly before six o'clock last night according to the detectives, Lemire went into Solomon's jewellery store on St. Lawrence Boulevard and asked to see some diamonds. He picked out $20,0000 worth, and is alleged to have then offered in payment a cheque for that amount, made out on the bank of Hochelaga and marked "accepted". The jeweller was suspicious, however, and called in Constable Gauthier, of the City Hall avenue police station, who arrested Lemire, and took him to the cells at the station. From there the prisoner was taken to the detective office, where he was cross-examined by Inspector McLaughlin.

The accused declared that he had two accomplices, Painchaud and Caron, who were waiting for him at the corner of Amherst and Ontario streets, as they were going to divide up the diamonds between them.

Detectives Dauost Trudeau and Joe Foucault were sent to the place named, and found Painchaud and Caron there. The officers arrested them and they were held on suspicion of complicity. A definite charge may be laid against them this morning.

Both protest their absolute innocence.

CANADIANS FOR FIRING LINE WITHIN VERY SHORT TIME

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Special—That the Canadian troops need not be detained much longer at Salisbury Plain is the opinion of the London Daily Telegraph, which, commenting on the King's inspection, says: "Now that their training is complete, the time has almost come for them to join the fighting line. They could have no better send-off than the praise and encouragement from their Sovereign and the Minister for War."

This opinion, coming from such a responsible journal simply refutes the ideas expressed in certain quarters that the Canadian expeditionary force would require several months training on this side before the troops would be fit for service in the fighting line.

NORTHERN INDIANS WILL NOT SUFFER

Comfortable Living Assured Them by Hunting Game and Fishing

WINNIPEG, Nov. 5.—According to Glen Campbell, chief inspector of Indian agencies, the Northern Indians are not going to suffer any hardships as a result of a slump in the fur trade caused by the war, but will earn quite a comfortable livelihood by hunting game and fishing, which pursuits they have been urged to devote their engerkies for a time.

Duncan Scott, the Deputy Superintendent-General of Indian affairs, has made full arrangement with the Hudsons Bay Company and other trading companies to prevent any great hardships occurring to the Indians.

THE PRINCE OF WALES MAY GO TO THE FRONT

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The Prince of Wales, who since he joined the army at the beginning of the war has been importuning his father and Lord Kitchener for permission to go to the front, will probably soon have his wish gratified. The prince may join Sir John French's staff. His regiment, the Grenadier Guards, is now in the thick of the fight.

BRITONS REMEMBERED GUY FAWKES QUIETLY

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Special—Yesterday was the quietest Guy Fawkes' Day in the memory oof the oldest inhabitants. Some of the west-end stores had provided against possible purchases of fireworks by laying in a stock worth $100, as compared with $40,000 in previous years. This was the result of strict regulations by the Government, which permitted no aerial fireworks, heavy sound signals, or bonfires. Only small fireworks were permitted up to 8 this evening.

CHATEAUGUAY ELECTION TRIAL SUSPENDED

VALLEYFIELD, Nov. 6.—Special—Fearing that it might act like a spark to set political passions aflame, the celebrated election case in which Hon. Sydney Fisher, ex-Minister of Agriculture in the last Liberal Cabinet, protested the election of James Morris on account of alleged corrupt practices, was indefinitely postponed here to-night on account of the war.

Thinks Bourassa Should be Hanged

Dr. J.W. Edwards, M.P. For Frontenac, Would be Glad to Pelt Bourassa

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 5.—At the Cataraqui Methodist Church gathering Dr. J. W. Edwards, M. P. for Frontenac, referred to Mr. Henri Bourassa and those professors of Queen's University who had joined in the invitation of Mr. Bourassa to speak at Queen's this month. The professors, he said, should be ashamed of themselves. Dr. Edwards denounced Mr. Bourassa, whom he declared should be hanged, and would be hanged in he belonged to any other country.

The prisoners of war confirmed to Fort Henry are not guilty of one hundredth per cent. as much treason as Mr. Bourassa," the Frontenac member declared. "I would be glad to be one of a mob to throw eggs at this man."

CANADA PREPARES FOR GERMAN RAIDS ON BOTH OCEANS

Enemy's Victory on Pacific Causes Government to Take Extra Precautions--Bay of Fundy Mine Rumor--Enemy May Attempt to Lay Them There to Jeopardise Winter Cargoes Leaving St. John

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—As a result of the German naval victory in the Pacific precautions taken by the authorities to prevent attacks on our harbors and coasts are being redoubled. This applies not only to the Pacific but to the Atlantic. Disquieting stories have been heard from time to time of intended German raids on Canadian ports and the latest of them is one which is being taken more seriously.

There is a rumor that Germany may attempt to lay mines in the Bay of Fundy in anticipation of the use of St. John as a winter port, from which many shiploads of grain, vegetables and other gifts to the old Country of Canadian produce will be leaving.

It was learned at the Naval Service Department today that precautions would be taken against any such attempt. If made, it would in all probability be through the medium of supposedly neutral trading vessels, as there would be little probability of any German warship getting as far as this. However, the naval authorities here are ready. There are in the Canadian navy a number of men with experience in the removal as well as the laying of mines and the apparatus used is very simple, consisting of a couple of trawlers dragging a wire cable between them.

It was pointed out at the department today that it would be difficult to lay mines in the Bay of Fundy because of the high tides, which would render a mine anchored at high water visible when the tide was at its ebb and make one planted at low water useless at high tide.

NO TREATING IN WASHINGTON

Court Holds That to Give Liquor Violates District Excise Law

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—A decision made to-day by Judge James A. Pugh, who ruled that to treat in a barroom or to give away intoxicants in any form violates the excise law of the District of Columbia and makes the offender liable to a fine of $250, caused many election wagers to go unpaid.

Politicians who had "bet a high-ball" and lost pointed to the decision as an excuse for not paying.

Shoemaker's, which is as much an institution as the Monument, was crowded with political wiseacres, but after Judge Pugh's decision they did not feel called upon to invite their friends to "drink to the health" of winning candidates. "Safety first" rules were posted in every drinking place.

Judge Pugh's decision is based on a clause in the excise law which provides that "no person shall give away any intoxicating liquor except as hereinafter provided. The point was raised several weeks ago by attorneys for James Jones and Hattie Bird, charged with violating the excise law. Judge Pugh expressed the hope that the case would be caried to higher courts.

GLASGOW AND OTRANTO ESCAPE FROM ENEMY

Further Information From Valparaiso That Good Hope and the Monmouth Went Down With Entire Crews--Whereabouts of German Cruisers Not Known

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 6.—(Special.)—It is learned that the British cruiser Glasgow and the transport Otranto escaped after the naval engagement with the Germans off the Chilean coast Sunday. Wireless messages from the Glasgow calling for the British crusier Good Hope were intercepted. The latter did not reply. It is believed that the Good Hope and the British cruiser Monmouth with their total crews, were lost.

The whereabouts of the German cruisers Leipzig and Bremer, is not known.

A wireless call from the British cruiser Glasgow—intercepted by the German victors—was the last word received from Rear-Admiral Craddock's squadron following the engagement off the Chilean coast Sunday.

The Germans saw the Monmouth sink, and heard an explosion on board the Good Hope that they believe sent the crippled flagship to the bottom. All that night the German cruiser Numberg searched the seas for the Good Hope unsuccessfully. They picked up a radiogram directed to the flagship by the Glasgow. There was no reply.

There were about 650 men on the Monmouth when she disappeared beneath the waves. Admiral Cradock had 900 men with him on board the Good Hope.

Whether the Glasgow and the transport Otranto, which escaped destruction, survived the damage suffered is not known. The whereabouts also of the German cruisers Leipzig and Bremen remains in doubt.

GOLD RUSH IN B.C. LIKELY THIS WINTER

An official of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, who has just returned to Montreal, states that he expects to see a new gold rush into Northern British Columbia this winter.

"Fifty years ago" he said, "miners in search of placer gold struggled through the wilderness and negotiated rapid rivers to reach the Omineca region, which had been reported to be rich in both gold and silver. It was a long and hard trek to get into that remote part of the country, for Victoria, B.C. was then the nearest base of supplies. Prospectors took a small steamer up the Fraser, Nechako and Stuart Rivers and over mountain ranges in order to facilitate transportation of supplies and outfits, but the best route presented had many difficulties and such hard and costly work that after a few years the field was abandoned and almost forgotten, although recently some mining has been done with good results."

"With the opening of the Grand Trunk Pacific this region has been brought several hundred miles nearer a supply centre, and interest in this district is reviving to such an extent that there is likely to be a rush of prospectors during the coming winter. They will take in their supplies from Vanderhoof, B.C., so that they can begin work immediately Spring opens and thus get in a full summer's work. Mining men declare that big strikes will be made when the region has been thoroughly explored and state that there are rich quartz deposits as well as placer gold and silver. It is common knowledge among Hudson's Bay men that the Indians hunting in that part of the country use silver nuggets for bullets, and also carried considerable quantities of gold and silver to Fort Simpson and Hazelton in exchange for goods."

RUMORS OF BATTLE.

British Sweeper Sunk By Mine In North Sea.

LONDON, Nov. 6. — Despite unprecedented activity on the part of the chief of the Admiralty, censorship on all naval movements was absolutely ironclad yesterday. As a result, many rumors of impending fighting on the sea were widely circulated.

There is no disguising the alarm felt in some quarters over the report that a strong German squadron has slipped into the North Sea, cleared for action. Such a squadron, unless promptly located by the British fleet, might cause much damage by bombarding coast cities.

The Admiralty positively refuses to confirm or deny the report that this German squadron actually is at large.

The British mine sweeper Mary was sunk by a mine in the North Sea yesterday. Six of the crew of fourteen were rescued.

Survivors who were landed at Lowestoft reported heavy gun-firing off the Yorkshire coast yesterday afternoon.

A despatch from Lowestoft reports that heavy cannonading, supposedly between British and German warships, was heard in the North Sea yesterday morning.

A despatch to The Daily Telegraph from Odessa by way of Moscow says that twelve Turkish and German transports carrying coal have been sunk near Uzunguldak, on the coast of Anatolia.

A despatch from Bucharest, Roumania, says: "Turkish warships have sunk two Russian passenger steamships in the Black Sea after forcing the passengers and crew to take to the boats."

The Turkish fleet has taken refuge in the Bosphorus to avoid further pursuit by the Russian Black Sea squadron, according to an announcement from the Russian Admiralty yesterday.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

French War Office Says German Attacks Diminish In Energy.

PARIS, Nov. 6. — The following official communication was issued at the French War Office last night:

"There is no new information on the operations at the north of the Lys.

"In a violent offensive movement by the Germans north of Arras, we lost a few trenches which later were retaken.

"In the Argonne (region of St. Hubert) all the German attacks have been successfully repulsed.

"Concerning the remainder of the battle front there is nothing of importance to report."

Yesterday afternoon's War Office report from Paris says:

"On our left wing the allied forces have made slight progress to the east of Nieuport on the right bank of the Yser. From Dixmude to the Lys the German attacks were renewed yesterday, but at a number of points with lessened energy, particularly with regard to the actions of their infantry.

"The Franco-British lines have at no point drawn back and our troops, undertaking the offensive, have made notable progress in several directions. Between the region of La Bassee and the Somme the day was notable, particularly for an artillery contest.

"In the region of Roye we have maintained our occupation of Le Quesnoy-en-Santerre and advanced perceptibly in the direction of Andechy.

"On the centre, between the Oise and the Moselle, there has been a recrudescence of the activity of the Germans, manifested especially by their artillery fire.

"Summing up it may be said that the attacks of the enemy at various points on our front have been repulsed, in some instances after an engagement which lasted all day long. On our right wing there is nothing new to report."

TO RAISE MOUNTED RIFLES.

Canadian Government Has Decided to Organize Four Regiments at Once.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6. — The Government has decided without further delay to mobilize four regiments of Canadian mounted rifles, one in Ontario, probably at Toronto; one in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, one in Alberta and one in British Columbia.

There has been much debate over the fact that when the suggestions of the War Office were received as to the composition of the second Canadian contingent, no mention was made of cavalry, but it has been observed that a curious development of the war in France is the suspension of the role normally assigned to mounted troops, who are now fighting as infantry.

Sooner or later the situation will change and mounted troops will resume the role which, temporarily, they have abandoned. The four regiments of Canadian mounted rifles which the Government has decided to organize will probably be of 600 men each, a total of about 2,400.

Villa's Troops In Battle.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 6.—An official report received yesterday by Villa officials in Juarez said that a battle was in progress between Villa and Carranza troops 20 miles south of Aguascalientes, where the convention of chiefs recently attempted to adjust their fractional difficulties. It is said Villa has sent a force of 10,000 men and more than 100 cannon to meet the advance of the Carranza troops, whose strength is not known.

Notwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractic permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease, that being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chiropractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

Opening "At Home"

The opening dance of the season of the Iroquois Club was held last evening in the Ramsay Academy, Front Street. Upwards of seventy-five couples were present, including several from Brockville, Gananoque, Kingston, Deseronto, Stirling and Tweed, and judging from the manner in which they expressed themselves they had a most enjoyable time. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion and music was supplied by Sills Orchestra. Considering that the club only started last season the committee of management deserve every credit, and while congratulating them on the splendid turn-out we cannot refrain from wishing them continued success. The patronesses were Mesdames H. L. Wallace, L. E. Walmsley, G. P. Fitzgerald, E. E. Timmerman, C. V. F. Meagher, J. E. Middleton and F. M. Barrett. The stewards were Messrs. C. M. Wallace, J. A. Patriotic Lecture At High School

The assembly room at the High School was last evening filled to the doors by an audience which was delighted with an illustrated address given by Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee in relation to the present war. The views presented were fine, and his address of Belgium was a masterly effort. The affair was under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club of this city.

Mrs. J. F. Wills, President, in a few appropriate remarks, introduced the speaker of the evening.

Before presenting the views, Mr. Herrington read his address, which dealt entirely with Belgium and the important part it had taken in the present war. In his opening remarks the speaker referred to the work being done by the ladies, whose hearts were in the right place. The learned counsel reviewed the history of Belgium, and the many conflicts through which it had passed. It was a country that had been repeatedly mixed up in international disputes, but the present conflict was the most disastrous the country had ever experienced. The country had advanced and was in a most peaceful state until the despot of Germany had changed it. The men and women were thrifty and industrious, the latter especially, as they worked not only in the factories and shops but in the gardens and fields. The highways and canals of the country were in every way kept up. It was also a picturesque country and many of the buildings in the cities were noted for their architectural construction. The country was densely populated. Although in size it is but one-third as large as Ireland, it had a population greater than Canada. The coast lines were considered to be well fortified and the forts were considered up to date in every way, but it has proved that the defence could not stand the great siege guns of Germany. A few months ago Antwerp was thought to be impregnable, but man's devices have been overcome. In referring to Brussels the speaker said Brussels had a population of 600,000. It is not so gay as Paris. It is a compact city. Visitors will find much to attract their attention in this city. It was also a most picturesque city. The name of the city suggests many international conferences held within its boundaries. What shall we say of Louvain? Before the Germans laid their sacreligious hands upon it it was a throbbing and beautiful city. It is a city no more, but a mass of ruins, caused by the ruthless Germans. There was a quiet and dignified air about the place and its university was a great monument, having some 1,600 students. It is now in ruins. The ashes of Louvain are a monument to the militarism of Germany. On every hand a few weesk ago prosperity was to be seen. Today no pen or brush can picture the hellish vandalism of Germany. The heroism of Belgium is marvelous. They are fighting our battles. What are we doing? He was proud as all are of the Canadians, the best sons of this country who have offered their services for the Empire. God bless them! There is not the slightest doubt but that they will do their duty. Whilst not a shot had been fired in Canada, yet we were at war. When will come that peace that a trembling world is awaiting? It will come when Germany is subdued and Belgium has been safeguarded and compensated for the wrongs inflicted upon her. The sympathy of the world is with this country. The grim allies will fight until right prevails.

The pictures, chiefly of Belgium, were then thrown upon the screen, as were also some local views of our own brave boys who have gone to the front.

At the close a vote of thanks, moved by Miss Guest and seconded by Mrs. MacLaurin, was tended to Mr. Herrington, which he acknowledged.

During the evening Miss Ponton sang "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary", and the proceedings closed with the National Anthem.

One Year in Central Prison

When the High Court of Justice resumed this morning before Hon. Justice Hodgins, Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, County Attorney, moved for sentence on Harry Graine, who pleaded guilty to a charge of indecent assault.

His Lordship asked Graine if he desired to say anything before the sentence was pronounced.

Mr. Porter, K.C., spoke on behalf of the prisoner. The learned counsel said Graine was a young man, but 23 years of age and was married about two years ago. He has a child in arms. The family was a most respectable one, he being one of a family of nine children. The prisoner had never before been charged with any offence. The offence was committed when the prisoner was, for the first time, under the influence of liquor. Graine had already been in jail 125 days and he would ask His Lordship to be as lenient as possible in the punishment meted out.

His Lordship in delivering sentence said the evidence warranted the course the prisoner had taken in pleading guilty to an indecent assault. The offence committed was most serious. The sentence of the court is that you, Harry Graine, be confined in the Central prison for one year and that the period he had spent in jail be deducted.

High Court Cases

Wilson v. McMorran and Bryce.—Action by Jeanie R. Wilson of Fort Stewart against the executrices of her mother's will, who reside at Port Elgin, claiming $4,200 from the estate for care, nursing, maintenance and attendance on her mother, 84 years of age, under note made a year before, and two agreements made within a month of the old lady's death. Defendants contended that plaintiff had been amply paid, having lived with the deceased at the mother's homestead in Huron county with her daughters for many years, and that deceased was not competent to make the agreements alleged and was under duress and undue influence. The case was warmly contested, lasting two days. Part of the claim was disallowed and judgment reserved as to the balance. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; Northrup & Ponton for defendants.

Tighe v. Tyendinaga.—An action brought on behalf of infant plaintiff for damages. The plaintiff, a young man, was during last winter severely injured by a cave-in in a gravel pit he was working in, in the township of Tyendinaga. It was alleged that there was negligence on the part of the township in not protecting the overhanging bank. Case traversed to the non-jury court in December. Porter & Carnew for plaintiff; S. Masson, K. C., for defendants.

UNITED STATES ELECTIONS

The elections which have just been held in the different States of the Union show a substantial gain in the Republican party. New York has returned to its first love and elected by a large majority a Republican Governor. The Senate, and House of Rrepresentatives are still Democratic, but materially weakened in numbers. All this indicates a falling off in the ranks of President Wilson's supporters, rendering his reelection less sure than it apparently was a year ago.

On the 4th inst. the returns show that the Democrats elected 226 members, Republicans 192, Progressives 10 and Socialists 1. Of the six missing districts it was estimated tonight that the Republicans and Democrats might elect three each. Heaviest Republican gains in the almost overwhelming of the Democratic majority were thirteen in Illinois, twelve in New York, ten in Pennsylvania and 9 in Ohio. Progressive representation in the House was cut from 9 or 10. This resulted from the general collapse of the Progressive organization throughout the country except in California.

Woman's suffrage was carried in two States, Montana and Nevada, while Nebraska showed such a small vote against the proposal that the women claimed the State. Missouri, Ohio and North and South Dakota refused to grant equal suffrage, the majority against granting the franchise to women increasing with the size of the population concerned.

Four of the six states that voted Tuesday on prohibition, according to the latest returns tonight, decided to forbid the sale of alcoholic beverages in future and two voted to retain saloons, while Washington, Colorado, Oregon and Arizona closed theirs.

Later returns may change these figures.

HE SEES BUT TOO LATE

"So far Britain has shown that the navy which is to command the sea must be a blue-water navy."

* * * *

"It is possible that the fact that only out-of-date vessels in the British navy have been sunk by submarines may be significant. So far as is publicly known, battleships are only armoured above water line against gunfire, and none have been armoured below water as a defence against torpedoes. Yet at least four of Britain's most modern battle cruisers were in the thick of the submarines at Heligoland, and came out unscathed after annihilating the enemy's above-water ships. Perhaps, after all, Britain's modern warships are not as helpless against submarines as the older cruisers. In any case, command of the sea needs a navy that can go to sea, keep to sea, and fight at sea in all weathers. And that is the kind of navy Britain has got."

These are the conclusions of the Montreal Herald, Hon. Geo. P. Graham's journal. It is unfortunate that Mr. Graham did not reach these conclusions two years ago, when the Canadian Government sought to strengthen "that kind of a British navy." Mr. Graham was one of the leaders in the fight against Canada accepting the advice of the Admiralty.

There was no emergency, he said; there would never be war between Britain and Germany. Mr. Graham's foresight was at fault. War has come, and Canada's trade has not been interrupted, due to Britain's powerful fleet that has controlled the German navy in the North Sea.

Mr. Graham's conclusion that,—"In any case command of the sea needs a navy that can go to sea, keep at sea, and fight at sea in all weather" is a little belated for practical results. It was effective aid to such a navy that he and his fellow-Liberals in the Commons and Senate successfully blocked.

CAPTIOUS CRITICISM

The Toronto Globe finds fault with Hon. Arthur Meighen for saying in his speech at Napanee that Germany has had rather the better of the struggle up to date. The Globe denies this, and we only hope that the Globe is right. But is worth noticing that the military critic of the New York Times—a newspaper that is outstandingly in favor of the Allies—says Germany has won the advantage in the past month's fighting on both the eastern and western theatres of war.

This, says the Kingston Standard, may or may not be so, but in any event it impresses that the war is to be a long one and that Kitchener's call for more men must not pass unheeded. Under the circumstances the Globe might cease its "brotherhood of man" drivel and deal with conditions as they actually are.

THE BRITISH NAVY FLOATS

"But as long as the British navy is afloat, Germany has no more chance of invading Canada than she has of invading the moon"—is the New York World's answer to Count Bernstorff's talk of a German invasion of Canada. The real defence of Canada is the British navy and recognized by everybody except Laurier, Graham, Lemieux and other Liberal leaders.

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Geo. P. Graham had recognized this fact two years ago three powerful ships would have been added to this defence by Canada.

WORTHY OF PERUSAL

The President of the local Canadian Club has handed us an article by Ralph Connor on "Canada's Duty." It appears in this issue and will doubtless be considered a masterpiece.

INDIVIDUAL AND GENERAL

Once a man gets the habit of buying things made in his own country, he gets a satisfaction that he never enjoyed before. It's a good habit of human nature not to care where things are made so long as they fiet the case. But it's a better and a bigger part of selfish human nature to figure out how one's purchase help along the general movement of prosperity in his own country. In this co-operation between the individual and the general welfare the personal effort of every man and woman counts when it comes to the big national push that gets the country out of the rut. Canada has a large army of workers to keep busy. The workers depend for their subsistence on thousands upon thousands of factories. The part played by one community in keying up this great empire of business depends precisely upon how many individuals take hold of the movement. In all great popular movements it is the five and ten cent purchase multiplied by the thousands upon thousands of people that register the popular goodwill. A big subscriber may write himself down for thousands and forget it. A thousand other people may go down for a few dollars each and the world can never forget the result they get for it.

CURRENT COMMENT

Great Britain is not only proving herself able to finance her share of the conflict, but is making generous loans to the Overseas Dominions. She has just granted a loan of $100,000,000 to Australia. A few weeks ago she granted a large loan to South Africa, and also came to Canada's assistance. She is a good old-fashioned mother, and in her hour of need deserves the support of her overseas children.

Buffalo Commercial: Thus far, the export sales of wheat and flour from this year's wheat crop are estimated at between 120,000,000 and 140,000,000 bushels, or nearly one-half of the available surplus of 300,000,000 bushels. More than 90,000,000 bushels have been actually exported. This means that the United States had sold more wheat abroad during the three months since the harvest than it usually exports in an average season of a full year."

Montreal News: "Herman Ridder of the New York Staats-Zeitung, continues to think the British Empire is "rotten with sedition." He sneeringly points to the outbreak in South Africa, the alleged lack of recruits in England and discontent in Ireland. If he were far enough away from Canada to safely lie about us, no doubt he would do so. Meantime, Botha has the rebellion in hand, Ireland has furnished 57,000 recruits and England will have an army of 1,500,000 men ready in time to be in at the death, when the Kaiser's resources and military establishments are at an end."

VIRGINIA GIRL GAINED 15 POUNDS

Was So Weak and Thin, Thought She Was Going Into Decline. Tells How Vinol Helped Her.

Norfolk, Va.—"My health was very poor. I suffered from nervousness, had no appetite and was so thin, I thought I was going into a decline, and nothing I took seemed to help me until one day a friend came into my office and told me if I would take Vinol it would do me lots of good.

"I have now taken six bottles and have gained fifteen pounds: have a good appetite and can eat anything. It is wonderful what Vinol has done for me in building up my health. My own friends hardly know me and when anyone comes into my office the first thing I begin to talk about is Vinol."—MATTIE DENNING, Norfolk, Va.

The testimonial letters which we are continually publishing prove the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, and what it did for Miss Denning it will do for any thin, tired, nervous, run-down, worn-out man or woman.

If we can induce you to try a bottle of Vinol as a body-builder and strength-creator, and you do not find it is all we claim, we will return your money on demand.

WAR NOTES

Westminster Gazette: "One of the most amusing stories of the Kaiser is again going the rounds. After some disagreement with the Reichstag, his Imperial Majesty was sitting in a dejected attitude in the Imperial Palace. One of his courtiers, in an attempt to dispell the cloud of gloom resting on the royal brow, said: "Ah, Sire, 'Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown,' as the immortal William said." The Kaiser looked at him questioningly for a second, and then asked, "When did I say that?"

Philadelphia North American: "The autocracy and militarism of Germany, modified though they are by parliamentary forms, constitute a challenge and a menace to American constitutions; against them the American mind instinctively revolts. Militaristic monarchism and democracy are incurably antagonistic. Both systems cannot endure. The triumph of one means the extinction of the other."

Journal of Commerce: "Surely the proposal to import rifles from the United States duty free to be used in the defence of our country could not have originated with Mr. J. N. Greenshields, K.C., who was one of the most ardent opponents of having any "truck or trade with the Yankees" in the reciprocity campaign of three years ago. Guns so imported would certainly explode, or at least kick and injure the patriotic soldiers who pointed them at a foe." What would have happened had Laurierism won out?

Kingston Standard: 'Women and children first," is the cry in Germany; but they are put in the front of the German soldiers, and bombs are dropped on them. In Bethume a bomb fell into the midst of a group of them in the market place, killed nineteen, and wounded forty. German "culture."

It sounds odd to hear the Russian army spoken of as a democratic institution, but it is the only way to describe it. The young officers are intimate with all their men. They write letters home for those who cannot write and often slip a present of a rouble or two into the letter. They read to the soldiers, teach them, take them to cenema exhibitions of educational value and generally do what they can for their welfare.

Telegraphing from Dunkirk, the Daily Mail's correspondent says: "A Brussels official who succeeded in passing the German lines has reached that point. He reports that the Germans virtually evacuated Brussels on October 26th, leaving only a few military posts."

Applications were issued on Tuesday in London for the Government's sixth issue of six-months Treasury bills for £15,000,000 ($75,000,000). There were again large tenders at 98 pounds 2 shillings and 10 pence. This makes a total of £90,000,000 ($450,000,000) in Treasury bills issued by the Government for war purposes.

It is reported that Germany has definitely stated that she finds it impossible to do anything about feeding the Belgians, which leaves the whole task to Americans with what assistance the British Government can give. The Government will give large sums of money but does not consider it possible to permit England's food supply to suffer more depletion. Germany's attitude of extorting money from the conquered civilians, which money might be used in purchasing supplies, thus relieving the American-British relief committee, arouses bitter feeling in London.

Two Dominion Government boats are patrolling the River St. Clair on the lookout for launches, in which, it is believed, a number of Austrian and German reservists resident in Canada, have been smuggled across the river to Port Huron.

The actual magnitude of this great war, which in most aspects is hard to grasp, is illustrated by the number of prisoners taken. Just how many Germans and Austrians have been captured is unknown here now, but there are reliable figures just from Berlin which show that the Germans have taken what in other wars would comprise great armies. There were in the German detention camps on October 14, approximately 140,000 Russians, 125,000 French, 30,000 Belgians and 9,000 British, a total of more than 300,000. This is exclusive, according to information received, of the civilians whom the Germans have taken from France and Belgium in great numbers. Until receipt of these figures it was believed that Germany's prisoners were only 225,000, including civilians.

In order to keep up the spirits of the people the Austrians pack trains with their own soldiers dressed in Russian uniforms, thus gaining easy credit for thousands of Russian prisoners en route for internment or servitude. It is not to be wondered that after such comedy as soon as the news came of the capture of Lublin and other towns, with the appearance of Russians on the frontier, and the flight of the Austrians the effect on the poor deceived Poles was abject chagrin.

Jiddah Not Bombarded.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The report sent from London Wednesday night that the British cruiser Minerva had bombarded the Arabian seaport of Jiddah, on the Red Sea, is devoid of foundation. The Minerva has not been within 500 miles of the place.

On issuing this denial yesterday the London official press bureau publishes the text of a proclamation circulated in India pledging the British Government not to molest holy places in Arabia.

NO NEWS OF WARSHIPS

Santiago de Chile Still Without Advices of British Craft.

British Admiralty Has Taken Steps to Destroy the German Fleet of Admiral Von Spee, and Japanese Navy Standing Off the Coast May Be Used to That End—May Now Be In Pursuit.

LONDON, Nov. 6. — A despatch from Santiago, Chile, says that news was still lacking last night concerning the whereabouts of the five missing British and German vessels which were among those participating in the naval engagement off the Chilean coast last Sunday night. These ships are the British cruiser Good Hope, which the Germans believe was sent to the bottom; the British cruiser Glasgow, the British transport Otranto, and the German cruisers Leipzig and Bremen.

Although no detailed information is obtainable, it is known that steps already have been taken to destroy the fleet of Admiral Von Spee, which claims to have played such havoc with a British squadron off Chile. The Admiralty is especially anxious to locate the British battleship Canopus, from which no word has been heard since it started to aid the squadron commanded by Rear-Admiral Cradock, who was defeated by the German cruiser squadron last Sunday.

The Japanese have a large fleet in the Pacific, part of it in the vicinity of Easter Island, and, as yesterday's reports showed, these ships have been sighted, presumably pursuing Von Spee's ships. The other portion of the Japanese fleet is near Honolulu. The Japanese fleet is headed by the battle cruiser Kongo, the swiftest and heaviest of her type in the world.

The only stories of the disaster of Sunday are still from the officers of the German fleet.

A wireless call from the British cruiser Glasgow—intercepted by the German victors — was the last word received from Rear-Admiral Cradock's squadron following the engagement, say the Germans.

The Germnas saw the Monmouth sink, and heard an explosion on board the Good Hope that they believe sent the crippled flagship to the bottom. All that night the German cruiser Nurnberg searched the seas for the Good Hope unsuccessfully. They picked up a radiogram directed to the flagship by the Glasgow. There was no reply.

There were about 650 men on the Monmouth when she disappeared beneath the waves. Admiral Cradock had 900 men with him on board the Good Hope.

Describing the battle the Germans say it occurred in a gale that was almost a hurricane.

The heavy weather militated against the larger ships, and the Good Hope found her guns almost useless because of the ship's roll.

Gradually the two lines came nearer to each other, and the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau simultaneously let go their twelve 8-inch guns, which they concentrated on the Good Hope. The firing continued for several minutes without damage. The German shots fell short, and the Good Hope had such a roll that she could not reply. The smaller cruisers were far out of range. Slowly the sea-fighters drew in nearer, and when the two units were but 6,000 yards apart the Good Hope fired her two 9-inch guns. She was still unable to use her eight 6-inch guns, which on the gun deck were so near the water-line that as the vessel rolled they were almost awash. A terrible broadside from the Scharnhorst and Gneisenau crippled the British flagship, and her engines stopped.

The Monmouth, recognizing the distress of her companion, made a dash to cover the Good Hope. All the Germans guns were now brought into play, and the Monmouth sank in a few minutes. Then an explosion occurred on the Good Hope and she drew off to the west, in flames. The Glasgow and Otranto escaped in the dark.

GENERAL KILLS HIMSELF.

Robert Kekewich, Who Held Kimberley, Is Dead In Devonshire.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Maj.-Gen. Robert George Kekewich, who defended Kimberley against the assaults of the Boers from Oct. 15, 1899, to Dec. 16, 1900, and who had just been recalled to the colors for a high position in Earl Kitchener's new army, died suddenly yesterday. It is stated that his death took place at his home in Devonshire, Eng.

Gen. Kekewich entered the army in 1874, and was one of England's noted officers, being frequently mentioned in despatches and having numerous decorations for valor.

It was later reported that General Kekewich had died by his own hand. He had recently suffered a nervous breakdown.

Australian Cable Repaired.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 6. — The Australian cable is up and now working again. In the opening days of the war a German cruiser landed a party and wrecked the installation at the small island in the Pacific where the cable landed between Vancouver and the Antipodes. Much inconvenience was caused thereby and the work of the allied fleets in sweeping the Pacific was hampered.

This German Ship Didn't Know.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 6. — The German sailing ship Melpomene, which sailed from Tocopilla, Chile, July 8, laden with nitrates, was towed into Queenstown yesterday by the British cruiser which had captured her.

Capt. Endelman said neither he nor his crew had heard that a war was in progress.

says she likes the Victrola because the children are so fond of it.

"I always play it for them evenings before bedtime, so now I never have any trouble in getting them home.

"Then the Victrola is such a splendid help to the children's education. Through its teaching they have become familiar with the best works of all the great composers, as interpreted by the best singers and musicians. One of their favorites is Dvorak's beautiful 'Humoresque,' played by Mischa Elman.

"Besides, I have a really selfish reason for liking it. Some of the ladies of my aquaintance used to delight in inviting me to teas and receptions where they played their fine Victor Records, but now that we have a Victrola, I can have just as good music as theirs."

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons,"

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

Dorcas laughed. The octoroon's statement was so irrelevant it was almost funny.

"Lawdy, Mis' Wentworth, don' go to laughin'. I reckon yo' don't know what an awful t'ing dat is to happen. I nebber heard tell ob hit but once. Hit don' happen exceptin' when a woman's ez wicked ez de ol' serpint herself!"

"Emiline, what on earth are you talking about?"

"My granny once worked fo' a wicked lady—was back in slave days. I 'member hearin' her tell 'bout it when I was a little gal. Her Misses was an army lady, rich en beautiful ez could be, but she done hated her husband en der was anodder man she was sho' sot arter. Her husband, de fine ol' army man, he died sudden one night. She had er necklace on, de bluest tuqquoises yo' ebber see, en de next day dey turned green. Den dey found out she'd poisoned him. Dey would have hung her, but she drowned herself. De tuqquoises was on her neck when dey pulled her out ob de ribber—dey was green as grass."

Dorcas shivered. "Emiline, what has this to do with Miss Paget?"

The girl's eyes grew round with terror.

"She had er necklace ob de swellest tuqquoises gib her a month ago by a gemman. She's always gittin' presents fr'm gemmen. Dey was ez pale blue ez de sky when she got dem. She wears dem all de time, day and night. You see dem on her when she was actin'?"

Dorcas nodded.

"She nebber takes dem off. One day I tol' her dey wa'n't near ez blue ez dey used to be. She took dem to a jeweler man en hed dem cleaned. Hit didn't do dem a mite ob good. Dis mornin'," Emiline paused as in terror of repeating it, "dis mornin', Mis' Wentworth, ez sho' ez Gawd made me, dem tuqquoises was turned green!"

Dorcas sat staring at her.

"I screamed when I sot my eyes on dem." The girl's teeth chattered. "She asked what was de matter, en I tol' her de story ob de ol' Colonel's Misses. Dat's when she whaled me 'cross de mouf."

"But," queried Dorcas with a puzzled frown, "what does it all mean?"

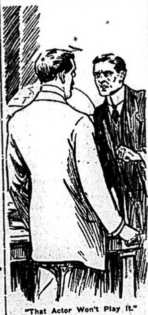
"Lawdy, dem tuqquoises would have stayed sky-blue on yo', Mis' Wentworth, er on any lady dat wa'n't doin' all dem kind ob wicked t'ings."

"Rubbish!"

"I swar to de Lawd hit's true," cried Emiline appealingly. "I's heard my granny tell hit many a time."

Dorcas laughed. Although the story was absurd, her skin had grown chilly while Emiline talked.

"I'll tell yo'." The girl's voice grew intense. "Don' yo' 'member she had dem tuqquoises on las' night when yo' come in wid de little blind boy? Lawd, I could er choked her dead wid my own han's! She was de ol' debil himself, en der's a judgment a-comin' on her. When yo' was gone, de t'ings she done say was curdlin' to de blood!"



"That Actor Won't Play It."

"Miss Paget is not a good woman I know, but——"

"Good!" interrupted Emiline. "She didn't murder nobody den, en I reckon she ain't since, but dar was murder in her heart! En den, dis mornin'—'fore she woun' out 'bout de tuqquoises—somet'ing queer happened, somet'ing terrible queer!"

"What?"

"She come upstairs wid er bunch ob letters in her hand, right arter lunch time. She laid dem down; but befo' she done took off her t'ings she took anodder one out er her muff. 'Fo' she took her hat off she opened it en read it. She dropped de envelope on de floor. I saw it. Hit wa'n't addressed to her, hit was somebody else's letter.' The negro girl paused irresolutely for a moment.

"Well?" queried Dorcas.

"Hit was fo' 'Mrs. Alice V. Bourne, Gotham Theater.'"

"'Alice V. Bourne'!" Dorcas jumped to her feet.

"Yessum." Emiline's tongue ran on excitedly. "Miss Paget, she was took wid de queerest fit yo' ebber see arter she done read it. She lay back en screeched en laughed. She got clear hystericky. Den, all of er sudden, she started to fire questions at me 'bout little Julie Bourne en Mrs. Bourne, en where dey lived en where dey come fr'm. I didn't know nuffin' but where dey lived. I went up once to Harlem wid Mrs. Bourne to help her bring some stuff ob Miss Julie's to er."

"Where did she get the letter?" asked Dorcas.

"Yo' kin search me," answered Emiline briskly. "Dat 'oman 'ould steal er murder er any ol' t'ing."

There was a long silence. Emiline rose to go.

"Mis' Wentworth," she asked hesitatingly, "ef yo' hear ob er good place, would yo' send fo' me? Jason, he knows where to fin' me anytime." She paused irresolutely. "You don' want a nurse fo' de little blind boy, I reckon. I'se er born nurse. I like it!"

"I don't know yet, Emiline, what plans I can make, or what will be done with Robin; but I'll try to find some work for you."

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Irony of Fate.

Wentworth locked himself in the library one Saturday morning. Oswald with quiet insistence, had continued the demand that he break away, go home, and begin work on another play.

"Business can be carried along without you," was his daily assurance. "'The House of Esterbrook' is good for another season, perhaps for more than one, and we ought to look ahead. I am asked every day if you are writing another play. You ought to strike while the iron is hot. The luck we are having should be an inspiration to you."

The Waverly Place house was perfectly still. Enoch seated himself before the desk, cleared off the blotter, laid out a heap of copy paper, filled the ink-well, and adjusted a new pen. He leaned his head upon his hand for a few minutes, and his listless eyes fell upon a calendar. He discovered that it bore the dates of March instead of April. He tore off the record of weeks which had passed and dropped it into the waste basket. The pen rested listlessly between his fingers. When he tried to write with it the ink had dried. He did not dip it in the bottle again. A trail of sleepless days and nights lay behind him—he felt as if his brain had drowsed at its post.

He picked up a rubber band, twisted it about his fingers, then pulled it thin till it suddenly snapped in two. He shook himself as if a strenuous effort to wake up. For days he had been evolving what seemed like a virile plot for a play. He tramped the streets to do his thinking and planned the scenario from beginning to end. The night before he had locked himself in his office at the Gotham and in a frenzy of haste shaped out each scene on his typewriter.

The manuscript lay at his elbow. He read it through. Suddenly he realized that the stuff fell short, of what he could not decide. It lacked reality. He compared it with Merry's drama. The story in that rose up out of the paper, each character a living, breathing man or woman. This story was dead, absolutely dead. He lifted the sheets and deliberately tore them across, gritting his teeth while the paper zipped, as a man does when he is in pain.

He picked up a letter which lay beside him on the desk. It was addressed in Merry's irregular writing. There was nothing inside the envelope but a check for an amount in five figures. Wentworth glanced at it, then tore it across. He had sent the check to the actor without a word; it represented the entire royalties on the "House of Esterbrook." The mail brought it back to him as it had gone. A small clock ticked out the time on top of the desk. He remembered it was a Christmas gift from Merry. The ceaseless round of its second-hand fascinated him.

"It would be great if one could work as that ridiculous needle does," he thought. "It is such a lifelike thing. It goes on with a regularity that feazes a man, never pausing day or night, never dropping out or balking as we humans do when the brain goes numb. I wonder," Enoch loafed back in his chair, "I wonder if it is too late to come back. It does not seem possible that a man could undergo a physical change in a few months while he is still hale and hearty. They say such a thing does come, though—quick as scat, when your arteries harden, or something of that sort happens. I'm forty-two. A man isn't old at forty-two, and yet—I feel old today. I suppose," he stared steadily at the face of the little clock as if it were a human countenance, "I suppose this is part of the scheme they call retribution."

"Business as usual" is a great motto, but hard to live up to if everyone is filled with fear. Each should do his part to keep up trade.

Once in a blue moon you run across a man who has an idea but doesn't know what to do with it.

SACRIFICED HIS NOSE AND SAVED HIS LIFE

Workman Wrenched Himself from Machine as Heavy Press Descended on Him

MONTREAL, Nov. 5.—By sacrificing his nose, Martin Hilford, an employe of the Canadian Car company, saved his life yesterday.

Hilford is employed at the foundry at Blue Bonnets, placing heavy steel plates under a gigantic press. By a mistake, the press began to descend while the man was below it. He was thrown on his back and the heavy weight slowly descended on his head, crushing in his nose and forehead.

Hilford, to save his life, practically wrenched his nose off, and rolled to the floor. He was rushed to the Western Hospital, where a four inch scalp wound was sewn up and part of the nasal bone was removed.

The man's nose was crushed to a pulp and an artificial nose bone will have to be inserted.

Affinities may be all right in their place, but they seldom make good in the kitchen.

DEMOCRATS HAVE EIGHTEEN.

Reduced Majority In House of Representatives Faces Wilson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Latest returns from Tuesday's elections indicate that the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives for the sixty-fourth Congress will be reduced to eighteen. The probable Democratic majority in the Senate will be fourteen.

Three of the six states that voted Tuesday on the question of ousting saloons decided to retain bar rooms while the other three on latest returns last night apparently went dry. Ohio, California, and Washington voted in favor of retaining saloons. Arizona, apparently voted dry, women voters contributing materially. Colorado and Oregon on incomplete and unofficial returns show slight leads in favor of ousting saloons.

"Biggins is a remarkably well informed man."

"Yes; he knows so much that you can't tell him anything and you can't understand all that he tells you."—Washington Star.

On a Pedestal

Those things we value most highly, as symbolizing the best in Art, in Science or in Literature, are fittingly placed upon a pedestal, where we can look up to them.

Figuratively speaking, we also place upon the pedestal of our imagination, those high ideals, those lofty aspirations, by which, in our more thoughtful moments, we would wish to guide our conduct.

Among those guiding principles, why not place upon a pedestal of its own, an ideal that may be better described as "Canada First," rather than "Made in Canada."

The "Made in Canada" movement stands for far more than mere commercial patriotism. Pride of country, pride of national resources, pride of national accomplishment in the realms of literature, art and science, pride of virile citizenship, and pride of national destiny, are all embraced within the broad sweep of this deep seated and soul stirring movement.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistic beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

says she likes the Victrola because the children are so fond of it.

"I always play it for them evenings before bedtime, so now I never have any trouble in getting them home.

"Then the Victrola is such a splendid help to the children's education. Through its teaching they have become familiar with the best works of all the great composers, as interpreted by the best singers and musicians. One of their favorites is Dvorak's beautiful 'Humoresque,' played by Mischa Elman.

"Besides, I have a really selfish reason for liking it. Some of the ladies of my aquaintance used to delight in inviting me to teas and receptions where they played their fine Victor Records, but now that we have a Victrola, I can have just as good music as theirs."

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

Dorcas laughed. The octoroon's statement was so irrelevant it was almost funny.

"Lawdy, Mis' Wentworth, don' go to laughin'. I reckon yo' don't know what an awful t'ing dat is to happen. I nebber heard tell ob hit but once. Hit don' happen exceptin' when a woman's ez wicked ez de ol' serpint herself!"

"Emiline, what on earth are you talking about?"

"My granny once worked fo' a wicked lady—was back in slave days. I 'member hearin' her tell 'bout it when I was a little gal. Her Misses was an army lady, rich en beautiful ez could be, but she done hated her husband en der was anodder man she was sho' sot arter. Her husband, de fine ol' army man, he died sudden one night. She had er necklace on, de bluest tuqquoises yo' ebber see, en de next day dey turned green. Den dey found out she'd poisoned him. Dey would have hung her, but she drowned herself. De tuqquoises was on her neck when dey pulled her out ob de ribber—dey was green as grass."

Dorcas shivered. "Emiline, what has this to do with Miss Paget?"

The girl's eyes grew round with terror.

"She had er necklace ob de swellest tuqquoises gib her a month ago by a gemman. She's always gittin' presents fr'm gemmen. Dey was ez pale blue es de sky when she got dem. She wears dem all de time, day and night. You see dem on her when she was actin'?"

Dorcas nodded.

"She nebber takes dem off. One day I tol' her dey wa'n't near ez blue ez dey used to be. She took dem to a jeweler man en hed dem cleaned. Hit didn't do dem a mite ob good. Dis mornin'," Emiline paused as in terror of repeating it, "dis mornin', Mis' Wentworth, ez sho' ez Gawd made me, dem tuqquoises was turned green!"

Dorcas sat staring at her.

"I screamed when I sot my eyes on dem." The girl's teeth chattered. "She asked what was de matter, en I tol' her de story ob de ol' Colonel's Misses. Dat's when she whaled me 'cross de mouf."

"But," queried Dorcas with a puzzled frown, "what does it all mean?"

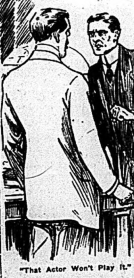
"Lawdy, dem tuqquoises would have stayed sky-blue on yo', Mis' Wentworth, er on any lady dat wa'n't doin' all dem kind ob wicked t'ings."

"Rubbish!"

"I swar to de Lawd hit's true," cried Emiline appealingly. "I've heard my granny tell hit many a time."

Dorcas laughed. Although the story was absurd, her skin had grown chilly while Emiline talked.

"I'll tell yo'." The girl's voice grew intense. "Don' yo' 'member she had dem tuqquoises on las' night when yo' come in wid de little blind boy? Lawd, I could er choked her dead wid my own han's! She was de ol' debil herself, en der's a judgment a-comin' on her. When yo' was gone, de t'ings she done say was curdlin' to de blood!"



"That Actor Won't Play It."

"Miss Paget is not a good woman I know, but——"

"Good!" interrupted Emiline. "She didn't murder nobody den, en I reckon she ain't since, but dar was murder in her heart! En den, dis mornin'—'fore she woun' out 'bout de tuqquoises—somet'ing queer happened, somet'ing terrible queer!"

"What?"

"She come upstairs wid er bunch ob letters in her hand, right arter lunch time. She laid dem down; but befo' she done took off her t'ings she took anodder one out er her muff. 'Fo' she took her hat off she opened it en read it. She dropped de envelope on de floor. I saw it. Hit wa'n't addressed to her, hit was somebody else's letter.' The negro girl paused irresolutely for a moment.

"Well?" queried Dorcas.

"Hit was fo' 'Mrs. Alice V. Bourne, Gotham Theater.'"

"'Alice V. Bourne'!" Dorcas jumped to her feet.

"Yessum." Emiline's tongue ran on excitedly. "Miss Paget, she was took wid de queerest fit yo' ebber see arter she done read it. She lay back en screeched en laughed. She got clear hystericky. Den, all of er sudden, she started to fire questions at me 'bout little Julie Bourne en Mrs. Bourne, en where dey lived en where dey come fr'm. I didn't know nuffin' but where dey lived. I went up once to Harlem wid Mrs. Bourne to help her bring some stuff ob Miss Julie's to er."

"Where did she get the letter?" asked Dorcas.

"Yo' kin search me," answered Emiline briskly. "Dat 'oman 'ould steal er murder er any ol' t'ing."

There was a long silence. Emiline rose to go.

"Mis' Wentworth," she asked hesitatingly, "ef yo' hear ob er good place, would yo' send fo' me? Jason, he knows where to fin' me anytime." She paused irresolutely. "You don' want a nurse fo' de little blind boy, I reckon. I'se er born nurse. I like it!"

"I don't know yet, Emiline, what plans I can make, or what will be done with Robin; but I'll try to find some work for you."

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Irony of Fate.

Wentworth locked himself in the library one Saturday morning. Oswald, with quiet insistence, had continued the demand that he break away, go home, and begin work on another play.

"Business can be carried along without you," was his daily assurance. "'The House of Esterbrook' is good for another season, perhaps for more than one, and we ought to look ahead. I am asked every day if you are writing another play. You ought to strike while the iron is hot. The luck we are having should be an inspiration to you."

The Waverly Place house was perfectly still. Enoch seated himself before the desk, cleared off the blotter, laid out a heap of copy paper, filled the ink-well, and adjusted a new pen. He leaned his head upon his hand for a few minutes, and his listless eyes fell upon a calendar. He discovered that it bore the dates of March instead of April. He tore off the record of weeks which had passed and dropped it into the waste basket. The pen rested listlessly between his fingers. When he tried to write with it the ink had dried. He did not dip it in the bottle again. A trail of sleepless days and nights lay behind him—he felt as if his brain had drowsed at its post.

He picked up a rubber band, twisted it about his fingers, then pulled it thin till it suddenly snapped in two. He shook himself as if in a strenuous effort to wake up. For days he had been evolving what seemed like a virile plot for a play. He tramped the streets to do his thinking and planned the scenario from beginning to end. The night before he had locked himself in his office at the Gotham and in a frenzy of haste shaped out each scene on his typewriter.

The manuscript lay at his elbow. He read it through. Suddenly he realized that the stuff fell short, of what he could not decide. It lacked reality. He compared it with Merry's drama. The story in that rose up out of the paper, each character a living, breathing man or woman. This story was dead, absolutely dead. He lifted the sheets and deliberately tore them across, gritting his teeth while the paper zipped, as a man does when he is in pain.

He picked up a letter which lay beside him on the desk. It was addressed in Merry's irregular writing. There was nothing inside the envelope but a check for an amount in five figures. Wentworth glanced at it, then tore it across. He had sent the check to the actor without a word; it represented the entire royalties on the "House of Esterbrook." The mail brought it back to him as it had gone. A small clock ticked out the time on top of the desk. He remembered it was a Christmas gift from Merry. The ceaseless round of its second-hand fascinated him.

"It would be great if one could work as that ridiculous needle does," he thought. "It is such a lifelike thing. It goes on with a regularity that feazes a man, never pausing day or night, never dropping out or balking as we humans do when the brain goes numb. I wonder," Enoch loafed back in his chair, "I wonder if it is too late to come back. It does not seem possible that a man could undergo a physical change in a few months while he is still hale and hearty. They say such a thing does come, though—quick as scat, when your arteries harden, or something of that sort happens. I'm forty-two. A man isn't old at forty-two, and yet—I feel old today. I suppose," he stared steadily at the face of the little clock as if it were a human countenance, "I suppose this is part of the scheme they call retribution."

"Business as usual" is a great motto, but hard to live up to if everyone is filled with fear. Each should do his part to keep up trade.

Once in a blue moon you run across a man who has an idea but doesn't know what to do with it.

DEMOCRATS HAVE EIGHTEEN,

Reduced Majority In House of Representatives Faces Wilson.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Latest returns from Tuesday's elections indicate that the Democratic majority in the House of Representatives for the sixty-fourth Congress will be reduced to eighteen. The probable Democratic majority in the Senate will be fourteen.

Three of the six states that voted Tuesday on the question of ousting saloons decided to retain bar rooms while the other three on latest returns last night apparently went dry.

Ohio, California, and Washington voted in favor of retaining saloons. Arizona, apparently voted dry, women voters contributing materially. Colorado and Oregon on incomplete and unofficial returns show slight leads in favor of ousting saloons.

Shackleton knows. He is taking no risks. He chooses Bovril because the food he takes must yield every ounce of nourishment to his men.

GERMAN TROOPS RETREAT FROM IMPORTANT POSITION

Efforts of Enemy to Smash Through the Allied Line For Channel Ports Have All Been Repulsed—Kaiser Himself Has Taken Command of Operations and German Disaster Is Imminent, Says Standard.

LONDON, Nov. 6. — The renewed attempt of the heavily reinforced German forces in Belgium to smash through the Franco-British line for the French channel ports has been stoutly met by a vigorous counter offensive in the neighborhood of Ypres by the augmented army of the allies.

It is asserted in the French official report that the allies have made slight progress to the east of Nieuport, and that the German onslaughts from Dixmude to the Lys are decreasing in energy. Redoubled German activity, however, is reported in the centre, the French being there subjected to violent bombardment of many hours' duration, while on the allies' right the situation remains deadlocked.

A report from Havre says that the German troops were signally defeated in a night attack south of Dixmude, being driven into a retreat wherein they were compelled to surrender the important strategic position at the Village of Bixschoote. The Belgian War Office is authority for the statement.

According to The Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent, the inhabitants of Ostend have been ordered to take to their cellars with five days' provisions.

More than 3,000 Belgian conscripts belonging to the class of 1914 have escaped from the territory occupied by the Germans at the risk of being shot and joined the colors here. King Albert sent an equerry to compliment the youths.

The Standard has the following despatch from Berlin, dated Nov. 1: The Kaiser has addressed a fresh manifesto to his troops, telling them that he is now on the way to take over personal direction of the operations on the Lys, and assuring them that very little more effort is now required to carry them through victoriously to Calais.

Public opinion is not so sure of this, for, despite the rigors of the censorship, the news is trickling through of enormous losses sustained. Fears are expressed whether the German forces are strong enough to stand many more weeks of such frightful slaughter. The Frankfurter Zeitung publicly admits that the allies are proving a tough nut, but says that the splendid spirit of the Germans will pull them through in the end.

The Standard adds that whenever the Kaiser has taken over personal command of the troops a German disaster has invariably followed.

BIG FORCE WAITING.

Turks Have 90,000 Men To Meet Advancing Russians.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 6.—A Turkish army, 90,000 strong, consisting of the 9th 10th and 11th army corps, is massed along the Caucasian frontier, according to The Novoe Vremya. Many villages have been occupied by the outposts of this army.

The Turkish army, The Novoe Vremya continues, would consist under normal conditions of eighty battalions of infantry, sixty batteries of artillery, containing 230 guns, and forty squadrons of regular cavalry, but to it has been added fifty regiments of Kurd cavalry, amounting to 20,000 men.

Russia's sudden and energetic advance into Turkey is believed in Petrograd to have been meant to disband and overawe the Kurd tribes, who are little interested in the success of Turkish arms, and are more concerned in the safety of their own villages. Among the towns occupied by the Russians is Akhty, an important junction of the highways to the upper Euphrates river.

It is rumored in Petrograd that Gen. Sanders Pasha will assume command of the Turkish troops on the Caucasian front.

The following communication of the General Staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus was made public here last night:

"Concerning the operations during the last twenty-four hours, there is nothing important to report.

"Our troops are vigorously clearing the enemy's territory, which is occupied by small bands, the remnant of the Turkish vanguards defeated during the last few days.

"One of our columns has defeated the Turks near Bazygan, routing them and capturing the town. The Turks, in their flight, threw away their arms and scattered to the villages in the neighborhood.

"Our cavalry attacked to the east of Dyaden three Kurd regiments supported by infantry, and threw them back."

Army Aviator Killed.

ALDERSHOT, Eng., Nov. 6.—Aviator Busk of the aircraft staff was burned to death in midair yesterday when the biplane which he was testing caught fire.

While about 1,000 feet above the ground the biplane suddenly burst into flames. Busk tried to descend by gliding. He continued this for nearly a mile, the aircraft blazing furiously. The aviator was burned to death before the machine struck the ground.

More War Prisoners.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 6. — There is now a regular village at Fort Henry, 37 more prisoners of war having been brought to Kingston from Montreal, making the total enrollment 260. The men are putting in the most of their time at soccer football and have of late given their guards no trouble.

Lieut. Murray Killed.

MAY GIVE UP PROVINCE

Germans Virtually Forced to Abandon East Prussia

Unless He Wishes To Leave the Road to Berlin Open to Victorious Russians, the Kaiser Will Have to Let Go His Own Kingdom and Capital —Hopes of Western Allies Are Now Fixed on the East.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Petrograd correspondent of The London Morning Post, referring to the retreat of the Germans from Russian Poland, says the obstinate resistance of the enemy has been finally broken.

"It seems to me," he adds, "the Germans have now the bitter choice between abandoning East Prussia to insure a strong defence of the direct route to Berlin or of endeavoring to hold everything at the risk of losing all. Their losses are appalling, both in men and guns and stores, while their strategy has hitherto lacked on this side both science and imagination. Of their tactics it is impossible to speak without much more information than reaches the outside world, but their men have fought with frenzied fury, alternating often with causeless panic.

"The German line of three hundred miles, which a couple of days ago was compelled to assume the defensive everywhere, has now begun to retreat. At most of the points the retreat was most marked exactly at the point where the highest vital interests of the Germans required continued defence—namely, their right flank — where alone was there any chance of assisting their armies beaten in Poland. The Russians here have carried their success farthest now and hold Bialla and Lyk once more in German territory, thereby cutting off all connection between the East Prussian front and the retreating armies now nearing the frontiers of Poland. The Russians have taken Bakalarzhevo, the point selected for tactical reasons by the Germans for their concentrated and stubborn attacks. A large quantity of arms and ammunition was captured here, many of the captured rifles being left by the enemy stacked in their racks. On the great Vistula front the retreat is progressing at an increasing rate, and the Germans now are approaching the political frontiers.

"The whole country covered by the German advance and the German retreat is laid waste. Villages have been burned, and the roads, except a few causeway roads which have been carefully preserved, are ruined. All the bridges are down, and in whole forests nothing is left but smoking stumps. The area of this iniquitous devastation is half the total of the territory of Poland.

"Austrian deserters who are coming in increasing numbers report serious differences between the Germanic allies, and especially emphasize the collossal losses of the Germans.

"During the next couple of days we shall anxiously await news whether the victorious Russians have succeeded in rushing the Germans, whose flight accelerates as they approach the frontiers, past the entrenched positions along the River Warthe."

Reports from Petrograd received here in London show that on the frontier in the east more wide-sweeping movements are being made by the opposing armies. The Russians, from all reports, have driven back the German centre to the River Warthe, in Ruscian Poland, have held back a German offensive movement from East Prussia, and now are straightening out the line for a more vigorous offensive against the Austrians, who have been trying to beat their left wing in Galicia.

It is to the battles in these regions that the British military men now are looking, for they declare that if the Russians can keep up their successful fighting against the Austrians and Germans, relief will come to the allied armies in the west because of the necessity for a withdrawal of German army corps from France and Belgium to protect Silesia and East Prussia.

Orders have been received by the military authorities at Kingston to organize a new battery for overseas duty with the second contingent. It will be composed of 145 men, 126 horses and four 18-pounder guns.

HAD WIRELESS IN ROOM.

Employe of Dominion Government at Halifax Suspected of Being Spy.

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Arthur Lauf, an employe of the Government at Halifax, has been arrested on suspicion as a German spy, and is being detained by the military authori[illegible] Lauf was employed as an interpreter in the Immigration Department. He was arrested shortly after the war broke out, but was released on producing his naturalization papers. He was arrested again as a suspected spy, his rooms were searched and a complete wireless outfit was found. He will likely be interned as a prisoner until the war is over. He has been dismissed from the service.

The Government is working at the present time on plans for the best method of handling the Germans and Austrians who will be interned as a result of the registration which is now progressing. The proposal which has met with the most favor, and which will likely be adopted, is that of utilizing their labor in the Federal and Provincial parks, cutting wood and clearing brush.

BRITAIN DECLARES WAR.

Official Statement of Situation Is Issued By Foreign Office.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—All uncertainty regarding Turkey's position was ended yesterday. The Foreign Office officially announced that Great Britain has declared war on Turkey, and it is said that this action will immediately be followed by France, Russia, Servia, Montenegro, and possibly by Belgium and Japan.

A despatch from Bordeaux to the Havas Agency says that General Mehmed Cherif Pasha, the leader of the Opposition in Turkey, whose sympathies with France are well known, has telegraphed to President Poincare and the Council of Ministers his indignation at the step taken by Turkey, which, he declares, is its death sentence.

France Also.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—The French Government last night declared that "a state of war exists between France and Turkey," according to the Bordeaux correspondent of the Havas Agency.

CHILD FOUGHT BURGLAR.

Thirteen-Year-Old's Plucky Action Scared Thug Away.

BRAMPTON, Nov. 6.—Burglary is rampant in Brampton, three residences having been entered this week. About midnight Wednesday the home of Charles Booth, Main street south, was invaded. Mr. Booth is only at home during the week-end, and the only occupants of the house were Mrs. Booth, her 13-year-old daughter Jessie, and Mrs. Booth's father, Henry Schooley. Mrs. Booth was awakened by a man standing by her bedside. When asked what he wanted a handkerchief was stuffed in her mouth, but her daughter Jessie, who was in another bed, grappled with the burglar and called for her grandfather. Managing to free one arm, the burglar struck the little girl in the face and broke away. Mr. Schooley rushed to telephone the police but found the wires cut and the burglar escaped. In his haste to get away the burglar left a 22-calibre revolver behind him.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Germans Now Hold Only Bridge Head To Left of Yser.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—The French War Office yesterday evening made public the following official communication:

"There is no important modification in the situation to report.

"In the north we have made slight progress toward Messines.

"To the east artillery duels at several points of the front have taken place without any great results, notably at the west of Lens, between the Somme and the Ancre, in Argonne and in the Forest of Apremont."

The French War Office yesterday afternoon issued one of the most cheering statements that has been received in some time, saying:

"On our left wing to the north, the situation shows no change as compared to yesterday. The enemy has drawn back on the right bank of the Yser. We have recaptured Lombaertzyde. The Germans occupy the left bank of the Yser, nothing more than the head of a bridge half way between Dixmude and Nieuport. They have abandoned, in addition to prisoners and wounded men, a considerable quantity of war material, including artillery, which was held immovable by the mud.

"Between Dixmude and the Lys the fighting has continued with alternate advances and withdrawals, but with the general result that the allied forces have made preceptible progress.

"Between the Lys and the region of Arras there has been cannonading and minor engagements.

"Between the region of Arras and the Oise we have made an advance to the east of Le Quesney-en-Santerre as far as the Heights of Parvillers.

"On the centre, the German attack, which developed on the right bank of the Aisne in the region of Vailley, and which resulted in our losing the first slopes to the north of Vailley and to the north of Craonne, was not continued yesterday. A counter attack by our forces brought again into our possession a portion of the lost ground.

"A violent cannonading and spirited German attacks were repulsed on the heights of the Highway des Dames and in the vicinity of Rheims. There has been no happenings of importance between Rheims and the Meuse, nor in the Woevre district."

One-half the world may not know how the other half lives, but it spends a lot of time trying to find out.

Love of money is never platonic.

Deseronto Notes

(From The Post)

A petition is being circulated with a view to the submission of the local option by-law in Picton at the January elections.

Mr. W. H. Heaney, who has lived in Deseronto all his life, and an employee of the Rathbun Company for many years, left for Trenton yesterday morning. We understand Mr. David Nealon, sub-chief, will succeed Mr. Heaney as chief of the Deseronto fire brigade.

Three or four citizens were discussing the municipal situation one evening last week, and it was decidedly refreshing to see the earnestness with which they did so. Three of them were quite large property owners, and all were united in the opinion that now was the proper time to select the city fathers for the year 1915. If some of the men whose names were suggested will accept nomination Deseronto is pretty sure to have next year one of the strongest councils in its history.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Brown have received word that their nephew, Lieut. Hubert Brown, of the Royal Irish Regiment, had joined the Nigerian Regiment a few months ago. They had been engaged in fighting on the borders of German territory, in Africa, and he had been severely wounded in the thigh. They were all taken prisoners, and he has since died of his wounds. He was beloved by all. His eldest brother was given command of a destroyer at the outbreak of the war, and was stationed off the south coast of England. In a letter received a few days ago Commander Brown and his crew had captured a German vessel with a cargo of petroleum for the German ships, and took their prize into a British port.

SUSPECT GERMANS OF ANOTHER TRICK

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Admiralty announces that the German steamer Ophelia, which was seized while she was flying the Red Cross flag, and against which action Germany protested, is being detained because her name had not been noted to England as that of a hospital ship in accordance with the Hague Convention. The Admiralty adds that at the time of the seizure of the Ophelia she was behaving in a manner inconsistent with the duties of a hospital ship, and the vessel will be brought before a prize court.

Belgian guns on the Yser have fired as many as a thousand shells each, and the Germans attacking them have fired as many as ten thousand in a day. There must by this time be enough iron in the ground at the seat of war to keep a good-sized foundry working overtime.

Says We Are Surely War Mad

Every Family Seems to Have Some at the Front or Going With Next Contingent

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Alisteir Crowley of England, who modestly confesses to having played in his time more parts than most men—certainly more than the seven of Shakespeare's Jacques—arrived at the Wolcott yesterday. Some of Mr. Crowley's roles have been explorer, story writer, essayist, publicist, editor, occultist, astrologer, seer and poet.

It was in the triple roles of occultist, astrologer, and seer that Mr. Crowley was first interviewed yesterday. One had a faint remembrance of having read something about a prediction Mr. Crowley had made. In the first place, a red collar on the overcoat of a tall man in a hotel lobby had aroused interest. Next, when the overcoat was opened and disclosed a brilliant red waistband, interest was quickened. In the third place, when the stranger took out his watch and in the act revealed that its charms was a huge red-enameled Maltese cross matching a smaller design in the setting of a ring worn on the thumb, he became a marked man.

Mr. Crowley does not affect the velveteen jacket which some visiting poets have made a bade. Except for the scarlet waistcoat his attire yesterday was the usual lounge suit, with soft collar. Nor is his hair of the length some poets and musicians hold spells inspiration. Mr. Crowley admitted that he was deeply interested in astrology.

"It is a fact," he said, as if it were a casual happening, "that five years ago last May I did an evocation to the visible appearance of the spirit of Mars. One of my assistants was a naval officer high at the Admiralty. He asked whether there would be wars, and the answer was that there would be two wars in five years, the responsible party in the first case being Turkey, and in the second Germany. If you wish to know the name of the naval officer, it was Commander Marston, R.N.

"I should say that astrology is coming well out of the war, which is the best advertisement astrology ever had. As for Mme. Thebes and her predictions, I think one goes too far in attempting to get accurate details of a future happening, such as the Kaiser's death. As a matter of fact, I think we can tell a little that is absolutely reliable, but the rest is guesswork. In the case of the prophecy of the two wars, that was a case of the definite answer of the spirit.

"But I can tell you what astrologers generally are saying about the war. The main thing is that in both this quarter of the year and the net quarter there seems to be great danger of revolutions all over Europe especially at Christmas time, and that the result of the war will undoubtedly be bad for Germany."

"And how long", he was asked, "do astrologers think the war will last?"

"The original prophecy I made was that it would be decided in three months from the start. By 'decided' I meant that it would become obvious whether Germany could stand up to her enemies or not, but that it would take a long while, of course, to work the thing out. It is now a process of attrition."

General Session S. S. Convention

Large Attendance at the Annual Convention of Ontario Association at Kingston--Evening Session

KINGSTON Nov. 5.—The opening of the general session of the Ontario Sunday School Association Convention took place in Sydenham Street Methodist Church yesterday afternoon at 1.30 and the afternoon was devoted to the receiving of reports. There are about 300 delegates in the city and it was expected that by this afternoon the number would be augmented by 100 more.

The president, Mr. Wm. Hamilton, was in the chair and he, in his address reviewed the work of the past year. On a whole the work has been carried on in a most satisfactory manner. Before being elected to the president's chair, Mr. Hamilton was the chairman of the Provincial Executive Committees, and read a report on their work.

A very interesting report was that of Miss Bertha Laine on "The Elementary Division and Home Department." A summarization of the work in this department was given. It showed that the number of cradle rolls in the province had increased from 1,071 to 1,344 and the membership from 29,713 to 37,303, which was considered a very good gain and was enthusiastically received. A standard of efficiency in the home department has been prepared and much success has been experienced by the movement.

Preston G. Orwig, contributed a report on "The Secondary Division And Adult Class," and it was shown that the County of Frontenac had fallen back from the good standing of a few years ago. A total of 1,716 adult Bible classes have been organized in the province, and the enrollment of these exceeds 42,000, about sixty per cent. of these being women.

EVENING SESSION

The opening number on the program for the evening session was a solo by Mr. J. R. Bell which was contributed in excellent voice.

Rev. S. D. Dinnick, Toronto, spoke for a few minutes on "Creating a Habit." He is the superintendent of the Pocket Testament League of Canada and he spoke very clearly on the values and benefits of the League and the necessity of carrying the Testament at all times.

Mrs. H. M. Leyda addressed the gathering on "Meeting the Need of the Child," and gave a sketch of Sunday school work that is carried on during the child's life.

The session was brought to a close with a splendid address on the "Adult and the Sunday School" by Rev. P. K. Dayfoot, M.A., Toronto, General Secretary of Baptist Sunday Schools. He made an appeal to the convention for the necessity of bringing in more males in the adult classes. The work of the different denominations in the Sunday school work has been very successful but he hoped that the members would not stop at their present achievements but would rise to the occasion and ever increase their attendance. He showed where in some instances too little attention had been given to the development of the Sunday School.

Vol. 48 BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1914. No. 154

CANADA'S DUTY AS ONE OF BRITAIN'S COLONIES

By Charles W. Gordon D. D.
(Ralph Connor)

There is no place for pessimism on the part of any Britisher in this war. The outcome is assured—we shall win, and win completely. The gage of the German Kaiser and of his Prussian Junkertum, hurled in the teeth of Christian civilization, has been taken up, and the fight will go on until Democracy, Liberty and Law among the nations will triumph. But those cherry optimists who foresee a speedy end to this strife, and who picture a joyous jaunt unter den Linden for the Allies, can hardly be regarded as harmless lunatics, for harmless they are not. The sooner Canada realizes that this war is a stern serious business and that it will grow in desperation as the long weary months drag their terrible length through winter and perhaps through summer and through winter again the better it will be.

Let us make no mistake. No sudden rage, no fluke of diplomacy, nor Austria's greedy ambition leaping at the chance of war afforded by the wicked act of a mad Servian student—not these things nor things like these have caused Germany to plunge into this war. Never did a nation more deliberately take a proposed and long planned step. For forty years Germany has cherished ambitions, has fed upon philosophies, has extended her commerce, has built up her industries, has established her fortresses, has perfected her siege guns, has built her navy has constructed her aerial fleet, has hoarded her gold, has drilled her eight million soldiers, has fired her young men with lust for the Satanic glory of war with one purpose and one purpose only—that she might war in a supreme effort after world power, incidental to which—the crushing of France to the position of Portugal among the European nations, the absortion of small countries like Belgium Holland and Denmark, and the extermination of hated Britain.

Upon this issue Germany stakes her existence, that Europe may be Germanized and a World Empire established greater than the world has ever seen, with colonies on every sea, built upon highly scienced brute force that knows no law but that of might and derides the Christian virtues as contemptible and utterly unworthy of the superman.

For this enterprise the Kaiser believes himself God anointed and God appointed. With him today stands the haughty aristocracy of Prussia and all the war caste of Germany, and behind them, united in a mad and deluded enthusiasm, stand as yet the German people to a man.

Victory for the Allies, therefore, means the dethronement of the Kaiser and his military brood, the annihilation of the war caste and the smashing of the war machine. Nothing short of this will be accepted as victory for any of the allied nations. Nothing less than this would be worth fighting for.

But what does this mean? It means that the Kaiser will hurl into the last deadly fight every German soldier, every German ship and gun and every German dollar; for, while it is true that Germany will survive this war, the Kaiser and his caste of war worshippers will not. They will be wiped out of existence and they know it. Hence the desperate character of this conflict. Two sets of principles are locked in death grips—Force as an empire builder against the Will of a free people, Justice as an international arbiter as against the Sword of the mighty, international Honor as an eternal obligation rather than as a mere temporary convenience. These things make peace impossible, and these things make the war worth while.

What, then, is Canada's immediate duty? It stands clear as the morning sun above the prairie rim. The Empire stands today for Liberty, Justice, Honor among nations as among men; and Canada stands with the Empire for these. It is no longer a question of colony giving support to the motherland. We have gone far past that. It is a question of whether Canada shall stand with the free nations who believe in government by free choice, justice among nations, honor as an eternal obligation, and with her last man and her last dollar fight for these things that determine a nation's character and its place in history. I repeat that it is no longer a question of aiding the motherland in a fight for national or Empire existence. Canada is herself a nation with a proud sense of nationhood. Canada's future is involved in this conflict, and with every instinct of her national soul and with every throb of her national life she hates and opposes the spirit, the ideals, the methods for which the German Kaiser with his Prussian Junkertum is now so desperately contending.

And how is Canada to fulfill her obligation as a nation in this world crisis? Our Government has done well, has given a splendid exhibition of efficient dispatch in mobilizing, equipping and transporting to England's shores between 30,000 and 40,000 men in the short space of two months, But it is not, I repeat, a matter of contingents, one, two, or three. Rather must Canada, with calm, deliberate, cleareyed purpose, make resolve that she is committed to this conflict to her last man and her last dollar, not for the Empire's sake alone, but for her own sake and the sake of her national ideals. And when once Canada has clearly conceived it as her obligation to throw her entire national life and resources into this conflict, the problem then becomes a very simple one, namely, one of administration.

If it is clearly understood that every fit Canadian man is pledged to this war, then first let the Government take immediate steps for the enrolment, not of 20,000, but of 100,000 or 200,000 Canadians available for active service. Then from these enrolled men let contingents be selected for immediate training and sent on to the front as soon as they can be equipped and fitted and as they may be needed.

I am no pessimist, but I confess that long, swaying line of men, locked in deadly embrace on the French frontier, is ominous of possible disaster; these daring raids of German submarines are suggestive of dangers in a direction where we thought we were invincible. So far as the war has gone well, but after all what signifies the loss of a few hundred thousand men to Germany out of her eight million soldiers, not to speak of the uncalled cultitudes available out of her sixty-five millions of people. And we have yet to hear from Turkey—The possibilities of Islam as an anti-British force are faint it is true, but they are as yet unexplored. Then there is Italy. A sudden great disaster on the line of battle, which is by no means outside the fortune of war, a chance and fatal raid upon our fleet, an unforseen combination of crushing calamities, all of which lie within the possibilities in war, much change in one week the hue of our horizon. What then? It is the commonplace of war that battles are lost before they are fought. Let Canada prepare, eagerly, swiftly, surely prepare today, that in the last deadly crisis of the desperate fight she may be able to throw the weight of her young might upon the wavering line of battle and help to hurl the enemy backward in defeat. The final touch may be Canada's. There is no place for hysteria, but there is place for haste. Not a contingent but the whole nation will fulfil Canada's obligation; and not when the cry comes for help but now should the preparation be made.

With a clear conscience and a steadfact heart we can invoke the God, not of battles, but the God of Righteousness and Truth to our aid, but only after we have made our full preparation; and if by God's good hand our men should come when there was desperate need for our men and we were found unready, not even God could help us then. The which may God Forbid.

German Spy Breaks Down And Confesses

Lady Admits a Commission to Furnish English Information to Germany

AN EX-NAVAL LIEUTENANT

Says He Had Orders to Send News of the Fleet, But not to do Any Spying

LONDON, Nov. 5.—Karl Hans Lody alias Charles A. Inglis, charged with espionage and on trial for his life before a court-martial under the presidency of Lord Cheylesmore, entered the witness box in the Middlesex Guildhall yesterday afternoon as soon as the proecution had closed its case

Lody gave an outline of his mission to England. He said that formerly he was a senior lieutenant in the German navy, but later he was transferred to the reserve. He obtained an appointment as tourist agent for the Hamburg-American Line. Incidentally, he said, he was well known in New York society. When in Berlin last July, Lody said, he received instructions from a superior naval officer whose name he was pledged not to reveal. His instructions were to select a route to New York. He was not to start for America, but was to remain in England until the first naval encounter was fought between Germany and England, and give information regarding the actual losses to the British fleet. He was then to proceed to New York.

Lody said also that he had been instructed to keep track on the movements of the British fleet, but that he had been warned not to do any spying.

Replying to counsel he admitted that such instructions caused his uneasiness, but he was assured that he was sufficiently American in appearance to disarm suspicion.

Lody remarked in the course of his recital that he had married two years ago an American woman of German descent. This matrimonial venture, however, was a failure, and the marriage was dissolved, his father-in-law paying him $10,000 "to compensate me for my financial losses."

The prisoner explained that he told the man who gave him his instructions in Berlin that he could not travel without the necessary document. This official had replied that he must travel as an American; and, Lody added, "in consequence of that I received an American passport."

Lody, who wept once or twice while teestifying, said that it was his intention when he married to become an American citizen. He claimed membership in several New York societies, such as the Japan, Peace and Philippine societies. Last summer he served on Emperor William's yacht, the Meteor.

Owing to the character of the evidence given yesterday the public was excluded from the court room. The trial was adjourned until tomorrow.

There was a sensational incident in the course of Lody's examination. A man who throughout the trial had occupied a seat on one of the War Office benches, and who was supposed to be connected with this branch of the Government was suddenly pounced upon by detectives and removed from the building under a military escort.

Six Kinds of Love

CHARLOTTE P. GILMAN

According to Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, the noted writer and feminist, there are six kinds of love. She enumerates them in this order: Gratitude for benefits received; friendship, based on sympathy; admiration which represents a sort of adoration or worship; usage, including love of home and country, and sex attraction, which merges into the greatest of all loves, and benevolence, which desires to serve and do good.

SEDITION PREACHED BY GERMAN PAPERS

OTTAWA, Nov. 5.—If the Western German papers which have been publishing pro-German articles and articles with a seditious tinge continue this policy they will be suppressed by the Government. The military authorities in Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton have been given instructions to notify any papers in their districts that the publication of any articles tending to incite against Great Britain will be followed by suppression. There has been considerable complaint as to the nature of the matter in several papers and it was claimed it was tending to keep the Germans and Austrians in a state of unrest. The Government hesitated about taking such summary action until it was seen it was inmerative. The action of the Government is not intended to reflect on the several German papers which have been very loyal in their attitude since the war broke out.

NEW SHOES

(By Walt Mason)

It's hard to seem quite dignified, when wearing shoes fresh from the store; your feet feel hot, as though just fried, and all the cords and tendons sore. I'm wearing now new Number Twelves; the dealer said, when them he sold from off his overburdened shelves. "These shoes are worth their weight in gold. From lowest basement to the roof, I do not keep a shoe in stock that does not fit the human hoof, and make you happy when you walk." The birds are singing on the boughs, their songs, no doubt, are pure and sweet and soulful as the law allows, but I can only think of feet. The trees are clothed in red and gold, they glimmer in the gentle heat, they whisper when the nights are cold, but I can only think of feet. The busy squirrels gather nuts, preparing for the time of sleet, when snow shall hide the highway's ruts but I can think of naught but feet. The pastor preaches well and long, his sermon is a perfect treat, the choir sends up a throbbing song, but all my thoughts are still of feet. And when my guests I entertain, and when I sit me down to eat, I'm meditating on the pain that teeters through my swollen feet. And there are moments when I feel I'd like to be a charger fleet, and have a smith takes shoes of steel, and nail the blamed things on my feet.

AGED MAN FOUND IN GAS-FILLED ROOM

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—William Tremeer Oke, aged 62 years, was found asphyxiated in bed to-day at his room at 4 Oxley street. The gas jet was fully turned on, the room was filled with gas fumes. The discovery was made by the landlord, who forced the door in of the room when he received no response to his calls and knocks. The police state that the jet was very loose. The body has been removed to the morgue and an inquest is likely.

A German Mother's Letter

She Tells a French Prisoner's Mother of His Last Days

Under the caption, "We Barbarians" the Frankfurter Zeitung of September 20 publishes, as incompatible with the charges of cruelty and barbarity made against Germany by her enemies, the following letter written by a German mother to a French mother, whose son died while a prisoner of war in Germany:

"Dear Lady.—A mother who, even as did you, saw her son march away into the war for the defence of his Fatherland, a German mother, is writing this to you.

"On Friday, August 28, a great number of wounded French soldiers arrived here, of whom your son, Lucien Paul, was one. He had a severe wound in the head. He was taken tenderly to the hospital of the Sisters of Holy St. Vincent de Paul, where he was nursed with every care possible. One of our clergymen, Mgr. Hilpisch, who visited the wounded, was notified by the sisters that Herr Paul wished to make his confession. The monsignor found him, as he told me, very weak. Your dear son spoke with difficulty. He obtained absolution. As there seemed to be no immediate danger, the priest wanted to administer the Holy Communion and extreme unction on the following day, in order not to fatigue your son too much. But at 3 o'clock a cramp seized your son, and at 4.30 he died without having regained consciousness. His brain had been badly injured.

You may rest assured, dear lady, that your beloved son was treated with every care, and that nothing was neglected in efforts to save his young life. That may comfort you a little—you and your husband—in your great sorrow. The thought that a priest was at his side in his last hour, and that he died a holy death will help you bow your head under the hand of the highest Lord of life and death. Your son died as a hero for his fatherland and now rests, it is true, in strange, but in consecrated ground, where he awaits the Resurrection and will meet again with those who now mourn him, never to leave them again.

His funeral took place on Tuesday, Sept. 1, amid the tolling of bells in the Cathedral. He received all military honors. Our two war societies, with their flags draped in black crape, formed the escort of honor. There was a bright blue sky above the open grave, as the three salvos of honor were fired. May he rest in peace!

I thought I might send you, as I do, herewith enclosed, a few twigs of the laurel wreath which the two war societies laid on his grave, as well as several clippings from the local paper. You will see from these how much honor was paid to your dear son when he was carried to his final dwelling place. He rests in the new cemetery of our city. His grave bears the number 1.

Dear lady, I have been told that the sorely wounded young Frenchman wished above all to see his mother again. That wrung my heart so hard that I determined to write to his poor mother at once and to tell her all I could learn about the young soldier. For I, too, dear lady, have an only son who has gone away, following with full enthusiasm, the call of his Kaiser. And since August 22 we have heard no word from him.

This letter is to comfort you a little in your great sorrow, you and your whole family, for the great loss of your dear son who gave up his young life for his fatherland, Accept, dear lady, the assurance of sincerest sympathy of a mother whose heart feels deeply for you.

"This letter," says the Zeitung, "is a document of German culture that can tell the foreign nations how, despite the war that has been forced upon us, Germany can still feel sentiments of deepest humanity. Our army is no band of mercenaries; the flower of our people serve in it. Even as a German mother has felt in this case, so, too, do the sons of such mothers feel—in truth they are neither Huns nor Barbarians!"

Farmers and Canadians generally do not want a general election at this time. The people should bring pressure to bear upon their Members of Parliament and see that the idea is quashed.

It is not too late yet to re-fill the silo settling. If the corn is available it will mean more rought feed for winter, and rough feed is worth money this year to save expensive concentrates.

CANADIAN BOYS SEE WOUNDED WHOM GERMANS MAIMED

OTTAWA Nov. 5.—A letter received in the city from Corporal H. A. Brown, who volunteered for service with the Army Medical Corps, and is at present at Salisbury Plain with the Canadian contingent, gives first hand knowledge of some of the atrocities perpetrated against the enemy by the Germans.

Corporal Brown states that in the march from Plymouth to Salisbury the Canadian troops passed stations where English soldiers who had been wounded at the front were recuperating. Among these, he writes were men who had both hands hacked off by the Germans after being captured. The hands had been severed to make absolutely sure that in future the men would be unable to raise arms against the forces of the Kaiser.

Corporal Brown speaks of many other offences of the Germans against the wounded soldiers but does not give any of them in detail. He also referred to a memorial service he and another Canadian had attended in a little church near Salisbury Plains. It was held in memory of five officers, former members of the church who had been killed at the front. After the service he and his friend had been invited to dinner by one of the members of the congregation. The meal they found was "a real old Canadian one, winding up with excellent apple pie."

ANOTHER ORDER

A Registration Test

The new system of registration by which the Government has arranged to place a check upon the activities of persons of alien enemy nationality in Canada will be put into operation first in Montreal. An order-in-Council has been passed authorizing the establishment of a registration office in Montreal, and upon the extent of which the work of this office develops the Government will base the general scheme of internment. It is expected that the establishment of this bureau will after a few days give a fairly accurate idea of the scale upon which measures for internment must be taken. Silas H. Carpenter, formerly chief of detectives in Montreal, and latterly a commissioner of the police in connection with the Department of the Interior, has been placed in charge of the office.

As soon as a report from the Montreal office is in the hands of the Government arrangements will be made for the opening of other bureaus and for the internment of dangerous or indigent aliens of enemy nationality. It is intended to establish bureaus at Sydney, N.S., where there is a large foreign population; Ottawa, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary and Edmonton, and one later in British Columbia. The Government has not been informed as to whether or not the conditions in Toronto call for the establishment of a bureau there.

The control and direction of the internment will be placed in the hands of a single military officer who will have general charge over the whole system. General Sir W. D. Otter, formerly inspector-general, who was in Ottawa on Saturday, will probably be selected for this work if he is willing to undertake it.

A WARNING TO CANADIANS

An order-in-council has been issued fixing penalties for trading with the enemy. Any person who during the present war trades or has since August 4 traded with the enemy will on summary conviction be liable to imprisonment, with or without hard labor for a term not exceeding twelve months, or to a fine not exceeding $2,000, or to both. On conviction or indictment he will be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, or a fine not over $5,000, or to both, and the court may order that any goods or money in respect of which the offence has been committed be forfeited.

When a company has entered into a transaction with the enemy every director, manager, secretary or other officer who is knowingly a party to it is guilty of the offence.

Portable Wireless Wins Priest Fame

Small Pocket Apparatus For Receiving Messages Invented by Italian

MILAN, Nov. 5.—(Special.)—Professor Dominico Argentieri Abruzzi, a priest, whose recent claim to have invented a small portable wireless telegraphy apparatus capable of receiving messages from high-power stations at even 1,250 miles distant has raised a storm of controversy in Italy, today triumphantly demonstrated the genuineness of his invention.

At the British Embassy in Rome, in the presence of a large gathering of public men and scientific experts, including Sir Rennell Rodd, he gave a series of astonishing experiments without bobbins or receiving poles or other stock-in-trade connected with radio-telegraphy.

A simple switch, attached by ordinary domestic electric cord to his pocket apparatus, was what he used for interruption the wireless communications transmitted by London Foreign Office. He also picked up others from Paris and from the war vessels out at sea.

Some of the messages were in cipher and their accuracy has been rigidly verified by French, Russian and Japanese military and naval attaches, who also witnessed the experiments.

How Ottawa Women Are Combining to Ensure Employment For Canadians—A Good Plan

"At a time when the Empire is straining every nerve against the common enemy it is essential that each and every section of the community should stand together. Canada is sending her soldiers to the help of Great Britain, but it must be remembered that scarcely less effective help can be rendered by keeping trade and industries prosperous throughout the Dominion. No one is able to say how the strain of war may affect us. Already there is a prospect of unemployment on a considerable scale during the coming winter.

"There are many ways in which the evil of unemployment may be fought but one way is to keep up the demand for Canadian products in order that Canadian industries may continue in operation. Articles that are being produced in Canada are also being imported annually to the value of $104,639,879. By purchasing only commodities produced in Canada we should largely increase the output of our industries and provide employment for large numbers of workmen. To attain this desirable end it is hoped that, in so far as possible, housewives and others will buy products made in Canada."

Household League

This was the resolution passed at a meeting of several leading Canadian women in Ottawa on Saturday. They met to discuss ways and means whereby the women of Canada could effectively lend their assistance in tiding Canada over the probable stress and trial of the coming winter. Amongst the ladies present were Mrs. T. W. Crothers, wife of the Minister of Labor, Mrs. W. T. Herridge, wife of the moderator of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Adam Shortt, Mrs. Dr. Lyman, Mrs. R. H. Coats, and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, national convener of Household Economics. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Household League of Ottawa.

Official figures relating to the importation of goods produced in Canada were laid before the meeting, and it was found that in certain products $30,237,083 worth of the $104,639,879 imported came from the United States alone. For instance Canada, which is a wheat country herself, imports $268,617 worth of wheat flour from the United States. If Canadian women would see that they purchased Canadian flour only this in itself would be a great help.

Soap is another household commodity which is manufactured in Canada, yet we import $1,227,997 worth a year. 917 men are employed in this industry in Canada, but if our women would purchase only Canadian soap there would be employment for very many more.

It is the same with baking powder. We import $179,180 worth, the amount from the United States being $177,617.

Figures Given

Canada imports blue for washing clothes to the extent of $50,421, biscuits $275,260, buckwheat meal or flour $9,260, corsets $560,034, baskets $126,970, buttons $851,822, candles $98,665, carpet sweepers $16,102, clothes-wringers $50,483, combs $238,516, cotton goods which includes embroideries, clothing, socks, and stockings $27,345,712, canned fruit $823,397, gloves $2,786,788, hair work $218,104, jellies and jams $815,617, Indian corn meal $176,779, lard $1,356,292, milk $22,301, oatmeal and rolled oats $3,526, pickles $105,860, rye flour $19,577, silks $8,877,576, sauces $341,213, paints $1,768,356, sugar candy and confectionery $1,549,867, starch $109,148, woollen goods which includes shirts, stockings and knitted goods as well as tweeds $30,732,271, stoves $1,058,367, hats and caps $793,746, furs $1,373,121, fancy goods $5,010,020, dried apples $16,833, furniture $3,187,789, cocoa $1,046,131, blacking $126,328, brooms, whisks, etc., $697,210; boots and shoes $520,789, aerated waters $34,702.

In the production of these articles of household use there are 1,631 establishments throughout Canada and there are 82,620 employes. It would stimulate industry and it would mean employment for more if Canadian men and women would insist upon receiving Canadian goods when they are making purchases.

The shutting off of imports from Continental Europe into Canada, due to the war, gives many home industries an unexampled opportunity for immense and immediate development.

Canada will prosper at the expense of Continental Europe. This is not a time in Canada for repining on the part of the business man. We must be careful, even frugal, but we must also be bold.

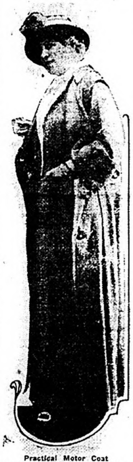
USE FAT FOR COOKING

That From Fowls Excellent Kitchen Substitute For Butter

No cooking fat is really cheap except by comparison with the very expensive butter product. But if care is used in saving all bits of fat from meat they can be utilized in various ways. A good fat chicken stewed will serve for several meals and is not an expensive meat. The large pieces of fat around the organs of the fowl should be tried out carefully in a slow oven so the odor will pass up the chimney instead of out into the kitchen. This fat strained and mixed with an equal amount of fat or lard makes a delicious firm fat for frying. The pure chicken fat may be used for cookies. It is used in the same manner as butter and makes a rich crisp cookie. Beef suet may be tried out in the same way and mixed with lard or vegetable fat to take away the tallow-like consistency. These mixed fats are not only much better than pure lard for frying, but cheaper, and pieces can be utilized which would otherwise be thrown away.

When the fat used for deep-fat frying becomes rancid or too dark to use, it should be set away for soap making. All pieces of salt pork or trimmings from ham should be added to this soap fat. In the spring it should be thoroughly washed to remove the salt and sediment, and then made into soap. The cost of this soap is only ten cents, or the price of a can of lye. One can of lye to 5½ pounds fat is the right proportion and it can be easily made by carefully following the directions on any lye can. If care is taken to save every tablespoon of fat, enough can be collected to keep the kitchen supplied with a good hard home-made dishwashing soap.



Practical Motor Coat

The woman who motors much has found that the motor coat, without any furbelows and little trimming, is the kind that she takes most comfort in.

A long coat of heavy raw silk musses less than of any other material, and gray or tan, the colors that show dust least, are the best colors to choose in a coat of this kind.

The one pictured is of tan cotton ratine, with buttons of bone, capacious pockets and a decided air of comfort and elegance.

Making Screwnails Stick

Where screws are driven into soft wood and subjected to considerable strain, they are very likely to work loose, and it is often very difficult to make them hold. In such cases the use of glue is profitable. Make the glue thick; immerse a stick about half the size of the screw, and put it into the hole; then put in the screw and drive it home as quickly as possible.

Making Steak Tender

To make tough steak tender, put three tablespoonfuls of salad oil and one tablespoonful of vinegar on a large flat dish. Lay the steak on the mixture and let it rest in this way for half an hour. Then turn it over, and let it rest another half hour in the same quantity of vinegar and oil. The toughest steak will yield to the treatment and be nice and tender when served.

Care of Kitchen Dishes

Much of the flavor, delicacy and wholesomeness of food depends upon the proper care of the utensils used in preparing it. Besides, cooking utensils properly cared for last much longer than those which are not. Tin, wood or iron utensils should be as carefully washed and wiped as the diningroom china and glass.

A tiny pinch of carbonate of soda or salt added to milk as soon as it arrives will help to preserve it from turning sour.

TO PRESERVE EGGS

Preserve only absolutely fresh eggs; stale eggs will not keep in any preservative.

Have your preservative ready to receive the fresh eggs as you get them.

If you are in doubt as to the freshness of the eggs, candle them, or see whether they sink when placed in a dish of fresh water. If an egg sinks, it is reasonably fresh.

Do not preserve dirty eggs or eggs that have been washed. Washed eggs will not keep because the shell has been moistened; and dirty eggs will become tainted in flavor.

Do not use the same liquid preservative more than one year.

Infertile eggs are better than fertile eggs for preserving.

Do not leave eggs in the preservative longer than one year.

Rinse the eggs with water after removing them from the preservative.

Eggs that are in good condition when removed from water glass solution will usually remain good for two weeks.

Water glass eggs are practically as good as fresh eggs for all cooking purposes. If it is desired to boil them, prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before placing them in the water. The pores of the shell have been sealed by the water glass solution, and without the pinhole the expanding air within the shell would burst it.

SCALED NEW MOUNTAIN

Two Ladies Climbed Peak in Canadian Rockies Never Before Visited

During a mountain climbing trip in the Southern Selkirks Mrs. E. T. Parsons, of Berkeley, and Miss Lulie Nettleton, of Seattle, traversed much unmapped country and ascended one of the highest peaks of that region.

Leaving Invermere, B.C., the party consisting of five persons, went to the head of Horse Thief Creek, forty miles in. The first ascent of the unmapped peak took nine hours from the base camp. The route lay over the Starbird glacier and embraced steep, icy slopes and interesting rock-work. The party was roped in alpine fashion, as the snow slope below the summit required the greatest care.

On the summit ice axes were planted and the mountain was christened Mount Bruce, in honor of Robert Randolph Bruce, of Wilmer, B.C.

The view from the summit is described as wonderful. Glaciers of stupendous sizes and hundreds of peaks, varying from 9,000 feet altitude to 11,000 or 12,000 feet. Most of them are unnamed and unclimbed. Allowing for corrections, the aneroid reading gave the altitude of Mount Bruce as 11,500 feet.

An attempt was made upon Mount Jumbo from a base camp below the terminal moraine, of the Jumbo glacier. The party came within 500 feet of the summit, the final section of the route lying plainly before them when a storm broke loose and they were obliged to retreat to camp.

Mr. Howard Palmer, the well known mountaineer, has estimated that there are no fewer than 40 peaks in the Selkirk Mountains, whose altitude exceeds 10,000 feet.

WINE MAKES HENS LAY

An Ancient Bit of Knowledge Rediscovered by French Professor

M. Joubert, professor of the Agricultural College at Fontainebleau, announced to the agricultural world some time ago that, after exhaustive experiments, he had at last discovered something that would make hens lay. This something proved to be wine, which was given to the fowls daily, whereupon they laid many more eggs than hens not so treated. Peculiarly enough, it is not a new idea, for the earliest poultry chronicler, "Columella," about the first century, recommended wine for fattening fowls.

Doubtless many aged country folks can remember how common it was in the younger days to give beer to hens to encourage them to lay. Many old-time fanciers made it a practice to give their prize fowls wine-soaked pills just before they were judged to brighten up the birds, so that they would show off their good points. One fancier, not so many years ago, at a show, inadvertently gave his bantams too many of these pills, and the poultry judge had comfortably finished his task of judging the winners ere this fancier's exhibit "came-to."

A Coin With a History

One of the largest coins ever struck, being 23½ inches by 13 inches, has come into the possession of the American Numismatic Society. The piece is copper. It was coined in Sweden in 1659 and had an intrinsic value of about five dollars. As a numismatic rarity it is said to be worth at present at least $500.

It is a rectangular ingot with five large round stamps punched in it. Each corner stamp carries the Swedish crown, with the date. Around the edge is the inscription of Carolus Gustavus X., the reigning king.

This coin was struck at Avesta, Sweden. When fresh from the mint it fell overboard in the harbor of Riga, Russia, from which a dredge brought it up ten years ago. Coins of the kind were called "plate money." Sweden turned them out almost continuously for 110 years. Once 116 bronze cannon were melted down and turned into 86,760 coins; but the main purpose in minting the pieces was to find an outlet for the Swedish copper mines without depreciating the value of the metal.

Potatoes Are Good

Eat potatoes all the year round. In the winter they prevent scurvy. They supply energy in the summer when so much meat is not eaten. Be sure to cook them right. When boiling them, leave them in their jacket. Punch holes in them and put them directly into boiling water. Never eat half-cooked potatoes.

Redpath SUGAR

"I'VE three good reasons, Mother, for buying sugar in these sealed REDPATH Cartons.

"In the first place, I am sure of getting genuine REDPATH. Then, too, I know it is perfectly clean and pure, for it has never been exposed or handled. And the third reason is that this Carton makes the handiest sugar box you ever saw. I just clip off the corner, and the sugar runs out beautifully, as I want it."

"You are lucky, daughter. Ever since I've kept house I have always ordered REDPATH Sugar—and generally got it—but with these original packages you are always sure of the genuine, in perfect condition."

REDPATH Extra Granulated Sugar is put up in 2 and 5 pound Sealed Cartons and in 10, 20, 50 and 100 pound Cloth Bags—a size to suit every home. 79

STORM SIGNALS

Canada's system for storm warnings is quite simple but interesting. These signals are hoisted at specific places called drums and are as follows:

1. For daylight signal a bucket, shaped like a liquid funnel, right side up hoisted on a pole; and for night signal a red light indicates a gale at first from an easterly direction.

2. Same as No. 1 reversed, narrow side up for daylight; for night signal a white light over the red indicates a gale at first from a westerly direction.

3. Same as No. 1 but with a round shaped drum over the funnel for daylight and a red light for night indicates a heavy gale at first from an easterly direction.

4. With funnel over drum for daylight and a white light over red one at night indicates a heavy gale from at first a westerly direction.

INDUSTRIOUS SETTLERS

Doukhobors, Though Sometimes Troublesome, Have Done Well

The Doukhobors, in their comparatively few years of residence in Canada, have prospered amazingly. In the Kootenay valley, near Nelson, and in the Kittle valley, near Grand Forks, the society owns 14,000 acres of the richest fruit land in the world. One of the largest brick-making plants in Canada is that founded by the Doukhobors at Yorkton. Since their immigration from Manitoba to British Columbia they have increased their landholdings, and, notwithstanding their primitive way of living, they make very successful farmers.

The Doukhobors—the name means "led by the spirit"—originated in Russia about 200 years ago. Because they denied man's right to rule man, they were exiled to the Arctic regions. That was the first of many painful pilgrimages. The English Quakers befriended the exiles and in 1899 had the entire sect, 7,500 souls, transported to Canada, where they were offered freedom to practice their religion in their own way. They made rapid progress both as farmers and artisans.

PETER VERIGIN
King of the Doukhobors

There are no idlers in a Doukhobor family, nor a Doukhobor community. Their clothing is characteristic of the sect. The women wear gorgeous colors and fantastic, broad-skirted gowns. The men wear patriarchial blue coats, with flaring pleated skirts. Their are 11,000 Doukhobors in Canada, their leader being Peter Verigin, a former Siberian exile.

THE ESKIMO'S CRUISER

Whole Family and All Possessions Carried in Big Oomiak

The oomiak may be described as the "family boat" of the Eskimo. It is used by the men in whale and walrus hunting and by the whole family during their annual summer trips, which they make to gather the winter store of fish and berries. Then it presents a spectacle not soon forgotten. Crowded to the gunwales with a mixed assortment of men, women, children and dogs together with piles of provisions and hides and all the impediments of camping, it moves slowly along. A sail of white and colored drilling, sewn in alternate strips, or even of patched skins, assists the laboring vessels through the water. Some of the occupants paddle when they feel like it, others scan the shore or watch the water rippling from the stern. If progress is too slow even for the Eskimo the dogs are put ashore a stout line of walrus hide is attached to the bow, and they tow the boat along. Such parties are away all summer, or, rather, during the three months' interval which is not winter—a brief, beautiful season of unending delight.

Fish Worth Catching

What was said to be the largest sturgeon ever caught in the district was taken in a pound net at Old Woman Harbor, six miles from Little Current, Ont., by John Lapointe. From tip of tail to end of nose it measured 7 feet 8 inches. Its circumference behind the fins or flappers was 3 feet 8 inches; its weight 274 pounds. The value of the fish, which was shipped to the New York market was slightly over $200, it containing 51 pounds of caviare, worth $3.25 a pound.

ART OF PLOUGHING BEING FORGOTTEN

Neatness in Every Field Pays—Implement Must be Chosen to Suit Kind of Soil

The art of ploughing, if not lost, has certainly been much neglected during recent years, and very few of the younger generation of farmers have really acquired it. In travelling through the country one sees repeated evidences of the lack of interest in this very important branch of tillage operations. Ploughing, as the first and heaviest operation in preparing the soil to receive the seed, should receive particular attention.

Many attribute the present-day lack of interest in ploughing to the advent of the two-furrow and machine plough. In using two-furrow or machine ploughs, it is necessary first to acquaint oneself with the workings and mechanism of the plough, to be thoroughly familiar with it when in operation; little or no difficulty will then be experienced in obtaining satisfactory results. A plough suitable to the soil should be chosen. If the soil is loamy, and requires to be turned flat, choose a plough with sufficient width of share, a board with ample turning capacity, a beam high enough to permit the use of the jointer when turning under green or coarse manure, and sufficient length of handles to enable the ploughman to control it with ease. If the soil is heavy and inclined to cement, use a narrow plough—one that will set the soil up, give a good harrow edge, and have sufficient press to the board to place the furrow over so that it will not fall back. In using either a single or two-furrow plough, care should be taken to turn over the whole furrow and to leave no part unploughed. Get away from the cut-and-cover plan. Teach the boys that anything worth doing is worth doing well, especially ploughing. The old adage that more grain grows on crooked furrows than on straight ones is a poor incentive, and is not helpful in building up a reputation as a model farmer. Plough the back field as carefully as the field adjoining the road, and see that all fields are ploughed in such a way as to attract attention by their neatness. It is cheap and efficient advertising. Good ploughing pays; if a fair crop can be grown on a field which has been poorly ploughed, a better crop can be grown on a well-ploughed field. —F. C. Nunnick, in "Conservation."

VALUABLE STAMPS

Big Fortunes Tied up in Tiny Pieces of Paper

Huge though the sum of $100,000, which was paid for part of the late Earl of Crawford's collection of stamps, may seem, it is by no means a record. As much as $225,000 has been realized for individual collections, and $122,500 was paid in 1909 for the late Sir William Avery's stamps. One of the enormous specialized collections brought together by Mr. H. Castle, the doyen of British philatelists, brought nearly $150,000 and its value, if disposed of to-day, would be very much higher. As a matter of fact, the $100,000 paid for part of the Earl of Crawford's collection only represents about half the total value, for the late Earl gathered together a mass of rare and valuable stamps which is unique in the history of philatelic enterprise, and must have cost him at least $200,000.

The most valuable collection in the world, however, is that which belongs to a Frenchman, M. Philip La Renotière, who started collecting stamps in the middle of the 'sixties, and who has probably spent nearly $1,500,000 upon his collection of 120,000 stamps. And as an illustration of how stamps increase in value with time, it might be mentioned that M. Renotière purchased outright the collections of two presidents of the Royal Philatelic Society—Sir Samuel Cooper, Bart., whose collection in 1878 he bought for $15,000, and Judge Philbrick, for whose collection, in 1882, he gave $40,000. To-day those two collections would probably bring $100,000 and $250,000 respectively.

ONE DRINK AT A TIME

Peculiar Rules in Vogue at Odd London Drinking Places

At a well known London public house called "Dirty Dick's," it is the rule that only one drink can be served to customers at a single visit. There is another licensed house in London where not only is a similar rule enforced, but where smoking is strictly prohibited.

The proprietors of this licensed house, which is in Artillery Lane, Bishopsgate, frankly state that they reserve to themselves the right to conduct their business upon any system they may deem expedient, and they cannot permit their rules to be broken on any account with impunity. Furthermore, they "respectfully request all persons objecting to the regulations, and who are not willing to act in strict conformity therewith, to kindly transfer their patronage to some other establishment."

For upwards of sixty years they have adopted among others, the following three rules:

"No person or party of persons can be served, under any circumstances, more than once, the rule being that he, she, or they (as the case may be) must have left the house at least half an hour before either are entitled to be served again.

"The quantity served upon any occasion, for consumption on the premises, not to exceed one gill of wine, half a gill of spirits, or one glass of malt liquor, for each person.

"Smoking is strictly prohibited at all times and under all circumstances."

THE ONLY REALLY ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

Heretofore the word "illustrated," as applied to a Bible meant merely a few allegorical 'pictures' of Biblical events taken from any course and "conveniently placed in any part of the book," merely an embellishment inserts, but not directly alongside and explanatory of the verse intended to typify or make plain, but our publishers at an outlay of $50,000 prepared accurate illustrations DESCRIPTIVE of the VERSE which they accompany, and placed directly next to the verse of the scene described—the only place it can be looked for or found quickly, the only place the illustration is a help to you—making this the FIRST and ONLY complete ILLUSTRATED BIBLE.

$50,000 Spent for Illustrations

Both Catholic and Protestant Editions presented under same terms as shown in the free certificates printed elsewhere.

More than 600 beautiful art pictures, by the world's greatest artists, are printed with the type matter, where they at once explain the subjects which they accompany. These magnificent illustrations alone cost $50,000. In addition thereto are full-page plates of the world-famed Tissot collection in colors. These beautiful color engravings are also carefully selected, with the object of further making plain obscure passages in this greatest of all Books. It can truthfully be said that never before have illustrations so vividly portrayed these subjects and embodied in them the spirit of living reality.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The fortified town of Akabah in Arabia, has been shelled and occupied by the British cruiser Minerva.

The Admiralty announced this occurrence as follows:

"Upon arriving at Akabah the cruiser Minerva, Captain Percival Warleigh, found the place occupied by soldiers and armed natives. One of the soldiers had the appearance of a German officer.

"The Minerva then shelled the port and the troops. The town was evacuated and landing parties from the Minerva proceeded to destroy the forts, barracks, post office and stores.

"There was some loss to the enemy but no British casualties."

RECORD GOLF DRIVE

Over Half a Mile With Frozen River as Green

Robert Jolly, better known as "Wee Robbie," one of the younger members of the famous St. Andrews Jollys, all of whom are now golf professionals in the United States, established what he claims is the record drive of a golf ball. The feat was a drive of 1,026 yards, and the drive was made under conditions which were as unusual as the drive itself.

"WEE ROBBIE" JOLLY

Early last winter, after the weather had driven almost all the golfers off the links of the Park Ridge Country Club, a lawyer continued to play over the frozen ground. He experimented. Discovering that the cold golf balls could not be driven as far as he ordinarily drove in summer, he warmed them by a stove before starting out, and carried them inside his clothing finding that the warm balls striking on the frozen ground would bound and roll fully fifty yards per drive further than cold ones.

Then, without revealing his secret, he bantered Robbie Jolly into wagering that he could not drive 350 yards. On the frozen ground and with a heated ball the feat proved easy, and the joke was on the professional.

With his Scotch aroused, Jolly remarked that, under proper conditions, he could drive 1,000 yards. It seemed impossible, and the wager was made.

Then the Des Plaines river froze and presented a perfect sheet of ice clean and hard. Jolly notified the jokers that he was ready for revenge and took them to the river. He teed off a ball warmed to 105 degrees, and, save for a slight bend, the "fair green" was a sheet of ice without obstacles for two miles. The first drive struck the bank about 600 yards away. The second went past the only hazard, the jutting bank at the curve, and, bounding along forty yards to the bound, whizzed down the middle of the river. The judge stationed at the 1,000-yard mark said it was still going strong when it passed him, but bounded, struck an over-hanging willow limb and, after rolling a few yards further, rolled down a slope in the ice against the bank, where it was found.

BAKER'S STRONG MUSCLES

The Home Run Artist Has a Tremendously Powerful Body

Many stories are told of Frank ("Home Run") Baker's gigantic strength. Here is what Charlie Herzog has to say of him:

"I remember one time Baker and his younger brother and I were arguing over the weight of a sack of phosphate used in fertilizing. Neither young Baker nor I could lift it, but Frank had his brother sit on it, then carried both the phosphate and his brother across the barnyard with no trouble at all.

"Another time he offered to bet that he could throw a wagon axle further with one hand than his brother or I could with both. We had an awful time swinging the thing ten or twelve feet, but Frank, taking hold of one end of the thing with his right hand, gave it a flip and sent it more than twenty feet.

"It's no wonder Frank can hit a baseball nine miles when he lays onto one. He figures he's going to get a hit every time he goes to bat and wonders what's wrong when he doesn't."

WHEN HANS WAGNER BUNTED

Fred Clark was discussing Hans Wagner's peculiarities. "I'll never forget the first time I ordered him to bunt.

"It was in Louisville, back in 1897. Honus had been with us only a few days. I didn't know him then as I know him now. We were playing Pittsburg, and Jess Tannehill was pitching against us. We were not hitting Jess, and, as I had noticed the Dutchman to be fast, I asked him if he could bunt. He said he could try.

"So I told him to lay one down the third-base line and try to get on. He selected a bat for the purpose, and, while we sat back watching for his bunt, he didn't do a thing but knock the ball clear over a distillery for a home run.

"The next time his turn came I asked him if he thought he could bunt another one like that. He never cracked a smile, but said he thought he could. He did. The first good one Tannehill served Honus cracked it over the same distillery. They were two of the longest home runs I ever saw, and on those two smashes over the old Louisville distillery we beat Tannehill that day, 2 to 0."

CATCHERS SELDOM GOOD BASE STEALERS

Chief Reason Is That the Unnatural Position They Assume Bunches the Leg Muscles

About the rarest article in baseball is a catcher who can steal bases.

Ask any manager what he would give for a backstop able to work 100 games a season and steal 50 bases and he will tell you that such a player is not yet born.

And he will mean every word.

Scouts have been searching for catchers who can steal bases and they haven't turned up one to date; and when they did pick up a catcher with speed he lost it by the time he was tutored to the point where he could catch many games.

There are two reasons for catchers losing their fleetness of foot. The first is that squatting behind the bat develops muscles which retard rather than help in running, and the second is that catchers are hampered by the fact they are nine times out of ten just ahead of the pitcher in the batting order.

The time to steal is when two men are out, but a catcher cannot take a chance at this time, for if he is thrown out the pitcher will be the first man at bat in the next inning, and no manager wants to lead off with a weak-hitting pitcher.

Constant squatting develops the catcher's quadreceps extensor muscle, just above the knee, causing it to "bunch." The ideal sprinter has muscles strung out and pliable. The difference between the leg muscles of a catcher and those of a sprinter is the difference that is found in the muscles of a boxer and wrestler.

Diagram showing how the constant squatting over-develops the leg muscles, handicapping the catcher.

The boxer requires long, pliable muscles, for speed; the wrestler needs slower, "bunched" muscles for gruelling strain.

Many young catchers go to the majors with speed, but they soon slow up.

NO ADVANCE IN BASEBALL

Former Star Says Game no Faster Now Than Years Ago

Frank Killen was one of the best pitchers in the National League, and in 1892 was entitled to rank with the league leader; to-day he is selling real estate in the Sewickley valley, which is in Pennsylvania.

Killen says the game is no faster than in the 90's, and as he managed and pitched minor league baseball for 10 years after he heard the bell ring out his major league career, he has something more than suspicion to back his opinion.

He does say there are more speedy men in the game to-day, but he checks this with the statement that there are not so many first class hitters, and declares that the real advance in the game is the amount of space devoted to it by newspapers.

"Many an old play comes up under a new name, and very few new plays are really new," declares Killen.

Rusie was the wonder of all pitchers, in Killen's opinion, and of Amos he says: "Bear in mind Rusie was pitching just as far from the plate as the pitchers of to-day, and working 50 games every season."

AUSTRALIAN'S VIEW OF CANADA'S GAME

Lacrosse Player of Antipodes Discusses the Game as Played Here and Elsewhere

An interesting article on lacrosse appeared in an English journal and in it J. S. Hutcheon, an Australian player and expert, gave his view as to the reasons why Canadians surpass teams of other nations in their ability to win games.

His first assertion is that the Canadians excel at stick-handling. He says: "The Canadian style appeals to me as the logical result of the existence of superlative stick-work throughout a team; speaking broadly, neither of the other nations has yet quite reached this stage. This stick-work alone does not by any means make Canada invincible, yet it has brought in its train such a closing up of the vulnerable points on the field as enormously to increase the difficulties of a team which clings to the old style of open play."

It is to the Canadian defence, however, that the writer gives the credit of making the teams superior to those of England and Australia. He describes it as follows: "It is mainly by reason of the wonderful defensive work exhibited that I imagine Canada would still preserve the right to hold the international championship. 'Marking' a man in the ordinary accepted sense, is considered of minor importance, but the opposing attacks almost invariably find a cluster of defence men in front of the goal-keeper, at least one of whom stands an excellent chance of intercepting a shot from any angle."

Follow Canadian Lead

While the Australian sees the advantage of the Canadian method of defence, he suggests that the games played close on the nets are less spectacular than the old open kind of play. It appears that the Australians have taken a hint from Canada, and now lie back in front of the goalkeeper and wait for the attack. They cannot play as close in as the Canadians, however, because they are not, as a whole, such adept stick-handlers. Speaking of the Australians, he says: "We work back to goal as far as we possibly can, but until our defences attain to something like the Canadians' really wonderful powers of interception and gaining possession of the ball, we shall have to make the enemy begin to fight further out than the Canadians do."

According to the critic, the English still do a large amount of playing at centrefield. He believes that this passing and checking game at centre makes the lacrosse prettier to wacth, opening up the game, and distributing the interest over the field. He rather regrets the fact that the "highest efficiency cannot go hand in hand with the greatest attractiveness."

Armored For the Fray

The first thing that struck Mr. Hutcheon when he saw a Canadian team play was the amount of padding worn by the men. He describes them as being wrapped up in layers of cotton wool as though a journey to the Arctic regions were contemplated. He tells how a Canadian said to him: "You fellows want to roughen up your game a bit. It will improve it." Mr. Hutcheon was rather surprised at this, for he says, "We had not considered our play to be under the slightest suspicion of being gentle, an opinion in which one is confirmed after seeing the English at work."

He found the reason for the padding not only in the ruggedness of the game, but in the method of the attack. In Australia and England, where the defences fight every inch of the way from midfield, the home players do not get into such close quarters. Speaking of the close work in which the Canadian home players specialize, the Australian writer expresses the following opinion: "Canadians believe in carrying on their attack at distances of something like ten yards or less from one another, and they understand how to make a combined rush on goal without getting in one another's way or crowding. With their fearful and wonderful padding, too, most of their home players attempt a good deal of dodging."

The Battle Had a Reason

"Suspicion is a terrible thing," said Jimmy Britt, former champion. "One gets so he is afraid to trust anyone. I remember just before I was going to fight Bat Nelson for the championship a newspaper wanted us to pose in fighting position for photographs. We both consented. When we came to pose I was watching Bat and he was eyeing me. Both of us were suspicious. Bat refused to pose at all unless I got in one position and let him assume another. My suspicions were aroused. We wrangled ten minutes. Finally I assented, but was ready to pump him full of right hands if he made a crooked move. Nothing happened, and for years I wondered what the matter was. [illegible] Then, a short time ago, I met [illegible] and we had a long talk. I asked [illegible]

A Human Churn

WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach.—(See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clean—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alterative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and a trial box will be mailed you.

Generous Act By Government

$1.30 Per Day for Home Service, in Addition to Food, Clothes, Etc.

KINGSTON, Nov. 6.—It will be welcome news to the soldiers who are serving in the city here guarding the forts, dry dock, waterworks, etc., that the Government has decided to compensate them for the fact that, under the ruling of the Executive Committee at Ottawa of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, they cannot share in the patriotic Fund, while doing merely home duty.

Feeling that in a measure at least this seemed to be unfair the Government has decided not only to pay $1.00 a day to each man but instead of allowing him 75 cents a day for rations, etc., they have decided to give each soldier 45 cents of this daily allowance in cash, so that he may use it at home if he desires. Under this ruling the men doing home service duty—which will mean the men at the forts, at the waterworks, etc.—will receive $1.55 in cash each day and in addition their clothes, boots, etc., and food for themselves. In other words they will everything "found" and $10.85 per week in cash an addition, which will put them in fine shape and should be easily sufficient for their families.

Fiftieth Anniversary Of Ordination

KINGSTON, Nov. 6.—Rev. R. S. Forneri, rector of St. Luke's Church, this city, who on Wednesday celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood of the Church of England, is a native of Belfast, Ireland. His father came to this country with his family in 1853 and was one of the first professors of the newly-created university of Toronto. After taking his M.A. and B.D. degrees, was admitted to holy orders on the 28th of October, 1864 by the Right Rev. John Strachan. His fifty years in the ministry have been spent in Penetanguishene, Uxbrdge, Belleville, Adolphustown, Merrickville and Kingston.

TRIES TO FIND WIFE FOR AGED FARMER

BERLIN, Ont., Nov. 6.—Mayor Euler has undertaken a job which is likely to add considerably to his official duties and to tax the postal facilities of his town. A sixty-year-old farmer residing near Clifford, Ont., and recently jilted, has asked his assistance in procuring a wife. He doesn't care how poor she is, and promises her plently to live on, plenty to wear, and a claim on his farm after his death of $2,500. Mayor Euler has promised his earnest co-operation.

Volunteer is Under Arrest

Chauffeur is Accused of Being implicated in Hold-up of James Clancy Some Time Ago

KINGSTON, Nov. 6.—Roy Ferguson, the chauffeur, who is alleged to be mixed up in the robbery of James Clancy on the Montreal Road near McAdoo's bush, when over $76 was taken from him, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Constables Armstrong and Bateson. He appeared in the Police Court this morning and was remanded for a week.

Mr. Clancy, whose home is in Centreville, was out driving with a couple of girls in a taxi cab. When they got about two miles past the outer station, the driver stopped the car and said that there was something wrong with it. The party got out on the road, and immediately a masked man jumped out from the hedge beside the road and shoving revolver under Clancy's nose, relieved him of his roll. The victim had been around all day, it is stated, with Ferguson and another man, and from the first it was suspected that the hold-up had all been pre-arranged that the two girls were also in the game.

The day after the hold up Ferguson left the city and no trace of him could be found. A few days ago he returned to the city and jointed the militia, enlisting as a driver for the 5th Field Engineers. The police spotted him on the street, and yesterday afternoon the two constables arrested him at the battery stables. When placed under arrest Ferguson had nothing to say.

When the prisoner was arraigned this morning before Magistrate Farrell, he pleaded not guilty.

3 LAKE STEAMERS OVERDUE 4 DAYS

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Nov. 6.—The heaviest gale of the season has been raging upon Lake Superior since last Sunday, and has, to a great extent, paralyzed shipping. The steamer Inland, of the Great Lakes Transportation Company, which passed the Soo last Saturday evening, bound for Fort William, light, for grain, has not been heard from since. The Neppawah, of the Canada Steamship Lines, due to arrive here last Monday night, has not been heard from. She carries a cargo of freight. The steamer Turret Court, with coal, due last Tuesday has not been heard from since she passed the Soo last Monday night. The Lake Shippers' Clearance Association reports three additional boats, the Keewatin, Glenlyon, with freight, and the Franz, light overdue one day. It is supposed that the missing steamers have been forced to lie in behind islands and other points of vantage, and probably most of them are behind Whitefish point.

Why Remain Silent?

He Claims Germany Broke Treaty With America

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Robert Bacon, former secretary of state, issued a statement before sailing for England, in which he said that in violating the neutrality of Belgium, Germany broke a treaty which she had made with the United States when she signed articles 1 and 2 of the second Hague conference.

"Are we to suffer a nation to break a treaty with us, on whatever pretext, without entering, at least a formal protest?" reads the statement. "Will anyone contend that our neutrality imposes silence upon us under such conditions? Are the Hague conventions to become scraps of paper without a single word of protest from this government?

"To justify a policy of silence by the assertion that 'we are fortunate in being safely removed from the danger that threatens European powers,' and to urge that as a reason for us to sit still with hands folded is as weak as it is unwise."

CHOKED TO DEATH ON CHICKEN FEED

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Daisy Dard, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ward, 49 Osler avenue, died at the Western Hospital yesterday evening from strangulation half an hour after some chicken feed had become lodged in her throat. There will be no inquest. The child had been playing in the kitchen of her home and found a package of feed. She opened it, and started to eat the contents. Some of the grain became lodged in her throat, and she immediately began to choke. She was rushed to the hospital, but died shortly after her admittance.

ELEVEN YEAR OLD BOYS IN THE DOCK

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Lawrence Cassidy and Eugene Giroux, two young Ottawa boys, appeared before Recorder Desjardins this morning in the Hull court, and were remanded until Wednesday for a sentence on the charge of having stolen three revolvers, a hunting knife and a small sum of money from the hardware store of Kelly and Leduc on Sunday last.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" asked Recorder Desjardins.

"Yes, I am," answered Cassidy.

"How about you," asked the Recorder of Giroux.

"I don't know," answered young Giroux.

Cassidy explained that the two Giroux brothers waited outside on the watch while he burglarized the store.

Both boys are 11 years of age.

CANADIAN HORSE DEALERS COMPLAIN OF FEW ORDERS

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Special—Canadian horse dealers are complaining that very few orders are being placed by the British War Office representative for remounts from Canada, but that heavy orders are being placed with the United States. It is contended that practically the only orders placed in Canada are with agents of American buyers at Montreal and Toronto.

France and Russia, it is stated, have their buying agencies in the United States, and the policy adopted by General Benson, the British War Office agent, is to purchase in the United States first before the best of the horses have been picked up. He will then begin a more extensive purchasing in Canada next spring.

YOUNG TORONTO MAN ACCIDENTALLY KILLED

BLIND RIVER, Ont., Nov. 6.—Special—Mr. G. B. Child, twenty-three years of age, son of Police Constable G. B. Child of Toronto, was accidentally shot and mortally wounded in the woods near Blind River to-day. Mr. Child and four other sportsmen from Toronto were dragging a deer out of the wood, when one of the guns carried was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Mr. Child's leg below the knee. His comrades carried him to Blind River, where he died nine hours later from loss of blood.

KHEDIVE OF EGYPT REPORTED TO BE ANTI-BRITISH BY BERLIN

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—The Frankfurter Zeitung publishes a despatch from its Constantinople correspondent who transmits an interview with the Khedive of Egypt. The Khedive expressed himself as undisturbed by the reported British annexation of Egypt. The people of Egypt soon will recognize, the Khedive declared, that the situation created by the British cannot continue, and the Britons soon will see that the annexation of the historic and holy territory of Egypt can only be of a temporary character.

TWO GERMAN CRUISERS CAPTURED, SCHARNHORST AND MNEISETAU NOW TIED UP

(Canadian Press Despatch Exclusively to The Intelligencer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A special cable to The Herald from London today says it is stated at Tokio that the German cruisers Scharnhorst and Mneisteau have been captured while coaling.

BELGIANS SUSTAINED IN TIME

PARIS, Nov. 7.—An official announcement this afternoon says:—

"On our left wing the situation is relatively quiet on the Yser downstream from Dixmude. The Belgian troops who advanced along the right bank of the Yser from Nieuport and who had been counter attacked by the Germans was sustained in time. The situation has been entirely re-established in this locality.

To the southeast of Ypres we have resumed the offensive in combination with British troops operating in this region, and repulsed particularly violent and pronounced attacks by detachments belonging to the active German army corps recently brought into this region by the Germans.

"Between Armentieres and the canal of La Bassee, the British army repulsed a violent attack on Neuve Chapelle. Between the canal of La Bassee and Arras, as well as between Arras and the Oise, several counter attacks delivered by night and by day have been checked.

"On the centre and right engagements have resulted in our favor.

AMEER OF AFGHANS PROTECTS FRONTIER

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—A despatch says reports from Constantinople states the Ameer of Afghans has sent an army of one hundred and seventy thousand men and 135 guns to the aid of the Indian frontier. A number of Indian border tribes have joined the Afghans.'

TURKS BEGIN INVADING EGYPT

FALL OF TSING-TAU

Means a Naval Campaign in the Pacific

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 7.—Official despatches telling of the fall of Tsing-Tau were received today at the Japanese embassy. They were interpreted as signalling the beginning of an offensive naval campaign in the Pacific. Three squadrons of warships occupied in blockading will now be released, it was said, to hunt down German ships in the Pacific.

LT. STEPHENS APPOINTED COMMANDER OF NAVY

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Special—Lieut. R. M. T. Stephens, R.N., Director of Gunnery at the Canadian naval headquarters, has been appointed Chief of Staff, with the rank of Commander in the Royal Canadian Navy.

GERMANS SHELLING TOWN OF ARMENTIERS

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A despatch from Paris says that the Germans have begun to shell Armentieres with heavy guns. The British batteries have caused heavy loss to the enemy.

GERMAN FORT IN LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Standard says that about a month ago an inspection was made by detectives and military men of certain buildings in London district and owned by a German firm ostensibly as a factory, and employing German hands. A military expert described them as "nothing more than a terrifically strong fortification, which dominates some of the most important points in London. This factory is situated near Woolwich, and commands several miles of the River Thames, powder and ammunition reserves and Purfleet, and a large part of the Woolwich arsenal. All of the buildings are of reinforced concrete of a strength and thickness altogether out of proportion to the nature of the work carried on in the factory." Strong recommendations for immediate and drastic action were made to the War Office and the Home Office, but, says The Standard, nothing more has been heard of the matter. Without their consent the local authorities can initiate no action.

INTERESTING DEBATE AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

An interesting debate was held in the High School on Thursday, November the fifth, on the subject "Resolved that the number of licenses in Belleville should be reduced to Four." The Affirmative was taken by J. Bargeman and M. McLellan, the negative by R. Morden and H. Sulman.

The leader of the Affirmative brought forth the following arguments: When young men of the city go to the hotels to drink and get drunk fighting is caused.

When the men receive their week's wage, instead of going home and keeping it to spend for clothes and board they go to the hotels and there spend it for booze.

Because so many in this city drink, a large police force is needed. About 70 p.c. of the arrests, made, are from drink. If the licenses were reduced there would not be the need of so many policemen and the city's expenses would be reduced.

Belleville consumes an unusually large amount of liquor for its size. There are five hotels within one block on Front. A great many of the young men who learn to drink become confirmed drunkards. There is $125,000,000 worth of liquor imported into Canada in one year from other countries. Belleville has a large share in this money and if instead this money was given to the Red Cross or the War Fund it would be a great deal better.

The Leader of the Negative advocated that: Reducing the licenses from 17 to 4 would not remedy the evil, all the licenses should be abolished. There is no law made restricting the length of the bar or the number of clerks employed and so if the number was reduced to 4 they would become larger in order to fill the place of the original seventeen.

The thirteen other hotels would not give in without a fight and there would be an illicit selling of liquor.

The thirteen hotels would still be expected to give accommodation. It would not be British fair play to let four have the drink traffic and not the thirteen, who are expected to give the same accommodation.

The four barkeepers are bound to become wealthy and it is not good to have four of the city's most wealthy and influential men in the council, as they would probably be if this happened. The four hotels would be more able to fit up their hotels and make the place attractive than the others.

The Rowell Policy was turned down because it was not far reaching enough. It did not abolish the liquor traffic altogether. The people would not recognize it as a good measure.

In a dry town the accommodation is not as good as in a wet town, but in a town partly dry, the accommodation would be worse because the hotels without a license would have to compete against those with a license. There would still be as much drinking. True drinking has its evils such as stealing and the not caring for children but it is not remedied by reducing the licenses.

The supporter of the Affirmative gave the following points: Soon after the war began the British Government passed an Act restricting the liquor licenses. There was much opposition but the Act passed because the British Government saw that alcoholic drink affected discipline and successful training of soldiers.

Russia as a temporary measure suppressed the liquor traffic for a month; there was an increase in the savings bank and the populace demanded an extension of the prohibition. This

Fanning Island Man Neglected Orders

A Story Connected With Cutting of Pacific Cable

CAUSE OF LONG DELAY

Duplicate Plant Was Buried But Germans Found it and Dug it up

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—Special—Behind the announcement of the restoration of the Pacific cable, there hangs a tale. It illustrates the danger of non-compliance with precautionary regulations in time of war, even when such regulations do not seem to be of very great importance. It will be remembered that the Pacific cable was cut and the station at Fanning Island destroyed by the German cruiser Nurnberg, one of the fleet reported as having participated in last Sunday's naval engagement in the South Pacific. The Nurnberg made a complete job of the cable smashing, steaming up to the island under a French flag and disguised with a dummy funnel. A landing party from the cruiser got to the other side of the island at the same time on a coal boat. The station was destroyed, the safe rifled, the papers from the drawers and cabinets taken away in sacks, and the engine room blown up. The Fanning Island station had previously been warned of a posisble visit from Nurnberg and instructions given to conceal the duplicate plant kept at the station for just such emergencies. The plant was buried and a message sent to the Admiralty giving the exact location of the cache. According to the rules, the copy of this message should have been destroyed. Somebody neglected to do it. When the Nurnberg officers loked over their "bag" after the cruiser had left the station the message was found. The Nurnberg promptly put back, landed another party, dug up the duplicate plant and destroyed what they did not want to take away. That was why the restoration of the service took so long a time. It is regarded here as probable that the negligence of the man at Fanning Island caused the Germans much satisfaction and some amusement.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing—for the other fellow to have in a controversy.

Cause and Cure of Headache

The cause of headache as you know, is the stoppage of the circulation resulting in pressure on the delicate nerves of the head. In time nature will start the blood going again, but meanwhile we suffer and are unfit for duty.

Assisted by two ZUTOO Tablets, which by the way are as harmless as the soda they contain, nature will remove the pressure and stop the headache in twenty minutes. Why continue to suffer? Why be unfit?

It is really remarkable how many people now use ZUTOO to cure their headaches. Do you? If not, why not?

Roslin Responds Royally

No finer rural audience in the County ever greeted Belleville speakers than that which assembled last night at the centre of the four Townships, the village of Roslin, with all its romantic associations and history. The Women's Institute of the district, who have been working indefatigably for Patriotic and Red Cross purposes, rallied the stalwart yeomanry and their families in the hall, and their dispensed hospitality, music and oratory to the evident satisfaction of those who filled the building to overflowing. Well rendered choruses by the choirs, solos by little Miss Chapman and Mrs Starke, "Heroes and Gentlemen" and "Tipperary" (new version) by County Clerk A. M. Chapman, filled the intervals between the able speeches of Mr. C. M. Reid, Mr. H. F. Ketcheson and Colonel W. N. Ponton of Belleville, all under the genial chairmanship of Mr. John Elliott, whose never failing Irish fountain kept up the continued interest spirit, and co-operation of all. Mr. C. M. Reid's address was rendered specially interesting through his intimate knowledge of Germany and Brussels. He was most optimistic and heartening and his appeal for work and service and the maintainence of Canada's business prosperity throughout the war was most effective. Mr. H. F. Ketcheson reflected conditions as they were in the war one from personal observation and contrasted them with what they are now through that archdemon of destruction, the German hordes. Belgium calls for vengeance and for help. London gave the note to the world and that was in volume and earnestness "For the King. Colonel W. N. Ponton graphically described the "Prentice Pillar" at Roslin Chapel near Edinburgh and applied the traditions of the Wicked Master, the murderous sculptor, to the German Despot. Accused be he who removeth his neighbor's homes and sanctuaries, is also surely fully applicable. He appealed to the young men to seek the "glory of service." He instanced the experiences of the Fist Canadian Overseas Force and of their overwhelming welcome in England at Drake's Old Home, and closed by an impressive rendering of "The Day." Votes of thanks and loyal cheers brought a most successful meeting to a close. A large sum was realized and two recruited obtained for the colors.

DEATH ROLL

MRS. MARGARET SNIDER.

Mrs. Margaret Snider, formerly of Belleville, passed away on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd, at her home in Deseronto. The remains were brought here for burial yesterday, and were interred in Belleville cemetery.

The deceased, who was in her eighty-seventh year, was well known in Belleville, having lived here for several years. Her husband preceded her some twenty-eight years ago. In religion she was a Methodist, and had been a devoted Christian nearly all her life. During her residence in Belleville she was a member and regular attendant of West Belleville Church. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. James Gammon, of Deseronto, and one son, Mr. Harvey Snider, of this city, also two sisters, Mrs. A. Wood and Mrs. A. Clarke, both of Kingston.

DRUNKENNESS CAN BE CURED

Old Fallacy That Drunkenness Cannot be Cured Exploded.

Many men drink who desire to stop the habit. Whiskey, however, has undermined the constitution and created a craving that can not be denied, and the man must have whiskey or something that will remove the craving and build up the system and restore the nerves.

Samaria Prescription will stop the craving, steady the nerves, build up system and restore the nerves.

Samaria Prescription will stop the craving, steady the nerves, build up the general health and makes drink actually distasteful and nauseous. It is tasteless and odorless, and can be given with or without the patient's knowledge, in tea, coffee or food. It is used regularly by Physicians and Hospitals. It has cured thousands in Canada, and restored happiness to hundreds of home.

Read what Mrs. G——, of Hull, says of it and what it did for her.

"It is four months to-day since I started to use your Remedy. I followed the directions, and had the best of results. One week after I started using your Remedy the patient stopped drinking and has not drunk a glass of liquor since. I hope you will accept my heartfelt thinks. Hoping God will bless your Remedy whenever tried, I remain,

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropracter are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractic permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

LOST HER SMOKESTACK

The steambarge Waterlily, a freight carrier between Bay of Quinte ports and Montreal, lost her smokestack in the upper gap, while en route to Kingston on Wednesday. GOING TO THE FRONT

Rev. A. P. Shatford, rector of the church of St. James the Apostle, Montreal, has announced to his congregation that he intends going to the front with the second contingent in the capacity of a military chaplain. Mr. Shatford was at one time a lay reader in St. John's church at Bancroft.

FIRE IN RAWDON

Between two and three o'clock on Tuesday morning, Wm. McInroy's house and contents on the 11th con. of Rawdon was destroyed by fire. It is supposed the fire originated from a defective stove pipe.

Mr. McInroy at the time was on a hunting trip north of Bancroft. The barn which is quite near the house narrowly escaped being burned. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Why Smith Succeeded

He was on the job— alert and energetic. Mental ability and physical activity made him shine in his old job and brought promotion.

Smith took care of himself.

Right there is the keynote of success — one must be mentally and physically fit.

A good start is to avoid the heavy, greasy foods that cause indigestion and kindred ills, and use a wholesome, building food such as

Grape-Nuts

This healthful, appetizing food is made of selected wheat and malted barley. It contains those vital mineral salts, so necessary to health, that are often lacking in the every-day diet.

The partial malting of the barley, with the long baking (about 20 hours), makes Grape-Nuts a food that digests easily and quickly.

Montreal Wanted Belleville Pastor

Rev. Charles G. Smith, in Spite of Tempting Offer, Will Stay in Belleville

The Rev. Chas. G. Smith, B. A., B. D., who has entered upon his fifth year in the pulpit of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, and has done so much good work in all phases of Christian activity, has received a most tempting offer to go to Montreal as pastor of Point St. Charles Baptist Church, the salary mentioned being $2,000 per annum.

The congregation of Victoria Avenue Church met and extended an unanimous invitation to Rev. Smith to remain in charge of the local pastorate. So deeply interested in the work here is Mr. Smith that he has decided to remain in Belleville. The knowledge of this was received with much enthusiasm by the members of his church, who now have proof of the depth of his interest in Christian work and of his ability as preacher and pastor, which resulted in the Montreal call.

WEEDS ON ONTARIO FARMS

During recent years the Commission of Conservation has been directing agricultural survey work in various sections of the Dominion. The object has been to secure accurate information respecting the methods of the Canadian farmer, with a view to promoting scientific agriculture. No stronger proof of the need and value of such investigations could be found than the following report respecting weed conditions in Ontario, commonly regarded as the banner farming province of Canada.

"The farms in nearly every district visited are reported as being badly infested with weeds; sow thistle, wild oats, wild flax, wild buckwheat, rib grass. Canada thistle and couch grass are very common. The weed problem is getting to be a serious one with many farmers, and one that interferes largely with the crops grown and the present methods of farming being practised. Those farmers who follow a systematic short rotation of crops have been able to keep the weeds fairly well in check. On the majority of the farms visited, however, weeds are increasing. The farmers are unable to tell definitely where the weeds come from. In many instances no attention is paid to exterminating new weeds when they first appear on the farm, consequently, by the time a farmer does make an effort to get rid of them they have become so numerous that the process is a difficult and expensive one. The old adage, 'a stitch in time saves nine', would be one well worth heeding in connection with the weed problem."

MANUFACTURERS AND FARMERS UNITING

A telegram from Winnipeg of date Nov. 4th, indicates that Manufacturers and Farmers in the Nor' West are beginning to understand that their interests are identical, the one in securing the settlement of the vacant lands, thus providing a greater demand for agricultural implements, and the other in securing cheap implements. The Report says:—

"The farmers are surely coming into their own. Not only has the Canadian Manufacturers' Association joined with the allied farmers' organizations of the Dominion to place millions of acres of new land under cultivation, but they are now discussing the physical comfort of the agriculturists and methods of securing greater production from the soil.

"At the important convention of these Dominion-wide organizations now being held in Winnipeg addresses were delivered last night on "The Closer Community Settlement" by a deputation of Regina men, including S. C. Burton, President of the Regina Board of Trade, J. H. Haslam and A. T. Hunter. A big convention to further this project is to be held at Regina on November 18.

An address was also delivered during the evening by C. C. James, the Government agricultural specialist, on demonstration farms in Ontario."

Severe Pains Around The Heart

Are Nearly Always Caused By Stomach Trouble.

Don't let a pain in the region of the heart frighten you into thinking you have heart disease. Just as a pain in the back seldom indicates kidney trouble, so pain near the heart is scarcely ever present in organic heart disease. The pain is nearly always caused by stomach trouble for the stomach and heart are connected by many nerves, and gas on the stomach causes pressure on the heart.

The alarming pains will disappear if you tone up the stomach, eat the right things and don't worry. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best stomach tonic. One or two Pills after each meal soon produces a healthy appetite, the food does not distress you, you are no longer troubled with gas, sour risings in the throat, and those misleading pains around the heart. Strength and energy return, and the rich, red blood, carries renewed vitality to every part of the body. Mrs. Henry Connolly Brookvale P.E.I. says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from indigestion which, despite all the treatment I took, was gradually growing worse. I would sometimes feel as though I was smoldering, and when the trouble came on I would suffer from violet palpitation and pains around the heart which greatly alarmed me. I was under doctor's treatment for a long time, but with no benefit. A friend suggested Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. In about a month I felt much better and by the time I had taken another four boxes I was in the best of health and able to eat all kinds of nourishing food. It is now several years since I was cured and I have never felt a symptom of indigestion since. I take every opportunity of recommending Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to friends who are ailing."

If your dealer does not keep these Pills you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

SPIES

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Arthur Lauf, an employe of the Government at Halifax, has been arrested on suspicion as a German spy, and is being detained by the military authorities. Lauf was employed as an interpreter in the Immigration Department. He was arrested shortly after the war broke out, but was released on producing his naturalization papers. He was arrested again as a suspected spy, his rooms were searched and a compleo wireless outfit was found. He will likely be interned as a prisoner until the war is over. He has been dismissed from the service.

If this servant of the Government be found guilty of having used his position to supply the enemy with information something more drastic should be his fate than dismissal. There should be no half way measures in dealing with spies, particularly of this character.

CURRENT COMMENT

In the light of German perfidy, German promises not to invade Canada may justify exceptional vigilance by the Canadian authorities. True.

During the past decade it is estimated that Toronto lost more than $18,000,000 through fires, seventy-five per cent. of which were preventable. On this continent we annually burn up $250,000,000 worth of created wealth —a waste as unnecessary as the war waste of Europe.

No fewer than seven divorces were granted in one day recently by Judge McKeown at a session of the Divorce Court in Fredericton, N.B. Three were St. John cases, while the others were from different parts of the Province. All were granted on statutory grounds. Canada is rapidly approaching the status of the United States.

Canada possesses over ninety per cent. of the world's nickel, exporting last year 43,341,000 lbs. of nickel to the United States, and 4,826,000 lbs. to the United Kingdom. The only other available source of nickel is New Caledonia, a French possession; thus the Allies control the world's supply of nickel, which has been found so necessary for the hardening of steel.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company's telegraph at Montreal is advised that the cable station at Fanning Island has been repaired and communication via the British Pacific cable between Canada and Australia is now restored. The Fanning Island station was destroyed by a landing party from the German cruiser Nuremberg.

According to the official report the number of licenses issued to automobile owners in Ontario was 17,750, and in addition to the Provincial Government issued to others, that is non-residents, 5,950, making a total of 23,700. To motor cycles owned in Ontario 2,650 licenses were issued, and to non-residents 250. There were 3,514 chauffeur licenses issued. The total receipts from all licenses were $105,558.95.

As a result of the continued decrease in railroad earnings in the United States, some of the heads of large roads in that country are advocating a system of government ownership. President Ridley, of the Atchison, is the leader of the movement for government ownership, as he is firmly convinced that private capital will not invest its money in railroad securlities while "lawyers at Washington furnish the management."

Toronto News: "On a charge of having collected money for the Patriotic and Unemployment Funds under false pretences, Alfrad Holland, who gave his address as 236 Victoria Street, was arrested last night. Holland, the police allege, called on several residents on Wright and Sunnyside avenues and represented himself as an agent for the two funds. His actions aroused suspicion and he was arrested." Look out for these characters. There are always some scoundrels ready to take advantage of every emergency to rob the people.

WAR NOTES

It is reported from Strassburg that funds are being subscribed in Germany to enable a number of university professors who speak English to visit the United States at Christmas time, to give lectures in the chief towns on German culture and also to explain the war.

An official statement issued in London last night says that Persia, "now that the conflagration has extended to her territory," has renewed her assurances of strict neutrality, and has asked for the good offices of Great Britain to prevent "the neutral soil of Persia from becoming a theatre of war."

The University of Toronto has 1,500 recruits in their University Battalion. One college fraternity in Toronto sent fourteen of its members with the First Contingent, and already has eighteen enlisted for service with the Second Contingent. The cry "Send us the best you breed" is being answered by the college men of the country.

POPULATION OF IRELAND

The population of Ireland is still slightly diminishing, according to the fiftieth annual report of the Registrar General of births, deaths, and mariages in Ireland, just issued. The number of recorded births in Ireland during 1913 was 100,004, as against 101,035 in 1912. The number of deaths registered in 1913 was 74,694, as compared with 72,187 in 1912. This indicates that while the death record is higher and the birth record lower than in previous years, still the births show one-third excess over the deaths. This excess of 25,310 was more than offset, however, by the emigration of 30,967, leaving a net decrease of 5,657 in the ppulation, or a total figure of approximately 4,373.419, which is almost equally divided into males and females.

The total number of emigrants from Ireland since May 1, 1851, when the enumeration began, has been 4,278,327, a figure practically equal to the total present population of the island. Of this total emigration the males have exceeded the females by about 5 per cent. The distribution by provinces of origin is shown by the following table:

Leinster	737,743
Munster	1,481,896
Connaught	721,479
Ulster	1,226,470
Total	4,167,.588

CLASS OF INSRTUCTION

To Be Held by 14th Officers for Kingston Civilians

KINGSTON, Nov. 6.—On Thursday Col. T. D. R. Hemming, O.C., gave permission to the 14th regiment officers to hold a class of instruction so that civilians and N.C.O.'s may take an instructional course at night. These classes will be commenced the first of the week and it is expected they will prove very popular. There are many civilians who would like to take up a military course and not be enlisted. Of course the passing of the examination by a civilian will not give him an officer's standing, but he could easily procure this if at a later date he cares to enlist. The instructors have not been chosen.

Lieut. L. C. Lockett is acting O.C. of the 14th regiment, relieving temporarily Major H. J. Dawson.

An Easy Way To stop Head Noises

GOOD ADVICE FOR THOSE WHO FEAR DEAFNESS

Men and women who are growing hard of hearing and who experience stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Head-noises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness and most people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these head noises become so distracting and nerve racking, with their never ceasing "hum" they drive the sufferer almost frantic and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently in England it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the head noises, the hearing also greatly improves and very frequently can be restored to normal. This English treatment is known as Parmint and can be easily and safely self administered at home. Leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity now have it in stock. Get from your druggst 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and mix it at home with ¼ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and hearing improves. Parmint is used double strength in this way not only to reduce, by tonic action, the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tube and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretion in the middle ear and the result it gives are both remarkably quick and effective.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St. Montreal, P.Q., who make a speciality of it.

Some men make a specialty of collecting paving material for the downward path.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible, a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore, praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistc beauty and perfection in historical detail. These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs, inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

Get this Bible by clipping certificates from The Intelligencer. Today's certificate is printed on another page, and the plan is fully explained there.

MAY FORM CANADIAN NAVAL VOLUNTEERS

Government Has Authorized Formation of Such Corps Petitioned For by Kingstonians Few Months Ago

KINGSTON, Nov. 6.—The government has authorized the formation of a Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Corps on the petition which was very largely signed by Kingstonians, members of the Kingston Yacht Club and others interested in water sports. A company has been formed in Vancouver, B.C., one is now in the process of organization in Toronto, under the auspices of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and another at St. John, N.B., under the auspices of the St. John Power Boat company.

The men who signed the petition in Kingston are now considering the advisability of taking steps to organize a company in this city. With the support of the public, it is believed that a fully equipped company could be organized.

The members of the company would not only be members of the Yacht Club but others who take part in waters sports. Quite an interest has been taken in the matter by several Kingstonians, and it is hoped that organization can be put under way in due time.

It will be remembered that the petition asking for the formationn of such a corps was sent all over the province a few months ago, and at that time it was very largely signed in Kingston by many who were quite favorable to the scheme.

Killed While Deering Hunting

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—Accidentally shot while deer nunting, George Child, 224 Sherbourne street, an employe of the Toronto Customs House, died at Blind River, Ont., this morning.

Mr. Child, who was a good shot, and very fond of hunting, left Toronto last Friday evening with a party of friends from the Customs House in search of the big game which abounds in the district along the Soo branch of the C.P.R., and where he was successful last year. This morning his father, Mr. "Bart" Child, of the Toronto police force, received a brief telegram from "Doc" Elson, one of the hunting party, which read: "Your son accidentally shot yesterday, passed away this morning."

The young man, who lived at home with his father, had a wide circle of acquaintances, with whom he was very popular. He was an accomplished musician. His father is one of the oldest members of the police force, and is highly regarded. Mr. W. D. Child of the police court clerks office is an uncle.

The remains of the unfortunate sportsman are being forwarded to Toronto to-day for burial.

Messrs. Wm. Guthrie and A. G. Elson of the Customs House were with Mr Child.

"DRILL YE TERRIERS, DRILL"

Overseas Volunteers Hard at Work on Parade Grounds

KINGSTON, Nov. 6.—The Artillery Park barracks square is, from morning until night crowded with squads of drilling soldiers. Some are more advanced in drilling than others, some have uniform and some are there with only parts of uniform. There are four companies, about five hundred men, and because of the crowded condition of the square, some are being taken to several vacant fields near the city and drilled there. The cricket field is also continually crowded with the men quartered in the cereal works, being put through drills. The instructors are the officers and N.C.O.'s.

The medical examiners are Major G. W. Mykes, Captain J. F. Sparks, Capt. S. J. Keyes and Lieut. C. M. Crawford. Four companies have already been examined, and very few have been rejected. The examination is very strict, but as the men were examined before coming to the city, they are seldom rejested.

Lieut.-Col. I. Hughes, commander of the 9th infantry brigade, was in the city on Thursday.

Capt. A. K. Hemming, R. C. R., arrived in the city on Wednesday from Halifax, and has taken the position of adjutant to Lieut.-Col W. S. Hughes, commander of the 21st battalion. The office is in the 14th orderly rooms in the Armouries.

Superintendent of Sunday School in Toronto Tells How He Cured Himself of Chronic Rheumatism After Suffering for Years.

55 DOVERCOURT ROAD, Oct., 1st. 1913.

"For a long time, I have thought of writing you regarding what I term a most remarkable cure effected by your remedy "Fruit-a-tives". I suffered from Rheumatism, especially in my hands. I have spent a lot of money without any good results. I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" for 18 months now, and am pleased to tell you that I am cured. All the enlargement has not left my hands and perhaps never will, but the soreness is all gone and I can do any kind of work. I have gained 35 pounds in 18 months".

R. A. WAUGH

Rheumatism is no longer the dreaded disease it once was. Rheumatism is no longer one of the "incurable diseases". "Fruit-a-tives" has proved its marvellous powers over Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago—in fact, over all such diseases which arise from some derangement of stomach, bowels, kidneys or skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

It's easy for a woman to discover that a man has brains—if she's his mother.

If a man has no friends he doesn't deserve them.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

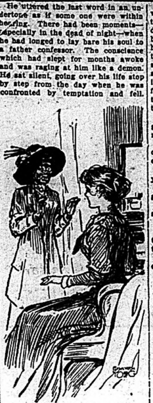
COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

He uttered the last word in an undertone as if some one were within hearing. There had been moments—especially in the dead of night—when he had longed to lay bare his soul to a father confessor. The conscience which had slept for months awoke and was raging at him like a demon. He sat silent, going over his life step by step from the day when he was confronted by temptation and fell.



The Girl's Eyes Grew Round With Terror.

Dorcas had branded him as a thief. Still she had kept her word and never again questioned the authorship of the play. Her accusation left a welt in his soul like a stroke from the thin end of a whip. It was a welt which had not healed. He knew she had spoken the truth. He dropped his head upon his arms. It was years since he had said a prayer. He had forgotten the form that prayer takes.

"God," he murmured, "if there is any way for me to come back—and begin again—show me that way."

He did not raise his head; in an apathy he was listening curiously to a commotion in the lower part of the house. From a wrangle of voices in the hall rose the clear tones of a woman. He jumped to his feet with consternation in his eyes and flung the door open. While he stood motionless listening his forehead wrinkled in perplexity. A cabman was carrying a trunk upstairs. It was so large that it blocked the stairway. A few steps below Jason tried in vain to pass.

"Yo' ain't got no right to tote dat trunk up dar without Marse Wentworth's say so," cried the old negro. "I'm gwine tell him 'bout hit."

When a woman's voice from the lower hall answered, Enoch's face went pallid white.

"You dippy old black fool, I know my business. Cabby, take up that trunk as I tell you to."

Wentworth could hear Jason expostulate again. "Marse Enoch don' know you're comin'. Missy Dorcas am out en she ain't gib me no orders 'bout company."

"Missy Dorcas!" repeated the woman with a contemptuous laugh. "Get this out of your noddle straight away: I'm not company Miss Dorcas is expecting. And here's a bit of advice,—lose your doddering old jaw, then announce me to your master."

Enoch, with a few quick steps, reached the top of the stair and leaned over the balusters. The cabman glanced at his stern face, then dropped the trunk from his shoulder and steadied it on the edge of a step.

"Stay right where you are," ordered Wentworth abruptly.

He turned to the woman, who stood on the stair. She lifted her face and greeted him with a derisive laugh.

"Will you be good enough, Miss Paget, to tell me what this intrusion means?"

The Englishwoman laughed again. It was a peculiar laugh, a sweet, shrill ripple, without a ghost of merriment in it. It had a thrill as of something demoniac. She did not answer his question, but turned to the cabman.

"Take that trunk up and set it on the landing. I can't pass while you block the stair. Then go down and wait until I call you."

The man obeyed. The actress paused on the top step and looked down at Jason. "As for you," she looked at him with a sneering smile, "mind your own business now. I have announced myself to your master."

Wentworth stood with his hand upon the railing of the stair. His face was stern and there were hard lines about his mouth. He held the door of the library open.

"Come in here," he said. There was no cordiality in his welcome.

The actress brushed past him with a short, unpleasant laugh. Her manner was full of self-confidence. Wentworth realized that he had never seen her look more beautiful; still his pulses did not quicken by a beat. She wore a gown of strangely lurid blue which few women would have dared to affect. The harmony between the dead gold of her hair and a willowy blue plume that swept down from her hat was almost startling. Her attitude was aggressive and a certain sense of power lay behind her theatrical entrance. Enoch's face settled into a frown, although his eyes were full of scowling perplexity. He rapped the door shut and turned the key in the lock.

"Now," he demanded sharply, "be good enough to tell me what this means."

"Aren't you going to ask me to sit down?" The woman spoke with an enticing smile.

"No. I have no intention of asking you to stay so long."

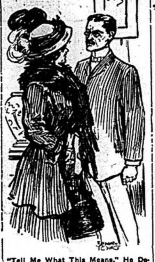
Zilla Paget laughed and sank languidly into a chair beside the fireplace.

"I would suggest that you sit down," she said suavely.

Enoch shook his head.

"You may get tired before I am through talking. It will take some time to discuss this affair."

"What affair?" Wentworth turned on her with quiet scorn. "Don't be foolish enough to try blackmail. Anything like," he paused for a moment as if trying to find a suitable word, "like sentiment for instance—or call it what you wish—died a natural death one afternoon when I tried to explain things to you. The minute a woman lets herself go and shows the devil in her makeup at white heat, sentiment can die—die a very sudden death. Besides, I have nothing on my conscience. I treated you as generously as any man would have done under the circumstances."



"Tell Me What This Means," He Demanded Sharply.

Miss Paget threw back her head and laughed. "Sit down," she advised. "This is a different affair entirely. Do not flatter yourself; there is not a ghost of sentiment in this."

Enoch walked to the mantel, rested his elbow upon it, and stared down at her. "I'll give you exactly ten minutes to explain what you want. If it is about your child, I am quite as anxious to get him out of my house as you are."

"My child! I will relieve your mind on that point immediately. It is not my child I want. If your sister wants to play foster-mother, she is quite welcome to him. When I think of it," she began slowly to draw off her gloves, "Miss Wentworth has really done me a great favor."

"Oblige me then," Enoch's voice was full of cold indifference, "by getting down to business as quickly as possible. You must be gone before my sister comes in."

"Indeed." The actress looked up into his face with an insolent smile. "Why should we hurry? I want to ask you a few questions. I understand you are writing a new play." She turned to glance at the litter of manuscript on his desk. "Is there a part in it for me?"

"I have not begun to place parts yet."

"Ah!" She watched him with calm scrutiny. "How is it coming along? Will it be as big a go as 'The House' has been?"

"Is it any of your business?"

"Probably not; still, I am interested. I have been wondering," she spoke slowly, as if thinking aloud, "if it can possibly come up to the expectations of the public. A second play is often such a—rotter."

"What in thunder are you driving at?" asked Enoch fiercely.

She sprang to her feet and faced him. There was a malevolent sneer in her face.

"My opinion is that anything you could do would be a rotter."

"Why?"

Zilla Paget drew one hand from her muff and pulled out a few sheets of crumpled paper. She laid them on the table, smoothing them carefully with the blank side up. Suddenly she turned them over and placed both her hands firmly on the paper.

Enoch took a few steps forward and peered down through his glasses. His gait grew unsteady and his fingers gripped at the edge of the table. A purplish flush swept over his cheeks, then he became ghastly pale. His very lips grew white. There were gray hollows about his eyes like the shadows which creep into a face after death. His mouth moved, but he did not utter a word, because his tongue touched dry lips.

"I knew you would understand," murmured the woman.

Wentworth's hands sprang at her wrists like the grip of a wild beast snatching at its prey.

"Don't," entreated the actress. "You hurt terribly. You do not know how strong you are. Besides—you are foolish, horribly foolish. If you should tear this, it is nothing but Exhibit A. There are hundreds of sheets where it came from. And let me tell you—they are where you won't find them."

Wentworth unclasped her wrists, but his eyes were blazing with murderous fury. He turned with a quick gesture to the wall behind him. Against a rug of Oriental matting hung a collection of savage weapons. The woman watched him with cool unconcern. He seemed to be searching rapidly with his eyes for something. He laid his hand upon a long thin dagger. Here and there its blade had rusted to blackness, but its edge was deadly keen. He jabbed the point of it into his blotting pad. It curled over lithely, as a Ferrara does. Then he glanced at the woman beside the table. His eyes were glittering with the bloodthirsty passions of the primitive man.

COPELAND'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

Is a medicine—not a serum. Moreover, it is a medicine with a record. It has won cases of consumption given up as hopeless by doctors and specialists. Ask for the record of David Warnock's case, one of the most striking illustrations of its power. So desperate was Mr. Warnock's condition that the specialist called in by his doctor said that he was past all hope of recovery and could not live more than 8 or 10 days. To-day, Mr. Warnock is alive and well; still living in Toronto. At the lowest ebb of his illness, he weighed only 87 lbs., and within four months of that time he had regained his normal weight of 153 lbs. The facts of that case are not confined to ourselves, but can be corroborated by a dozen or more independent witnesses.

In the same manner as this medicine has won severe cases of consumption, it has proved most effective in stubborn cases of chronic bronchitis; which had resisted for over 30 years all that medical men and other medicine could do for them.

A letter from a well-known resident of the east side of Toronto will serve to show how beneficial this medicine is for bronchitis. It reads as follows:

Mr. W. R. Copeland:

Dear Sir.—For some time past I have been thinking that it is my duty to write and tell you what a boon your medicine has been to me. I have suffered with what medical men call Chronic Bronchitis for over 30 years, and have had pneumonia twice, being treated by some of our best physicians, and have never got anything to do me the same good as your Consumption Cure.

I would like to recommend your medicine to every one suffering with throat, bronchial or lung troubles. I am sure it has been a blessing to me, and will be to any who try it. You can do as you see fit with this letter.

Yours sincerely,
(Sgd.) E. FLESHER.
25 Howland Road, Toronto.

"Copeland's Cure for Consumption" has been on the market now for three years. During which time hundreds of letters have been received from all classes of people telling us how benefited they have been by its use.

You have a bad cold!

Then listen! Cold attacks the lungs and the breathing passages. To cure it you need to get at these organs direct. Ordinary cough mixtures and syrups do not touch the lungs, but go direct to your stomach, which is not ailing. Peps, on the contrary, go direct to the very seat of the trouble.

Peps are tablets containing essences and medicinal ingredients so prepared that when placed upon the tongue they immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the inflamed air passages to the lungs, direct.

Peps medicine takes the form of healing vapor, and cures colds, coughs, bronchitis and lung troubles, just as living in Pine woods and breathing Pine-laden air prevents consumption and cures chest weakness. Tightness across the chest, pain between the shoulders, hacking cough, sore throat, asthma and bronchitis are the ailments which, in particular, Peps have been designed to cure. Peps will soon end your bad cold.

Testimonials for Peps have been given by members of the Canadian Parliament, doctors, lawyers, eminent Canadian musicians; all going to prove that Peps have been found a cure for throat and chest trouble, often when other remedies had entirely failed.

FREE TRIAL—Cut out this article, and mail it, with 1c stamp (for return postage) to Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto, and we will send you a free trial package of Peps. All druggists and stores sell Peps, 50c box or 3 for $1.25. See the name Peps (four letters only) before buying

Prisoners Sang German Songs

Even Though in Bonds the Dogged National Spirit Cannot be Subdued

Forty German prisoners of war were brought to the city from Montreal yesterday and lodged in Fort Henry. The prisoners did not seem to mind that detention in the slightest for when leaving Montreal they waved farewells through the car windows to the crowd on the station platform, and sang their patriotic airs as if they meant them, to the accompaniment of a wheezy mouth organ.

A special day coach had been attached to the rear of the Kingston train, and into this the prisoners were herded, while the soldiers stood guard on both sides of the train.

The prisoners were not all seated before one of their number produced a mouth organ and started to play. Then his compatriots joined in the chorus of "In the shade of the old apple tree," but as the audience on the platform grew, despite the activity of the station poice, the Germans warmed to their work and started in on patriotic anthems.

"O Vaterland," "Die Wacht am Rhein," and others followed in steady succession until the train left.

The men arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and are now confined in Fort Henry.

Major Date, provost marshall of Montreal came to Kingston in charge of the prisoners.

SPRINGBROOK

What was known for years as the McKenna Hotel, was destroyed by fire last Wednesday morning. It was the first building put up in Springbrook, and was built forty-four years ago, and was occupied as a hotel until seven years ago. The fire started from the kitchen chimney on the west side of the building. A high wind blowing from the northwest caused the flames to spread so rapidly that nothing could be saved from the upper storey. Most of the stuff on the ground floor was taken out in fairly good shape, but their wearing apparel and bedding, which was all upstairs, was destroyed. The house was owned by Mrs. S. Bird, who occupied a part of the building, and her son-in-law, Mr. Tom Morgan, lived in the other part. The total insurance on the building and contents was $1,300. This is the third disastrous fire in Springrook in the last six months.

Messrs. T. C. McConnell, N. White and Tom Moore are in the back country deer hunting.

The boys of the Sunday School gave a Hallowe'en entertainment in the I.O.F. hall, which kept them from playing their usual pranks.

POULTRY RAISING ON THE FARM

Demand oor Output Rapidly Increasing—Farm has Special Advantages for the Work

Of the many get-rich-quick schemes there is perhaps none more delusive than that of poultry raising oon paper, and yet, with the proper facilities and applied intelligence, possibly as handsome returns can be hand from poultry raising as from any other industry in proportion to the amount of capital invested and the readiness with which results can be obtained. As a side line for the boys and girls on the farm, poultry raising offers great opportunities. The value of the eggs as a food is gradually but surely being recognized with the result that the market for eggs is rapidly increasing. This means that in future good prices for poultry products are sure to be realized.

Recent experiments have shown that flocks with unlimited range, such as they usually have on the farm, have given greater profits per fowl than flocks that were confined. The poultry house should be dry, free from draughts, and well ventilated, but need not be an expensive structure, as was once thought necessary. With better systems of marketing the products, and with plenty of reliable information regarding the business, now within the easy reach of all contemplating taking it up, there is no reason why there should not be a development in poultry raising in keeping with its importance. Splendid bulletins on the subjects may be obtained from the Dominion Department of Agriculture and from the various Provincial Departments.—F.C.N.

TSINGTAU SURRENDERS

Germany Has Lost Her Last Foothold Outside the Fatherland.

Anglo-Japanese Force Occupies the Middle Fort at Heavy Cost In Casualties, Taking Two Hundred Prisoners—Governor Then Capitulates—Siege Has Been a Hard Task For Land and Sea Forces.

TOKIO, Nov. 7.—It is officially announced that the German fortress of Tsingtau has surrendered to the Japanese and British forces.

The first step in bringing about the surrender of the fortress occurred at midnight, when the infantry charged and occupied the middle fort of the first line of defence. In this operation they took 200 prisoners.

The capture of Tsingtau loses to Germany her last foot of possessions on the Asiatic mainland as well as her last strategic position outside of the German empire in Europe. For nearly three months the German garrison, amounting to about 7,000 men, has held out against the land and sea attacks of the Japanese and certain British detachments of both white and Indian troops that found themselves in China at the outbreak of the war. What the losses of the garrison have been are not known, but the official Japanese and British reports have indicated that Tsingtau has been taken at heavy cost of men on the part of the allies.

The operations in this isolated far eastern theatre of the war have been reduced to a scale of some 200 square miles, as compared with the whole continent of Europe, but on that account they have been none the less interesting. Aeroplanes and all other accompaniments of modern warfare have figured in both the Japanese and the German operations.

The number of the expeditionary forces has never been officially divulged, but it is said to have been upwards of 3,000 men. A British detachment, consisting of some 800 men of South Wales Borderers and 400 Indian Sikhs, under command of Brig.-Gen. Nathaniel W. Bonardiston, commander of the north China forces, was at their head, and is said to have formed a part of the centre of the Japanese line in the investment of Tsingtau. Fighting continued from the middle of September intermittently until the fall of the fortress yesterday. During this period both the German and the Japanese warships and aeroplanes engaged in the bombardment of each other's positions. In one of the most severe of these engagements on Oct. 1 it was announced that the Japanese loss was 1,700 killed and 800 wounded. It was then reported that the general would await the arrival of the siege guns before continuing hostilities. The German casualties were said to be very small. On Oct. 17 the cruiser Takachiho was blown up by the German torpedo boat S-90. The Germans had five forts exclusively for shore defences.

No French In Cathedral.

ROME, Nov. 7.—The Pope has received from Cardinal Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, an emphatic denial of the reports that the Cathedral of Rheims has been used by French troops for military purposes.

The cardinal says he has personally ascertained that the cathedral has not been used as an observation post. He states that no guns have been placed near it and no soldiers have been employed in its vicinity.

Dinner Under False Pretences.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—(Via London.)—A newspaper of Ansbach, Bavaria, prints a letter from a post in the field, dated Oct. 28, in which the writer mentions attending a dinner on the previous evening to celebrate the return of two aviators from the vicinity of London who had dropped bombs near Dover.

An estate of $54,459.31 was left by the late Dr. William Saunders, C.M.G., for 25 years director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, who died in London, Ont., on Sept. 13.

A despatch from Tsinan, in Shantung Province, China, says the Japanese forces before Tsingtau, the fortified position of the German territory of Kiaochow, have destroyed 6 German guns and captured 800 prisoners.

JAROSLAY HAS FALLEN GREATEST VICTORY OF WAR

Capture of Galician Fortress Is One of a Series of Russian Successes Which Complete the Defeat of the Germans Along a 300-Mile Front—Wirballen Alone Blocks Slav Advance Through East Prussia.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Grand Duke Nicholas has wired Gen. Joffre that the Russians have won the greatest victory of the war.

Advices from other sources convey the same information. The Town of Jaroslav, 17 miles from Przemysl, the Galicia fortress which has been besieged for many weeks, has fallen, the Russians taking 5,000 prisoners. Jaroslav was taken in the early days of the war by the Czar's forces and then evacuated for strategic reasons.

Wirballen is now declared to be the only strong fortress which bars the advance of the Russians in East Prussia. A strong flanking movement is now in progress in the zone protected by Wirballen, and there is some likelihood of the German forces there being completely enveloped.

The Austrian army which came up to the relief of the corps disputing the western bank of the River San had a terrible experience in penetrating the passes of the Carpathians, which are filled with snow.

On the centre the Czar's cohorts are massing for a drive against the main German forces on the Silesian frontier.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

The correspondent of The Times has sent a long message to his paper, covering operations in the east. He says, in part:

"Victory all along the line is today's news from the commander-in-chief and from his staff and line. Not only on the battlefront on the Vistula itself, some 200 miles long, but likewise on the front designated as East Prussia, over a whole expanse exceeding 400 miles in a straight line, the German hordes are beaten, defeated and despairing.

"The retreat is most marked as a point where the highest and most vital interests of the Germans required continued defence, namely on their right flank, where alone there was any chance of assisting their armies beaten in Poland.

"Once more in German territory, thereby cutting off all connection between the East Prussian front and the retreating armies, now nearing the frontiers of Poland, the Russians have taken Bakalarzhevo, selected for practical reasons by the Germans for stubborn attacks.

"The Germans are now approaching the Polish frontiers. Their rear guard has been beaten out of Kola, still further east by south. The Russians have thrown the Germanic armies past Kielce, capturing 600 men and all their maxims.

"It seems that the Germans now have the bitter choice between abandoning East Prussia to insure a strong defence of the direct route to Berlin and endeavoring to hold everything at the risk of losing all."

According to information from Petrograd, Wirballen is the only obstacle to a general advance of the whole Russian front into East Prussia. The Germans, it is declared, soon will be forced to evacuate, being threatened by a flanking movement of the Russians.

The backward movement of the remainder of the German line left this point without sufficient support.

Austrian troops are pushing through the passes of the Carpathians to support the Austrians who are falling back before the Russian advance in the region west of the San river. A correspondent of Lemberg states that these troops have been exhausted by the struggle through the snow-filled mountain passes and are incapable of a serious resistance.

The Russian War Office yesterday claimed that the Germans are retreating precipitately into East Prussia with the Russian armies harassing them at every point. The cold weather has apparently demoralized the Germans and many of them are reported surrendering without a fight. At several points the Russians have already penetrated the Prussian border, and some of the reports indicate that the German left wing has been isolated from the main body of the troops.

Preparations go on with absolute confidence that by 1915 peace will prevail to an extent that will permit the attention of the world to be focused on San Francisco.

High Treason Charged.

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—James Rowens, a Russian, was committed for trial by a jury in the Assize Court by Magistrate Denison in the Police Court yesterday on a charge of high treason. Crown Attorney Corley alleged that Rowens tried to get thirty Austrians into the United States. T. H. Lennox, counsel for defence, agreed to allow the case to go to a jury without the preliminary hearing in the Police Court.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—The following announcement is given to the press from official sources:

"Germany's warning of retaliation in case German subjects between the ages of 17 and 55, who are now detained in England, were not treated differently before Nov. 5, has been unanswered by the British Government. Therefore the German Government has ordered the detention of all British of similar ages who are residing in Germany.

"This measure is not only for English subjects, but soon will be extended to British colonials, unless Germans living in British colonies are left unmolested."

Canadians Have Too Much Money.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Some development is likely over the difference in the pay of the Canadian soldier and his brother in England. The Canadian gets pretty well three times as much as the British and obviously has so much more to spend. Many in authority are doubtful whether this altogether is an unmixed blessing, especially as leave has been granted so far very generously. It may be that arrangements will be made whereby payment of the full pay will be deferred the soldiers, instead being paid only a proportion of the amount due.

Ottoman Officers Freebooting.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Merchandise of every conceivable value is being seized by officers of the Ottoman Government in cities of Syria under the general orders of mobilization of troops, according to reports from missionaries made public yesterday by the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian Church.

"Under the order of mobilization," the board states, "unwilling conscripts are being gathered, each soldier being required to bring with him from his home eight days' rations, with a certain amount of money. The local officials have turned the orders to commandeer horses, mules, food and fodder into a most wicked and unbridled system of plunder."

Czar Reaches Warsaw.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.—Emperor Nicholas has arrived at Warsaw, and has personally congratulated the Siberian troops for their victory over the German forces that attempted to take the Polish capital.

Kaiser's Relative Dead.

German Steamer Blown Up.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 7.—A large German steamer has been blown up south of the Danish Island of Langeland, in the great belt by a mine said to have been placed by the Germans. A number of her crew were lost.

During the past fortnight two German trawlers and one German steamer have been destroyed in this region. There are no Danish mines in the waters where the disasters have occurred, as they were gathered up by a Danish steamer some time ago.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

GOOD HOPE IS LOST.

Monmouth, However, Is Believed To Be Beached on Chilean Coast.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The following official statement was issued last night:

"The Admiralty now has received trustworthy information about the action on the Chilean coast.

"During Sunday, Nov. 1, the Good Hope, Monmouth and Glasgow came up with the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau, Leipzig and Dresden. Both squadrons were steaming in a strong wind and a considerable sea.

"The German squadron declined action until sunset, when the light gave it an important advantage. The action lasted an hour.

"Early in the action both the Good Hope and the Monmouth took fire, but fought until nearly dark, when a serious explosion occurred on the Good Hope and she foundered.

"The Monmouth hauled off at dark, making water badly and appeared unable to steam away. She was accompanied by the Glasgow, which had, during the whole action, fought the Leipzig and Dresden.

"On the enemy again approaching the wounded Monmouth, the Glasgow, which also was under fire from one of the armored cruisers, drew off.

"The enemy then attacked the Monmouth again, but with what result is not known. The Glasgow is not extensively damaged and has very few casualties.

"Neither the Otranto nor the Canopus was engaged.

"Reports received by the Foreign Office from Valparaiso state that a belligerent warship is ashore on the Chilean coast and it is possible that this may prove to be the Monmouth. Energetic measures are being taken on this assumption to rescue the survivors.

"The action appears to the Admiralty to have been most gallantly contested, but in the absence of the Canopus the enemy's preponderance in force was considerable."

CARE REQUIRED IN STORING POTATOES

Potatoes should be thoroughly dry and should be stored in a cool, well-ventilated cellar or storeroom which is perfectly dark. Do not pile the potatoes in heaps on the floor or against the wall; slats should be nailed about one inch apart and four inches from the wall; a temporary floor should be laid about four inches above the permanent floor, with openings between the boards. This will allow the air to circulate through the pile. Large piles should have ventilators running through them. These should be made of wood, with slats on two sides for openings.

The temperature of the cellar or storehouse should be kept as nearly as possible at from 33 to 35 degrees. The cooler potatoes are kept without freezing, the better. If too warm, their value for seed is lessened, as they sprout too early.—J.F.

ZAM-BUK CURES PILES

READ THESE STRONG PROOFS

Mr. Henry Foggers, of Poulamond, N.S., writes: "I suffered terribly with Piles, and could not find anything to give me relief until I tried Zam-Buk. Aftering using this balm I am completely cured. I consider Zam-Buk the finest salve on the market."

Mr. W. J. Donovan, of New Edinburgh, Ont., says: "For two years I suffered from bleeding piles, the pain was very intense. I tried numerous so-called cures, but without effect. At last I tried Zam-Buk, and am glad to say that perseverance with this ointment has resulted in absolute cure."

Mr. H. E. Hill, Shevlin Man., writes: "I had suffered a great deal with Piles and had tried many remedies, but without effect. Having tried a sample of Zam-Buk, and being encouraged by the results, I perservered; it worked like magic, effecting a complete cure."

These are but a few of the many letters received from people who have ended their suffering by Zam-Buk. Hundreds have proved that nothing will end the dull gnawing pain, like Zam-Buk. Its rich herbal essences quickly end the inflammation of the hemorrhoid veins and restores them to their normal condition.

Zam-Buk is best for piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, chapped hands, cold sores, rheumatism, sciatica and all injuries and skin diseases.

Every home needs Zam-Buk; it is purely herbal, and can be used for baby or grandparent with the same gratifying results.

Refuse all substitutes; insist on having Zam-Buk; there is nothing "just as good." At all druggists and stores, or postpaid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price, 50c. box, 3 boxes $1.25. For free trial box send your name and address, this advertisement, name of paper, and 1c stamp.

Grand Jury Makes Presentment

The Grand Jury in connection with the High Court of Justice yesterday made the following presentment:—

To His Lordship, the Honorable Mr. Justice Hodgins.

We, the Grand Jurors of the County of Hastings, at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario, High Court Division, beg leave to report as follows:

We are deeply grateful to Your Lordship for your patriotic address.

We most cordially concur in the sentiments expressed by Your Lordship concerning the position of the British Empire in the great war, and the duty of the Dominion of Canada and all Canadians to the Empire, in this conflict. We are glad that our county has responded nobly to the call of the Empire by generous contributions of money and materials, and most of all do we rejoice in the response made by so many of our young men, who have enlisted for service in our armies, and we believe that this community is prepared to make further sacrifices that the right may prevail.

We reciprocate Your Lordship's congratulations that the criminal docket has been so light. In disposing of the only case coming before us Your Lordship's clear explanation of the law enlightened our labors, and we desire to record the fair and courteous assistance rendered us by the counsel for the Crown.

We visited the gaol and found everything in a neat and clean condition, reflecting credit upon Mr. Ketcheson, Gaoler, and Mr. Colling, Turnkey.

The School for the Deaf was visited and Dr. Coughlin, Superintendent, extended to us every courtesy and conducted us through the different school rooms, and the work being taught was demonstrated to us. We were also conducted through the two new dormitories for the boys and girls, which are a much needed improvement for the accommodation of the children attending this Institution. Your Grand Jurors feel they cannot place too high an estimate on the work carried on at this School for the Deaf, and we desire to express our thanks to Dr. Coughlin and his efficient staff for the kindness shown us.

We visited the Children's Shelter and found everything in good condition, and the children neat and clean. The present Shelter is not properly constructed for the purpose, but we consider there is ample room to enlarge the present Shelter and make some necessary changes in the present building and equipment, and would recommend that the County of Hastings, the City of Belleville, the Town of Trenton and the Children's Aid Society take the necessary steps and renovate the present building and construct a new addition and Your Grand Jurors consider the present location a satisfactory one if these suggestions are carried into effect.

The House of Refuge was visited and we found everything in a first class condition. There are 23 inmates in this institution, all well cared for and contented. The County of Hastings is to be congratulated on the good work being carried on at this Home, and much credit is due Mr. Wilson, Superintendent, Mrs. Wilson, Matron, and the efficient staff for the work being done.

We visited the Belleville Hospital and found everything in a neat and sanitary condition. Much credit is due Miss Greene, Superintendent, for the excellent way that this Hospital is being conducted.

We desire to thank Sheriff Morrison for his many kindnesses extended to us in the performance of our duties.

We cannot close without placing on record our appreciation of Your Lordship's activities in the matter of comforts for the armies and navies of the Empire, and we commend to our people Your Lordship's appeal for apparel so much needed to protect the heroic men of the navy in the North Sea under Sir John Jellicoe.

ANGUS NICOLSON,
Belleville, Nov. 6, 1914. Foreman.

His Lordship said he received the presentment with pleasure and he was especially pleased at the sentiments of loyalty expressed therein. Canada was doing its part in sending many to the front and this city and county had contributed its quota, no less than three members of the Bar going with the contingents. That the jury had done their duty well was apparent from the report made. They had visited the various public institutions, including one that had of recent years come under Provincial aid, namely, the Children's Shelter. He would direct that copies of the presentment be sent to the proper parties, namely, the Minister of Education of the Province and the Attorney-General.

The Jury were then discharged.

Interesting Debate At High School

shows what an evil liquor selling is. A great many of the German atrocities committed during the war are due to drink.

Now is the best time for reducing licenses, when food is scarce, food prices are high and the outlook for the laborer gloomy. Money should go for food and not for drink, and if the licenses were reduced the temptation would be less.

If there is any money to spare it is better to give it to the families made destitute by war than to help support the licensed houses.

If now some of the licenses were done away with the results would be better and later on people would be willing to abolish all.

The arguments of the Negative supporter were: In 1882 there were 29 licensed bar and 8 liquor stores, making a total of 37 liquor selling places. Now there are 15 bars and 3 liquor stores. All loyal Bellevillians desire to attract here tourists and persons seeking a beautiful place for a summer vacation. The hotels have conformed to Government rules and nearly all have the required number of rooms. They now attract commercial travellers, who wish to have the comforts of home. If the accommodation was not good they woul have to go to Kingston or Toronto, thus weakening the commercial interest of the city and country.

If the licenses in Belleville were reduced the revenue would be reduced. The License duty$500 for each hotel is divided half and half between the Government and municipality. Now a revenue of $8,500 is taken in; reducing them to four would mean a loss of $6,500 to both or $3,250 to the city and the rise of 1 mill on a dollar, which would affect more people than when the bars are not reduced. The tax is high enough now.

To reduce the licenses would not decrease the sale of liquor. The monoply would go to four, who would become rich whereas before there would be eighteen comfortable families. If the license is taken away the board will become poor, the hotel will go down until people will not patronize it and it will have to be closed.

It would introduce Blind Pigs. The bars close at eleven, the stores at eight bit Blind Pigs keep open all hours and sell liquor all ways. It is better to drink at well regulated bars than in these places which are degrading and illegal.

The amount of drinking is not curtailed by leaving some licenses. No advantage is gained and the result would be larger bars and more help.

The Affirmative leader replied: Tourists want to go where it is quiet not to hotels. Why not have a house near the bay and rent rooms in it to tourists? Their trade would benefit the merchants.

When you get off the train it does not look well to see hotels directly in front of you.

You could destroy blind pigs with detectives and probably get more money from them than from the thirteen.

The best men would naturally keep the best hotels and it is better to have four good men than seventeen poor ones.

The Affirmative won by three votes.

MORE PREDICTIONS BY AN EX-GERMAN SPY

Dr. Graves Now Tells of Coming Invasion of England by Germany--Both by Air and Sea--30 Zeppelins and 375,000 Men to Cross the Channel--And London is to be Destroyed

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Dr. Armgaard Karl Graves, who says that, while a German spy in good standing, he gained past, present, and future knowledge of the European war denied to the uninitiated, came out with further predictions yesterday regarding the next developments in the international struggle. Last Sunday Dr. Graves predicted the destruction of the Suez Canal within a fortnight, and yesterday he foretold a further calamity for England—this being nothing less than an invasion of Great Britain by German troops and airships and the almost certain burning of London:

"London," said Dr. Graves yesterday "has been marked for destruction by Germany for a long time, and as it is the Germans' prime object to elimnate England from the present struggle as soon as possible, the attack on the capital city will begin before the month is out. Let me explain how this will be done.

"To my certain knowledge, Germany has built 500 or more steel sea-going barges of 500 tons burden each, and each capable of carrying 750 men with provision and munitions of war to last them for a month's campaign. These barges have been built in parts, and for years the parts have been concealed, with arms and armoments in German mobilization centres, notably at Stettin, Frank, Oder and Berlin. This has been possible because of the German way of doing things. Everything military that they construct is made in sections, one section being manufactured in one place and another in another, and even the workmen who make any part do not know what it is to be used for.

German Waterways Deepened.

"In addition to this, all of the waterways of Germany have deepened, so that these large barges may be navigated almost from one end of the country to the other. This deepening of channels, of course was in the interest of commerce, but the Government also was thinking of war when the work was done. The parts of the barges have now been assembled, and there is no doubt that the barges are ready for the dash across the English Channel. At least 375,000 men can be carried on them, and these men will be available when the time for the invasion comes.

"Simultaneously with the start of the barges for England a German fleet of at least thirty Zeppelins will sail across the Channel. Half of them will be held to protect the barges, which will be towed by powerful ocean-going tugs, and the other half will scatter over London. If the city refuses to surrender after an ultimatum has been delivered to it, these Zeppelins will drop bombs of a size and power of 42-centimeter shells and in addition containing chemicals that will set fire to anything inflammable near where they explode. The Zeppelins can start fires in London in a hundred different places within a half hour or so.

"And," Dr. Graves continued, "while the Zeppelines are bombarding London and the barges are carrying the army across the Channel, the German naval fleet will be keeping the English fleet in the North Sea busy. While England's fleet has been in the open water, standing the wear and tear of constant activity, Germany's fleet has been lying snugly in harbor and being prepared for the big sea fight. Furthermore Germany's ships have been built especially for service in the November storms of the North Sea, and England's have not. It is easy to see, therefore, that the German fleet will be able to prevent English warships from interfering with the transportation of soldiers on the barges.

Submarines to Control Channels.

"This disclosure of the plans of Germany explains the terrific fight that the Kaiser is making for control of the coast towns of France and Belgium. My confident prediction is that the Germans will soon gain the foothold on the coast they need, that within a fortnight a fleet of thirty German submarines will control the English Channel and guarantee a passage for the barges, and that between the 25th and 30th of this month the invasion of England will begin."

Asked why the German dirigibles had not done the damage in Antwerp foretold for London, Dr. Graves said as yet not a Zeppelin has been used in the war. The dirigibles used over Antwerp, he said, were of the Parseval tpye and were much smaller and less protected than the Zeppelins. Their purpose according to him, was simply for terrifying the Belgians and scouting purposes. When the Zeppelins get into action, he said, a new story of air fighting will be told.

London will not be protected from airships, Dr. Graves said, by darkness because the German General Staff has detailed charts of the city more complete than those in the office of the London Survey. With these charts and a compass any airship, the Doctor asserted, can go over any desired point of London.

A few other general assertions made by the former spy were that within six months Russia would cease fighting Germany, that Italy would never join the Allies, that England now held 33,000 Canadian troops in reserve in Great Britain for the defence of London, that—but as Dr. Graves was going on his press agent reminded him that he had better save some of his revelations for his lecture in Carnegie Hall for tonight.

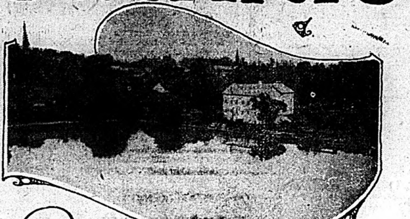
BEAUTIES OF ONTARIO



Bowmanville

Bowmanville—who that knows Canadian does not thrill when he or she reads the origin of the name. Prior to the Papineau-Mackenzie Rebellion in 1837, Bowmanville was known as Darlington Mills, the site on which this pretty and progressive town now stands being owned by an Irishman, John Burke. It was he that gave the first impetus to the laying of the foundations which have made Bowmanville one of the chief minor centres of industry and trade amongst the Lake Ontario towns on the route of the Canadian Pacific. He built saw mills and grist mills and established the first "general store" in Ontario in 1820, from which has evolved the idea of the modern "department" store.

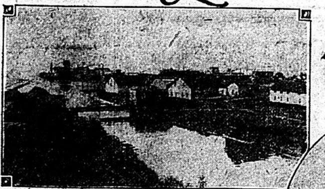
During the Papineau-Mackenzie Rebellion the prosperous village of Darlington Mills was not only to have its name changed but also to have a place in Canadian history as the first town that stood sturdily for the union of Canada. The change of name and the political significance of the town were brought about by a Scot named John Simpson, akin to the famous Sir Geo. Simpson, of the Hudson Bay Company.

It seems, from the records that John Simpson lived in Darlington Mills (later to be named through him Bowmanville) fifty-two years ago. When during a bitterly contested election at Newtonville, stones flew freely, and one man was killed. Simpson who was against the Papineau-Mackenzie faction, put himself at the head of "forty good men and true" and took the lead on the side of established government, and prevented the opposing faction from demolishing the polling booths. For that exploit, as if emulating the archers of olden days, sturdy and true, Darlington Mills was re-christened with the name it is now known—Bowmanville. In recognition of this yeoman service for the preservation of the union of Canada, John Simpson was made a Senator at the forming of the Confederacy in 1867.

An incident worth recording which gives a distinction to the town of Bowmanville, is the fact that while bearing its pioneer name, there was ground at the mills two barrels of flour, which were sent to the great London Exhibition in Crystal Palace, London, in 1851 and which received a prize.

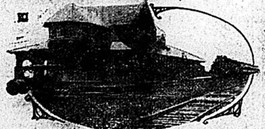
Like all Ontario towns, Bowmanville is exceedingly picturesque—the streets are well shaded, the residences are distinguisd by their surrounding beautiful lawns and gardens. But from the point of view of modern town-making Bowmanville, though possessing a population of only four thousand is so progressive as to have 17 miles of granolithic pavement, a distinction which no other town of even greater size can boast of. Beauty lingers around the town in a score of different ways, in shade, in hill, in dell, and in placid lake and stream. Industries too flourish in Bowmanville. In this respect it is one of the most thriving towns in Ontario, or, for that matter, in Canada. But above all else, Bowmanville is "a beauty spot," made memorable by historic associations.

Beauty Spots along the Lake Shore

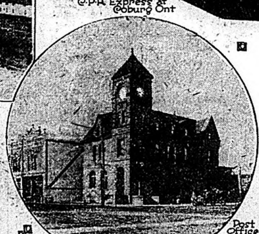


Harbour at Port Hope

C.P.R. Express at Cobourg Ont



Union Station - Belleville



Post Office Whitby Ont.

One of the chief features that give paramount importance and interest to the Lake Shore Line from Montreal to Toronto is that the route carries the travellers, whether business man or tourist, through a series of the prettiest and most picturesque towns and minor cities of the Garden Province of the Great Dominion. For nothing makes travelling so pleasurable as to have the eyes perpetually feasting on a varying panarama of natural beauty spot, pretty towns, beautiful woodlands, fertile fields and placid lakes and rivers.

In these respects, the territory through which runs the Lake Shore Line of the Canadian Pacific is unsurpassed elsewhere in Canada. In town, city, woodland, field and waterside is to be seen the opalescent or quiet beauty of Nature as distinguished from the gigantic grandeur and overwhelming majesty of the Canadian Rockies. In short, the "Beauty Spots" along the Lake Shore Line are idyllic; and besides the possess ancient historic associations and interesting local traditions.

Take Belleville, for instance, which literally nestles at the mouth of the Moira River, on the Bay of Quinte, one of the most charming sheets of water in Canada Belleville is a prosperous town. But Nature has it so ideally located that the tourist continually enjoys every varying and delightful views of land and water. The town has handsome residences, fine public buildings, and well-shaded streets. It is the centre of a fertile fruit and grain growing district. Historically Belleville is noted as the locale of the first brick house built in Canada (1724), nad earlier, on its site, Samuel de Champlain, spent a lonely and hazardous winter.

From the point of view of the tourist seeking engaging and restful scenery, or of the summer resorter who wants inviting surroundings and opportunities for bathing, boating and fishing Port Hope and Cobourg have distinct both in themselves and in their environments. Port Hope is picturesquely situated in a deep ravine at the confluence of the Ganaska River and Lake Ontario. It is fronted by one of the finest harbors in Canada, and possesses a superior bathing beach, and life-boat service. Within easy reach of the Kawartha Lake District, Port Hope is a centre for whose who enjoy sport with the rod and gun.

Cobourg, also a picturesque and prosperous town on the Lake Shore line, is well known as a fashionable summer resort, for wealthy Americans whose handsome residences on the outskirts of the town are the admiration of tourists. A large car and passenger ferry runs between Cobourg and Charlotte, N.Y. Whitby, overlooking Lake Ontario, though possessing industries, is essentially a pretty residential town. It is within easy reach of Toronto, 30 miles distant and the highway between the Queen City and Whitby is a favorite route for autoists.

There are a score of other beautiful towns along the Lake Shore Line, but the brief description of the foregoing will serve to suggest what lovely scenery and engaging resorts lie along the route to delight, rest and invigorate the traveller, whether business man or tourist.

SAYS HE PREDICTED WAR OVER FIVE YEARS AGO

English Astrologer, However, is Satisfied that End of Conflict Will Soon be Ended--Has Faith in His Forecast--Alisteir Crowley Says Revolutions are in the Air and That Germany Will Be Defeated

(Journal of Commercse, Montreal)

For a place of its size Kingston probably has at the present time more soldiers drilling and preparing for active service than any other city in Canada.

The streets are full of men in uniform, and everywhere the people are talking of war. The impression of a recent vistor to the Limestone City, was that everyone had some relation or friend already at the front or going with the next contingent. On the street cars one continually hears: "Have you heard from so and so?" "No! but I expect to see him shortly as I am going to the front with the next contingent."

In many families there are brothers who are going to the front in contingents, that is to say if there were three brothers, one went with the first contingent, another is going with the second and another with the third.

The fact that Kingston has been the centre of the training for officers and cadets has always made the town a most military one. As well as the infantry regiments which have been recruiting for overseas service, the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery is getting its full compliment of men, although it is not thought that these will be sent to the front yet. The university of Toronto played Queen's on Saturday in a very exciting football game but the remarkable part about the match and afterwards, as well as during the time between periods the subject of conversation was the war. The same subject was eagerly thrashed out in the Corriders of the Frontenac Hotel, by the Varsity boys, and most of the football players talked of donning a more serious uniform, as soon as their college studies were over in the spring.

The usual activities among the cadets of the Royal Military college in athletics are entirely absent this year. Many of the cadets have already gone to the front, and those remaining are too busy studying to get their commissions to bother much about football and other similar games.

Many have already gone to the front and there is not one who is now studying who does not expect to see active service before the war is over.

The people in Kingston seem to have plenty of money or may be it is because they are very patriotic.

The retail shops were crowded on Saturday afternoon with busy shoppers, and one would hardly believe that hard times' stories had reached the city.

Another fact that would strike the visitor to Kingston would be the comparative scarcity of out-of-works and tramps. Although statistics of the Kingston police department might point to the fact that there are more unemployed in the city than usual, certainly they are not much in evidence. A healthy looking man begging for a meal or a night's lodging would meet with little sympathy and would probably be told by the first patriotic citizen he met to go to the first recruiting officer and enlist, and he would get food, clothing and a place in which to sleep.

It is not even necessary for a man who wants to join the army to enlist for overseas service as the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery are even now calling for recruits to sign on for three years' service in the Canadian Permanent Force.

Tintypes in The Long Ago

(By Maurice D. Lynch)

Every time I see a kodak I think how fortunate present-day boys and girls are, for they'll be privileged old they grow old to call up through the medium of fine snapshot photos their early activities and the chums of their youth.

Among my most treasured keepsakes are a few tintypes taken long ago. No money could buy them. Some of them were taken in the company of friends who have since passed away, and as I gaze upon the well remembered faces, memory leaps back to kidhood days.

Lucky youngsters, who nowadays can have first-class snaps of themselves taken as they dive off a springboard, or vault with a pole, or run a fot race, or appear in any of the hundred activities of youth, should think of their dads and mothers in their early days.

For, be it known, hand cameras are of comparatively recent origin. Whenever we Boys of the Old Brigade felt real sporty—and had the price, we went to a gallery and a tintype "taken." "Wrenched" would be a better word to describe the process.

It was quite a ceremony, or ordeal—whichever way you happened to look at it. First you took your position, and then Tommy McCormick (Tommy was our favorite in those days) would bring up behind you an instrument of torture known as a headrest. This really should have been called a "neck squeezer", for he would kindly, but firmly, sink its iron fingers into the back of your neck until you thought of how the people of Old Salem treated scolding wives. The Rest was supposed to keep your head still. It kept your head still, all right, but it had another and darker purpose. In reality, it was to take the conceit out of you in later life. Oh, I know! The McCormicks and other photographers of old Belleville would indignantly deny that they had any such intention, but I know what I know. Have you ever noticed, when looking over old tintypes in the family album, how many of the subjects seemed to be affected with stiff neck? Well, that was McCormick's or Brock's or some other photographer's headrest getting in its work. I defy any grown man to get chesty while showing an old tintype of himself, taken when he, apparently, was suffering from a bad case of wry neck.

The photographers had several tintype stunts that we used to think pretty nifty. 'Member those where you were supposed to be sitting in a little two-wheeled cart driving a little donkey? Another favorite trick was to turn your coats inside out and then assume scarecrow positions and have a rare view picture taken. Then, of course, every crowd would have tintypes taken showing just a raw of heads, oneabove the other. The first boy would sit down on the floor; the next one would kneel behind him with his chin on the first one's head the next one would crouch a little, and the last one would stand up straight. No use talking, we used to be "de-vils in our home town." Dressing up as chimney sweeps and having tintypes taken was the limit of recklessness, and such a picture was always regarded with great envy by those less daring.

I remember one dear old chap, now gone out, whom we dressed up as a Highlander. We used a plaid shawl for kilts and a whitewash brush for a sporran. The Scotch cap was easy to get in those days when every kid wore them. That picture made a great hit and was considered a classic around the Young Conservative Club.

If you and your girl had your tintype taken together (and you were a nervy youth if you did that) then it was considered particularly clever if you exchanged hats the while the picture was being taken. Many a father has had a hard time making little Willie believe he was always a serious-minded boy when he was young, after little Willie say a tintype of dad looking self-conscious and foolish under a girl's hat of ancient fashion.

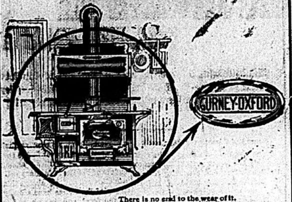
A Stove-Mark of Great Renown



There is no end to the wear of it.
In results, it nears perfection.

THIS is the mark of a splendid stove—"Gurney-Oxford." It is prominent on the oven door of every stove made by the Gurney Foundry Co.

There are individual Gurney-Oxford Stoves that have been in the service of one family for generations. They are big, heavy, handsome stoves of gray iron and steel. There is no end to the wear of them.

And this year the Gurney-Oxford nears perfection, because of its many splendid points of which these are the most important:

> The Gurney-Oxford "Economizer" (not to be had on any other stove) is the greatest saver of fuel and the most convenient method of regulating the fire that has ever been devised. The fire in the Gurney-Oxford is supported on grates that supply abundance of air, so that the coal does not smoulder, but burns, leaving clean, white ashes—not clinkers. Clinkers mean waste
>
> The heat goes directly to the Gurney-Oxford oven, where it should go—over and under and around the oven—heating it evenly in every corner. The heat must do its work before it can get near the chimney.

These, briefly, are the devices that make the Gurney-Oxford the most perfect piece of stove mechanism ever designed.

Because it never fails in its work, because it is economical of fuel and cooks "like a charm," the Gurney-Oxford is renowned in thousands of Canadian homes.

TESTED RECIPES

Baked Beans

Soak 4 cups beans over night in cold water. In the morning add fresh cold water and cook slowly until the skins begin to burst. Pour off water, and turn beans in bean pot or jar. Bury in the beans ½ pound of fat salt pork. To 1 cup boiling water add 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon molasses, 3 tablespoons sugar, and pour over beans. Add enough boiling water to cover beans, and more if needed during cooking. Cover the bean jar and bake slowly from 6 to 8 hours. Mustard may be added if the flavor is preferred. This quantity should serve eight persons.

Lentil Croquettes

Use split peas if desired. Soak ½ cup lentils or split peas over night. Cook with one stalk of celery until soft, or about two hours. Drain and press through a sieve. Add 1 cup stale breadcrumbs, 1 egg, ¾ tablespoon melted butter, a few drops onion juice, and salt and pepper. Cool and shape into croquettes. Roll in crumbs, then in egg, then in crumbs again, and fry in deep fat.

Pork Left-overs

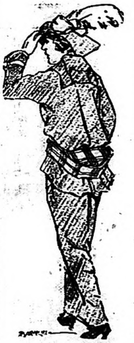
Cold roast pork, in the estimation of many persons, is far better than when served hot. Cut in small thin slices and serve with apple sauce.

The tender white meat of a roast of pork may be made into a salad which many cannot tell from chicken salad. Combine with celery and a few olives and use any cooked dressing and cream.

One cup of diced cold pork added to the gravy that was left over (after carefully removing fat) may be heated and turned over toast and served for breakfast.

Pork Croquettes

Pork croquettes are most delicious if made with a cup of mashed potatoes to each cup of diced pork. Mix together and add one or two drops of onion juice, a little minced pepper or pimento, and salt to taste. Use one-half cup of very thick sauce or pork gravy. Mix all together, form into shape and set in cold place for three or four hours. Slice and dip in eggs and roll in fine bread crumbs an hour before ready to fry. Drop in wire basket and fry in deep fat until golden brown. Serve with baked apples.



Bustle Idea For Coat

In this costume one gets the bustle idea. The skirt is of dark bluish-purple duvetine made in peg top shape and the coat is of a blouse effect with a box pleat coming from the neck in the back. The skirt of the coat is of blue and purple plaid charmeuse with a ruffle of the duvetine and an upstanding bias piece of the plaid making a loose belt dropping very low at the back. The front of the coat is a belted blouse and the collar is of the duvetine.

A Wash-day Hint

When washing and rinsing colored materials add a teaspoonful of Epsom salts to each gallon of water, and even the most delicate shades will neither fade nor run. Serge or merino dresses, which have been dyed black, can be safely washed in this way without any risk of the dye running.

When Cooking Fish

If when frying fish of any kind a little salt is sprinkled on the bottom of the pan when it is hot and the fat boiling, the fish can be easily turned without breaking in the least.

SOME HEALTHOGRAMS

Warn your child not to use the common drinking cup, the common towel or the common brush and comb. They are all means fo carrying disease and dirt.

The habit-forming time is the child time of life. Start your child with the right habits by seeing that he is betimes to school each morning. The laggard to school is the laggard to work in after years too often.

Physical health has a strong influence on character. That is one of the very vital reasons why it should be guarded with such care in the school life and the home life of the growing child.

Anæmia will be found among persons of all ages, but should be especially guarded against among school children. A proteid diet is required to overcome it. Red meat once a day, also eggs, milk, butter and cream, should be given. Fish, poultry, cracked wheat, potatoes, beans and fresh vegetables are allowed.

Suggest to the teacher to whom your boy or girl will go to school that it is the part of wisdom to have a thermometer in the room. Teach your child how to read it.

Children should be taught the significance of the fact that they can go without food for weeks, water for days, but not even minutes without air.

India Wants Canadian Ties

A Vancouver firm received from the Bengal and Northwestern Railway Co. of India an order for 160,000 creosoted railway ties. The specifications called for the best quality of seasoned Douglas fir, to be treated with 12 pounds of creosote per cubic foot, under specified temperature and pressure conditions. If the Douglas fir ties prove satisfactory for railway construction in India it is probable that other large orders for similar supplies from British Columbia will follow, and the creosoting industry of the province will be given a decided impetus from India.

As a Woman Thinks

If you are "too good," be sure you are not good enough.

Be glad of criticism. If you escape it you are not worth considering.

To Clean the Walls

A mop of cheese cloth strips, an inch and a half wide and eight inches long made fast to a light handle is the best thing for keeping a papered wall clean. Brush the paper well with it twice a month. Every spring and fall mix corn starch, whiting and powdered Fuller's earth in equal parts, dip the mop into the powder, and rub walls and ceiling well with it. Then shake all powder from the mop, cover it with a damp flannel. Go all over the wall again, wiping in long straight strokes.

LUNCHES FOR SCHOOL

How Careful Mothers Can Put up Dainty Meals For Children

Boxes, pails or baskets, whichever the children's lunch is packed in, should be thoroughly aired every night to keep them clean and odorless.

As paraffin or waxed paper is indispensable, it is well to lay in a good supply; this may be purchased by the pound from any stationer. Every article in the box should be wrapped in waxed paper to keep the luncheon neat and dainty.

Paper drinking cups which may be bought by the dozen, or an aluminum one for ten cents, should always be packed in the lunch box. The child who is daintily provided for at home is sure to be clean and dainty in her ways, and it is a great mistake not to accustom a child to clean and fastidious habits. A small thermos bottle or a jelly glass with a tight cover should be included for liquids. A dozen or two of paper napkins and the outfit is complete.

Try to vary the menu slightly every day. This can easily be done in the filling of the sandwiches. Sandwiches offer a splendid opportunity for using up left-over meat and vegetables, and often the day's sandwiches are determined by the left-overs in the larder, but remember that there are fillings which appeal especially to children and give them those for a change when possible.

Brown bread spread with maple or brown sugar, white bread sandwiches filled with butter and sugar sauce, marmalade, jelly, apple butter, date butter, or peanut butter, make a welcome change.

Whole wheat bread is especially nourishing and wholesome, and sandwiches made of this are delicious spread with orange marmalade.

Beside the sandwiches there should be some other good cold meats, or meat loaf, potato chips, fruit, hard boiled eggs, or a thermos bottle of soup. Then the dessert. This should be simple and wholesome—gingerbread, sponge, or some other nutritious cake or custard, rice pudding, blanc-mange, fruit jellies, or stewed fruits put all in a jelly glass.

And above all, whatever you have for the child, be sure there is enough of it. Do not forget that children need food for growth. The needs of a growing child cannot be satisfied by a luncheon that may be sufficient for a grown person.

MARTYRS TO BEAUTY

Female Loveliness May be Acquired If Not Bestowed by Nature

A famous man said recently that women were never as attractive as now in the history of the world.

And never did the average woman think so much of her appearance or practice so many artificial beautifying methods as at present.

Straightening the lines of the nose, is an operation that is done every day, and injecting paraffine to fill out the cheeks is also done every day in the surgical beauty parlors.

A minute piece of skin is taken from the forehead just over the eyebrows so that they are elevated. This is supposed to give a calm expression.

Every woman who patronizes the masseuse will stand to be mauled and hammered if she thinks her chin is doubling. Many women sit with their feet in very hot water every night for fifteen minutes, as that is supposed to draw the blood down from a red nose.

Wigs and false hair of every hue and powders of as many colors as the Indian squaw used add to the attractiveness of the modern beauty and the awful "skinning operation" is done day after day in the big cities. This is so painful that most women are kept under the influence of opiates for a few days until the new skin begins to form.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

If silver is to be stored away for some time, pack it with dry flour; it will remain untarnished.

When making coffee sprinkle a little salt on the coffee before pouring on boiling water, and the flavor will be wonderfully improved.

To keep cheese for some time, and prevent it becoming mouldy or dry, wrap it up in a cloth damped with vinegar and keep it in a dish.

To prevent the skin from discoloring after a fall or blow, take a little dry starch, moisten it with cold water, and lay it on the injured part.

Frost-bitten vegetables should be soaked in cold water for one hour before boiling. A piece of saltpetre should be added to the water in which they are cooked.

When making a fruit pie do not put the sugar on the top under the crust, but mix it with the fruit below, otherwise it makes the crust heavy and is more liable to boil out.

Needles and pins will never rust in a cushion filled with coffee grounds. Rinse the grounds in cold water, spread on a sheet of paper to dry thoroughly, and then stuff the cushion.

Eucalyptus oil will remove grease stains from any kind of material without injuring it. Apply a little of the oil with a clean piece of flannel, and rub the material gently until the stains disappear.

To make glassware glisten, wash the glass and rinse in hot water, then plunge into cold water into which a handful of starch has been dissolved. Drain the glassware on towels until perfectly dry, then polish with a dry cloth.

A simple method of making ironwork proof against rust is to heat it until it is almost red-hot, and then brush it over with linseed oil. This makes a varnish, which, unlike ordinary paint or enamel, does not chip off.

Much heavy cake is the result of the oven door not being closed as gently as possible.

Spanish Steak

Pound one-half cup of flour with a half teaspoon of salt into an inch thick, medium sized round steak.

Slice one onion, seed and chop two green peppers, one clove of garlic, cut in three pieces, peel and slice six large tomatoes. Put into skillet with two tablespoons of butter. Allow to cook slowly until it forms thick sauce. Turn sauce into bowl. Put two tablespoons of butter into skillet. Heat hot. Put in steak. Turn several times to sear. When steak is brown add sauce. Cover and simmer forty minutes. Do not allow the sauce to cook brown; add a little stock or water as needed. Serve steak and sauce in centre of platter with border of cooked rice with dash of curry powder.

Escalloped Onions

Select small, even-sized onions. Cook until tender, but not boiled to pieces. Drain and arrange in baking dish and add a little minced parsley. Cover with sauce made with two cups of milk put into double boiler to boil. Rub to cream two tablespoons of butter with one of flour. When milk is boiling add the butter and flour mixture. Boil until smooth. When this sauce has been added to the onions and parsley put thin layer of bread crumbs on top and bake in oven until crumbs are brown.

Beet Relish

Six large beets put into boiling water, cooked until tender, taking great care not to break the skin, when cooked put into clear cold water and the skin will slip off. Set aside and when cold chop not too fine. Add three cups of cabbage cut in strings or on slaw cutter. Over these put one even tablespoon of salt and allow to stand one hour. Drain. Heat one quart of mild vinegar with one cup of sugar and add one teaspoon of whole spice and one-half cup of chopped sweet green pepper. Turn over beet and cabbage mixture. Ready for use in two days.

Chili, Chicken and Rice

Joint two chickens, boil in three quarts of water with salt to taste until very tender. There should be two quarts of stock left. Take out one pint. Boil three pints and drop in two-thirds cup of rice. Boil ten minutes and add three chopped chilis that have been put in oven until skin can be removed. Boil ten minutes longer. Stir into rice and chili two tablespoons of butter. Put layer of one-third rice in bottom of shallow pan, then layer of half-boned chicken. Alternate rice and chicken, having rice on top. Beat the yolks of three eggs into the pint of cool broth, pour over rice, sprinkle with few bread crumbs and bits of butter. Set in oven to brown. Serve very hot.

Peaches With Orange Jelly

Drain the juice from halves of preserved peaches and set peaches in cool place. Take one-half box of any powdered gelatine and put over it one cup of orange juice. When soft turn one cup of hot peach syrup over orange juice and gelatine. Stir until all is dissolved. Allow to cool and when beginning to set beat to foam with dover beater. Fill the peaches with the beaten orange gelatine and set aside to get firm. When ready to serve whip one cup of cream until stiff, add one cup of peach syrup and turn over peaches and serve with angel cakes.

Pork Cutlets

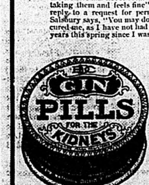
Beat two eggs light and add one tablespoon of cream and two cups of chopped cold pork, one-half cup of cracker crumbs, one tablespoon of minced parsley, a few drops of onion juice, pepper and salt to taste. Mix all together. Roll into loaf or put into well greased baking powder cans and allow to stand three or four hours. When ready to use cut into slices half an inch thick. Dip in egg and roll in fine bread crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Feet and ankles so swollen, she could not walk up stairs

Every woman and every man, who suffers with Rheumatism—who has acute attacks of Rheumatism, Sciatica or Lumbago—whose Kidneys are weak and whose hands and feet become swollen and painful—should read carefully these two letters of Mrs. Salsbury about the magical effects of

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

On February 14th, last, Mrs. J. A. Salsbury wrote about Gin Pills, "I can certainly say Gin Pills have done a lot of good for me. Some six years ago, I could not walk upstairs, my feet and ankles were so swollen, but I took three boxes of Gin Pills and the trouble has never returned. My mother, 82 years of age, is taking them and feels fine". Writing again on April 22nd., in reply to a request for permission to publish her letter, Mrs. Salsbury says, "You may do so, as I think it was Gin Pills that cured me, as I have not had the Rheumatism since and it is six years this spring since I was so bad".



Swollen hands and feet are a sure sign of Kidney Trouble. So is Mucus or brick dust deposits in the urine. So is incontinence or suppression of the urine. So is Gravel (or Stone in the Kidneys.) If the urine is hot and scalding, the Bladder is irritated or inflammed. In all these cases you need Gin Pills at once. Take them as Mrs. Salsbury did and cure yourself.

Gin Pills are sold in every part of Canada at 50c. a box, six for $2.50—and every box is sold with our spot cash guarantee of satisfaction or money back. Sold in the United States under the name 'GINO' Pills.

New Maid—Would you mind giving me a recommendation, ma'am?

Mistress—Why, you've only just come!

New Maid—Yes, ma'am; but you may not want to give me one when I'm leaving!

A Great Race

Two globe-trotters met in the smoking-room of a hotel in a part of the world called, by some people, "the outskirts of the Empire." They found that they had each spent a week in China, on the strength of which they proceeded to "weigh up" that country to their mutual admiration and satisfaction.

From that the talk drifted to sporting events witnessed in different parts of the world.

"While I was in Australia," said No 1, "I saw what I imagine to be the closest race in the world. The winning horse only beat the second by a tongue's length!"

No. 2 seemed lost in thought. He gazed abstractedly out of the window. At last he spoke:

"I have seen a closer race than that," he murmured. "I was once in Scotland!"

Sold Again!

"Johnny, I want you to go on a little errand for me."

"Oh, mother, must I really? My legs ache."

"In that case, of course, you need'nt go; but I thought perhaps you'd like to. You see, I wanted you to go to Mrs. Stickney's candy store and—"

Little Johnny brightened wonderfully.

"Oh, I think I can walk as far as that!" he said.

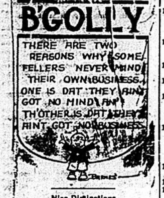
"Then you will go?"

"Certainly, mother."

"And you know where Mrs. Stickney's store is?"

"Yes, mother."

"Well, I have a parcel upstairs which I want you to hand in at the post office next door. I'm afraid it is rather a big parcel, but you don't mind carrying it, do you, Johnny?"



B'GOLLY
THERE ARE TWO REASONS WHY SOME FELLERS NEVER MIND THEIR OWN BUSINESS. ONE IS DAT THEY AINT GOT NO MIND AN' TH'OTHER IS DAT THEY AINT GOT NO BUSINESS.

Nice Distinctions

"So you want to make a fresh start, my man?" said the philanthropist, as he looked at the notorious young cracksman.

"Yes, sir," answered the expert safe-breaker.

"I take it you're prepared to do any honest work?"

"Anything that'll give me another chance, sir."

"Well, now," continued his patron, "I've a friend who is just producing a new melodrama. In it there is a scene where a burglar enters the room and rifles the safe. Now, you could do the thing to the life. Fifteen dollars a week, and you can start tomorrow."

The convict shook his head in a resigned manner.

"Sorry, boss," he said, "but it's no go."

"What! It's the chance of your life!"

"Can't help it. But I promised my mother I'd never go on the stage, boss!"

The Fat Calf

Teacher: "When the prodigal son returned, Tommy, what did his father do?"

Bright Boy: "He nearly killed the fat calf."

A Lost Art

"You say you used to have a profession, my good man?"

"Oh, yes, lady, I used to manufacture petticoats."

Nothing Else Forthcoming

"I beg your pardon, sir—"

"Granted; but it's no use begging for anything else!"

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Slight Progress on Part of Allies Is Reported at Several Points.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The following official communication was issued by the French War Office last evening: "Between the North Sea and the Oise the attacks made to-day by the Germans have been less violent than those of yesterday (Sunday).

"In Belgium we have progressed at the south of Dixmude and at the south of Ghelavet, and we have maintained all our other positions.

"In the region of the Aisne a violent German offensive between Braye-en-Lannois and Vailly has completely failed."

The official statement yesterday afternoon says: "On our left wing, the German offensive continued yesterday (Sunday) with the same violence in Belgium and in the north of France, particularly between Dixmude and the Lys. In this region, in spite of attacks and counter-attacks on the part of the Germans, we made slight progress on almost the entire front, excepting at the Village of Messines, a part of which was again lost by the allied troops.

"The enemy undertook an important movement against the suburbs of Arras. This resulted in failure, as did other movements against Lihons and Le Quesnoy-en-Santerre.

"On the centre, in the region of the Aisne, we made slight progress in the direction of Tracy-le-Val, to the north of the forest of Aigle, as well as at certain points on the right bank of the Aisne between this forest and Soissons.

"At Amont-de-Vailly an attack directed against those of our troops who are in possession of the heights on the right bank of the Aisne also resulted in failure. The same outcome attended several night attacks delivered in the heights on the highway Des Dames.

"In the region of Rheims, between the Argonne and the Meuse, and on the heights of the Meuse, there was noticed Sunday a recrudescence of activity on the part of the enemy's heavy artillery. The bombardment of these pieces, however, did not show any appreciable result.

"On our right wing an offensive movement of reconnaissance by the enemy on Nomeny was repulsed.

"In the Vosges, in addition to the fact that we have recaptured the heights which dominate Mount Sainte Marie, we have made progress in the region of Ban de Sapt, where we occupy the positions from which the artillery of the enemy has been bombarding the town of St. Die."

TO STOP MINE LAYERS.

British Admiralty Will Close North Sea To Traffic Entirely.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The Secretary of the Admiralty last night made an announcement of the virtual closing of the North Sea to traffic. In part, he says:

"During the last week the Germans have scattered mines indiscriminately in the open sea on the main trade routes from America to Liverpool, via the north of Ireland.

"Peaceful merchant ships have already been blown up, with loss of life, by this agency. The White Star liner Olympic escaped disaster by pure good luck, and but for warnings given by British cruisers other British and neutral merchant and passenger vessels would have been destroyed."

Since these mines were laid by vessels flying neutral flags, the Admiralty deem it necessary to take extraordinary steps, the statement says.

"They, therefore, give notice that the whole of the North Sea must be considered a military area. Within this area merchant shipping of all kinds, traders of all countries, fishing craft and all other vessels will be exposed to the gravest dangers from mines, which it has been necessary to lay, and from warships searching vigilantly by night and by day for suspicious craft."

From Nov. 5, the notice proceeds, all ships passing a line drawn from the northern point of the Hebrides, through the Faroe Islands to Iceland do so at their own peril. Steps will be taken, it is added, to warn all neutrals, and all ships now at sea and directions are laid for vessels to and from Norway, the Baltic, Denmark, etc.

INDIAN TROOPS PRAISED.

Gen. French Congratulates Commander of Eastern Corps.

LONDON, Nov. 5. — The British official press bureau, in a statement issued yesterday, pays tribute to the bravery and adaptability of the Indian troops now serving in France and Belgium, saying that they are performing a great work notwithstanding the fact that the nature of the country in which they are fighting is entirely different from that to which they are accustomed.

Gen. French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the field, has expressed himself as greatly pleased with the bearing of these troops, and has sent the following message to the Indian corps commander:

"Please congratulate your Indian troops on their gallant conduct, and express my gratitude to them."

Saw Child With Hands Off.

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5. — Further evidence of German atrocities is furnished in a letter received yesterday by Rev. G. F. Assiter of this city from a sister living at Borough Green, Kent, England, who had come in contact with a little Belgian girl whose both hands had been cut off by German soldiers after her father and mother had been shot dead before her eyes.

Lace Tea Cosies.

There are attractive tea cosies made of filet lace, mounted over silk and padded heavily under the silk. Pink is the color usually of the silk, but any desired color can be used to match the other fittings of the tea table.

Do not forget that there are several bushels per acre difference in grain yield on fall-plowed and spring plowed land, and the former wins every time, with the exception of corn.

THE ONLY REALLY ILLUSTRATED BIBLE

Heretofore the word "illustrated," as applied to a Bible meant merely a few allegorical 'pictures' of Biblical events taken from any course, and "conveniently placed in any part of the book," merely an embellishment inserts, but not directly alongside and explanatory of the verse intended to typify or make plain, but our publishers at an outlay of $50,000 prepared accurate illustrations DESCRIPTIVE of the VERSE which they accompany, and placed directly next to the verse of the scene described—the only place it can be looked for or found quickly, the only place the illustration is a help to you—making this the FIRST and ONLY complete ILLUSTRATED BIBLE.

$50,000 Spent for Illustrations

Both Catholic and Protestant Editions presented under same terms as shown in the free certificates printed elsewhere.

More than 600 beautiful art pictures, by the world's greatest artists, are printed with the type matter, where they at once explain the subjects which they accompany. These magnificent illustrations alone cost $50,000. In addition thereto are full-page plates of the world-famed Tissot collection in colors. These beautiful color engravings are also carefully selected, with the object of further making plain obscure passages in this greatest of all Books. It can truthfully be said that never before have illustrations so vividly portrayed these subjects and embodied in them the spirit of living reality.

It is worth remembering that not a single battleship of modern type has been in action yet, neither has one of the big battle cruisers fired a gun. These are the ships which will have the decisive voice. Germany has 36 of these vessels, Great Britain has 62, and the comparison of armored cruisers is as 9 to 31. Are we downhearted? You can supply the answer yourself.

Toronto News: "The attitude of the United States since the war began is wholly satisfactory to Great Britain and to Canada. There has been no attempt by British agitators to affect American opinion. The judgment of the American people in favor of the Allies is a free judgment pronounced in open court upon the evidence.

Kingston Standard: "Of the several hundred war prisoners—Germans and Austrians—at Fort Henry, in this city, we venture it that there are scores there who have said less against the Empire at war, than has Henri Bourassa. And yet they are prisoners and he is free. We, of course, do not advocate Bourassa's imprisonment but we are frank to say we do not understand why his paper, Le Devoir, is not suppressed by the Government. It is a menace to a United Canada and a United Empire.

Talk is cheap, yet some people have a mania for trying to monopolize it.

The thread of many a discourse is merely a yarn.

HOW LANGUAGE GROWS

Derivation of Some Commonly Used Words and Phrases

The turkey was unknown in the Land of Uz, and, as neither history nor legend record that Job owned any feathered stock, there seems to be no historic reason why the turkey should have been "wished" on the much afflicted man of Uz. Nevertheless, Judge Haliburton, the Canadian humorist, in his droll book, "Sam Slick," written in the early 18th century, gives a vivid description of Job's turkey, "a creature so poor that it had only one feather in its tail, and when it gobbled it had to lean against a fence for support." Thus the turkey, a native of this continent, fluttered back on the wings of fiction to about the third century, B.C., and we have the much-quoted expression, "Poor as Job's turkey."

The story of calico goes away back to an early day in India when the fabric was manufactured in Calicut, and sent from there to other parts of the world.

Muslin is also of far eastern origin and was first made in Mosul in the historic valley of the Euphrates. Cashmere comes from the "vale of Cashmere," famed in song and story. Damask is a product of Damascus.

The prettily flowered dimity was known to the Egyptians, and it's a fabric of ancient origin. It takes its name from the city of Damietta. Worsted was first made in an English town of that name, and, like most of the cloths, takes its name from the place from where it was first exported.

What is a dude? Don't go to the dictionary for information, for even the Century encyclopedia can do no better than say, "The term is probably one of the spontaneous products of popular slang." The dude is said to be the product of the "esthetic" craze that struck the world about 1882, with Oscar Wilde as its shining light in England. Although it is sometimes said that dude is a derivative of the old English word duds, meaning clothes, authoritative dictionaries say, that the connection between the two words, though apparently natural, is impossible.

GETTING THROUGH COLLEGE

How Some of Canada's Future Professional Men Pay Their Way

Students tell wonderful stories of their struggles to earn money to put them through college. They turn their hands to almost everything, with the one object in view of making enough during vacation times to pay their board and tuition fees, as well as provide them with books and leave a little margin for pleasure.

"I travelled all over the province for a well known book firm," said a senior man of McGill University, "but in spite of all my persuasive power, and they used to say in the Mock Parliament that I could talk for weeks I only came out a hundred dollars to the good. This, won't last long in the present time of high cost of living, but the mater says I have got to get my degree so I am sure she will come to my assistance."

Another man, a Law student, who is proficient on the typewriter, boasts that he cleared a thousand dollars typing manuscript for professors, and people whom he learned were going to deliver lectures.

"I kept my eye on the papers," said this student, "and as soon as I saw the name of Mr. So and So published as going to give a lecture, I paid him an official visit. Being a fairly rapid shorthand writer and not asking too much for my labor I was in nearly every case successful. I found that when I mentioned I was working my way through McGill my hearers were always sympathetic and in many instances they introduced me to others who had work to do."

The favorite goods are, however, aluminum goods, and one budding Medico tells unblushingly of the far-fetched yarns that he told the country people of the wonderful nature and enduring character of the goods manufactured from this substance.

"I made money," said the student, "and I earned many a good solid meal by taking a turn with the farmers at their work."

Selling wallpaper, acting as waiters on boats, porters on the railroads, dining car conductors, checking at steamship sheds, and furnishing copy for some of the newspapers, are also means used by some of the students to raise the required money. A few also secured positions as teachers in the West, and quite a number of Science men get employment on survey work on the railways and in the mines.

Primitive Fish Hooks

What sort of hooks did our ancestors, our really remote ancestors, use "when wild in wood the noble savage ran?" I am inclined to agree with the American view that the earliest type of hook, if hook it can be called, was a straight bit of flint buried in the bait. When the fish had swallowed the bit of meat, or whatever the bait was, the tightening of the line pulled the flint across its throat, and, as it stuck there, the fish could be hauled ashore without more ado. Perhaps some bright innovator of that misty past one day tried a bit of flint which had a double curve like a pair of buffalo horns and found it effective, and perhaps out of that developed the genuine double hook, which seems to have been a very early form. And perhaps the single hook came into being because it was realized that one band was as efficient as two for the most purposes.—Rod and Gun.

ENGLISH FEMINIST'S VIEWS ON MARRIAGE

Thinks Young People Should Live in Same House For a Time to Study Each Other

Mrs. Havelock Ellis, one of the foremost feminists of the world, and author of "Kits Woman," "Three Modern Seers" and "The Imperishable Wing," is very incidentally the wife of the famous investigator of "The Psychology of Sex." She has been married to Havelock Ellis for twenty-three years and the union of these celebrated persons is regarded by those who know them as the strongest possible argument for the permanence of romantic love.

An interesting detail of their domestic life is that Mrs. Ellis has a cottage of her own in Cornwall while Mr. Ellis maintains a flat for himself in London, so that the most devoted married couple on earth do not really live together in the sense that most married persons do.

"There are weeks when we do not even see each other," Mrs. Ellis confided to an interviewer. "I cannot imagine that two persons can live together 365 days of the year for a lifetime without becoming horribly bored. If I had never been separated from my husband I feel sure that I could not write him the romantic love letters that I do."

MRS. HAVELOCK ELLIS

"What do you consider the most important demand of the woman movement?" was asked.

"The economic independence of women," she replied. "Until love is freed from the obligation of support no man can know that he is loved for himself, no woman can be sure of the disinterestedness of her affections. I believe, of course, that every man should support his child up to the age of 21.

"But love must be freed from commercialism. And in order to do this we shall have to try many experiments. One of the experiments I propose I call a novitiate of marriage. I don't use the expression novitiate as equivalent to trial marriage. If two people were to inhabit the same house, the man living with the girl's family for only a year, it would be impossible to conceal small habits, peculiarities and moods which sometimes play as great havoc with marriage as vice itself. Such an experiment, a novitiate for marriage, would tend to diminish the magnetic attraction between a man and a woman which hypnotizes their reason."

HEALTHY HOUSES

"Disease History" of Residences Should be Studied by Tenants

A healthy house is a first aid to healthy occupants. A study of the history of houses might well be added to the curriculum of preparation which a married couple who move about might undergo.

One thought about the matter will show the importance of it. A consumptive lives in a room or a house perhaps years, until he dies. He may have been very careful. More likely he was not at all careful.

A scarlet fever patient or diphtheria patient may have died in a house. Perhaps the family fumigated after the disease. More likely they moved out in a hurry and did not take the trouble.

In any of these cases the germ may easily have hidden itself away only to come to light when the next occupant or occupants of the house proved ready recipients.

A healthy person living in an insanitary house will very likely grow less and less able to resist disease, although the house itself may not breed the germs.

However you look at the matter, it is worth while to study the history of a house you are about to inhabit. Is it insanitary? Is it well ventilated? Is it open to the sunlight and the fresh air? Is it built on high ground? Who were its occupants previously? Was the house well cleaned and fumigated after they left?

If every house owner and apartment owner would thoroughly cleanse his property before he offered it for rent again, the history of houses would not be such an important study, and the life of renters would be twice as safe.

To Clean a Percolator

When the perforations in a percolator become clogged, the coffee requires more time to cook and is apt to be muddy-looking. Use a teaspoonful of oxalic acid crystals to a pint of water, and let it percolate about 20 minutes. Then clean with a stiff brush. Lye or any gritty substance cannot be used on aluminum.

Sooner or later the highflier must pay up or come down.

The man who butts in never makes headway.

WORKMEN CAN HELP TROOPS AT FRONT

Urged to Take Personal Interest in the Manufacture of Equipment For Soldiers

One of Canada's best known public men addressed the employes of a large boot and shoe factory in Montreal at their annual gathering last week as follows:

"This Company has obtained a contract from the Government for 40,000 pairs of boots, to be used by the soldiers going to the front. I am informed by the managing director that a very low bid was put in for these goods, primarily for the purpose of keeping you men and women employed during these trying times. Now, I want to say a word to you about the boot contract. These boots are to be worn by the Canadian soldiers who go to war. A soldier's usefulness depends largely upon his ability to march. He cannot travel unless his feet are sound, and his feet can only be kept in good condition if his boots are right. The management will purchase the best material possible to fill this contract. The superintendents will use the utmost vigilance, but unless everyone of you makes it a personal matter, some of these boots may not be quite right. It is easy for a laster to leave a nail in the sole, which may lame a man who wears the boot. The men who cut the soles might put in some weak shanks, in which case the soldiers wearing those boots could not use a spade properly; and it might happen that on their being able to dig entrenchments their very lives would depend. When you are putting in the counters, remember that a bad counter means a down-trodden heel and a blistered foot. When you are nailing on the heels remember that to drive the nails one-sixteenth of an inch short might mean that the heels would come off and the wearer be handicapped in marching. You women of the stitching room remember that if the linings are not put in properly or any bunching occurs, it may result in a blister where the foot is chafed. Now, I want everyone of you to remember that these boots are to be worn by our Canadian boys, and that a bad boot may mean a lame soldier, and a lame soldier may mean a Canadian taken prisoner or shot. People are giving large sums of money to help those who go to the war. You can help by seeing that they are properly shod. The honor of the firm, and the lives of our brave men, I leave in your hands with perfect confidence."

WAR AND WHEAT

Winnipeg Quotations Much Higher Than Those of Minneapolis

The immediate effect of the declaration of war on the wheat market was, as is well known, a stiffening in prices. Roughly speaking the Winnipeg prices for wheat had averaged around 80 cents per bushel before the war, while recent quotations are in the neighborhood of $1.05 and have been higher. There have been some fluctuations due to uncertainty regarding the conditions of shipment and insurance across the Atlantic, but generally speaking there is little doubt that the war will mean much higher prices to the Western farmer than would have been the case if peace had prevailed. In so far as the increased price will compensate for a partial loss of crop, the West will gain from the war.

An outstanding and interesting fact is the great difference in favor of the Winnipeg market in the price of wheat. On August 10th the Winnipeg price was 14 cents per bushel higher than the Minneapolis price for the same kind of wheat. In fact the difference was so great that Canadian millers were forced to buy American wheat which could be laid down cheaper at Canadian mills after the freight and duty had been paid than the Canadian article. Under war conditions, which, however, everyone hopes will not prevail long, it would seem that the Canadian wheat grower would suffer by a removal of the duty. The big American wheat crop has tended to reduce the price of wheat in this continent, and apparently there was a possibility of the Canadian millers buying large quantities of wheat in the United States, some of which might have been used in the one million bag order, comprising Canadian flour, given to Great Britain. The Government has, however, protected the interest of the Canadian wheat growers by requiring the mills to use nothing but Canadian wheat in manufacturing this huge order.

Yet the deaf and dumb can hear and speak the language of love.

When a man tires of his own company his case is hopeless.

EXAMINATION OF VOLUNTEERS RIGID IN 21ST BATTALION

Less Than Seven Per Cent. Rejected--The Physique of the Volunteers For Overseas Service is Good

KINGSTON, Nov. 7.—The physique of the men of the 21st battalion is exceptionally rood and although the are all rigidly examined by competent physicians very few have been rejected. The principal cause of rejection are ruptures, varicose veins, foot-arches and bad teeth. If more than five teeth are missing or the set is in poor condition the applicant must be refused. In connection with the medical examination, there is a number of Indians in the battalion who are probably the best men, physically. The eye-test is very strict but these men rate very high in this examination.

Over four hundred men have already been examined by the officers in charge of the work in the last two days and a half.

City Full of Soldiers.

Kingston is getting familiar with the sight of khaki uniforms. There are now between 1,500 and 2,000 soldiers in the city. Of course the largest in number is the 21st battalion under the command of Lieut.-Col W. S. Hughes. The 14th regiment members who are doing guard duty around the city and at Fort Henry number about 200.

Capt. L. C. Lockett is acting as commanding officer in the absence in Little Current of Major H. J. Dawson. Lieut.-Col. G. H. Ogilvie, has command of Tete de Pont recruiting station, the Royal School of Artillery and the new battery to be formed. This comprises between 150 and 200 men and officers. Men are daily adding to the above units.

March to Barriefield

The men of the battalion are very comfortable. They were given a march to Barriefield on Friday. The musketry drilling will start on Monday showing that the men have already become more or less familiar with the field drills. These have been without rifles to dates, consisting of the different marching orders, saluting, etc. The men will be shown the rifle. drills in the armories.

The men are quickly being equipped with uniforms by Lieut. A. McCully, Q. M., and Q.M.S. F. Ludlow. About half of the battalion are now supplied with uniforms.

Some of the men were down and out when they enlisted. Six men about a month ago "jumped" a tramp steamer at Vancouver with the intention of joining the militia and getting into the fight in Europe. They stuck together and applied for enlistment in the Vancouver regiment. They were not accepted as there were too many ahead of them and it was the same all the way east. They would not wait until an opening occurred but "jumped" a train to the next railway division. They gradually worked their way as far as Cobourg and enlisted there. When they arrived here they were pretty well down and out, but to-day with a complete new military uniform one would not know them.

The men of the left-half of the battalion who are quartered in the Cereal works building have the use of the first floor as a recreation room. The men of the right half of the battalion have been denied this privilege to date but have secured the Old Salvation building on the corner of Bagot and Queen streets, and this will be equipped with tables for them.

The offence of commandeering another man's belongings is being severely dealt with. Last night two pairs of trousers were taken and the guilty man was quickly given a C. B. sentence.

Napanee and Picton Volunteers.

The Napanee contingent of the 47th Regiment, now with the 21st battalion, are: Noel Fleming, Frank Ford, Percy Sweet, Napanee; Ford B. Walker, Camden East; Frank T. Mallinson, Newburgh; William A. Dent, Winnipeg; Edward Thomas, Toronto; William Thomas Anderson, Roblin.

Walter Emsley, Pembroke, has enlisted in the second contingent and s now in camp at Kingston.

Lieut. W. A. Spriggs, Robert Stirling, Stanley Baldwin, William Harvey, Alexander Whitelaw, George Gerow, George Gibson, William Lywood, Richard Powell, George Johnson, William Snider, William H. Sharp, A. L. Wainwright, are the Picton bunch with the contingent here. On leaving Picton every man was given a 10 gold piece and an insurance policy.

CONFIDENCE ESSENTIAL

In Latest Analysis of Stock Markets Await Victory of the Allies

MONTREAL, Nov 7.—While it may not be correct to assert the Stock Exchange must remain closed indefinitely, it is obvious that the date for reopening is indefinite, says the New York Sun. Many plans for taking care of home and foreign liquidation and for settling other problems preparatory for a resumption of dealings have been discussed by the authorities. Some of them have been perfected and adopted. But that does not necessarily bring the reopening of the exchange any nearer. Plans may be made for alleviating the shock of selling, but not for curtailing it. Similarly no plan does or can create a new buying demand and until a new demand for securities develops the exchanges cannot be reopened.

The probable date of the resumption of business is indefinite, because it depends upon public confidence. Confidence depends in the last analysis upon developments in the theatre of war. The Stock Exchange is waiting more than anything else for a substantial victory by the Allies.

It is inconceivable that the exchange should be reopened now with the conflict in its present indecisive stage. No matter how perfect the mechanical devices for taking care of selling all such plans must await an auspicious opportunity. To put them in force and then have them wrecked by unexpectedly bad news would leave the position worse than ever.

CANADIAN LIVE STOCK BARRED FROM U. S.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 9.—All shipments of live stock from Canada to the United States will be barred by a quarantine order prepared today at the Department of Agriculture. There is no evidence of foot and mouth disease in the Dominion, but infected cars have been sent over the border, and the order is to prevent their return.

"BEAUTY SHOP" NEUTRAL

Women Patrons of McAlpin Asked to Avoid War Discussions

MONTREAL, Nov. 7. — Although notices to the employes to refrain from war discussions have had some effect, the management of the McAlpin hasn't been able to keep its patrons to neutral topics, and upstairs on the 6th floor where most of the unattached women live, the discussions had reached such an acute and troublesome stage by yesterday that Mrs. Loiis Pierce-Hughes, the manager of the floor, had to take action.

Most of the discussions on that floor take place in the beauty parlor. The women have a habit of dropping in and discussing the news and airing methods of strategy for the campaigns in the East and West which would give even the military critics pause. It so happens that three women who minister to their superficial needs in that department are all representatives of the belligerent powers. Mme. Leonie Robert is a Frenchwoman. Miss Muriel Anthony is English, and Miss Florence Dressler is a German.

Most of the women who air their opinions in the beauty shop are pro-Allies, and while their talk in the main is pleasing to Mme Robert and Miss Anthony, it is very disturbing to Fraulein Dressler, who these last few days has spent most of her time in tears.

Mrs. Hughes had heard of the barroom sign, "Nix on the war talk," but slang was not desirable. Therefore she caused to be printed a polite request to patrons to please be so good as not to talk of the war while in the beauty parlor, mentioning that those employed therein were of various nationalities.

QUEEN'S MEN TO GO

KINGSTON, Nov. 7.—Three officers and eighty men of the 5th Field Company Engineers of Queen's University will leave with the next contingent for overseas service. Word was received here from Ottawa this morning ordering the formation of a portion of a company of engineers. More than the required number of students have already volunteered.

Ida E. Sinks Woman on Board

Captain Halcro and Eight Members of Crew Escaped Yesterday Morning

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—Mystery surrounds the sudden sinking of the Ida E. at her dock at Ile Perrot in Lake St. Louis yesterday morning between two and three o'clock. The vessel was loaded with two hundred tons of sand on the previous night, and the crew had retired for the night when the accident happened. The captain and the eight men awoke to the situation in time to scramble ashore only to find as the boat disappeared beneath them in fifteen feet of water, that the cook, Miss Rose Menard, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, was still on board. Captain W. F. Halcro communicated the circumstances to Wm. Rutherford & Sons, for whom the crago was intended, and immediate steps will be taken to raise the boat. The Ida E., which belongs to the River Sand Company, was a wooden ship, built in 1887 at Oshkosh, Wis. The dimensions of the boat are: length, 121 feet 6 inches; breadth, 25 feet 5 inches; depth, 7 feet 6 inches; tonnage, 285 gross; 136 net. It has been running daily between Ile Perrot and Montreal of late.

TO STOP U. S. JUGGLING

Canadian Immigration Figures Will Be Withheld During the War

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—Because of attempts at their misuse by the United States press, Canadian immigration figures will not be published during the duration of the war.

With the exclusion of German, Austrian and Turkish immigrants and the stoppage of immigration from Italy and other continental countries due to the outbreak of war, the usual influx of new citizens to Canada from the Continent has practically ceased. Lately United States papers have been making use of these statistics to represent Canada as no longer a land of opportunity and to boost the advantages of their own nation. As a result, the figures will no longer be available for them. in spite of this press campaign, however, it is noteworthy that immigration from the United States itself has in nowise diminished. It is practically the only class of new citizens Canada is receiving to-day.

GERMANY APPEALING FOR POPE'S SYMPATHY

ROME, Nov. 7.—Undoubtedly the efforts being made by Germany in the present collossal conflict are the most strenuous endeavors undertaken by any country. While desperately fighting with four countries around her frontiers, Germany is collecting throughout the world all the forces which can help her in the ultimate issue. Thus she has succeeded so far in preventing Italy from following her impulse to side with the Allies and obtained the participation of Turkey. She managed to induce Constantinople to make love to Rome, forgetting Tripoli, hoping for Italy-Turkish co-operation in favor of German interests.

More marvelous still, Germany is now trying to unite in the same work two traditional enemies, the Sultan and the Pope. Flattering the latter, the Kaiser says he only can restore the old Roman Empire, which will be now the Roman-German Empire, being consecrated by the Roman Pointiff. The present Pope has met the Kaiser twice in Rome when the latter visited Pope Leo. It will be interesting to see the attitude Pope Benedict will take before Germany's advances.

HEROIC SOLDIER'S V.C. HE CANNOT NOW WEAR

Lieut. Eliot, Son of Lt.-Col. Eliot of Ottawa, Has Died at Front

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—Lieut. John Hamilton Eliot of the King's Third Hussars, who figures today in the list of dead at the front is the eldest son of Lieut.-Col C. A. Eliot of Ottawa.

He has been recommended for the Victoria Cross because of conspicuous bravery in a recent engagement when, as reported a fortnight ago, he carried a wounded sergeant a hundred yards to safety in the face of a furious shellfire from the Germans.

Lieut. Eliot had held a commission in the Imperial Army for a few years. He was a graduate of the R.M.C. at Kingston.

DUTCH LAY CHARGES AGAINST THE GERMANS

They Also Warn German Troops Who May be Inclined to Cross Border

THE HAGUE, Nov. 9.——(Special.)—Mention has been made of the frequency with which the Dutch regiments on frontier duty have to be relieved in order to prevent them from coming to blows with the Germans. The German Minister at The Hague has just received an address from three Dutch battalions in Limberg, who ask him to inform the Kaiser that they can personally testify to atrocities committed by German troops on the Belgian frontier. The communication concludes with an expression of profound indignation at the sights witnessed, and warns the Minister that if by chance German troops should violate Dutch territory the Dutch would kill them to a man, if only to take some small revenge for what the heroic Belgians had to suffer.

The Minister has communicated all this to the Dutch Government, and made a formal demand that the affair be inquired into and the soldiers punished for what he terms "their insulting and lying communication.

50 Canadian Nurses Leave For The Front

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Fifty Canadian nurses who came to England with the Expeditionary Force are leaving to-night for the seat of war. The party includes the following Montrealer: Misses Ida Smith, Dussault, Denmark, DeBellefuille, Domville, Doucet, Mabel Mancy, M. Parkin, I. Strathy, St. Arnaud, B. Mattice and Jessie Robertson; and the following from Quebec: J. Pelletier, Meiklejohn, E. C. Jamieson and M. M. Webb.

LABOR CONGRESS OPENED TO-DAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8. — The thirty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor was opened here today, to continue for two weeks. Prior to the assembling of the delegates there was a short street parade, in which nearly all the delegates participated. The Executive Council presented its annual report. The voluminous document covers every question which has affected labor during the year, including the European war. Referring to the war, the report says:

"The war has shown that war cannot be stopped by resolutions and that war cannot put an end to itself. War will cease only when society is convinced that human life is really sacred and when society establishes agencies international as well as international for protecting lives."

ARE FATAL TO AVIATORS

Germany Possesses Deadly Weapon in New Gun

PARIS, Nov. 7.—French airmen have learned by experience to give as wide berth as possible to the new German anti-craft gun. This is a most formidable weapon and it is common talk among airmen that to be caught by a battery of these guns at six thousand feet is as good as having one foot in the grave. Their fire is deadly between four thousand and six thousand feet, on account of the incendiary shells, and second, because of the force of the explosion which displaces the air to an extent sufficient to capsize an aeroplane.

Lastly, these guns are fitted with ingenious range-finders that not only give the height of the aeroplane but signal its speed at the same time.

GERMANS ANNOYED

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, commenting on the German defeat at Tsing-Tau says:

"Germans will never forget the heroic fighting at Kiao-Chau and those who defended the colony. Never shall we forget the brutal violence of the yellow robbers nor Britain, who instigated them. We know that we cannot settle our account with Japan at present. For years she will enjoy her booty. Our mills will grind slowly, but even if years should pass before the right moment comes at last, then a shout of joy will resound through Germany. Woe to you, Nippon!"

The guns and equipment of Tsing-Tau will be handed over to the Anglo-Japanese force on Tuesday.

Men Returning to Former Enlistment

At Tete de Pont Barracks--Twelve Officers Already Apply for Course in Royal School of Artillery

KINGSTON, Nov. 7.—Fifty-two of the men that transferred from the R. C.A. to the 21st battalion on Saturday last, are transferring back, Friday afternoon, to the new battery, that is being formed. There has been continually intimations that the officers that enlisted the men for the Tete de Pont recruiting depot in outside places misrepresented the conditions to the men. This is not so, as the officers say they listed the men with the understanding that they would be drilled in artillery work and when vacancies occurred in the R.C.H.A., now in Europe the men from here would be sent to take their places. The order for a reduction in the pay and the suggestion that it would be sent over did not come out until a week after the men were here. There were 150 recruits in the barracks when the order came out. Twenty of them went home and since then two of the twenty have returned. Others are making arrangements to return to re-enlist in the new battery. Fifty-three of the recruits remained on the force and remainder transferred to the infantry in the hope that they would be able to go overseas sooner. Now fifty-two of the men are returning to the artillery, as they have as good a chance as the infantry to go overseas in the spring.

Capt. C. P. Fee, 24th battery, of Peterboro, reported for duty on Friday. He will be attached to the R.C.H.A. here. He was attached at one time to "A" battery.

Many other experienced officers are coming to the new battery, and it is expected that recruits and horses will be coming immediately.

Twelve officers have already made application for instruction in the Royal School of Artillery that will open on Monday in Tete de Pont barracks.

Orders were received from Ottawa that the number of Canadian Engineers from Kingston who will go overseas will be eighty men and three officers. The officers have not yet been chosen although several have volunteered

The signalling division of the 21st battalion was started on Friday morning by Lieut. A. Stroud with twelve men. Most of the men have had more or less experience. Twenty-six men make up the signalling squad.

Lieut.-Col. R. M. Rathburn, O.C., of 9th brigade, C.F.A., was in the city on business on Friday.

The Army Service corps will take overseas 200 men and twenty-six officers. Major W. A Mitchell is the commanding officer of No. 3 company.

Staff-Sergt. W. Perrin of the 5th field battery has been transferred to the R.C.H.A.

Lectures for the officers and N.C.O.'s will be commenced on Monday. Major C. C. Bennett will give the first lecture at the armouries.

Col-Sergt. Logan has been appointed Q. M. S. of the left half of the battalion, while employed at the Cereal works stores.

Sergt. W. T. Fraser has been appointed as sergt.-bugler.

SOMEONE LOADED GUN BOY SHOT BROTHER

CORNWALL, Nov. 9.—(Special.)—A fatal accident occurred here this morning at the home of Joseph Perkins, when his seven-year-old son, Joseph Alex., was shot through the neck by his nine-year-old brother, Clarence. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Perkins had been out hunting on Saturday and left his gun, unloaded in a bedroom, and someone in the meantime had loaded the rifle, which was a self-cocker, and as soon as the boy got it in his hands it went off with fatal results. An inquest will be held to-morrow.

FORGING FORWARD FORCE ENEMY FROM STRONG TRENCHES

(Canadian Press Despatch Exclusively to The Intelligencer)

ALLIES ARE SLOWLY PRESSING FORWARD

PARIS, Nov. 9.—An official announcement given out by the War Office this afternoon says the German offensive has been renewed at Dixmude and in the region of Ypres. To the southeast of Ypres all German attacks have been repulsed.

Referring to the entire front between Dixmude and the Lys, we have made progress along the major part of the line. Our advance is slow on account of offensive movements undertaken by the enemy, and because of strong organization the enemy already has had time to effect around his points of support.

On the centre, along the Aisne, the progress set forth in the official communications of yesterday has been maintained.

In the Argonne and in the vicinity of Verdun there have been only actions of minor importance.

On our right wing in Lorraine there is nothing to report.

YARMOUTH NOT SHELLED BY GERMAN WARSHIPS

Forts do Not Exist There--British Press Pokes Fun at Stories

LONDON Nov. 9—(Special.)—There is no truth whatever in the German claim of having bombarded Yarmouth. The German official reports speak of the Yarmouth "forts," but nothing of the kind exists. No shells from the German squadron fell on the land, though a few fell in the sea near shore. The British papers refer facetiously to the German claim as a good specimen of German medacity. The Daily News says: "All the German cruisers did was to attack the coast guard gunboat Halcyon and then run away when our cruisers arrived."

JAPAN MAY SEND TROOPS TO FRANCE

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—Since the fall of Tsing-Tau the question of Japan sending an army to Europe has begun to attract increasing attention. The idea finds considerable support in military circles, where it is believed such a move would be welcomed by France. Labor

DID NOT HEAR OF WAR TILL 5 WEEKS LATER

F. E. Egan, Prospecting in the Peace River Country, Came Home to Enlist

Among the volunteers recruited here since the departure of those from the 15th Regiment for Kingston with the second contingent is Frank Eber Egan, son of Rev. J. Egan of this city. Mr. Egan is a telegrapher by profession and has been latterly prospecting in the Peace River country. He was several hundred miles north of Peace River when the war broke out, and it was five weeks after its declaration that news of the European conflict reached htat out-of-the-way section of Canada. Mr. Egan's trip home occupied weeks, eight days of which were spent in a boat on the river. He is in the city awaiting orders to go to Kingston to drill with the second contingent. He has a brother-in-law, Mr. Elmer Luck, M.A., a graduate of the University of Toronto, who has been studying at Leipzig, Germany, and is now there unable to make his way out of the country. With Mr. Luck are his two little daughters.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing—for the other fellow to have in a controversy.

FIVE THOUSAND HEAD OF ARMY "CATTLE" ARE NOW QUARTERED IN MONTREAL

Purchases by Remount Bureau Vary in Number from Day to Day, As New Consignments are Received or Sent out--Checking up the "New Arrivals" Isn't the Easiest Job on Earth

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—There are now horses enough for half a dozen three-ring circuses collected in Montreal at the Grand Trunk stockyards, Point St. Charles, the C.P.R. stockyards at Mile End, and at Delorimer Park. They are the property of the British Government, having been purchased through the remount bureau, which is headed by General Benson.

To-day there are in the neighborhood of 5,000 head of army "cattle" at the three points, although the number varies greatly from day to day, and week by week, as new shipments arrive and consignments are sent on from here. The majority of these horses are from the west, a large proportion coming from the United States through Chicago and other points, it having been found possible to get them in large numbers and more cheaply south of the border. Twice, or sometimes three time, a week purchases are made in Montreal.

All these horses in the open would be a sight worth seeing. Within doors they don't show up so well, but even in their pens in the stockyards they are well worth seeing. One can't see them all at a time, but when a score or more are found in a single enclosure, and one can walk a block or more between double rows of enclosures, it is then realized what horses in wholesale lots really are.

A consignment placed at 400 arrived at one of the yards from Toronto the other day. The superintendent checked them as they came out of the cars and counted 399. They also checked into the pens at 399. The superintendent came back that night and went over the whole lot once more. Still he was one short as per shipping bills. So the next morning the customs officials and railroad men were called in before their eyes the whole lot were led, one at a time, from one pen to another, as one counts bills, picking up each one and putting it down separately. Seeing was believing, and the matter was then up to Toronto or some point farther back.

Feeding from two to three thousand horses is no small task. They will eat from thirty to forty pounds of hay per day, in addition to the allowance of ten pounds of mixed oats and bran. This mash is literally mixed by the ton, distributed by wagons which drive between the pens, and doled out with a scoop shovel instead of the familiar gallon measure of the ordinary stable.

There are other ways in which having twenty horses loose in a pen is rather different from the same number in stalls. They are able to take care of themselves nicely so far as exercise goes, and crowding and fighting are by no means unknown, especially as there are plenty of bronchos in the lot. It isn't an altogether simple matter to go among them, however. A broncho caught one of the attendants with his heels a day or so ago, hurling the man half-way across the pen and knocking him out "cold."

The fifteen hundred horses given by the Government of Saskatchewan went into quarters at Delorimer Park upon their arrival here. The accommodations are slightly more aristocratic there, having been constructed to shelter the favorites of the turf. Even in this case the guests had to double up, two in a box stall, however.

At all of the "corrals" where the horses are stabled, heavy guards are maintained.

Reach the World by the Bell System

A BUSINESS MAN told us the other day of how he is meeting the slackening up in trade. He was about to send a salesman to see a customer two hundred and fifty miles away, but he had little confidence in the outcome of the trip. He had not time to go himself, although he did want very much to have a personal talk with this customer.

This is the way this business man explained it to us:—

"All at once I thought of the telephone—why not call him up and talk with him myself? When I first spoke to him, he was a little nervous about buying anything, but by a little reassuring talk I was able to get a first class order from him. I am now covering our entire territory by long distance telephone, and I tell you the results are great. My one regret is that I didn't adopt the telephone method sooner."

The saving the long distance telephone effects in time and labor, two great factors in business costs, makes it the great ally of the up-to-date business man who is trying to keep things up to normal.

Get the habit of reaching your world by telephone—it will pay you.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS RUGBY MATCH

Rugby made its first appearance to the Belleville public on Saturday last, when the Belleville High School and Albert College clashed on the latter's campus. The "High" won in a decisive style by the score of 21 to 1.

A very favorable impression was made upon the 300 or more fans by the admirable way in which the teams worked in their first game. The High School, who have been coached for the past week by E. F. Chapman, were superior in every department to the College 14. The kicking of Nurse and Morden was exceptional and combined with the fast following up of Grant, Green and Irwin was instrumental in getting the majority of points for the High School.

The playing of Grant and Irwin was bordering on the spectacular, Grant figuring in over half of the points, including a touchdown, while Irwin secured two touchdowns on loose balls.

The Albert College line was very weak in comparison to the High School, who broke through time and again and broke up the College plays. With a little more practice Albert College will give the High School a hard run.

"Coach" Chapman of the High School team, when interviewed after the game, stated that he was thoroughly pleased with the manner in which the boys had played and the gentlemanly manner in which both teams handled themselves. "Albert", he continued, "have the material for a very fast team. I cannot comment particularly on the superior playing of any individual. The line held admirably, the halves kicked well and wings followed up."

A Canadian preacher thinks the time is near at hand when there will be no liars. When that time comes, obituaries will be much shorter than they are now.

LINE IS UNFLINCHING

Allies Resist Terrible Series of Attacks at Ypres.

After a Week of Supreme Effort to Break Through the Kaiser's Assault on Allied Position at Ypres Ends In Complete Failure, and Now He Is Trying Again at Arras —French Launch Fierce Attack.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A despatch to The Times from Dunkirk, France, filed Saturday night, says:

After a desperate attack, lasting the whole week, the German attempt to break the allied line at Ypres has failed.

It may be admitted that the position at Ypres two days ago was serious. The town itself was bombarded by the Germans with extraordinary violence and under the fierce cannonading the allies had to withdraw from the town which became a "no-man's land," across which the shells from both sides burst.

"The Germans made a superhuman and fatal effort under cover of a fierce bombardment of the allied positions. They had prepared a desperate onslaught. Masses of men were launched in succession at chosen points on our front. The assault was met in a supreme way. Two regiments, and Scottish and one of the Guards, went down with bayonets to stem the advance. It was the most terrible bayonet charge of the whole war. It succeeded, the break in the line was repaired and the German attack was once more driven back.

"That was their last effort. To-day the Germans are dropping an occasional desultory spell into Ypres, but their attacks have ceased. They are now assailing the allied lines at Arras, forty miles further to the south, but not with the same fury as they exhibited in the onslaught of the past week.

"So fierce has been the fighting around Ypres that the casualties of the Germans are believed to have reached the enormous figure of 100,000, though these figures may prove to have been exaggerated."

Notwithstanding that fresh onslaughts have been made by the Germans against the allied forces all along the other great line of battle, the Kaiser's forces either have been repulsed, or else held back well in hand. The Germans evidently have been unable to discover the desired weak spot in the line of the allies.

The notably stout and effective resistance on the part of the British army at Ypres seems to have prevented the German forces from launching their new attack against the Franco-British troops southeast of Ypres, as at first planned and attempted.

The left wing of the German army was yesterday the new objective point of the French, the campaign starting in aggressively between Rheims and the frontier of Lorraine. After desperate encounters, the French succeeded in capturing important strategic positions along the River Meuse and to the north of Nancy. The losses on both sides are reported as extremely heavy. Reinforcements have been sent to the French and British armies, which are holding the line of battle between Ypres, Belgium, and Roye, France, in the expectation that the German troops soon will advance the new army of 350,000 men now being organized in Belgium for a final onslaught in the attempt to reach the French sea coast.

At only one point on the two battlefronts do the Germans claim success. That is to the west of the Argonne region, there the German Emperor's forces have succeeded in taking from the French an important height near Vienne-le-Chateau region. Elsewhere the French troops have made progress and retaken the positions which they had lost during the course of the week. This is notably so in the Aisne valley around Soissons, where they have regained the ground which the Germans by fierce assaults had taken from them.

The Belgians, who are holding the line reaching to the coast, have also made progress, and it would thus seem that the Germans are still waiting for additional reinforcements before renewing their attempt to smash through to the French seaport.

The fighting yesterday was carried on in a fog, which interfered with the work of the airmen, and likewise with the artillery.

While the reports of the allies' offensive in the west have given hope in London that the Germans will fall back to a line further removed from the sea, all uneasiness has not passed, for they have previously shown wonderful recuperative powers. The presence of the Russians in East Prussia and Silesia, however, although the latter are only cavalry, it is believed here, will prevent the Germans from sending any more troops to the west if it does not compel them to withdraw some of their troops from that region.

Engineers from the Krupp gun works are mounting heavy guns at the Belgian seaport of Ostend and facing them seawards, according to a despatch from Rotterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

British patrols have reached a point three miles from Bruges.

The Telegraaf's correspondent at San Vangeant states that the Germans are persistently reported as retreating toward Antwerp, and that the troops stationed at Salzaete have been transferred by transport to the left bank of the Terneuzenghent Canal.

The Telegraaf's correspondent quotes a German officer as declaring: "We must go back, but nevertheless we shall conquer."

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT JOHN STREET CHURCH

Able Dircourses Delivered by Rev. Gaudier, Principal of Knox College—Large Congregations at Both Services

Anniversary services were yesterday held in John Street Presbyterian Church and large congregations were present. The preacher for the day was Rev. Dr. Gaudier, Principal of Knox College, Toronto. The Rev. Principal is both a capable and forcible speaker and delivered two discourses, which were both helpful and appreciative. In the morning after the usual devotional exercises he announced his text, namely, Romans 15th chapter and 13th verse—"Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing that ye may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghost."

The divine said that the subject of his discourse was Christian optimism. Nothing was more healthy or needed in a person than optimism and there was no time when this spirit should be displayed than in these days when nations, including the British Empire, were at war. We believe that God reigns and that a better day is coming and that life is worth living. It is most pleasant to be born with a hopeful spirit, but the best of all is the hopeful and genuine Christian spirit. The Apostle Paul was, the words of the text indicate, full of hope. What a splendid example of hope the Apostle was! It runs through all his thoughts and life. Paul always hoped for the best and believed in the best. There was no uncertainty about him. These words were written by Paul in middle life. He was a great optimist; he had an abiding grip on God that carried him on through life until the end. Even when he was put to death he was not without hope. Paul did not shut his eyes to facts. He faced the facts of life and honestly admitted them. He did not ignore them, but they were in his heart of hope. In the division of this world's goods things are not equal. We see the wealthy and the poor. Paul knew hunger and thirst and shipwreck; he was hated by his countrymen with a Jewish hate, but he yearned to save them. Paul felt the plagues of his own heart, but this consciousness was under the will of God. He realized that he was carnally minded and he did not go through life deceiving himself, neither did he allow his fellow men to be deceived. He knew the deadly and damning effects of sin on the world, but he believed in God, the God of hope; hence his optimistic views. It is not always easy to believe but Paul had implicit trust in God in spite of the unbelief in the world. There are times when it seems as if anti-Christ was on the throne and not God, and that seems to be at the present time. But God is upon the throne, and we should have the faith in God that Paul had. Paul was not indifferent to the sins of the world. Paul knew that all was not right in the world; he knew there was wrong, sin and suffering, but his hope in God was such that he could be optimistic. His faith was inseparable from the love of God. If there is to be hope, peace and joy in the world it is to be through believing in the Christian redemption. Unless there is a love for Him who suffered and conquered there can be no hope for sin in a world of sin. Not only do the wicked suffer, but innocent often suffer as a result of the sins and wrongs of others. When love has shed its light about the whole world what joy there will be. No man can redeem his brother, but God, through Jesus Christ, can redeem all mankind. In the cross there is a love that can and does redeem. It was a perfect sacrifice. He was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities and with His stripes we are healed. There is no hope for the world but through the sufferings of the Son of God. He gave his life a ransom for us. He was a lamb slain from the foundation of the world. Redemption was effected by the death of Jesus Christ. Paul's faith in the redemption of Jesus Christ was adequate to the need of man. Here is a perfect righteousness. Paul had hope in the future of the world in its Christian career. His hope was based in his faith in God, in Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit. God can bring in His Kingdom upon earth and peace through living personality. God's purposes will prevail, and His purposes for the redemption of a lost world will prevail.

During the service special music was rendered by the choir, and Miss Ponton rendered an appropriate solo in a capable manner.

BELLEVILLE BOY'S ACCOUNT OF TRIP ON TRANSPORTS

Graphic Sketch of Ocean Life, The Scenery and Landing Abroad—Conditions all That Could be Desired, and Camp Life Pleasant

(By Special Correspondent)
Salsbury, Eng., Oct. 26. 1914

Since my last communication from Quebec, of which I was in doubt whether it would reach you, owing to rigid censorship of news in regard to the movement of the overseas force at the time, nevertheless I trust it arrived, even if after some delay. Owing to the inconvenience of writing, lack of material and rush of duty, I have been unable to write and let our friends know what we were doing. I herewith briefly describe the incidents of our voyage across the Atlantic and our final arrival on the shores of the Mother Land, which to many of us has been existent in word only. We now fully realize why Britons are proud of their heritage, and as citizens of the great British Empire we, too, are proud of England—the land of the brave and the free.

It will be remembered I stated that there were sixteen transports assembled in Quebec harbor at the time of writing. We knew not whither we were bound, but a surprise which shall ever be remembered by every man who lives to return awaited us. We heaved anchor and were under way at a moment's notice, and the sixteen transports in line sailed majestically out of Quebec harbor.

This quaint and historic city has witnessed many stirring events in the years gone by, of which every Canadian is justly proud, but those who witnessed the sailing of our transports realized again that history was in the making. Throngs of people lined the railing of the Chateau Frontenac promenade. No one knew the hour we were to sail, but the news spread somehow and cheers reached our ears across the water from different points along the waterfront.

When the mist of dawn broke and the sun rose in the east the scene that revealed itself to our eyes made the hearts of every Canadian who was a member of the overseas contingent throb with pride. The magnitude of the undertaking amazed us. Snugly anchored in the land-locked harbor of Gaspe Bay lay thirty transports, the smoke issuing from their funnels in readiness at a moment's notice to put to sea, with five fast cruisers as escorts. These were guarding the entrance to the harbor—their guns and invisible slate-colored war paint impressed us with confidence and security.

Let me here state that when one realizes the gigantic task undertaken by Major-General Hughes, the excellent facilities afforded to the men and the wonderful preparation of Valcartier camp as a base for mobilization, comparing conditions there with what we are up against in England, it is with admiration and sincere pride that we look upon the Honorable Sam, for he certainly accomplished an enormous feat with neatness and dispatch under trying circumstances. He may be a crank on the "dry" canteen, but we forget that, and say "Hurrah for Sam," when we gaze on the much talked of Salisbury Plain. Why, it's just fifty years behind Valcartier in accommodation, although it is quite a piece of country, no doubt, for a country as old as England—but I will tell you the rest later. We must now make the voyage across brief. As far as we knew it was a picnic, the weather was fine and the accommodation and food on board the ships was the best that could be found. We forgot there was a German in the world; the only reminder was when night came and the lights were blanketed. But to the older members, perhaps, the seriousness of the situation was more impressive. We Canadians realized the meaning of "Britannia rules the waves" when we looked upon 32 transports loaded with 32,000 Canadian troops sailing to meet the foe of the Mother Land—sailing unmolested on the waters of the broad Atlantic, at war with one of the world's greatest naval powers. We began to realize what a great strength Britain's pride—the navy—must have. The magnitude of it all staggers one's comprehension. Why should we not boast and shout with all our hearts wherever we may be—the east, the west, the north and south feel proud of our nation's pride, the navy. So, with perfect confidence every man lay down at night without fear of the German tyrant, because around us sailed, diligently guarding and watching every strange craft, overhauling every ship and carefully examining her before allowing her to proceed on her way, were five of His Majesty's ships, and his Canadian sons slept the sleep of the just, undisturbed. Therefore, our voyage was uneventful, outside of a man falling overboard, who was speedily rescued by the Royal George.

Here again, and for the first time we realized in a measure what war means. As we entered the harbor a flotilla of torpedo boats joined our escort and we passed many men-o'-war and cruisers; searchlights gleamed from every point, searching the darkness with their powerful shafts of light—now outlining and illuminating the ships with ghostly white glare like phantom ships. Here and there one could discern the stealthy little torpedo boats creeping silently and swiftly about us like vultures looking for prey.

The morning dawn revealed to us a most interesting picture of one of England's greatest and most picturesque cities within the fortified harbor. It is perhaps familiar to many at home who have visited England, therefore, suffice it to say that its many attractions were a source of interest and pleasure to us, and our reception, although unexpected by the people, was both gratifying and most sincerely appreciated by every one of us. Thousands cheered us as we proceeded to the wharf to disembark; bands played the Maple Leaf and Tipperary, our war songs, when we paraded through the streets of the city of Devonport. The people showered us with all kinds of things; the children grasped our hands; the girls and women hugged us—in fact nearly tore us to pieces; buttons, badges, etc., were taken and kept as souvenirs. On all sides we could hear: "We're so glad you've come"; "We have a brother, father, or cousin at the front"; "We hope you get back safe"; "Good luck to you," etc.

Much could be written, but I am forced to be brief owing to the difficulty of writing by candle-light; and since coming we have had another baptism of rain, and believe me, it has Valcartier rain beat a mile; and the mud—it's simply the stickiest I have ever seen in all my travels—chalk and clay. I sometimes think our Canadian horses must be made of iron; after all their trying experiences and hardships they are in fine shape.

And the boys—well, folks, they are all fine, and are patiently waiting for the day when we shall meet the Germans. Their only fear is that the war will be over before they get there. But I guess we will get there soon enough.

Was in conversation with one of the men who is home from the front recovering from a sabre slash on his left arm. He is from the Dragoons and was in one of the recent fights. He has been in Africa and India, and says, "Boys, the Boer War was a picnic to this one. I saw men go stark mad from witnessing the terrible carnage. It's worse than hell. It's beyond me. It's simply artillery duels and cavalry charges, and the slaughter is terrible."

After camping at Devonport we proceeded by rail to Salisbury, horses and all. We were amazed at the dinky little cars and engines, but the speed at which we loaded and entrained took us off our feet. The following morning we detrained and marched on foot, leading our horses to our camp, which was 12 miles away. After a few days' rest we returned for our guns and now we are settled down for business again; but rain has interfered with us considerably.

Driver Geo. Clark had a painful accident to his leg: his horse kicked him while on mounted parade. He is progressing favorably.

The quaint little English villages in the vicinity of Amesburg and Trowbridge, with their thatch-roofed houses and story-book inns—the Rose and Crown Inn, the Black Horse and Golden Lion—certainly create considerable interest among the boys, and

THE NEED OF MEN

Occurrences such as the reported battle off the coast of Chile will tend to give Canadians a more serious view of the war. Realization of how big the task is and how urgent is the need of as many men as can be equipped and sent forward, should greatly stimulate recruiting in Canada, and especially in this city and province.

It is the habit of British peoples to respond quickly and loyally to the call of Empire, particularly after a serious reverse to army or navy. If the Germans have been victorious in the Pacific engagement, as reported, their victory will merely serve to spur more men to service. There must be no standstill in Canada. There is every reason why recruiting should be rushed and kept up, and why our young and active men should come forward without delay.

Everywhere throughout the British Empire there is a realization that this war is vital. Germany and Austria have called to the colors all members of the male population capable of bearing arms. That will not be necessary in Great Britain or in her dominions oversea, but if a million more men are needed a million more men will be forthcoming—or two millions. And to any force that may be raised, Canada must give her full share of men and equipment.

It is Great Britain that in the end must conquer Germany. France is doing all she can, but, like her opponents, practically all her fighting men are already in the ranks. Britain must supply the force necessary to finally crush the enemy. That is her task—and ours. Let is be remembered that our responsibilities in the present struggle are relatively as great as hers, and Canada must do her duty nobly in this hour of stress.

BOURASSA

This gentleman is beginning to receive more attention from public men and the Press than he will relish. Yet after all, notoriety is in all probability, what he is seeking. If so, he is more successful than he will be in his treasonable utterances and editorials with which he regales his readers through the columns of Le Devoir, a newspaper owned and published by him in Montreal.

Dr. Howard, M.P. for Frontenac, in a speech delivered by him in Kingston the other day, denounced him as a traitor who would in any other country than Britain be indicted for treason, tried and hanged.

Edmund Bristol, M.P. for Centre Toronto, in a speech delivered by him in Toronto, in referring to Bourassa declared that "It does not come well from Mr. Bourassa, for whose race our British soldiers are shedding their hearts' blood, to throw doubts upon the duty of our country at this juncture or to cast slurs upon the British Government or Sir Edward Grey. If there is one people on the face of God's earth who should be united in helping to keep the British flag flying it is the French Canadian people of this country. Bourassa is leading no one but himself. He is a man overcome by excessive vanity and egotism. I am sorry such a man should be allowed to exist and publish a paper in the Province of Quebec to spread treason among the decent, right-minded French-Canadians of this country. I hope my words will reach him, and that action will be taken to put a stop to the treasonable utterances he is making in that great Province."

Next, the Toronto News pays him a little respect; after exposing his untruthful utterances in dealing with the causes for the present war, it declares that "It is hard to argue with a liar," winding up his article in the following terse and cutting manner:

"Sitting at peace and in the midst of plenty he does not give thanks for the power which protects him, but reviles it. Under the cloak of scientific politics he preaches the arts of mendicancy and practices the arts of Ananias. Surely enough evidence of his treasonous temper can be culled from Le Devoir to draw an indictment against him and to suppress his mendacious journal. If he lived in France and dared to slander the British army as he does in Montreal he would have to face a firing party."

WAR NOTES

German Professors are going to the States to lecture on German culture The Americans have been getting their German culture reports from Belgium, where the wounded Belgians get the culture shot into them by Herr Krupp.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—The British Board of Trade, through the Imperial Government, has issued a warning to insurance companies against the business of insuring cargoes in neutral vessels from capture or detention by his Majesty's Government or allied Governments. "The Board of Trade is advised," says a statement from the Imperial Government, "that such contracts of insurance, or reinsurance, against the risk of capture or detention by Great Britain or her allies, are prohibited by the low of Britain and it is thought necessary to warn insurance.

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Amsterdam says that advices received there from Berlin are to the effect that up to last Sunday the German concentration camps and hospitals held the following prisoners:

	Officers.	Men
French	3,138	188,618
Russian	3,121	186,799
Belgians	537	34,907
British	417	15,750
Total	7,213	426,034

The correspondent adds that the Berlin despatch says these figures do not include prisoners not encamped.

Three alleged German spies were arrested on the Allan liner Hesperian, which reached Montreal from Liverpool Friday. They were travelling under the names of George and Mrs Walter and Frederick Thomas. The three were arrested while the liner was at sea as a result of papers discovered in a search of their cabins. Suspicion was directed toward the three by the vehement manner in which Mrs Walter defended the Germans against atrocity charges laid against them by fellow-passengers.

Montreal News: "A correspondent writes at some length enquiring why $35 should be exacted from those who join the Montreal Home Guard? He further points out that many people of military instincts and training would gladly volunteer for this duty if the financial restrictions were removed." This is equivalent to asking a man for assistance and charging him for rendering his services. Montreal always was just a little queer, particularly in matters of finance.

Buffalo Express: "A representative of the state department has gone to Germany to investigate stories regarding the treatment of French and British prsoners of war. He will later make a similar investigation of the condition of German prisoners in France and England. And if he finds nothing to complain of, what then?"

The food situation in Austria and Hungary has become so acute that each government is taking strong measures for the relief of the people. The Hungarian government has warned farmers that it will try to import flour from America. The farmers are demanding exorbitant prices for their grains, taking advantage of the shortage. The food question will be the big problem of this war.

According to a Washington dispatch to the New York Times, the navy department has completed plans for a new type of submarine which will have a displacement of 1,200 tons, a cruising radius of 3,500 miles and sufficient speed to keep pace with dreadnoughts. There is no such submarine now in existence, but the naval architects evidently have been reading the lessons of the war in Europe.

TAX COLLECTOR 74 YEARS OLD

Expected to Resign on Account of Feebleness — Gained Strength and Twenty-four Pounds by Taking Vinol.

Corinth, Miss.:—"I am a city tax collector and seventy-four years of age. I was in a weak, run-down condition so that I became exhausted by every little exertion. My druggist told me about Vinol, and I decided to take it. In a week I noticed considerable improvement; I continued its use and now I have gained twenty pounds in weight, and feel much stronger. I consider Vinol a fine tonic to create strength for old people."—J. A. PRICE, Corinth, Miss.

As one grows old their organs act more slowly and less effectually than in youth, circulation is poor, the blood gets thin, the appetite poor and digestion weak. Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, is the ideal strengthener and body builder for old folks because it creates a good healthy appetite, strengthens digestion, enriches the blood, improves circulation and in this natural manner builds up, strengthens and invigorates feeble, run-down, nervous and aged people, and if it does not do all we say, we will pay back your money.

BUSINESS IN BERLIN, ONT

There are one hundred and twenty-five factories in Berlin and in every one of them the wheels are whirling True, some of them are working on short time, but then others are stretching the working day far into the night. Berlin's weekly pay envelope contains some sixty thousand dollars, and the ghost is walking regularly. Every one in Berlin seems to have some sort of a job. There may be a few out-of-works, but they are not visible to the naked eye. The pan-handler is unknown and the tramp is taboo. Berlin's nine policemen are busy directing traffic. They don't carry night-sticks; they don't need them, for everybody is too busy to be bothered dabbling in crime. The little city is turning out shoes and shirts and socks and sweaters, furniture and farm machienry, harness and rubber goods, pianos and Pullman cars, and oceans of beer—and filling out a big weekly sales sheet. Berlin is doing more business, for its size, than any other city in Canada, and yet Berlin is the one city in Canada which by its customs, its traditions and the ancestry of its citizens is identified with the nation with which we are at war.—From "Business as Usual in Berlin" by Ben Deacon in Beck's Weekly, Montreal.

Educational Value Of Good Books

Practical Education to Be Gained by Familiarity With One's Own Library

Few there are who realize the extensive knowledge that can be gained through an occasional reference to what might be termed commonplace books. There is probably not a family in Belleville that does not possess at least one such volume that is seldom referred to, or that is possibly concealed in some hiding place where it is not even seen, except at such times as there is a general housecleaning. Run over in your mind the titles of some of these books in your own home. Doubtless you have a copy of the Bible. Do you ever refer to it as a historical work or as a work of reference? You know Abraham Lincoln said: "No library is complete without two certain books—the Bible and Shakespeare; hardly a quotation used in literature that is not taken from one of these works,' and Lincoln was a self-educated man—a man of practical learning, whose words of wisdom will be handed down to posterity.

The Bible thus becomes a work of more than ordinary educational value to the everyday citizen; to men and women, boys and girls; old and young alike. The Intelligencer is now offering the New Illustrated Bible a volume that is unique in that it completely illustrates the subjects which each picture accompanies. The illustrations alone cost $50,000. It is possible to embellish a book without actually illustrating it. This Bible is not merely embellished; it is truly and accurately illustrated. Other Bibles there are containing pictures; none other in which the individual texts are actually illuminated, as though by the touch of inspiration. Comparison is impossible, for this new Bible stands alone—there is no other of its kind. Therefore praise of this superb new book means no disparagement of the many excellent editions published heretofore. Nor is this superiority surprising; for more than 100 of the world's greatest artists working under the advice of archaeologists and historians of wide renown have contributed the choicest products of their skill and genius to produce this grand triumph of artistc beauty and perfection in historical detail These pictures are not mere reproductions of mediaeval frescoes and more or less familiar modern photographs inserted at random; they have been specially made, in the light of exact knowledge, to illustrate selected texts in accordance with the matured beliefs of the greatest living scientists. It must be remembered that this new Bible also contains every essential special feature that gives peculiar value to the best of ordinary Bibles, such as marginal references, descriptive helps, and beautifully colored maps.

Directum I. was paced part of the way by a runner, which could not keep up.

Two thousand people saw the trial. The track was in ideal condition.

GREAT VICTORY NEAR

Early Triumph For Allies Is Predicted by French Expert.

Germans Are Hammering Away With Unheard of Recklessness, But Are Believed To Have Given Up Attempts to Cross Yser River—British Bulletin Says Advance Is Slow, But Steady.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The British official press bureau has issued the following statement:

"The enemy's attack has decreased in vigor and the process of pressing them back is making slow but steady progress.

"The advance has been most marked to the south of Dixmude and toward Gheleweldt, but the weather has been misty and has tended to hamper operations."

"We are on the eve of a new victory, comparable to that of the Marne." So writes Gen. Bonnal, one of France's greatest military leaders and experts, to The Paris Matin.

From the region of Ypres to Rheims the Germans yesterday hammered persistently at the allied front, but with nothing that resembled success. French troops in the neighborhood of Roye won important positions commanding the road to Andechy.

Messages from widely-separated points tell of the allied drive into Belgium, and it now seems that the Germans have been cleared from the coastal plain right up to the outskirts of Ostend. The flooded area which completed the German disaster on the Yser is hindering the movement, it being very difficult to move men and guns in such number along the comparatively few highways not under water.

Great movements of troops around Ypres are reported by French aviators. That town was the centre of vicious fighting throughout the day, the Franco-British lines holding firmly under a terrific artillery fire. It is reported that the Kaiser himself directed the assault on Ypres.

Around Arras there was sanguinary fighting.

At every point on the long front in Lorraine, France and Belgium the situation is favorable to the allies. The Germans are sacrificing men with an extravagant disregard of the "human element" that draws forth the greatest admiration from the opposing forces. But the result is everywhere futile.

A despatch from Sluis to The Telegraaf says: "It is now obvious that the Germans have abandoned their attempts to cross the Yser. Belgian troops occupy both banks of the river.

"German troops have retreated eastward in large numbers, and continued to arrive in Bruges throughout Thursday."

The Exchange Telegraph's correspondent at Amsterdam says the Germans have concentrated in Munster, 78 miles northeast of Cologne, 150,000 fresh troops, which will be sent into Belgium Sunday, when all railway traffic will stop for the present.

Reports come from the Dutch frontier that the Germans are making preparations for retirement, but military observers here say that from the fact that reinforcements are being brought up, it is certain they have not yet despaired of breaking through the allies' front and reaching either Calais or Boulogne.

Elsewhere along the great front there has been a repetition of isolated encounters which, in the French official communications, are referred to as minor affairs, but which in ordinary wars would be considered fair-sized battles.

The British fleet, according to unofficial accounts, again has taken action along the Belgian coast and has been bombarding Enocke and Zeebrugge, where the Germans are supposed to be organizing bases for their submarines.

MORALE GIVING AWAY.

German Soldiers Weakening Under Terrific Losses of Last Fortnight.

NORTH FLANDERS, Nov. 7.—There are signs of the morale of the German troops, who for the last fortnight have been hurled against the British army around Ypres, is giving way. The army cannot attack day after day an enemy who resists successfully and only falls back when overwhelmingly outnumbered without losing heart.

A letter written by a German reserve officer to his wife fell into the hands of the British a few days ago. Its tone is absolutely hopeless. The writer described the sufferings and losses of his regiments. They had been eleven days continuously in the trenches, had all lost hope, and he feared they were doomed. On the strength of this evidence as to the morale of the Germans a counter-attack ordered by the Germans was repulsed from the positions they had just occupied.

Berlin Alleges Afghan Move.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—A report received in Berlin from Constantinople says that the Ameer of Afghanistan has sent an army of 170,000 men, with 136 guns, to the Indian frontier. This news was given out in official quarters in Berlin yesterday to the press. The railroad from Herat to Kushk has been destroyed, says the Berlin story, and a number of Indian border tribes have joined the Afghans.

According to information given out in Berlin official quarters yesterday to the press, Sheik Ul Islam, the chief ecclesiastical dignitary of Mohammedanism in Turkey, has issued a decree in Constantinople, saying in the fighting with Russia, Britain and France, the duty of every Mussulman is to his faith. This decree has been spread throughout the Mohammedan world and announced to the pilgrims at Mecca.

An aged offender who has tried all forms of punishment told the court that he preferred penal servitude. It's a comfort to have a settled outlook, even in jail.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

Zilla Paget lifted a lorgnette which hung at her wrist by a jeweled chain. She clicked it open, raised it to her eyes—and laughed.

"I wonder," she murmured, "if you realize how ridiculous you look. You are too white-livered to do such a thing as that. Besides," she glanced about the sunlit room, "where could you hide the body?"

Enoch tossed the blade upon his desk and began to walk up and down the floor. He rolled his handkerchief into a hard ball and dabbed with it continually at his moist forehead. The woman sat perfectly still. She turned to fold the sheets of paper, then she laid one hand upon them and lay back gracefully in her chair.

Wentworth turned on her with a sudden question. "How much do you want for—Exhibit A and the rest of the evidence?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "I have no intention of selling it."

"Then what's your price?" Enoch's question snapped like a pistol shot.

She looked up at him with a derisive smile.

"My price is ridiculously small, much less than it is worth. I am merely coming here—to live."

"You are coming here—to live? Here—in the house—with my sister?"

"Here—in the house—with your sister," she repeated mockingly. "Exactly. I have taken a fancy to this part of the city. It is rather attractive for New York. I think I shall enjoy the society of your—sister. You will not find me a troublesome guest. I can fit in happily to your home circle. Part of my luggage is there in the hall, you know. The rest is downstairs."

A wave of scarlet swept over Enoch's face.

"To think of Merry squaring up through—you. It's the most infernal scheme ever concocted."

"That's a bally bad guess of yours. Merry does not come into this at all."

"Where did you get these?" Enoch spoke fiercely and pointed to the sheets of paper that lay under her hand.

"It's rather an unusual story. Sit down and I'll tell it to you. If you are searching for a plot for that new play of yours, you might find this worth while."

Wentworth threw himself into the chair in front of his desk and wiped beads of perspiration from his forehead.

"Did you ever hear of George Volk?" asked Miss Paget.

Enoch's forehead corrugated into a puzzled frown.

"I met him in London seven years ago," she continued, "and I was such a bally fool I married him. In those days he was a heroic looking figure. If you saw him as he is today you might say I had showed poor taste."

Wentworth sat staring at her with sullen curiosity.

"I have found out that he is in New York and that ten years ago he had been married here. Also that his wife and child are alive. Interesting situation, isn't it? Bigamy releases a woman, though I had not felt terribly fettered. I have George Volk to thank for bringing that brat across. It was one of his masterly little schemes of revenge. Then, in a curious way, I learned that Volk's wife is the woman you call Alice Bourne. He laid a scheme to get money out of her yesterday. I got a detective and planned to face him when he reached his wife."

"Yes, Curse It!" Repeated Zilla With an Amused Laugh.

"What the devil has Volk and your matrimonial affairs to do with that?" Wentworth pointed to the sheets of paper beside her on the table.

"Don't be in such a blooming hurry. I tell you the situation is dramatic. I went to the house where Alice Volk lives in Harlem—oh, I was disguised, I tell you; you would never have known me. The detective got in first and opened the area door. I slipped in and waited. He was to give me a signal when Volk arrived. A servant came clumping down the cellar stairs after coal. I hid in a closet where they store trash and—waste paper."

Enoch's eyes narrowed and a yellow pallor crept over his face. "Curse it!" He spoke in a hoarse whisper.

"Yes, curse it!" repeated Zilla Paget with an amused laugh. "My word! it was a blooming queer accident! I closed the door, the latch caught and I couldn't get out. There I was, locked in that beastly hole. I struck a match. It was lucky I had a matchbox along. Then I found an electric light. The first thing my eyes lit on among that waste was a sheet of paper. I picked it up. I had seen the writing before."

"Whose was it?" stammered Wentworth.

"Whose was it? Don't put up that bluff on me," cried the actress scornfully. "It was Merry's, of course. You recognized it in a second. It was the last speech I made in the second act—as it used to be—before you, the author, changed it."

"Well," cried Enoch fiercely. The woman paused and turned to him with an amused smile.

"I had forgotten about George Volk. He never showed up. He does not count anyway. I found the whole play in that closet."

"Then what did you do?" Enoch's face was full of hatred and defiance. His eyes flamed with the tumult of an animal at bay.

"There was only one thing to do." Zilla Paget lay back in the chair and smoothed the chinchilla of her muff caressingly. "Of course I brought it away with me, every scrap of it. You would not have let such a valuable asset into the hands of a dustman, would you? There are only two pages missing. Do you care to see it?"

"Damn you, no! I have no wish to see it," snarled Wentworth.

"Any fool can tell at a glance it is a first draft. Merry must have written like mad. There is hardly a change in it. Except for my own role, every line stands almost as it was written."

Enoch suddenly leaned forward in his chair. "You think you've got the strangle hold on me?"

Miss Paget laughed triumphantly. "The strangle hold! You Americans have such jolly strong words! That's great—the strangle hold."

She rose and folded the pages of manuscript, put them in her bag, then she drew off her coat and hung it on the chair behind her. She lifted a gold case from the pocket, picked out a cigarette, and scratching a match lit it, blowing a delicate ring of smoke across the room. It flitted into Wentworth's face.

"I always knew," she bent over to drop a fleck of ashes on a tray beside her, "or rather I have guessed for a long time, that you did not write 'The House of Esterbrook.'"

"What gave you that impression?"

"For one thing, everybody tells how you and Merry were friends once—Castor and Pollux sort of guys, don't you know. You hate each other now. An owl could see that with its eyes shut."

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Progress Is Made at Several Points Along the Line.

PARIS, Nov. 4. — The following official communication was issued last night:

"The only advices received this evening concerning the region at the northeast of Vailly, where we have counter attacked and retaken the farm at Metz, in the region of the de-Paris-Saint-Hubert and the Argonne, where a German attack has been repulsed and we have gained some ground."

Yesterday afternoon's official statement reads:

"On our left wing the enemy seems to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser down stream from Dixmude, and reconnaissances by troops of the allies undertaken on the highways in the inundated regions were successful in re-occupying points of passage across the river without great difficulty.

"To the south of Dixmude, and in the direction of Gheluvit, our advance was particularly perceptible.

"In the region to the north of Lys, in spite of determined attacks by the Germans in considerable force, our front was everywhere maintained or re-established by the end of the day.

"Fresh attacks by the Germans on the environs of Arras and against Lihons and Lequesnoy-en-Santorre resulted in failures.

"On the centre, in the region of the Aisne, to the east of the forest of Aigle, we have made some progress. To the east of Vailly, according to the latest news, those of our troops who held the positions on the slopes of the plateaus to the north of the Villages of Chavonne and Soupir, has been compelled to draw back into the valley to the east of this location. We have maintained our positions at Amont, on the right bank of the river.

"There was violent cannonading during the day between Rheims and the Meuse, as well as on the heights of the Meuse.

"Further efforts on the part of the Germans in the Forest of Argonne have been checked.

"We have continued to make progress to the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson.

"On our right wing there have been some engagements favorable to our arms along the River Seille."

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Germans Are Rearranging Composition of Corps In Belgium.

PARIS, Nov. 7. — The following bulletin was issued by the French War Office last night:

"To the north the fighting continues to be severe. According to the latest reports our offensive was proceeding to the region to the south and east of Ypres.

"In the region of Arras and from Arras to the Oise several German attacks have been repulsed.

"In the region of the Aisne we have retaken, to the east of Vailly, the Village of Soupir, which was lost the other day.

"In the Argonne the enemy keeps attacking violently, but without result.

"On the heights of the Meuse and to the east of Verdun we have captured some trenches."

The afternoon statement says, in part:

"There was no perceptible modification during the day of yesterday (Thursday) anywhere on the front. The fighting continued between Dixmude and the Lys with the same characteristics as previously and without any marked advance or retirement at any point. There was violent cannonading to the north of Arras, and also directed upon Arras, without result for the enemy.

"The German effort in Belgium and in the north of France continues. The Germans seem to have undertaken changes in the composition of their forces, which are operating in this region, and are reinforcing their reserve corps, composed of new organisations which have been very severely tested with active troops, with the idea of undertaking a new offensive moment, or at least to mitigate the bloody checks which have been inflicted upon them.

"Between the Somme and the Oise and between the Oise and the Meuse there have been minor actions. We have consolidated our advance on the Village of Andechy, to the west of Roye.

"Near Berry-au-Bac we have retaken the Village of Sapgneul, which had been captured by the Germans. There has been a furious fight in the Argonne, where, as a result of fighting with the bayonet, our troops drove the Germans back."

ALLIED FLEETS IN BATTLE?

British and Japanese Said Engaging Germans Off S. American Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7. — Private advices yesterday to prominent British shipping agents here from their correspondents in Valparaiso report that an engagement is taking place of Yauyos, between British, German and Japanese warships. Press despatches telling of a previous German-British naval engagement are confirmed in the messages.

No details of the engagement were given. Closer reading of the cable message seemed to indicate that Yauyos was not the name of a town off which the engagement was in progress but a code word which had been left blank of meaning in the firm's code book. An enquiry to the firm's home office at London for a translation of Yauyos had brought no answer late yesterday.

The firm believed the battle was taking place somewhere off the coast of Chile.

SECRET WIRELESS STATIONS.

British Embassy Officials In Washington Investigate Rumors.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. — Out of the flood of letters which pours into the British Embassy, offering, for various considerations, information of German wireless stations on American territory, some which claim information of secret stations in Maine are being used as a basis for investigation.

Others tell of stations on the Pacific coast, in South America, and in the mountain country in Scotland, where the stations are said to communicate with German ships waiting to raid the English coast.

The remarkable recent mobilization of the German ships off the South American coast with such disastrous results to the smallest British squadron has strengthened the belief of British Embassy officials here that some secret means of communication extends into South America, and that the German ships operating in southern waters may have been receiving supplies from somewhere on the Pacific coast of the southern continent.

PARIS OPTIMISTIC.

A Few More Weeks Will See Enemy Forced Back, They Say.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Paris appears to be more optimistic. The hope is freely expressed that a few more weeks of patient effort on the part of the allies will result in forcing the Germans right back into the interior of Belgium and so compelling the withdrawal of the whole line from Lille to Moselle toward the frontier.

This hopefulness is based to a considerable extent on the progress of the allies east of the Yser, which is accepted as establishing that the Germans have fallen back some distance from the river. The lack of the former energy in the German offensive between Dixmude and the Lys, whether it indicates a general retirement or the temporary exhaustion of their troops, is held to be all the more remarkable since there are no less than eight army corps massed on that front.

Body Found in Woods.

BRACEBRIDGE, Nov. 7. — The body of Joseph Gleason, about 55, was found yesterday morning in a bush about three miles from town by a search party, who have been hunting for him for several days. He left home over two weeks ago to hunt partridge. There was a bullet wound in the head and the gun was lying across his arm. No suspicion of foul play is entertained, nor no cause is known for suicide. An inquest will be held.

The money that American tourists in Europe could not spend because no one would take it, can be usefully spent here. Some of them may able to do their Christmas shopping with it.

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolvertons"

ILLUSTRATIONS by ELLSWORTH YOUNG

COPYRIGHT, 1914 BY F. G. BROWNE & CO.

Zilla Paget lifted a lorgnette which hung at her wrist by a jeweled chain. She clicked it open, raised it to her eyes—and laughed.

"I wonder," she murmured, "if you realize how ridiculous you look. You are too white-livered to do such a thing as that. Besides," she glanced about the sunlit room, "where could you hide the body?"

Enoch tossed the blade upon his desk and began to walk up and down the floor. He rolled his handkerchief into a hard ball and dabbed with it continually at his moist forehead. The woman sat perfectly still. She turned to fold the sheets of paper, then she laid one hand upon them and lay back gracefully in her chair.

Wentworth turned on her with a sudden question. "How much do you want for—Exhibit A and the rest of the evidence?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "I have no intention of selling it."

"Then what's your price?" Enoch's question snapped like a pistol shot.

She looked up at him with a derisive smile.

"My price is ridiculously small, much less than it is worth. I am merely coming here—to live."

"You are coming here—to live? Here—in the house—with my sister?"

"Here—in the house—with your sister," she repeated mockingly. "Exactly. I have taken a fancy to this part of the city. It is rather attractive for New York. I think I shall enjoy the society of your—sister. You will not find me a troublesome guest. I can fit in happily to your home circle. Part of my luggage is there in the hall, you know. The rest is downstairs."

A wave of scarlet swept over Enoch's face.

"To think of Merry squaring up through—you. It's the most infernal scheme ever concocted."

"That's a bally bad guess of yours. Merry does not come into this at all."

"Where did you get these?" Enoch spoke fiercely and pointed to the sheets of paper that lay under her hand.

"It's rather an unusual story. Sit down and I'll tell it to you. If you are searching for a plot for that new play of yours, you might find this worth while."

Wentworth threw himself into the chair in front of his desk and wiped beads of perspiration from his forehead.

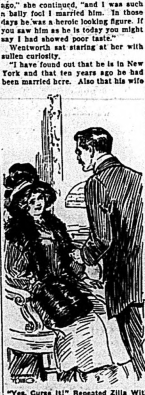
"Did you ever hear of George Volk?" asked Miss Paget.

Enoch's forehead corrugated into a puzzled frown.

"I met him in London seven years ago," she continued, "and I was such a bally fool I married him. In those days he was a heroic looking figure. If you saw him as he is today you might say I had showed poor taste."

Wentworth sat staring at her with sullen curiosity.

"I have found out that he is in New York and that ten years ago he had been married here. Also that his wife and child are alive. Interesting situation, isn't it? Bigamy releases a woman, though I had not felt terribly fettered. I have George Volk to thank for bringing that brat across. It was one of his masterly little schemes of revenge. Then, in a curious way, I learned that Volk's wife is the woman you call Alice Bourne. He laid a scheme to get money out of her yesterday. I got a detective and planned to face him when he reached his wife."



"Yes, Curse It!" Repeated Zilla With an Amused Laugh.

"What the devil has Volk and your matrimonial affairs to do with that?" Wentworth pointed to the sheets of paper beside her on the table.

"Don't be in such a blooming hurry. I tell you the situation is dramatic. I went to the house where Alice Volk lives in Harlem—oh, I was disguised, I tell you; you would never have known me. The detective got in first and opened the area door. I slipped in and waited. He was to give me a signal when Volk arrived. A servant came clumping down the cellar stairs after coal. I hid in a closet where they store trash and—waste paper."

Enoch's eyes narrowed and a yellow pallor crept over his face. "Curse it!" He spoke in a hoarse whisper.

"Yes, curse it!" repeated Zilla Paget with an amused laugh. "My word! it was a blooming queer accident! I closed the door, the latch caught and I couldn't get out. There I was, locked in that beastly hole. I struck a match. It was lucky I had a matchbox along. Then I found an electric light. The first thing my eyes lit on among that waste was a sheet of paper. I picked it up. I had seen the writing before."

"Whose was it?" stammered Wentworth.

"Whose was it? Don't put up that bluff on me," cried the actress scornfully. "It was Merry's, of course. You recognized it in a second. It was the last speech I made in the second act—as it used to be—before you, the author, changed it."

"Well," cried Enoch fiercely. The woman paused and turned to him with an amused smile.

"I had forgotten about George Volk. He never showed up. He does not count anyway. I found the whole play in that closet."

"Then what did you do?" Enoch's face was full of hatred and defiance. His eyes flamed with the tumult of an animal at bay.

"There was only one thing to do." Zilla Paget lay back in the chair and smoothed the chinchilla of her muff caressingly. "Of course I brought it away with me, every scrap of it. You would not have let such a valuable asset into the hands of a dustman, would you? There are only two pages missing. Do you care to see it?"

"Damn you, no! I have no wish to see it," snarled Wentworth.

"Any fool can tell at a glance it is a first draft. Merry must have written like mad. There is hardly a change in it. Except for my own role, every line stands almost as it was written."

Enoch suddenly leaned forward in his chair. "You think you've got the strangle hold on me?"

Miss Paget laughed triumphantly. "The strangle hold! You Americans have such jolly strong words! That's great—the strangle hold."

She rose and folded the pages of manuscript, put them in her bag, then she drew off her coat and hung it on the chair behind her. She lifted a gold case from the pocket, picked out a cigarette, and scratching a match lit it, blowing a delicate ring of smoke across the room. It flitted into Wentworth's face.

"I always knew," she bent over to drop a fleck of ashes on a tray beside her, "or rather I have guessed for a long time, that you did not write 'The House of Esterbrook.'"

"What gave you that impression?"

"For one thing, everybody tells how you and Merry were friends once—Castor and Pollux sort of guys, don't you know. You hate each other now. An owl could see that with its eyes shut."

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Progress Is Made at Several Points Along the Line.

PARIS, Nov. 4. — The following official communication was issued last night:

"The only advices received this evening concerning the region at the northeast of Vailly, where we have counter attacked and retaken the farm at Metz, in the region of the de-Paris-Saint-Hubert and the Argonne, where a German attack has been repulsed and we have gained some ground."

Yesterday afternoon's official statement reads:

"On our left wing the enemy seems to have completely abandoned the left bank of the Yser down stream from Dixmude, and reconnaissances by troops of the allies undertaken on the highways in the inundated regions were successful in re-occupying points of passage across the river without great difficulty.

"To the south of Dixmude, and in the direction of Gheluvit, our advance was particularly perceptible.

"In the region to the north of Lys, in spite of determined attacks by the Germans in considerable force, our front was everywhere maintained or re-established by the end of the day.

"Fresh attacks by the Germans on the environs of Arras and against Lihons and Lequesnoy-en-Santorre resulted in failures.

"On the centre, in the region of the Aisne, to the east of the forest of Aigle, we have made some progress. To the east of Vailly, according to the latest news, those of our troops who held the positions on the slopes of the plateaus to the north of the Villages of Chavonne and Soupir, has been compelled to draw back into the valley to the east of this location. We have maintained our positions at Amont, on the right bank of the river.

"There was violent cannonading during the day between Rheims and the Meuse, as well as on the heights of the Meuse.

"Further efforts on the part of the Germans in the Forest of Argonne have been checked.

"We have continued to make progress to the northwest of Pont-a-Mousson.

"On our right wing there have been some engagements favorable to our arms along the River Seille."

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Germans Are Rearranging Composition of Corps In Belgium.

PARIS, Nov. 7. — The following bulletin was issued by the French War Office last night:

"To the north the fighting continues to be severe. According to the latest reports our offensive was proceeding to the region to the south and east of Ypres.

"In the region of Arras and from Arras to the Oise several German attacks have been repulsed.

"In the region of the Aisne we have retaken, to the east of Vailly, the Village of Soupir, which was lost the other day.

"In the Argonne the enemy keeps attacking violently, but without result.

"On the heights of the Meuse and to the east of Verdun we have captured some trenches."

The afternoon statement says, in part:

"There was no perceptible modification during the day of yesterday (Thursday) anywhere on the front. The fighting continued between Dixmude and the Lys with the same characteristics as previously and without any marked advance or retirement at any point. There was violent cannonading to the north of Arras, and also directed upon Arras, without result for the enemy.

"The German effort in Belgium and in the north of France continues. The Germans seem to have undertaken changes in the composition of their forces, which are operating in this region, and are reinforcing their reserve corps, composed of new organisations which have been very severely tested with active troops, with the idea of undertaking a new offensive moment, or at least to mitigate the bloody checks which have been inflicted upon them.

"Between the Somme and the Oise and between the Oise and the Meuse there have been minor actions. We have consolidated our advance on the Village of Andechy, to the west of Roye.

"Near Berry-au-Bac we have retaken the Village of Sapgneul, which had been captured by the Germans. There has been a furious fight in the Argonne, where, as a result of fighting with the bayonet, our troops drove the Germans back."

ALLIED FLEETS IN BATTLE?

British and Japanese Said Engaging Germans Off S. American Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7. — Private advices yesterday to prominent British shipping agents here from their correspondents in Valparaiso report that an engagement is taking place of Yauyos, between British, German and Japanese warships. Press despatches telling of a previous German-British naval engagement are confirmed in the messages.

No details of the engagement were given. Closer reading of the cable message seemed to indicate that Yauyos was not the name of a town off which the engagement was in progress but a code word which had been left blank of meaning in the firm's code book. An enquiry to the firm's home office at London for a translation of Yauyos had brought no answer late yesterday.

The firm believed the battle was taking place somewhere off the coast of Chile.

SECRET WIRELESS STATIONS.

British Embassy Officials In Washington Investigate Rumors.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. — Out of the flood of letters which pours into the British Embassy, offering, for various considerations, information of German wireless stations on American territory, some which claim information of secret stations in Maine are being used as a basis for investigation.

Others tell of stations on the Pacific coast, in South America, and in the mountain country in Scotland, where the stations are said to communicate with German ships waiting to raid the English coast.

The remarkable recent mobilization of the German ships off the South American coast with such disastrous results to the smallest British squadron has strengthened the belief of British Embassy officials here that some secret means of communication extends into South America, and that the German ships operating in southern waters may have been receiving supplies from somewhere on the Pacific coast of the southern continent.

PARIS OPTIMISTIC.

A Few More Weeks Will See Enemy Forced Back, They Say.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Paris appears to be more optimistic. The hope is freely expressed that a few more weeks of patient effort on the part of the allies will result in forcing the Germans right back into the interior of Belgium and so compelling the withdrawal of the whole line from Lille to Moselle toward the frontier.

This hopefulness is based to a considerable extent on the progress of the allies east of the Yser, which is accepted as establishing that the Germans have fallen back some distance from the river. The lack of the former energy in the German offensive between Dixmude and the Lys, whether it indicates a general retirement or the temporary exhaustion of their troops, is held to be all the more remarkable since there are no less than eight army corps massed on that front.

Body Found in Woods.

BRACEBRIDGE, Nov. 7. — The body of Joseph Gleason, about 55, was found yesterday morning in a bush about three miles from town by a search party, wh have been hunting for him for several days. He left home over two weeks ago to hunt partridge. There was a bullet wound in the head and the gun was lying across his arm. No suspicion of foul play is entertained, nor no cause is known for suicide. An inquest will be held.

The money that American tourists in Europe could not spend because no one would take it, can be usefully spent here. Some of them may able to do their Christmas shopping with it.

JAPAN WELL PLEASED.

Fall of Tsingtau Is Occasion for Great Celebrations.

TOKIO, Nov. 9. — Emperor Yoshihito and Empress Sadako have sent messages of appreciation to the forces of the allies that participated in the operations resulting in the fall of Tsingtau, the seat of government of Kiaochau, the German-leased possession in China.

To the Japanese his Majesty expressed gratitude for the faithful discharge of their duties by the officers and men of the army and navy.

The following was sent by the Emperor to the British forces:

"The Emperor deeply appreciates the brilliant deeds of the British army and navy which, co-operating with the Japanese, fought bravely and achieved the object of the war."

The Empress expressed similar sentiments in two messages.

The formalities of the surrender of Tsingtau are described in an official statement issued yesterday, and in which it is announced that the Germans have capitulated unconditionally.

Japan is still celebrating the fall of Tsingtau. Extraordinary enthusiasm is manifested throughout the empire. In every city there are lantern processions and merriment nightly. Every house supports a flag. In Tokio, cheering crowds surrounded the high officers of the army and navy and the diplomatic representatives of the allies. The popularity of the Anglo-Japanese alliance is shown by the recognition everywhere of Great Britain's share in the victory. Imperial edicts congratulate the British as well as the Japanese warriors.

Among the rumors such as are always set afloat at a time like this is one that Governor Meyer Waldeck of Kiaochau, was mortally wounded and committed suicide. This gained some credence despite the fact that it was officially announced that the German governor conducted the negotiations for the surrender of the town.

It is also reported that the garrisons of the coast forts fought up to the last minute and then tried to escape by a train, firing their small arms as they fled. Many, it is said, did escape across the bay in junks and are now being pursued.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

It is officially announced in Vienna that there were 256 cases of cholera in Galicia last Thursday. Of these, 126 cases were in Przemysl.

The nine-year-old son of Joseph Perkins, was accidentally shot by his brother, aged seven, at their father's home yesterday morning, and died shortly afterwards.

The body of Minghella Michiele, an Italian, was found lying in a ditch alongside the G. T. R. tracks near Kingston Saturday afternoon. He was struck by a fast west-bound train.

An agitation is proceeding in Britain strongly backed by trades union bodies for the payment of a pound weekly to disabled soldiers, sailors, and widows of those killed in action.

Augustin Rodriguez, member of the Huerta commission sent to Niagara Falls mediation conference last May, was arrested Saturday in Mexico City. The charge against him is not known.

The Petrograd Bourse Gazette's Warsaw correspondent says that 21 persons have died in hospitals there during the last few days from wounds received from German bombs dropped from aeroplanes.

F. C. Dulmage, manager of London branch of the United Typewriter Co., and one of the best known breeders of white Plymouth Rock chickens, in Canada, died yesterday after a long illness. He was 44 years of age.

Word has been received at Kingston to recruit a portion of the heavy battery. The guns to be used will be the 4.7 inch type. The section to be organized here will consist of lieutenant and 39 men, besides shoemakers and saddlers.

PROFESSOR LOSES LIFE.

Dr. Mines of McGill Is Victim of Experiment on Himself.

MONTREAL, Nov. 9—G. R. Mines, professor of physiology at McGill University, met death mysteriously and tragically Saturday evening in his laboratory at McGill University. Just what caused his death is not known, but Principal Peterson believes Prof. Mines, in the course of experiments upon himself in his chosen branch of physiology, dealing chiefly with the phenomena of the heart action and respiration, probably lost his life through the apparatus which was attached to his body getting out of order in some unknown manner.

Prof. Mines had been in the laboratory all afternoon, working on his experiments, and his prostrate body was discovered by the janitor shortly after six o'clock. The broken mechanism was still attached over the professor's heart. He left a widow and two children.

Dr. D. D. McTaggart has issued a certificate of accidental death.

Prof. Mines was 29 years of age. He was a Cambridge University professor, and came to Montreal from Toronto University, where he was a colleague of Prof. Birdie.

Mount Aetna Is Active.

CATANIA, Sicily, Nov. 9.—Mount Etna is again showing signs of unrest. Rumblings may be heard in the interior of the volcano and this is accompanied by the emission of great quantities of smoke. These phenomena are believed to be connected with the earthquake felt near Messina Saturday and the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius.

To Tie Up Belgium Railways.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 9.—(Via London.)—According to the newspaper Vaterland, all the employes of the Belgian railways plan to go on strike, thereby adding to the difficulties of the Germans.

NOW PASS WIRBALLEN GERMANS SWEPT BACK

Slav Army In East Prussia Has Rolled Up German Defences as Far as Stalluponen and Is Pressing on Rear Guard of Enemy — Cavalry Penetrates German Territory at Pleschen, Near Kalisz.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 9. — The following official communication was issued from general headquarters yesterday:

"On the East Prussian front our troops have dislodged the Germans from the region of Wirballen, which was strongly fortified, and have progressed as far as Stalluponen, 16 miles east-northeast of Gumbinnen. In the region of Rominten forest and Lyck our troops continue to press on the heels of the rear guards of the enemy.

"On the left bank of the Vistula our cavalry has penetrated German territory, damaging the railway near Pleschen station, to the northeast of Kalisz.

"On the roads to Cracow on Nov. 6 we attacked the Austrian rear guards along the Nida river and the next day were operating on the River Nidzica.

"In Galicia our troops are continuing their offensive movement. In the latest engagements on the San river we captured 125 officers and 12,000 soldiers, as well as rapid firers and munitions of war. South of Przemysl, on Nov. 6 we took more than 1,000 prisoners."

The following official communication has been received from the Russian general staff in Caucasia:

"Our troops on Nov. 6, after a fierce battle, seized the Turkish position at Koprukeui, in Turkish Armenia. 30 miles east of Erzerum, a naturally strong position and well fortified. The position covers the route to Erzerum.

"Our troops continue to pursue the defeated enemy."

Late advices from the front state that the Russians are assaulting the German forces at Sieradz, on the Warthe river, southeast of Kalisz and about 15 miles from the German border. This is the only fortified position in Russian Poland still in the hands of the Kaiser's armies.

Between Oct. 25 and Nov. 4, the Russians captured on their centre 274 officers, 18,500 troops, 3 howitzers, 40 guns, 38 rapid-firers and a vast quantity of ammunition and stores.

The roads in Russia are hardening with frost and armies can now be moved more quickly, although the Russians do not possess the strategic railways that the Germans do. Silesia, too, with better going for the horses, offers an excellent field for the use of cavalry, in which Russia has proven herself to be superior, both in numbers and efficiency, to the enemy. The Cossacks are regaining the reputation which they lost in Manchuria, and the raid they have already made in Silesia, it is expected, will be repeated many times.

Retreat Cut Off.

ROME, Nov. 9.—(Via London.)—The Tribuna's Petrograd correspondent telegraphs that the Russians have completely separated the German and Austrian armies, and the Austrian retreat on Cracow has been cut off. The forces of the dual monarchy are making for the Carpathians, short of food and ammunition.

The Vienna correspondent of The Giornale d'Italia says that Vienna newspapers admit a grave defeat on the San. One hundred thousand wounded have been brought back from the front in the last ten days.

VICTORY ON CONGO.

Belgian Forces Have Taken Fort at Kissegnie on Lake Kivu.

HAVRE, Nov. 9.—A report of the operations of the Belgians in the Congo, as published in The Courrier L'Armee Belge, says:

"Our troops have conducted themselves bravely in the colony of the Congo. A flying column has just taken Kissegnie, a fortified point on the bank of Lake Kivu. The troops in their assault on the fort inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

"A German attempt to take Albertville, on the west shore of Lake Tanganyika, failed.

"A Belgian column from Katanga has entered British Rhodesia to aid the British forces from Abercorn in an operation directed against German East Africa."

Big Earthquake at Messina.

MESSINA, Nov. 9.—(Via Rome.)—A strong earthquake shock, which was felt in this vicinity on Saturday, has caused considerable alarm among the populace, especially as following so closely the fresh activity of Mount Vesuvius. Fears are entertained that the new shock is but the forerunner of another period of earthquakes. According to the registrations at the observatory, the centre of the earthquake was about 77 miles distant from Messina.

Suicide of Soldier.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 9.—While despondent, John Donnaghue, of Ottawa, a volunteer for overseas service, jumped into the St. Lawrence river Saturday afternoon and was drowned. He enlisted with the Governor-General's Foot Guards and arrived in the city on Tuesday last. The body was recovered shortly afterwards. He has a brother serving with the United States army.

Saxony's Crown Prince Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 9. — Owing to a serious wound in the leg, received in action on the battlefield in France, Crown Prince George of Saxony has arrived at the royal castle at Dresden and will take no further part in the campaign, says a despatch from The Hague to the Exchange Telegraph Co.

HEROISM MAGNIFICENT

British Troops Have Brilliantly Fulfilled Their Task.

German Bodies Are Piled High Around the Trenches Between Ypres and La Bassee Says Correspondent of Le Temps and Carnage Has Been Frightful — Thin Line of British Checked Rushes.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The war correspondent of Le Temps says:

"The British troops are fighting with magnificent heroism. Their vitally important mission is to hold the German hordes between Ypres and La Bassee. They have been in the trenches for several weeks, facing an enemy of overwhelmingly superior numbers, who attacks with savage fury.

"The carnage around the British trenches is frightful. Night and day the thin British line steadily faces the desperate German rushes, piling the German dead upon their breastworks.

"After one night attack a single British battalion accounted for 700 Germans, whose bodies were strewn a few yards from their trenches.

"The British losses also were terrible. I saw one Guards' battalion with a subaltern the sole remaining officer. Some of the cavalry regiments have lost 50 per cent. of their effectives during the last week's fighting. One regiment of Lancers sat calmly upon their horses near Messines beneath a withering shrapnel fire. The order to advance was not given until the stationary regiment was decimated. Then the remainder charged into Messines afoot, completely clearing the village.

"Three days ago a British battery surprised a German brigade in close formation and within a few minutes massacred 4,000 of them.

"Despite their frightful losses, it is not true that the German army is demoralized. The youths being brought into Belgium to reinforce the Germans fire badly, but go to their death bravely, and so long as the Kaiser is able to send such young soldiers against us the German attacks will continue violent."

CANADIANS IN LONDON.

Members of Contingent See Metropolis From Taxicabs.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—One of the unusual signs of the town just now is the large number of Canadian troops who have been brought to the city from their camp on Salisbury Plains, and shown the big city from the vantage point of taxicabs. The men seem to be plentifully supplied with money and have enjoyed their vacation hugely. New batches have been brought in every second day and London has more than welcomed the brothers from across the water.

This change in the regimen of camp life have proved a great boon to the men.

There is a prospect of a big parade through the streets of London when Britons will get a chance to size up their stalwart compatriots. Everybody is demanding this honor for the men and the Canadian colony is especially anxious to see it accomplished.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Allies Are Holding Germans Everywhere, Says French War Office.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The following official communication was issued by the French War Office last night:

"To the north the enemy appears to have concentrated his activity in the region of Ypres, without result. On the remainder of the line we are holding our ground everywhere.

"On the River Aisne we have reached to the northeast of Soissons, the Plateau of Vregny, on which we had not previously gained a foothold.

"Elsewhere there is nothing to report."

Yesterday afternoon's French War Office report says:

"Yesterday, between the North Sea and the Lys the fighting was less violent. Some attacks, not general, of the enemy, were repulsed in the direction of Dixmude and to the northeast of Ypres. On almost all of this front we, in turn, took the offensive and advanced, notably in the region to the north of Messines.

"In the neighborhood of Armentieres the British troops progressed slightly. Between La Bassee and Arras the attacks of the enemy were repulsed.

"From Arras to Soissons nothing worthy of note took place.

"Around Soissons our forces made a marked advance. In the region of Vailly, and equally on the right bank of the Aisne, we strengthened our progress to the North of Chavonne and Soupir. A German attack on Caronelle and Heurtebize was repulsed.

"In the neighborhood of Verdun to the northwest and to the southeast of that place, we are establishing the supporting positions recently gained.

"A dense fog prevailed all day in the north, as well as in Champagne and Lorrain, hampering the action of the artillery and the aviation corps."

TWO FORTS DESTROYED.

British Ships Have Ruined Strongholds in the Dardanelles.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Co. at Athens says:

"Two British destroyers bombarded the telegraph stations at Sarmoussak and Ayasmat. The Turks sank a Greek steamer that was flying the British flag at Aivali.

"The Greek inhabitants of Smyrna are fleeing panic-stricken. A British destroyer went to Aivali to embark the British consul, but the Turks refused to permit this.

"It is stated that Forts Sedie Bahr and Kum Kaleh, in the Dardanelles, have been completely destroyed by the bombardment. The Turks, under the direction of German officers, are hastily fortifying Aivali."

Aivali is midway between Smyrna and the Dardanelles.

Bombarded Concealed Troops.

ATHENS, Nov. 9. — A British squadron cruising along the littoral of Asia Minor bombarded concealed Turkish troops on the east.

A telegraph station near Smyrna was destroyed.

A British battleship has gone to Aivali to seek the Brirtish consul, in consequence of the attitude of Turkish authorities toward British subjects.

Turks have mined the waters outside of Port of Skiro, with a view to isolating the town.

GORDONS' COLONEL KILLED.

Frederick Walter Kerr Is Among the List of British Dead.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A British casualty list dated Nov. 1 and issued here Saturday night, gives the names of 15 officers killed and 60 wounded.

Among the killed are Col. Frederick Walter Kerr, of the Gordon Highlanders, third son of the late Admiral Lord Frederick H. Kerr, and Sir Gilchrist Nevil Ogilvy, of the Scots Guards, who married a daughter of the Earl of Elgin.

In the wounded list occur the names of Lieut. Lord John Wodehouse, well-known as an international polo player; Capt. Sir Victor Audley Falconer Mackenzie, of the Scots' Guards, son-in-law of Viscount Knollys, private secretary to King George; Lieut. the Hon. H. E. H. Macdonald, of the Scots' Guards, son of Baron Macdonald; Lieut. the Hon. D. S. P. Howard, of the Third Hussars.

Deported Labor Men Return.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Durban, Natal, correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Co. says that the labor leaders who were deported to England after the Rand riots last January have returned in conformity with an amnesty decree, recently issued.

Dr. H. J. Poutsma, one of the deported, stated in behalf of his companions that all had come back unconditionally, but had promised not to embarrass the Government during the war. Their landing was not accompanied by any demonstration.

Hudson Bay Strike Ends.

THE PAS, Man., Nov. 9.—It was announced that a telegram had been received from Assistant Chief Engineer Gordon, now in Winnipeg, to the effect that the striking engineers and firemen on the Hudson Bay Railway were to report for duty Monday morning.

Mr. Gordon left The Pas early last week for the purpose of endeavoring to adjust the differences existing between the contractors and the men interested.

SAY GERMANS SEIZE FOOD

Letters from Belgium Tell of Levies in Ostend and Bruges.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Letters have been received from Belgium transmitting evidence that in several instances local German commanders have stated finally they would not furnish food to the Belgian population, needing all available food for their own soldiers. It is also alleged here that since the American Relief Commission began its operations the German military has been seizing food in several Belgian towns, including Ostend and Bruges.

Recent German food levies are similar to those made during the earlier stages of the war as the German army advanced. The fact that the Germans are taking food which must be replaced doubtless acounts for the British Government's refused to permit further exportations from here.

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractic permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chiropractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

INTERESTING LETTER FROM CAPT. O'FLYNN

Mrs F. E. O'Flynn of Bridge Street East received a letter from Capt. O'Flynn this morning. He describes the landing of the troops, the visit of the boys to places of note around Plymouth and said that they were particularly moved when walking through the streets where Drake and Frobisher trod in bygone days. He said that it thrilled his heart and he felt that every Canadian Volunteer was stirred when visiting the spot where Drake was playing bowls when he received the news that the Armanda was in sight and from which place he proceeded with calmness and courage to attack the most formidable foe that England has ever met.

He said that their camp is an ideal spot for camping, and that the men are working hard all eager to strike a blow for the Empire and the honor of Canada. The men are particularly pleased with the Commander-in-Chief, General Alderson. He is described as a fine type of soldier and a great favorite with the men.

Capt. O'Flynn says that the Belleville boys have been particularly free from sickness. That they are in splendid health and working hard to put themselves in the best of shape. The captain himself is in the best of health, very enthusiastic in his work and has fully appreciated the kindness of his many friends in Belleville and vicinity and sends his best wishes and greetings to them all.

PRIVATE VANDERVOORT WRITES HOME

The following letter from Private Milton Vandervoort to a Belleville pastor, speaks for itself:

Dear Mr. Sanderson:—

Just a line to let you know that we are all happy and contented, even though the tents did leak last night. We were on a route march today and passing through some English villages were much impressed by the English hospitality shown us. I am writing in one of the Y.M.C.A. tents, which is a favorite haunt of man and officer, and find it very comfortable with its concerts, games and other pleasures. The Canadian soldier has a lot to thank the Y.M.C.A. for. Of course this is all old news to you but I'll tell you anyhow. Our journey oversea was an uneventful one, only not so luxurious as Mrs. Sanderson and yourself had. We received a great welcome from the people of Plymouth and viewed in the great naval port many modern warships of all sizes and description, some undergoing repair and some being built. The Camp here is much larger than at Valcartier and we are stationed quite a distance from the 4th Battery. Although I am enjoying myself here I would like to be in the old church, for at least one Sunday (before we go to France) which is home to me. We will go if the announcement is correct in about three months' time. I was fortunate enough to get four days' leave to go to London, which is only about 60 miles north of us. We are all happy and contented. I think I will close. I am writing in the midst of a concert so please excuse errors. Give my best regards to Mrs. Sanderson, Mr. Bailey, the choir and the rest.

Yours Sincerely

Dedication of Pipe Organ at Baptist Church

The Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was crowded at both the morning and evening services yesterday, when the new pipe-organ was formally opened and sermons were preached by the Rev. Dr. Norton, President of the Baptist denomination of Ontario and Quebec. In addition to the new organ the church has been re-decorated—the ceiling is a cream color and the walls are of a buff shade. The woodwork is all in a finish of dark oak. The carpets are Brussels and the curtains for the choir railings and large baptistry are of a deep green velour. The church interior has been completely transformed, including the choir and robing rooms and the main entrances. The new organ was installed by the Warren Church Organ Company of Woodstock. It is of two manuals with eight hundred and sixty speaking pipes. The action throughout is tubular pneumatic and the wind supply is furnished by an electric blower. The pedals are concave and rediating, and of the lastest design. The pipes are all decorated in plain gold, and the front is finished in quarter-cut oak, which presents a subdued but extremely pleasing appearance. The console is detached, with roll top. The interior fittings are of polished mahogany. The platform plan has been entirely remodelled to enable the choir loft to be in the rear and the pulpit to be lowered and advanced towards the congregation. This arrangement perfects the acoustic properties and adds grace and dignity to the church. Many favorable opinions were expressed by visitors at the services yesterday and the Baptist people are to be congratulated upon their splendid edifice. The organist, Miss Wanda Biggs, played selections before and after each service, as well as during the day, which were highly appreciated. The choir leader, Mr. W. B. Riggs, was assisted by a large chorus choir and the following soloists: Miss Margaret Brown, Miss Kate Bawden, Mrs. Doolittle, Mr. G. Stallworthy and Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin. The anthems and solos were of a very high order and were much appreciated by all present. Rev. Dr. Norton preached two excellent sermons. In the morning he chose as his subject, "Power for Service," taking for his text "All power is given unto me"—Matt. xxviii:18. He emphasized in eloquent terms the Divine power of Christ and insisted that all Christians must accept that power to be of real service in this world, and then must be channels of grace to others. In the evening the church was crowded to the doors, and Dr. Norton preached a strong gospel sermon from the text, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." These words, he said, were spoken by St. Paul in the dungeon at Rome, where he was imprisoned for his faith in Jesus. They mean that we must reproduce the Christ in all our daily lives and to do that we must receive him as our Saviour. Both sermons made a profound impression. The services will conclude with a musical evening tonight and addresses by local pastors and Chancellor McCrimmon of McMaster University, Toronto.

Spoke Highly of Belleville

Referring to Belleville in an excellent serman at Christ Church last evening, Rev. J. C. Davidson of Peterborough said:

Belleville was well named. It was indeed a beautiful city—beautiful in its natural situation, in its spreading trees, in its attractive homes—a city of homes. Belleville has always been fortunate, too, in possessing fine capable public leaders well able to creditably representsent the city and to mould a healthy public Spirit, among whom was their own Rector. People should rally round such men and give them encouragement and appreciation. A public man often lived a lonely life and failed to do his best work for lack of evidences of support.

The speaker went on to congratulate Belleville on her many expressions of Enthusiastic Patriotism. This spirit was drawing all Canadians together, and the bonds would be close still.

He had been struck by the flags flying, not only from public buildings, but also from individual homes, some small and worn but each one carrying its message of National inspiration.

Canon Davidson made the suggestion that when the Canadian troops went from England to the Front that flags should be hung out from the houses of citizens generally, especially of those who had the high honor of sending forth a soldier to fight for the Empire and of those who would have gone had the opportunity been given to them. The Union Jack should thrill the hearts of all who saw it, especially at this time. As a Cross-emblazoned banner it was a Religious Flag and shouud carry not only a National but a Religious message, stimulating to all who had eyes to see and hearts to respond.

The congregation then rose and enthusiastically jointed in the National Anthem, after which the Preacher proceeded with his sermon on "Concrete Christianity."

Russo-Turkish War Campaign

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.—The campaign against Turkey will be divided into two plans. The attack at first will be from the Black Sea; the second will cross the Caucausus Mountains into Asiatic Turkey. This plan already is under way, and columns of the Caucasian army are skirting the slopes of Mount Ararat. Cossacks have slipped through the passes and taken the Turks in the rear. The Kurds cannot hold the frontier. Diyadin, their chief town, is in Russian hands. The Caucasian army has been mobilized along this Russian frontier to await just such an eventuality as that which has arisen. This army is a distinct organization with a separate staff, rank and purpose from other Russian armies. Since the war began it has been chafing in activity. It takes the field like hounds that have slipped the leash.

This will be a war different from that which is being carried on in Europe, waged among towering mountains and across boundless steppes. It will have the character of a clash between primitive peoples. In this sort of irregular warfare the Cossacks will be at their best. Living on the country, they can ravage the enemy's villages, spreading terror before the advance of the main columns. It will be difficult to move large bodies of troops because of the lack of roads. Yet this will not impede the corps of the Caucasian army as much as might a European force travelling with the lightest transport. The Russians can cover extraordinary distances. About fifty miles in thirty hours was the record yesterday.

The Prince of Wales Relief Fund now totals $17,825,000, of which $4,350,000 have been distributed for the relief of those in distress.

A seat in the New York stock exchange recently brought $34,000. Possibly the purchaser wanted it for the purpose of resting in profound quiet.

While many people are cutting down the amount of sugar used in cooking on account of the high price, no indication has been seen that the girls are eating less candy.

Russo-Turkish War Campaign

PETROGRAD, Nov. 7.—The campaign against Turkey will be divided into two plans. The attack at first will be from the Black Sea; the second will cross the Caucausus Mountains into Asiatic Turkey. This plan already is under way, and columns of the Caucasian army are skirting the slopes of Mount Ararat. Cossacks have slipped through the passes and taken the Turks in the rear. The Kurds cannot hold the frontier. Diyadin, their chief town, is in Russian hands. The Caucasian army has been mobilized along this Russian frontier to await just such an eventuality as that which has arisen. This army is a distinct organization with a separate staff, rank and purpose from other Russian armies. Since the war began it has been chafing in activity. It takes the field like hounds that have slipped the leash.

This will be a war different from that which is being carried on in Europe, waged among towering mountains and across boundless steppes. Living on the country, they can ravage the enemy's villages, spreading terror before the advance of the main columns. It will be difficult to move large bodies of troops because of the lack of roads. Yet this will not impede the corps of the Caucasian army as much as might a European force travelling with the lightest transport. The Russians can cover extraordinary distances. About fifty miles in thirty hours was the record yesterday.

The Prince of Wales Relief Fund now totals $17,825,000, of which $4,350,000 have been distributed for the relief of those in distress.

A seat in the New York stock exchange recently brought $34,000. Possibly the purchaser wanted it for the purpose of resting in profound quiet.

While many people are cutting down the amount of sugar used in cooking on account of the high price, no indication has been seen that the girls are eating less candy.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING OF THE CANADIAN CLUB

Masterly Address on the War by Chancellor McCrimmon, of McMaster University--An Unusually Large Number Present

Over one hundred men sat down to the supper tables at the Canadian Club meeting, held last night in the Y.M.C.A A substantial luncheon was served by the ladies of the auxiliary committee. Mrs. M. P. Duff sang "It's a Long. Long Way to Tipperary," and the men took up the chorus. Miss Jessie Maclean presided at the piano. While the tables were being cleared the members sang "O, Canada." The dining hall was festooned with British flags and the national colors, and the seating was arranged so that every member could see the speakers. The President, Mr. J. L. Hess, presided in an efficient manner. The guest of the evening was Chancellor McCrimmon, of McMaster University, who holds the chair of Political Economy and Sociology. Dr. McCrimmon has a fine physique and is an easy and fluent speaker. His subject was: "Why the British are at War", and it is safe to say that every man present has a clearer conception of the great European embroglio today after listening to such a forceful, discriminating and eloquent address. A large map of Europe was used by the speaker in giving a geographical survey of the countries involved in the war. A large up-to-date relief map was also in view in the parlors, thus making the whole address educative as well as entertaining. The address was frequently applauded and at the conclusion the Chancellor was enthusiastically cheered. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, seconded by Dr. Coughlin. The address was, in part, as follows:—

"Why the British Are at War"

A dispute between Servia and Austria has been the occasion, if not the cause, of the great war into which the great powers of Europe are now plunged. The Germans and Austrians say that Russia caused the war. Harmack says that the participation of Britain is treason to culture. The Russians say Germany is responsible for the struggle. Germany hints that France was only too glad to get an excuse to try to get back Alsace-Lorraine and that England was jealous of her growing commerce. My purpose is to find out from the analysis of the official correspondence of the representatives of the different powers who was responsible for the war and why the British are participants." Chancellor McCrimmon, at this point, gave a masterly and succinct resume of the Eastern question and the Balkan States embroglios. He declared that the problem is as intricate as that of the Schleswig-Holstein question, concerning which Lord Palmerston said there only three persons who ever understood it, namely, Prince Albert, and he died; a German statesman, and he went mad, and himself, and he, alas! had forgotten it! "We must recognize," continued the speaker, "(1) That Italy, Germany and Austria were bound together in a defensive alliance. Whether there was a further secret compact between Austria and Germany we do not know; (2) Russia was recognized as a supporter of Servia's independence and integrity and regarded it, in its relations to Austria, in a similar way as England regards the integrity of the Netherlands in relation to Germany. (3) We must also remember that the declarations of Servia in 1909 were made to the European powers and accepted by them. The murder of the heir-apparent to the Austrian throne was perpetrated in the latter part of June, 1914. Austria immediately made a series of demands upon Servia, some of which were unjust and unwarranted. Servia declared her willingness to meet all just demands and made humble regrets for the crimes at Serajevo. She pointed out, however, that both of the assassins of the archduke were Austrian subjects—Bosnians. Servia further expressed her willingness o refer the question to the Hague Tribunal or to the great concert of the powers. When it became likely that Russia, Germany and France would be involved, then Sir Edward Grey, who had been earnestly working all the while for a peaceful solution of the Austro-Servian difficulties, took up the matter with the great powers and labored till the hour of battle began to save Europe from the dreadful war which is now raging. He declared to the German Ambassador: "I hate the idea of a war between any of the great powers, and that any of them should be dragged into a war by Servia would be detestable." He told Count Mensdork on July 24, after he had seen Austria's note to little Servia. "I sympathize with Austria respecting this murder, but I have never before seen one state address to another independent state a document of so formidable a character." Then came the appeal of the King of the Belgiums to Britain to safeguard the integrity of his Kingdom. Sir Edward Grey replied, "Remain neutral; resist, and we will help you." Such was the attitude of Britain. Sir Edward Grey exhaused all he means of diplomacy to prevent this war; but Germany was determined to fight, and has revealed the fact clearly to all the world since, that she was preparing for just such a war that is raging today and drenching Europe in a sea of blood and sorrow. No wonder Premier Asquith said: "Britain is fighting to fulfill a solemn and international obligation of law and honor which no self-respecting nation could possibly have repudiated." He further stated that we are in this war to defend the principle that "small nationalities are not to be crushed in defiance of international good-will by the arbitrary will of a strong overmastering power." Little Belgium called upon Britain to defend her honor and she called not in vain. The speaker here made scathing reference to the German spirit of war, tracing it from Bismarck to Bernhardi, with the paranoiac Kaiser William as the mailed fist who shall terrorize and sway the whole world. He also referred in glowing terms to the response of the British Empire in men and money and provisions and loyalty and prayers, in order that we may crush forever this German tyrant. Dr. McCrimmon closed his masterly address by repeating Vernede's apostrophe—"England to the Sea," and then said. "The struggle may be long, the way may be tortuous, the sacrifice may be severe, but in the end Britain will win, and honor, truth and justice will prevail."

MASSEY HARRIS MAY RE-OPEN IN MONTH

Possibly Even Sooner; Directors of Firm are Discussing the Matter

BRANTFORD, Nov. 9.—The Massey-Harris Company which closed down the day after war was declared, throwing 1,200 men out of employment, will start up again in few days, employing 800 men five days a week. Married men will be given the preference.

Vice-President Thomas Findlay of the Massey-Harris Company states that he is unable to make any definite statement for a few days yet regarding the re-opening of the Toronto plant. A board meeting of the company, however, is now in session, and it is understood that the question of re-opening the plant is under discussion.

From another source it is learned that operations will be resumed, at the latest, during the early part of December.

JAPANESE EMPEROR GIVES CHRISTIAN MISSION $25,000

TOKIO, Nov. 9.—Emperor Yoshihito has donated 50,000 yen ($25,000) toward the foundation of St. Luke's International Hospital at Tokio, which will be conducted under the auspices of the Episcopal Church Mission, represented by Dr. Rudolph Teusler.

The announcement of the Imperial gift to a Christian institution which is without precedent here, was made by Count Okuma, the Japanese Premier, at a luncheon today attended by fifty of the most prominent persons in Tokio. The British Ambassador, Sir William Conyngham Greene, sent a letter and the American Ambassador, George W. Guthrie, delivered a speech.

The substantial Imperial support, it is stated here, assures the success of the undertaking which will cost about a half million dollars.

It is planned to make the establishment the most elaborate in the Far East, and it will mark a distinct advance in medical research work here.

Count Okuma, in making the announcement of the Emperor's gift said the the Emperor was personally desirous of solidifying the international understanding.

Mounted Police Anxious For Front

Col. Fortescue Finds No Signs of Trouble in West

OTTAWA, Nov. 9.—The Royal Northwest Mounted Police have not given up hope that they will be allowed to go to the front. The announcement that there are to be four mounted infantry regiments has raised their hopes and they have asked to be allowed to send a couple of squadrons. However, the Government feels that it can not spare the mounted police from their duties at the present time in view of the large alien population in the West. The police force is now 1,265 strong, the largest it has been for years. Col. Fortescue, Comptroller of the Mounted Police, returned to-day from a Western inspection trip. He reports that there are no signs of trouble amongst the Germans and Austrians of the West and the mounted police are in a position to handle any disturbance which might develop.

BRITISH WARSHIPS THROUGH PANAMA

Seven of Them Said to Be Bound West Across Atlantic for Canal

PANAMA, Nov. 10.—(Special.)—Panama Canal officials and members of the Legation here say they have no information concerning the report that seven British Dreadnoughts were in the Atlantic bound west, possibly with the intention of proceeding through the Panama Canal to Pacific waters.

Col. George W. Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal zone, says he has heard nothing from Washington relative to the use of the canal by warships.

The whereabouts of the German warships in the Pacific is unknown here.

Why General De Wet Rebelled

Was Fined Five Shilling for Thrashing a Kaffir

LONDON, Nov. 9.—A Five Shilling Rebellion was the phrase used by General Smuts, South African minister of defence, speaking at a meeting in Johannesburg on Saturday. General Smuts' declaration that the Union Government was prepared to see the thing through may be accepted with confidence in view of his successful handling of the labor crisis a few months ago. General Suts' statement on Saturday at a review of the motor transport that DeWet's oration at Vrede would always stamp his rebellion as a five shilling affair had reference to DeWet's grievance against a magistrate for inflicting a fine of five shillings on him for thrashing a Kaffir Curiously enough the name of the town where DeWet broke in rebellion is named Dutch Peace.

SPAT IN FACE OF CANADIAN SOLDIER

Supposed German Subject Causes Scene on a Street Car

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—Quite an exciting scene was enacted yesterday morning at King and Simcoe streets, as the result of the arrogance of a German, Felix Loris, 60 Spencer avenue. He was standing on a street car which was passing a church parade, when he suddenly called out to the marchers, "The Germans will get you," and pointed to his neck. At the same time he spat in the face of Private Wilson, of the 34th Regiment of Owen Sound, who was also on the car. The latter had two other soldiers with him and all three piled on the Teuton and commenced to belabor him unmercifully. When the car got to King and Simcoe streets the conductor put them all off. A large crowd gathered and when they learned the reason of the soldiers' belligerency they also wanted to take a hand. Fortunately a constable came long and arrested Loris or he might have been badly mauled. As it was he had sustained numerous bruises. He gave his nationality as Italian, French, Dutch, in fact everything except German, which the police say he is. His residence was searched by a party of armed soldiers yesterday but nothing of an incriminating nature was found.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT WIRES HIS SYMPATHY

Regrets Loss of Admiral Craddock and Crews of Lost Ships

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Secretary of the Admiralty announces the following telegram which has been sent by H.R.H. the Governor-General of Canada to the First Lord of the Admiralty: "In my own name and that of the Canadian Government we express our deep sympathy with His Majesty's navy in the loss of Admiral Cradock with the crews of the Good Hope and Monmouth. We deeply sympathize with the relatives of the brave officers who lost their lives for the King and Country.

"Arthur."

The First Lord has sent the following reply: "In the name of the Board of Admiralty and of the Royal Navy, I desire to thank your Royal Highness and the Canadian Government most warmly for the message of sympathy with the relations of the officers and men of the Good Hope and Monmouth who may have lost lives in a gallant fight."

WARNING TO MAYOR OF BRANTFORD, ONT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

BRANTFORD, Ont., Nov. 10.—An anonymous warning conveyed to Mayor Spence and Chief of Police Slemin that the Turks of this city were laying plans to blow up the new $250,000 government building approaching completion, has led to guards being placed on the building and all the Turks in the city, numbering 120, arrested and placed under guard.

French Cruiser in Strange Struggle

Attacked by Austrian Biplane and Submarine, it Triumphs Over Both

PARIS Nov. 10.—(Special.)—A thrilling story of how a French cruiser engaged with an aeroplane and several submarines simultaneously is told by a midshipman, who says the French cruiser Waldeck Rousseau was heading for Cattaro in the small hours of the morning, when she was warned that three submarines had stolen out to get her.

Day had scarcely broken when an Austrian biplane came sailing through the air, straight towards the cruiser, hovering at not more than fifteen hundred feet above the ship. Unmoved apparently by a hail of shot from the quick-firers, the biplane let fall a bomb which splashed into the sea about thirty feet only to the starboard abaft the bridge. A second bomb just missed the port quarter. At the same moment the lookout signalled that a submarine was only eight hundred yards to starboard. The submarine discharged a torpedo almost as soon as she was sighted, but the ship had had time to shift her helm, and the deadly shaft went swirling by not more than three feet from the stern. Before it could make a second the cruiser had blown away its periscope, and another broadside must have sunk the submarine for she was never seen again.

Another submarine came sneaking up on the other side, and a destroyer endeavored to draw the cruiser's fire while the submarine crept in to deal a deadly blow. The Waldeck Rousseau was easily a match for the two of them, however, and shortly after the destroyer turned and ran for the harbor with a nasty list to port, while the submarine dived to escape the storm of shell, and did not show itself again.

FUND AMONG JEWS TO PROVIDE SHOES

TORONTO, Nov. 9.—In order to secure boots for Jewish poor children in Toronto, some thirty well-known Hebrew young ladies have formed a society called the Jewish Boot and Shoe Fund, which held its first meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Lille Cadesky, 13 Borden street, one of the organizers. Already some thirty girls have joined and a goodly amount has been subscribed. The movement has appealed to local Jewry and the society promises to be a success. The membership is expected to increase to about two hundred within the next fortnight, and the members will then be ready to proceed with their work. Rabbi Dr. Price, of the University Avenue Synogogue has interested himself in the organization and will address the members at the Zionist building, Cecil and Beverley streets, on Sunday afternoon, November 22.

Strathcona Heir Among Wounded

LONDON, Nov. 9.—The Anglo-Canadian community is deeply concerned over the news of the wounding in action of Lady Strathcona's aldest son and heir, Lieut. Donald Howard, of the Third Hussars. No particulars yet are available.

The official list of wounded includes Capt. Francis Octavius Grenfell, of the Ninth Lancers, who previously was reported wounded on September 7, and Maj. H. W. Clinch, of the Third-Hussars.

Canadians serving in the army include Maj. H. D. Clinch, of the same regiment.

WAR TO END IN 1917

Is The Estimate of Distinguished French Officer.

LONDON Nov 9.—The Daily Mail today gives prominence to an estimate of a distinguished French officer, whose name, it says, cannot be divulged, but who is in a position to make such an estimate, that the Germans will not be driven back over the Rhine until February, 1916, and that peace will not be concluded before 1917. The officer bases on this estimate a strong appeal to Englishmen not to refrain from joining the army on the idea that the war will soon end.

GERMAN CRUISER EMDEN SMASHED BY AUSTRALIANS

Warship Which Has Been Dealing Out Damage on the Seas Now Receives Her Dues--Riddled With Shells, Sent Ashore and Burned

LONDON, Nov. 10.—It is officially announced that the German cruiser Emden has been driven ashore and burned. The losses among the officers and crew of the Emden are reported very heavy. The Emden was destroyed in the Bay of Bengal by the Australian cruiser Sydney. She was driven ashore on one of the islands of the Coco group. The Sydney sighted the Emden yesterday morning. With superior speed she at once closed in and gave battle. The German boat could not escape and there was a running fight, at the end of which the Emden, burning from shells of the Australian boat, was beached. The casualties on the Sydney are said to have been slight.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Emden was driven ashore on Keeling Island, one of the Cocos group, not in the Bay of Bengal, but in the Indian Ocean, a thousand miles from Perth, Australia.' She had landed a party there to destroy the cable station and was caught by the cruiser Sydney and compelled to fight. The Sydney lost three killed and fifteen wounded.

KOENIGSBURG HAS BEEN BOTTLED UP

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The German cruiser Koenigsberg, which disabled the British cruiser Pegasus some weeks ago, has been bottled up at Mafia Island, on the cost of German East Africa, by blocking the channel to the harbor.

The cruiser Koenigsberg was discovered on October 30th by the British cruiser Chatham, hiding six miles up Rufiji River in German East Africa in water too shallow for the Chatham to reach her, and she is probably aground. Part of her crew is entrenched on the river banks and the Chatham has shelled the Koenigsberg and entrenchments, but the dense tropical foliage prevents the result being known.

The river channel has been blocked by sinking hulks, and with the Koenigsberg thus blockaded and the Emden destrowed, the fleet of British, French, Japanese, Russian and Australian cruisers which have been hunting for them are now at liberty to join in the chase of the German squadron off the coast of Chile, which is the only remaining menace to commerce in the Pacific and eastern waters.

FIGHTING CONTINUES WITH SAME ITENSITY

PARIS, Nov. 10.—An official bulletin this afternoon says:—

"The action continued all day yesterday with the same intensity that has characterized the previous fighting between the sea and the region of Armentieres. The encounters were of particular violence for the reason that the opposing forces alternately took the offensive. The day was marked by the checking of a German attack in force to the South of Ypres and by perceptible progress on the part of the French forces in the vicinity of Bixschoote and between Ypres and Armentieres.

"Equally on the front of the British troops all the German attacks were repulsed with energy.

"Along the major part of the front, from the Canal of La Bassee as far as the Woevre, our troops made secure the results attained in the course of the past few days. We also made progress between Rheims and Berry-au-Bac.

"In the Vosges fresh attacks on the part of the enemy have all been repulsed."

CHILDREN ARRIVED MUTILATED

KINGSTON, Nov. 9.—Mrs. M. A. Nash, Clarence street, has received a letter from her niece in England, who tells of the mutilation of Belgian children by the Germans. Her niece had applied to take two Belgian orphans, and a friend had also applied for two. The latter received her wards first and was horrified when she beheld their condition. One of the little ones had its eyes blown out, while the other had both hands cut off. Here was the first-hand proof of the savagery of the German troops.

A man may be slow and sure, but it's different with his watch.

CANADIAN INVENTOR FURNISHES DEADLY GUN FOR GERMAN ARMY

It is bad enough to have good British, Belgian and French blood shed by German death-dealing weapons of a modern type, but when the latest and most destructive proves to be the invention of a Canadian, it makes the massacre all the harder to bear.

Some years ago, we are informed, a Mr. McMullen, of Picton, Ont., took to the United States Ordnance Department the draftings of a sectional cannon, which appeared to be most promising, but following extensive experiments costing about fifty thousand dollars, the invention was turned down as impracticable. Nothing daunted, Mr. McMullen, we are also informed, approached the British Government, with like results. Then, passing on to Germany, our informant tells us, the inventor interested experts, and secured a sale, receiving the snug sum of $65,000. Now this same gun, it appears, transported in sections to Belgium and France, is dealing out death in a merciless manner, when it should be pointed in the opposite direction. While it is not for us to criticize, this may prove a lesson to our military department. That Canadian brains should be turned to the destruction of our own household is hard to accept; yet the error, we are glad to know, was of the head and not the heart. Perhaps Mr. McMullen has another idea which will outdo even this reputed masterpiece.

SIDNEY CROSSING

Nov. 9.—One of the most successful teas held in this section for years was given by the Ladies' Aid of Centenary Church in their dining hall on Wednesday evening last. The night was beautiful, the roads excellent and scores of young people and older ones came up from Belleville to enjoy the abundance of good things provided by the Centenary ladies. The chair was ably filled by Rev. E. Howard of Brighton. Mrs. Grant and daughter, of Belleville, favored the audience with vocal solos, which were much appreciated; also selections by Mr. Moorman. Miss McKenna gave a couple of readings which were good, while the selection by Mrs. Dr. Goldsmith, an old time favorite, was also much enjoyed. Mr. Arthur Chapman led the audience in singing "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." The Lloyd Orchestra of Wallbridge furnished music for the evening. The proceeds amounted to $115. Mrs. G. Thrasher, the president, and her co-workers, should feel delighted with their great success.

The Bayside Orange Lodge had their annual social gathering and oyster supper on Nov. 5th at the home of Mr. Frank Wilson, of Bayside. About 75 were present, and addresses were given by the members, among which being a patriotic address by Mr. Brown, teacher at Bayside, who has a son in the first contingent. A most enjoyable and profitable evening was spent by all.

Miss Jean Gunn, matron of the General Hospital, Toronto, has been spending the past three weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gunn, of Bayside.

Much sympathy is felt for Mr. and Mrs. Willie Blair in the loss of their baby boy. He underwent an operation at the Children's Hospital, Toronto, when he died. The remains were interred in White's burial ground on Friday last, services at the home being conducted by Rev. F. Joblin.

The Epworth League at White's Church celebrated their silver anniversary on Sunday night. The printed programme was followed out and thoroughly enjoyed. The church was most appropriately decorated with flags and bunting.

Mr. J. W. Young picked from a bush in his berry patch a lovely bunch of red raspberries on Nov. 4th.

Another Shipment To Supply Demand

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking up First Allotment But More On The Way

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Intelligencer's distribution of the greatest Bible ever published. It did look for a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Intelligencer recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles ever published. "Illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying text matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait but bring in your certificates and get your Bibles. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

TELEGRAPH BRIEFS.

The Russians, according to a despatch received at Copenhagen, have bombarded Kohlu and Suglu on the coast of Asia Minor.

Over fifty Italian reservists from Detroit and vicinity passed through Ontario yesterday to rejoin the colors in response to orders from the military authorities of Italy.

Impressive in its solemn simplicity was the funeral yesterday in Montreal of Prof. G. R. Mines, of McGill University, who died on Saturday while experimenting on himself.

Great Britain yesterday gave the United States official assurances that shipments of tobacco in neutral bottoms destined to any country in Europe would not be interfered with.

The sum of $10,850,000 was withdrawn from the sub-treasury at New York yesterday for shipment to Ottawa and other Canadian cities. All but $500,000 of the amount was in gold coin.

Lady Beck is donating 500 cholera belts to the 18th battalion of the second contingent, in training at London, and the rest of the men will be provided for in the same respect by the local Red Cross Society.

GERMANY INVADED.

Fatherland Is Now Scene of Fighting In Three Places.

LONDON, Nov. 10—At three points in the area of hostilities, in Silesia, in East Prussia, and in Alsace, forces of the allies were on German soil yesterday, and for the first time since the outbreak of hostilities, conditions seemed to presage in the opinion of British military observers, a reversal of the roles of the contending armies.

Up to the present time Germany has been fighting, generally speaking, in the territory of her enemies, but now she would appear to be more or less seriously menaced from the east by the victorious armies of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief in the field, the advance guards of which are less than 200 miles from Berlin.

It is true that there was a brief Russian invasion of East Prussia during the early stages of the war, while the French have for a long time held their position in Alsace, but the latest development in the Russian advance, if the interpretation placed on it in London is not all wrong, is the most important of the campaign up to the present time.

KAISER PRAISES CAVALRY.

He Only Hopes They Will Have a Chance to Surround the Enemy.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—(Via London.)—Emperor William, in an address to the officers of a cavalry division which he reviewed in a Belgian town, said:

"I learn with pleasure that the cavalry fought brilliantly. The horsemen in this war have been entrusted with tasks such as I never believed possible. It is perhaps my fault that the training in times of peace never included the duties which the cavalry are here performing. The cavalry fought with bayonets and entrenching tools and Gen. von Marvitz tells me that the infantry are proud to charge with their brothers of the cavalry.

"I hope, however, that the cavalry may yet have an opportunity to use their lances if we succeed, with the help of the dear God who already has permitted us so many successes, in surrounding the enemy."

20 YEARS
SUFFERING FROM ECZEMA

For 20 long years Mr. Joseph Johnson of 584 Broome St., New York, suffered from eczema. He says:—"The disease appeared on my hands and face. Not only was it very unsightly, but the sores were extremely painful. I went to a doctor, but his treatment afforded only temporary relief. I then commenced to try first one and then another of the so-called remedies which were recommended; but for over twenty years I suffered from this painful, disfiguring disease. I spent hundreds of dollars, suffered hours of agony, but all I got was temporary relief.

At last Zam-Buk was suggested to me, and I decided to give it a trial. At that time the disease had got such a firm hold that I did not expect a cure. The first few applications of Zam-Buk, however, showed me that this remedy was entirely superior to the scores of preparations I had used in vain. I continued with the balm, and perseverance with Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap, I am delighted to say, has effected a complete cure."

WHAT ZAM-BUK CURES

Piles, cuts, burns, eczema, ulcers, chapped hands, cold sores, pimples and eruptions, varicose veins, scalp sores, and all skin diseases and injuries. BELLEVILLE CITY COUNCIL IN REGULAR SESSION

Business of a Routine Nature Transacted--Photo of Late Ex-Mayor Presented and Accepted--Children's Shelter Society Not to Purchase Dunnett Property

At a regular meeting of the City Council held last evening the business transacted was chiefly of a routine nature and the session was not prolonged.

Those present were: Mayor Wills, Aldermen Panter, Woodley, Platt Smith, Duckworth, McFee, St. Charles and Wallbridge.

After the reading and confirming of the minutes of the last meeting the Council went into committee of the whole on reports, communications, etc., Ald. Woodley in the chair.

The accounts recommended to be paid by the various committees were passed and the following recommendation was adopted:

"That a cement crossing be built on Albion street near Pine Street."

The following letter was read, which explains itself:

Belleville, Nov. 9th, 1914.

Dear Mr. Mayor,—

My aunt, Mrs. William Hamilton Ponton, now of Edmonton, asks your acceptance for the City of Belleville of the accompanying framed picture of the late William Hamilton Ponton, who was Mayor of the then Town of Belleville in the years 1851-52-53. Hoping that a place in the Council Chamber with those of other Mayors may be allotted to the portrait of an old and honored citizen, who as one of the first Directors of the Grand Trunk Railway, as Deputy Clerk of the Crown, as Mayor, and as Registrar of the County of Hastings, was identified with so many of the traditions and associations as well as with the progress and development of the City for so many years, I am,

Yours faithfully,

W. N. PONTON.

J. F. Wills, Esq., K.C.,

Mayor of Belleville.

Ald. Panter moved that the photo be accepted and the thanks of the Council be extended to Mrs. William H. Ponton through Col. Ponton. The motion was unanimously adopted and the Clerk was requested to forward the same.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and adopted.

INTRODUCTION OF BYLAW.

A by-law to require sewer connections to be made for sanitary purposes was introduced by Ald. Panter.

After the bylaw had been read a first time the Council went into committee of the whole on bylaws, Ald. St. Charles in the chair.

After one clause of the bylaw had been adopted the Council decided to lay the bylaw over until next meeting in order that its purport might be thoroughly discussed in committee.

The committee rose and reported progress and asked leave to sit again on the bylaw. The report was received and adopted.

BYLAW PASSED.

A bylaw to appoint Mr. H. Thompson as Electrical Inspector for the city was read a second and third time and numbered 1916.

CITY GRADER.

A request was made for the use of the city grader for a few hours to be used on a road near Rossmore.

It was decided to grant the request on the understanding that the grader was to be returned in the same condition as it is in at present. Ald. Platt and Ald. Panter were named a special committee with power to act in the matter.

MOTIONS.

Ald. Woodley moved, seconded by Ald. Panter, that as soon as the names of the Belleville boys belonging to the 34th Battery who went to the front can be obtained, that they be given in gold the same amount as was given to the boys who went from the 15th Regiment.—Carried.

Ald. Wallbridge moved, seconded by Ald. St. Charles, that the thanks of the Council be extended to the ladies of the Woman's Christian Association for their work of caring for the sick and needy in the city.—Carried.

A motion prevailed that a light be placed at the entrance to the footbridge and also on Campbell street midway between Front and Pinnacle streets.

G.T.R. STATION.

Under unfinished business Ald. St. Charles referred to the G. T. R. station here and asked if an effort could not be made to induce the company to erect a new station.

Mayor Wills—We have every month a large pay list in this city of G.T.R. employees. He understood it was the intention of the G.T.R. company to change their tracks here and to put up a new station. This was a divisional point of the line and one of its main points. We should treat the G.T.R. with every consideration.

Ald. Panter said the late manager, Mr. C. M. Hayes had intimated that a new station would be erected here.

CHILDREN'S SHELTER.

Mayor Wills stated that he had, previous to the Council meeting, attended a meeting of the Children's Aid Society, and the purchasing of the Dunnett property for the Shelter had been abandoned. Some of the Society's members want the Shelter in a more central part of the city than it is at present; they want it located where they can have a sewer, water and light and such conveniences. Where it will be located, or whether the present building will be suitably fitted up is not at present known.

Council adjourned.

A REBELLION

Food Demanded

The human body will stand a lot of abuse but sometimes it will surely rebel and demand proper food in place of the pasty, starchy, greasy stuffs on which it has been made sick.

Then is the time to try Grape-Nuts, the most scientific and perfect food in the world.

A lady writes: "Three years ago I was very ill with catarrh of the stomach and was given up to die by one doctor. I laid in bed four months and my stomach was so weak that I could not keep down medicine or hardly any kind of food and was so weak and emaciated after four months of this starvation that my daughter could easily lift me from bed and put me in my chair.

"But weak as my stomach was, it accepted, relished and digested Grape-Nuts without any difficulty the first time that wonderful food was tried.

"I am now strong and in better health than for a great many years and am gradually growing still stronger. I rely on Grape-Nuts for much of the nourishment that I get. The results have certainly been wonderful in my case and prove that no stomach is so weak it will not digest Grape-Nuts.

"My baby got fat from feeding on Grape-Nuts. I was afraid I would have to stop giving the food to him, but I guess it is a healthy fat for his health is just perfect." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

A Message To Thin Weak, Scrawny Folks

AN EASY WAY TO GAIN 10 TO 30 lbs. OF SOLID, HEALTHY, PERMANENT FLESH.

Thin, nervous, undeveloped men and women everywhere are heard to say, "I can't understand why I do not get fat. I eat plenty of good, nourishing food." The reason is just this. You cannot get fat, no matter how much you eat, unless your digestive organs assimilate the fat-making elements of your food instead of passing them out through the body as waste.

What is needed is a means of gently urging the assimilative functions of the stomach and intestines to absorb the oils and fats and hand them over to the blood, where they may reach the starved shrunken, run-down, tissues and build them up. The thin person's body is like a sponge—eager and hungry for the fatty materials of which it is being deprived by the failure of the alimentary canal to take them from the food. The best way to overcome this sinful waste of flesh building elements and to stop the leekage of fats is to use Sargol, the recently discovered regenerative force that is recommended so highly by physicians here and abroad. Take a little Sargol tablet with every meal and notice how quickly your cheeks fill out and rolls of firm, healthy flesh are deposited over your body, covering each bony angle and projecting point. J. S. McKeown's friends say and think. The scales and Keown Drug store and other good druggists have Sargol, or can get it from their wholesaler, and will refund your money if you are not satisfied with the gain in weight it produces as stated on the guarantee in each package. It is inexpensive, easy to take and highly efficient.

Caution:—While Sargol has produced remarkable results in overcoming nervous dyspepsia and general stomach troubles, it should not be taken unless you are willing to gain ten pounds or more, for it is a wonderful flesh-builder.

PATRONIZING HOME TRADE

There have been many excellent suggestions advanced in the way of admonishing the citizens of our fair Dominion to stand by the "Made-in-Canada" principle, but it is for the Montreal News to emphasize the theory that if is in the interest of our people at large for "all the people in Canada to buy goods made in this country. If that were not so, it would be possible to accuse those who are advising the people to buy goods made in Canada of harboring an ulterior purpose."

Business is quite frank. Business men want to make money. But business men, sometimes, are fortunate enough to be able to make money and strengthen their country at the same time. They may embark upon a propaganda which is to the advantage of themselves and of all the people in the country at the same time. In such happy circumstances, they may take unusual pleasure in the day's work.

The more Canada is able to consume of what she produces, the stronger the country becomes, and the greater is the pride of the Canadian in his country.

The more Canada is able to consume of what she produces, the greater is her prosperity, and the happier are her people, both capitalists and those of the working class.

Industrial and agricultural prosperity is the soundest foundation on which the framework of national greatness may be built.

Little things count. Little efforts help. When one enters a store, he may simply ask to be shown certain goods; again, he may say he prefers goods made in Canada. He is not asked to purchase such goods if he can get better foreign-made goods for the same money. But he is asked to examine goods made in Canada and to realize that goods made in Canada are as good as the other kind. If he simply takes the trouble to investigate and see for himself, he is doing all he is asked to do. The rest is left with confidence to his own common sense and business judgment.

It is often remarked that there is no sentiment in business. There is sentiment, just the same, in Canada's business. Sentiment is a factor in her business. If sentiment will move Canadians to insist on giving goods made in Canada a chance to make good, Canadians will learn to make their country prosperous by keeping their own business in a flourishing condition. They will reap the reward in a realization of patriotic duty done, and in their fair share of the general prosperity of the country. The country cannot become prosperous without every citizen sharing in it to some extent.

KEEPING THE TRUCE HUMBUG

"In order to show its determination to avoid all partisan controversy, The Brockville Recorder, which is understood to be inspired by Hon. Geo. P. Graham, and which weeps copiously and curses vigorously at the thought of an election, suggests that "Premier Borden should call off his political ally, Bourassa."

"From first to last Mr. Bourassa has been the inveterate opponent of Sir Robert Borden. He did what he could to destroy the Conservative leader in Quebec. He was reared in the Liberal party. He is an extreme expression of French Liberal teaching. He cheered on the Opposition through all the months of resistance to the Dreadnought proposals. He glorified the Senate's final rejection of the Government's programme.

"Mr. Bourassa carries hatred of "Downing Street" and exaltation of "autonomy" to the furthest limit. He is not and never was an ally of Sir Robert Borden. He is for the moment an offensive and blatant traitor who ought to be behind the bars. For the moment he speaks for no Conservative and for few Liberals in Canada. As a truce-keeper, Mr. Graham's newspaper is a flagrant humbug."—Toronto News.

The News might truthfully have carried its comments much further and included Sir Wilfrid by adding his many utterances in favor of Canada's Separation from the Empire, and the Globe's constant attacks upon members of the present Dominion Government, while keeping up its howl about neutrality. There is not an honest political hair in either of their heads. Honest Liberals know it and act accordingly.

WAR NOTES

Another effect of Turkey's entrance into the war is that Great Britain has taken a very useful coaling station near the entrance to the Persian gulf.

Montreal: "With the idea of the Prince of Wales at the front no one will seriously disagree. Fighting, with the Czar, the Emperor of Germany and his sons, and the Royalties of Belgium, Servia and Montenegro in the battle line is a royal game once more."

Brockville Recorder: "It takes adversity to test the mettle of a brave people. The British nation never gets fully roused till it knows there is some national calamity just across the road. In this business of keeping industrial and commercial calamity out of Canada, every Canadian is getting his war blood to boiling point. If we can't shoulder rifles at the front, we can make every dollar we spend for goods made in Canada a national bullet for keeping out the calamity of hard times. That kind of fighting needs no drill. It entails no sacrifice. It means just enthusiastic common sense in the greatest cause ever faced by the Canadian people."

Kingston Standard: "'The skeleton in the cupboard,' is nothing to this Spectre of War which has invaded the homes of nearly every one now upon the earth. much of the peace, the beauty, the joy and mirth has gone from among us. This Spectre prevents many from thinking or even speaking, of aught but its hideous and horrid self."

ROUNDING UP BRITISHERS

1,600 Taken in Hamburg Alone in One Day

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 9.—The authorities in Berlin are continuing wholesale arrests of British civilians and the police and military are working hard searching for Englishmen who are said to be hiding. The chief concentration camp near Berlin is the Spandau Race Course, where, according to the Berliner Tageblatt, Englishmen have to suffer for the sins of their government. To this camp prisoners, rich and poor alike are taken occasionally we are told, using abusive language about Downing Street. One was found to be the son of a multi-millionaire. Others included three negroes from the British colonies. Several wore top-hats and arrived in luxurious motor-cars. They bade sad farewells to weeping wives. In Hamburg yesterday there were sixteen hundred arrests.

The Vorwaerts regrets these measures, but expresses the opinion that they are inevitable in view of Britain's treatment of Germans. This journal hopes England will reconsider her decision, and assures us Germany will not treat prisoners harshly. It recalls the acknowledgment made by the Nordeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung that where official examination was possible through official channels it proved that newspaper reports of ill-treatment of Germans in England were exaggerated.

CROWN PRINCE'S BOMBAST

"Our Hated Foe Is Already Tired Out" He Tells Troops

LONDON, Nov. 9.—An army order promulgated on October 26th by the Crown Prince of Bavaria, after warmly congratulating his troops of their successes, says:

"Soldiers, the eyes of the whole world are now directed upon you. You must not lose your energy in the fight with our most hated foe. You must finally break his pride. He is already tired out, already many officers and men have voluntarily surrendered, but the greatest and decisive battle remains still before you. You must sustain it, even to the end. The enemy must be tricked. You will preservere, you will not let him escape your fangs. We must conquer; we will conquer; we shall conquer.

The Times military correspondent, commenting on the aforesaid, says:

"It is not quite clear whether the most hated foe of the order refers to us or to the French. It is not of much consequence, for it is better to hurt than to hate, and if we hurt the Germans while they only hate us, this distribution of work will suit us very well".

BOUND FOR PANAMA?

British Dreadnoughts Said To Be Making for Pacific.

PANAMA, Nov. 10.—Panama Canal officials and members of the Legation here say they have no information concerning the report that seven British Dreadnoughts were in the Atlantic bound west, possibly with the intention of proceeding through the Panama Canal to Pacific waters.

Col. George W. Goethals, governor of the Panama Canal zone, says he has heard nothing from Washington relative to the use of the canal by warships.

The whereabouts of the German warships in the Pacific is unknown here.

Glasgow In the Straits.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 10.—The British cruiser Glasgow, which was engaged with the German squadron in a battle off the Chilean Coast on Sunday, Nov. 1, and the British transport Otranto have passed Delgada Point Light in the Straits of Magellan, bound for the Falkland Islands, a British possession, to the east of the extreme southern point of South America.

This information is contained in advices received here by the Admiralty from the naval authorities in the Straits of Magellan, who said they had seen the Glasgow and Otranto passing through the straits toward the Atlantic.

Jap Warship at Honolulu.

HONOLULU, Nov. 10.— After receiving word that the German gunboat Geier had been interned here for the duration of the war, the Japanese battleship Hizen, which has been keeping a watch for the Geier outside the harbor entered this port yesterday for fuel and provisions. Under the neutrality regulations the Hizen is privileged to remain 24 hours.

REBELS ARE ROUTED.

Another Four Hundred In South Africa Captured by Troops.

LONDON, Nov. 9.—In South Africa the rebels in the northern part of Cape Province, who have been a worry to the Government, have been completely routed, while those in the Transvaal, where another four hundred have been captured, are scattering.

In Orange Free State, however, several small commandos are showing activity, and have been looting towns and damaging railways.

Trade of Austria Suffers.

VENICE, Nov. 10.—How severely the trade of Austria has been affected by the war is revealed in an official report of the Austrian Ministry of Commerce, a copy of which has just reached here from Vienna.

According to this document Austria's imports of September amounted to 111,000,000 crowns ($22,200,000), as compared to 260,000,000 crowns ($52,000,000) in September of 1913. The decrease in exports was much greater. They amounted in September of this year to only 61,000,000 crowns ($12,000,000), barely one-quarter of the total reached in September, 1913.

HERE'S A POSER

If you found a roll of bills in a shabby purse, showing that it probably represented the hard-earned wages of a working man, what would you do with it? Keep it, and so enrich yourself at the expense of some poor family's food and shelter? No, certainly not! Try to find the owner, and return it to him? Yes, every time!

There aren't many workmen losing money on the street nowadays, but there are more than you would suppose who are losing jobs, and jobs mean money, so it amounts to the same thing.

If it would give you real pleasure to hand a laborer back his lost money, it ought to be equally pleasing to be able to hand him back his job.

Simplest thing in the world to do! All that's necessary is to remember when you go into a shop to buy anything, that the article you pick out means somebody's job. If it's an imported article, well, that's a job for a fellow in some other country, but if it's "Made in Canada", it's a job for one of your fellow Canadian citizens, who for the time being, is a little down on his luck.

Take your handkerchief out right now, and tie a knot in it, just to remind you about

"If you ever left the stage you could make big money in the detective business." Enoch laughed harshly.

"Perhaps," she acceded. "Then I have rehearsed too many plays not to know the author when I bump into him. I knew months ago that Merry wrote 'The House,' but I could not prove it. You haven't got it in you to do that sort of work."

"Thank you." Enoch laughed unsteadily.

"Here's the whole situation. If Miss Wentworth and you do not fancy having me here as a—guest, no better word than that occurs to me now, Grant Oswald might be interested; at least he might insist on paying the royalties to the—author. Or, I could get a fancy price for the story from a New York paper. I am told they pay tremendously on this side for a ripping sensation. This would make one, don't you say so yourself?"

"My God!" Enoch stared at her with desperate eyes.

Miss Paget rose, unpinned her hat and tossed it upon the table. She stood surveying Wentworth with a gleam of amusement in her eyes. Then she crossed the room and leaned out at the window. "Hi, there, Cabby," she called, "wake up. Bring in the rest of that luggage."

CHAPTER XIX.

A Break in the Waverly Place Home.

"There is another bit of baggage." Dorcas spoke to the cabman, who stood beside a carriage in front of the Waverly Place house. He lifted little Robin and set him on a seat with a grip beside him. Dorcas paused with her hand on the carriage door.

"Wait," she ordered, as the man turned to go in the house; "here comes Jason with a valise.

The cabman lifted it from the hands of the old negro and swung it up on the front seat.

"Jason," said the girl, beckoning to him as she ran up the steps of the house. The servant followed her. They stood under the dull gleam of a lamp in the vestibule. She laid her fingers on the knob of the inside door and held it as one does when in fear of an intruder. "Jason," she repeated, "I want to talk with you for a minute."

"Yes, Missy." There was a tremor in the old negro's voice.

Dorcas stood gazing at him steadily, although a quiver in her chin belied the bravery.

"Jason, don't ask me again to take you with me," she pleaded. "If you do I shall weaken. I do not know where I am going myself. I have nowhere to take you. I shall miss you terribly, you understand that. But you must stay here and look after Enoch and the house and everything. You are needed here as you never were in your life before."

"Fo' de Lawd sake, take me wid yo', Missy. I'll sleep anywhar. A corner in a cellar 'll do fo' me."

"Uncle Jason, do you remember the story you have told about mother leaving you to care for Enoch and me? Sometimes I think of that day. You wheeled mother out on the piazza where the locust trees were in bloom, and I almost believe that you did not tell me, but that I remember it myself."

"Yes, honey." The tears rolled down the negro's wrinkled face. "She called to Lucy to bring yo' out. Yo' wan't nuffin but er little pink face en two doubled-up fists dat wan't ez big ez a cotton blossom."

The old man paused to wipe his eyes with a red bandanna handkerchief.

"And she said?" continued Dorcas. The girl was trying to smile.

"She said, 'Promise me, Jason, ez long ez yo' lives, to care fo' my baby, my sweet little gal baby, she'll never remember she saw her mother. Take care ob her, Jason, ez if de Lawd hisself had gib her in yo' charge.' I promised, honey," the husky voice died away in a sob; "I called de Lawd to witness right thar dat I'd look out fo' yo' all my life, ez well ez an ol' darky could do."

"You have done it, Uncle Jason."

Dorcas took the sooty hand between her palms. "If mother could know how faithfully you have filled your promise—and somehow I feel, Uncle Jason, that she does know—she would say that you have the whitest soul God ever put into a black body."

"Oh Lawdy, Missy, can't I come wid yo'? I don' need no money. Yo' needn't pay fo' me anywhar—"

"Jason, you blessed old saint, it isn't money I am considering. I have plenty of money. Mother left Enoch in your care as much as she did me. You have told me that."

The negro bowed his head solemnly.

"Won't you stay with him?"

Jason pointed to the inner door of the vestibule. "Honey, what's a-goin' to happen? Do yo' reckon dat Marse Enoch's a-goin' to marry dat—pusson?"

"Jason, I don't know. Only you must stay here."

"I will!" The old servant spoke with slow impressiveness. "Fore de Lawd, I will, Missy."

She ran down the steps. Jason followed to close the carriage door when she entered. As they moved away, Dorcas leaned out to glance at the home which had been hers since school days ended. She caught a glimpse of Enoch through the dusk. He was leaning from the library window. The room behind him gleamed white with a blaze of electricity. Before the mantel mirror stood a woman. Her arms reached above her head to pin back waves of shining yellow hair.

The cabman pulled up his horses and looked through a window in the roof. "You didn't tell me, lady, where you want to go."

"Drive me to the Gotham Theater," said Dorcas; "then I wish you to take this little boy to Harlem."

CHAPTER XX.

An Everyday Miracle.

That night, when the curtain fell upon the third act, Dorcas turned eagerly to Merry. "You are my friend?" she whispered.

"Miss Dorcas," the actor's voice was profoundly grave, but his eyes smiled, "I would bestride the whirlwind or set my foot upon a cyclone for you."

The girl lifted her eyes with a swift glance. She remembered the line—it was one the actor used to speak in "The King at Large."

"I believe you would." Her voice was low and impetuous. "I need a friend, a strong, patient, wise friend, as I never did in my life before."

"Miss Dorcas, you make me wish this moment that I were a Samson and a Solomon. I am not strong or very wise, but I am patient, and there is no task upon God's earth that I would not try to do for you. You believe me, don't you?"

The crimson blood flushed into her face.

"Yes." Her voice was scarcely audible. The curtain began to ascend for an encore. "Come to Mrs. Billerwell's tomorrow night. I am going there to stay with Alice over Sunday. I need your help."

He regarded her curiously for a moment.

"I will come," he answered gravely. Then he took her hand and led her down to the footlights.

On Sunday evening Dorcas sat staring down into a crowded street of Harlem. Under the vivid glare of electricity the city looked sordidly ugly. It was a strange contrast to her own home. The house at Waverly Place had retained much of its stately old-time dignity and its outlook upon the three-shaded square was quiet and pleasant. Upon Harlem's sidewalk throngs of children romped and shrieked in the midst of a city's din. A balmy wind had been blowing all day long and had driven a wintry chill from the air. Knots of women sat talking on doorsteps or they leaned out to gossip from adjacent windows. It was the hour for Sunday night suppers and a rush of business had begun in delicatessen stores. Strange odors crept in at the open window, a blend of garlic with stewed meats, pungent pickles, and cosmopolitan cheeses.

To Be Continued

LONDON, Nov. 9. — According to The Westminster Gazette there are in the port of Tsingtau nine men-o'-war, including a German cruiser, four German gunboats, three German destroyers and an Austro-Hungarian cruiser, in addition to five German merchantmen, two of which were naval transports.

There are also one or two prizes, including the Russian volunteer steamer, which was captured by the Emden on Aug. 4, directly after the declaration of war, and taken to Tsingtau.

FINAL CONFLICT IS ON

Germans Are Making Supreme Effort to Take Ypres.

British Are Still Holding Position and Have Actually Made Several Advances at Storm Centre—Belgians Resist All Efforts to Dislodge Them—Success of Russia Draws More Troops From West.

LONDON, June 10.—Following the comparative lull of the past few days in Belgium and along the line in Northwestern France, the Germans have thrown six hundred thousand men into the fight for Ypres, held by British and French forces. When it seemed that the final word had been reached in the previous conflicts on his front, the fighting of yesterday is declared to be fiercer than ever before. The opposing armies simply fly at one another's throats and the attacking regiments come back in shreds. But despite everything the allies are still holding and have actually advanced at several points around Ypres and further west. The main German assaults are understood to have been delivered southeast of Ypres, all of which were frustrated. The present conflict will be the last on the present front. Either force must win or lose, and the allies await the outcome with perfect confidence.

From the bare and meagre details given out in Paris, it can be drawn that a major operation is under way. The opposing trenches are so close together that it is impossible to bring heavy guns into play for fear of inflicting as much damage on friend as on foe. Bayonet fighting is the order of the day and sanguinary contests mark every hour of the twenty-four. A heavy fog which rolled in from the North Sea served to complicate matters still further yesterday. Aviators were helpless in the face of this damp blanket and cavalry patrols were in constant danger of stumbling into a host of their enemies.

Along the sand dunes of the Flanders' coast, the Belgians are holding stubbornly to their own and all of the German efforts to advance have been beaten off. Another assault was attempted on Nieuport, but without success.

Dixmude has been under a heavy bombardment and infantry movements were reported from that zone, the allies holding their own steadily.

The storm centre is at Ypres and here the British have concentrated their effectiveness. Nothing which the Germans have been able to do has ruffled the calm of their defence. The German guns shell the British positions, their troops come forward at the double, are driven off—a long line of dead and wounded marks their retreat. This manoeuvre is repeated over and over again, varied by counter assaults in which Tommy Atkins has so far more than held his own. But the cost in men is very serious, some regiments have lost nearly all their officers, and a number of splintered companies having been absorbed by others only less distressed. A train of wounded is constantly moving rearward.

As indicated in the War Office statement the French have met with excellent success on their centre and extreme right. The situation improves steadily around Verdun.

Private advices from Berlin, by way of Copenhagen, confirm the report that the Germans are transferring a considerable number of troops from the west to the east.

The German newspapers have not published the news of the great Russian advance to the Silesian frontier.

The news has been confirmed that the Crown Prince, in person, is commanding the central army on the eastern front of battle.

Another Berlin report declares that the Germans most decidedly have not abandoned their project of reaching Calais. The report adds that the main object of the western operations is still to open a road to the French coast.

A despatch from Berlin received last night by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., says:

"Main headquarters reports that several of the enemy's ships again attacked our right wing yesterday afternoon, but were rapidly driven off by our artillery."

The correspondent of The Amsterdam Tijd at Antwerp says:

"The movement of German troops from the western theatre of the war, on a big scale is now progressing. A large number appear to have been withdrawn from the Yser.

"Long military trains filled with men and ammunitions are moving into Germany by way of Brussels and Louvain."

A despatch from Berlin says that a panic exists over the advance of the Russians into Eastern Prussia, and troops are being rushed to Poland from Belgium.

Executions In Constantinople.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A large number of public executions have taken place in Constantinople in the past few days, the victims being principally those of opposite opinion to the Government. The police maintain the strictest watch and the expression of any idea favorable to peace or the allies is worth a man's life.

NOW ON GERMAN SOIL

Russian Advance Has Reached Border at Several Points.

Grand Duke's Vanguard Has Captured Coal In Railway Sidings In East Prussia Where Germans Have Left Hurriedly—Russians Hold Line of German Trenches From Cracow North to Kalisz.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 10.—The following communication from the Russian General Staff was issued last night:

"On the East Prussian frontier fighting continues. The Russian troops have occupied Solap (Goldap?) In the direction of Mlawa (Poland) we have advanced and stopped the movement of railway trains of the enemy near the stations of Soldau (East Prussia).

"Beyond the Vistula, the Germans have withdrawn from Wloclawek to Nieszuma and from Konin to Shepey (Slupoe?).

"On the roads to Cracow we are continuing to push back the rear guards of the Austrians.

"South of Przemysl Nov. 7 we captured 1,000 prisoners and a number of cannon.

All the zones of contact are now inside German territory. The Russians took 1,500 wagons laden with coal standing in the railway sidings in East Prussia in positions which the Germans had evacuated. The Russian cavalry which invaded the position had pierced the left flank of the enemy at the crossing of the Warta at Konin. These cavalry operations, with strong supports, have nullified the entire defensive preparations of the Germans inside the Polish frontier.

The Russians now hold without resistance the great line of entrenchments running from Czenstochow southward on Cracow and northward on Kalisz.

Advices received from Vienna say that the Russians are rapidly advancing on Cracow, and that in consequence the Austro-Hungarian military authorities are betraying great anxiety, and calling up every available man to the colors.

SEVEN PERSONS HURT.

Floor of Overcrowded Church Collapses at Shiloh, Ont.

PORT HOPE, Ont., Nov. 10.—Seven persons were injured in the collapse of the rear half of the floor of the Methodist Church at Shiloh while special services were being held to mark the re-opening of the edifice, which had been closed a month for repairs. A large congregation had assembled for the occasion. Those hurt were: Master White, internal injuries; Albert Campbell, back hurt; Miss Elva White, leg broken; Miss Stalker, leg broken; Mrs. N. R. Smith, Mrs. Amos McMullen, and Mrs. Bullied.

The accident happened just after the congregation had assembled. With the people went down chairs, seats, and two stoves with fires burning in each.

Albert Campbell, one of the injured, had been unable to gain admission to the church owing to the size of the congregation, and he seated himself in the basement. He was crushed to the floor under the debris, and when found had a heavy beam across his back.

ROLLING ON GERMANY.

Russia's Huge Army Is Moving Perfectly, Says Times' Correspondent.

LONDON, Novñ 10. — The correspondent of The Times in Warsaw, telegraphing under date of Nov. 6, says that after spending a fortnight in the Polish field of operation, he has arrived at the conclusion that the Russian organizations is at last under way in every direction, and that within thirty days Germany either will have to submit to an invasion by vast Russian hosts or withdraw substantial bodies of her best troops from the western frontier.

"Russia's huge army is now moving with a precision which is remarkable," he says, "and it is advancing with incredible rapidity and smothering every rear guard action with its numbers. The transports is keeping pace everywhere, moving forward night and day. In may cases the main bodies accomplish twenty verts (about 14 miles) daily."

WIRELESS STATIONS IN U. S.

Secret German and Japanese Outfits Will Be Suppressed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Persistent reports that hidden wireless stations along the coast of the United States are serving as information bureaus for belligerent cruisers at sea has caused the navy to enjoin the Navy Department to locate and destroy such stations if they actually exist.

According to the reports, both German and Japanese have the concealed wireless outfits. One is said to be located in the woods of the Maine coast, another in the northwest, and still another on the Florida peninsula.

Messages have been picked up by merchant ships that apparently came from these stations, though the fact that they are generally in code has made it impossible to trace them to their origin.

Col. De Wet Loses Son.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Gen. Christian De Wet, the rebel leader, says Reuter's Pretoria correspondent, "has been in contact with and dispersed a small Government commando under Gen. Cronje, a member of the Legislature, near Doornberg. In the course of the fighting Gen. De Wet's son, Daniel, was killed.

"The Government is sending strong reinforcements to Cronje."

CONFIDENT OF RESULT

Britain Will Carry the War to the Bitter End, Says Statesmen.

Premier Asquith, Earl Kitchener and Winston Churchill Are Centres of Interest at Guildhall Banquet Inaugurating Lord Mayor of London —Germany Has To Reckon With the Forces of the Great Dominions

LONDON, Nov. 10.—That Britain is prepared to carry on the war to the bitter end, with every confidence in the result, was the tenor of speeches at the annual banquet inaugurating the new Lord Mayor of London at Guildhall last evening, delivered by the men who are responsible for the conduct of the war.

Notable speeches were made by the Prime Minister, H. H. Asquith, Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, Secretary for War, and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty. Lord Kitchener, whose massive figure, clad in service khaki, towered over the audience of a thousand men and women in the historic building, while expressing satisfaction at the response to his call for men and the progress of their military training impressed upon the nation that the war would be a long one, and he would require more men and still more until the enemy is crushed."

He also made a quiet reference to the British army, which, he said, "has proved itself to be not so contemptible an engine of war as some were disposed to consider it," and reminded his hearers that the enemy would, besides the army in the field, have to reckon with the forces of the great dominions, the vanguard of which had arrived in England, in addition to the million and a quarter men now training in this country.

Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, told of the work of the navy and continued:

"It is difficult to measure the full influence of the naval pressure in the early stages of the war, but it will spell the doom of German as surely as winter strikes the leaves from the trees."

As to the losses suffered he said: "The punishment we receive is clear and definite; the punishment we inflict is very often not seen, and when seen, very often cannot be measured. But time will tell."

The First Lord also pointed out that despite the losses, the navy was stronger in every way than at the beginning of the war.

Premier Asquith, who devoted much of his speech to the war with Turkey, said it meant "the death knell to Ottoman domination, not only in Europe, but in Asia."

He, too, predicted that the war would be a long one, but said that nothing would daunt their hopes or impair their resolve, and that England would not sheath the sword until Belgium had recovered all that she had sacrificed, until France had been secured from the menace of oppression and until the military domination of Prussia had been destroyed.

Scenes of extraordinary enthusiasm were witnessed. Added interest attached to the gathering by reason of the special circumstances of the times and the presence of the principal Ministers of the Crown responsible for the conduct of the war and the diplomatic representatives of the allied nations.

Confidence in the ultimate success of the allied arms was expressed by Earl Kitchener, who pointed out the great issue at stake, the advantages possessed by the allies in men and material, and in "that wonderful spirit which has never understood the meaning of defeat." Continuing, Lord Kitchener said:

"The British Empire is now fighting for its existence. I want every citizen to understand this cardinal fact, for only from a clear conception of the vast importance of the issue at stake can come the great national moral impulse without which the Government's War Ministers, or even their navies, can do but little. We have enormous advantages in our resources of men and material and in that wonderful spirit of ours which has never understood the meaning of defeat. All these are great assets, but they must be used judiciously and effectively.

Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador to Great Britain, received an ovation. In the course of his speech he said: "The allies have not sought domination, but simply desired to save European civilization. Europe has suffered previous invasions of barbarians, but has never seen barbarism raised to a dogma, taught by doctors and praised by the intellectual elite. These professors of brutality believed that they had provided for everything, but had not provided that they would hurl themselves against the conscience of the civilized world."

Carranza Withholds Guarantee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Administration officials admitted last night that the Mexican situation had again assumed a delicate aspect.

Gen. Carranza has partially fulfilled the Washington Government's request for guarantees before withdrawing the American troops from Vera Cruz, but his decree does not satisfy the main point asked for by the United States, that Mexicans who served the American Government during the occupation of the port, be not punished subsequently for such service.

May Ship Goods Under Guarantee.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10—Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, yesterday notified the State Department that an agreement has been made with Denmark, Sweden, and Norway, that goods destined for neutral consumption only will pass freely into these countries if consigned to special persons with certificates of guarantee against re-exportation.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Heavy Fog Has Obscured Fighting Says French War Office.

PARIS, Nov. 10. — The following official communication was issued by the French War Office last night:

"There has been no notable modification in the situation by reason of the difficulties which an intense fog has created in connection with operations of any extent.

"In the north the day has been good. We have maintained our positions between the River Lys and Langemarck, and made appreciable progress between Langemarck and Dixmude."

The French War Office issued a statement yesterday afternoon which throws some light on the general position of the contending hosts. This statement says:

"On our left wing the Germans have undertaken again an offensive movement on Dixmude in the region of Ypres. Particularly to the southeast of Ypres their attacks have been everywhere repulsed.

"At the end of the day, referring to the entire front between Dixmude and the Lys, we have made some progress along the major part of the line. Nevertheless, our advance is slow on account of the offensive movements undertaken by the enemy and because of the strong organization the enemy already has had the time to effect around his points of support. Since the beginning of the fighting, the fog, furthermore, has made operations difficult, particularly between the Lys and the Oise.

"On the centre, along the Aisne, the progress set forth in the official communications of yesterday has been maintained. In the Argonne and in the vicinity of Verdun there have been only actions of minor importance.

"On our right wing, in Lorraine, there is nothing to report. In Alsace fresh attacks on the part of the Germans directed against the heights of Mount Sainte Marie have again resulted for them in a decided check."

Greek Minister Resigns.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10. — The Greek Minister, Mr. Schliemann, announced yesterday that because of a disagreement with his Government's policy, which made it impossible for him to carry out certain instructions he had received from Athens, he had been recalled, and that Mr. Vouros, former charge d'affaires, had been instructed to take over Greek interests here.

Worn out with Coughing?

Nothing is more exhausting than a persistent cough. Old folks and very young folks alike, find a bad cough most distressing. No need to go on suffering!

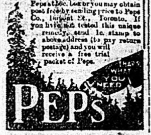
Peps will end the worst cough or cold. Peps contain the balsamic essences and fumes of the Pine tree, with other medicinal ingredients, so prepared, that as soon as a Pep is put into the mouth it dissolves and these medicinal fumes are liberated. They are then breathed down the throat, and direct to the lungs.

Ordinary cough mixtures go to the stomach. Peps go to the lungs—there's the great fundamental difference between the old-fashioned forms of treatment, and the Peps treatment.

Most cough mixtures contain opium and other poisons. Peps don't. Better for children!

The most stubborn cases of asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, tightness across the chest, cold, or winter cough, will yield to Peps treatment.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box or you may obtain post free by sending price to Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto. If you have not tested this unique remedy, send 1c. stamp to above address (to pay return postage) and you will receive a free trial packet of Peps.



Musical Evening At Baptist Church

A large audience was present at the Baptist Church last night when a programme of music was presented by the choir and organist, to celebrate the opening of the new pipe organ. The chair was occupied by the pastor, Rev. Chas. Geo. Smith, B.D., and short addresses of congratulation were made by Rev. A. S. Kerr, M.A., and Rev. A. M. Hubly. Messages of best wishes were also read from Rev. A. R. Sanderson, Rev. E. C. Currie and Dr. Baker.

Chancellor McCrimmon was also present and delighted the audience with an address on the function of music in public worship. The following musical programme was rendered:

Anthem—by the Choir.
Organ Solo—Miss Wanda Riggs.
Vocal Solo—Miss M. McCormick.
Duet—Misses Bawden and Brown.
Organ Solo—Mrs. Ronald Lewis.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. P. C. MacLaurin.
Ladies' Quartette—Miss Brown, Miss Snelgrove, Mrs. MacLaurin, Mrs. Doolittle.
Organ Solo—Miss Wanda Riggs.

"They tried the new play on the dog."

"With what results?"

"Howling success."—Baltimore American.

The doctor didn't have a dime.
"Oh, how is business, sir?" we cried.
"There's nothing doing yet, but I'm
A patient waiter," he replied.

NO MONEY FOR MEAL

Last night the police were called to a restaurant in the city, where three men obtained lunch and were unable to pay for it. It appears that one of the party invited the other two to the place, and he was without funds. A satisfactory settlement was effected.

HOME GUARDS PARADE

Headed by the Fifteenth Regimental band, the home guards of the city paraded last night, and the turnout was most creditable. Three colonels, namely Lazier, Stewart and Ponton were amongst those parading. Leaving the Armouries the men were marched up and down Front street, and returned to the Armouries. The marching was excellent, showing that even aged men can by practice be efficient in drill. After the parade the guards were briefly addressed by the three colonels who complimented all upon the turnout.

Anniversary of John Street Church

The Anniversary Services of Sunday were most successful and the sermons of Rev. Principal Gaudier much enjoyed by the large congregatoons.

The Social gathering on the congregation last evening filled the Sunday School hall to the upmost capacity. An excellent program was presented by talent of the church, and consisted of music by Mrs. Connell, Mrs. Mathison, Miss C. Thompson, Miss Gowdy, Miss Wallace and Messrs. Ross, Forin, Rathman, Ralls and Currie. An address on his experiences in Germany by Mr. R. J. Graham, nad Readings by Miss Tuite, in her own inimitable style. Refreshments were afterwards served in the lecture room and a pleasant social time was spent ere the evening closed. Professor Coleman did duty as chairman for the evening.

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary reilef, the Chiropractic permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expression (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chriopractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

Another Letter From Soldier Boy

Salisbury Plains, England.

To Miss May Whittard,—

I am going to tell you what a time we had going over the ocean. We had a swell time of it. We were the first boat to leave the dock and another Belleville boy and I were on guard, and one night the kitchen man came to our berths and asked us if we would wait on the table so I said I would do it for them and I waited on 24 men at four times a day, but I did not mind it at all. We eat off white table cloths and use cups and plates and we had as much as we could eat and as much tea and coffee to drink. We had to go on parade at 9.30 in the morning and 2.30 in the afternoon. We have landed in camp and having a good time, but give me Salisbury Plain before Valcartier as there is quite a lot of difference between the two places and I also like it here. It is such a lovely place to see the little thatched houses along the line. Well, I have not much to tell you this time as I am in the very best of health. Give my regards to all the Belleville friends.

Good-bye; from
CARL CLARKE.

The Reason Fewer People Take "Salts"

We find the use of salts and other harsh physics is becoming less every year because more and more people are using Rexall Orderlies, which we and they firmly believe to be the best bowel remedy ever made. They taste so much like candy that even the children like them. At the same time they act so easily and naturally that there is no purging, griping or pain. They promptly remove the constipation and, by soothing and strengthening the bowels, make it less liable to occur again. We have the utmost faith in them. We know what they are made of and the pleasant, beneficial results that always follow their use.

You needn't take our word for it. If Rexall Orderlies don't help you—if they don't entirely relieve all your bowel troubles—come back and tell us, and we'll give back your money. In vest pocket tin boxes; 10c, 25c, 50.

You can buy Rexall Orderlies only at The Rexall Stores and in this town only of us—J. S. McKeown—The Rexall Store.

Bridge Street Epworth League

The Epworth League of Bridge Street Church was largely attended last night. The special feature of the evening was an address by the Rev. Dr. Hazelwood of Toronto, one of the Field Secretaries for the Department of Social Service and Evangelism in the Methodist church.

His subject was "The Ideal Citizen and was discussed in a most vigorous manner." He first emphasized our heritage sa Canadians and urged the idea that while we boast our English, Scotch or Irish descent, we must be ever occupied in building up a Canadian nationality so that soon it will be sufficient to say to the census man "I am a Canadian". In this connection the Dr. quoted with good effect Pauline Johnson's popular poem "Canadian Born". The Dr. then discussed the motives and activities that ought to characterize our lives as citizens of so great and promising a country, concluding with an appeal that made a splendid impression.

The meeting was presided over by Miss Olive Vanluven, Vice-Pres of the missionary department of the League, who performed the duties well. Mrs. Captain Hunter sang twice during the evening.

Rushed Work By The Bayonet

A Charge That Led to Capture of Important Position

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The Matin prints a letter from a former contributor, now a sergeant of infantry, who gives details of the capture of the important strategic position of Le Quesnoy-en-Santerre last week. It enables the reader to form a picture of the long-drawn-out burrowing war between the two strongly entrenched armies from Arras to Verdun.

"We set out at dawn," says the writer, "my company in the second line, supported by artillery fire. The ground leading to the Quesnoy Heights is an open plain, across which we advanced by short rushes under heavy fire. Toward evening we were barely two hundred yards from a wood occupied by the Germans, but were unable to advance further owing to the intensity of the cannonade. Without pausing for food or rest, we started entrenching ourselves and by morning reached a point only fifty yards from the woods.

"About 7 o'clock our artillery resumed operations, while reinforcements managed to crawl to our trenches. At eight the bugle sounded the charge, and, despite the enemy's quick-firers, we rushed the wood, driving out the Germans with the bayonet. Then we easily seized Le Quesnoy village by a similar rush, and took two cannon and three quick-firers.

Still we had no rest, and all begun immediately to entrench against a possible counter-attack, and with good reason, for toward nightfall the reinforced enemy tried to regain the position. Thanks to our unremitting work in the trenches, they were unable to prevail, and were forced to retire with severe loss."

If we could only borrow money on our good intentions, poverty would soon be an obsolete word.

Raised Greatest Voluntary Army

Lloyd George, British Chancellor, Says This Force Will be Doubled

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(Special.) Chancellor Lloyd George made another vigorous speech on the war to an assembly of Free Churchmen in London last night, denying Britain's responsibility for the war. He said: "We were not armed for continental warfare, but we have raised the greatest voluntary army the world has ever risen in a few months. We shall double it. We harbored no designs against Germany; we maintained no quarrel with Germany; as the Lord liveth, we engaged in no conspiracy against Germany; we are in this war from motives of the purest chivalry to defend the weak."

Speaking of Belgium, the Chancellor said the Germans had robbed the Belgians of their food to maintain their armies. They are now sending to America saying: "You feed them." It was not America that devastated their land. "We are assailed by another national exponent of higher culture—Turkey."

HOW BELGIUM'S KING INSPIRES HIS SOLDIERS

He Lives as They do and Works as Hard--Sometimes Lacks Even His Daily Cigar

A TOWN IN BELGIUM, Nov. 9.—A heroic figure of this war is King Albert of Belgium, whose devotion to duty and whose personal courage rallied the Belgian Army within the last few miles left of their country, and inspired them to turn and push back the invader. His resolution during the painful retreat from Antwerp and his determination to resist the advice given him to take refuge in France have done perhaps more than any other single influence to make the Belgian Army what it is today—a band of soldiers worthy of comparison with the Old Guard of Napoleon.

The King is the real, active directing Commander in Chief of the army. His office is near the front, and he is at the office early in the morning, sometimes at 8 o'clock, rarely later than 9. At midday a little inn near by sends him luncheon. It is very simple, sometimes lacking even in what a middle-class citizen in London would regard as the ordinary comforts of the table. Of course the King could get anything he wanted, if he chose to employ the military transport to bring it up from the coast. He is so vitally absorbed in his work, however, as to be indifferent to his comfort. So long as he can get a cigar after luncheon he is satisfied and even that has sometimes been lacking.

In the afternoon the King's labors continue. He has visits to receive and made. He goes often to the trenches. Of late he has decided that the Belgian army would be encouraged if it saw a little of the ceremony and panoply of war; so reviews are fairly frequent, and when there is a chance for a regiment ordered . from one part of the front to another to march past the King with music, the chance is taken.

Sometimes it is 9 in the evening before the King leaves his office, but more usually he goes at 6 or 7, probably to his temporary palace which the German airmen are always seeking out with bombs, but which happily they have not yet found. He continues then to carry on the work of state; but his day's labor in the public eye stretches to an average of eight or nine hours.

Austrian Army Ends Campaign

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Reports from many sources are received in confirmation of previous reports to the effect that the Austrian armies have been separated from the main German force by the sudden Russian movement towards Cracow, and indication that the Austrians hereafter may play no part in the campaign more important than the safeguarding of the Hungarian frontier in the Carpathians, appears to be contained in the following despatch received from Vienna last night.

"It was officially announced to-day that the situation on the north-eastern frontiers was unchanged. Later on another communication was issued stating that the war operations in Galicia would shortly be indefinitely suspended. For this reason the correspondents who are now there have been ordered to the south-east.

"This announcement is interpreted to mean that the Austrians have been defeated, and intend to withdraw to their lines of entrenchments with the object of resisting a Russian invasion."

PEACE OVERTURES ARE REFUSED CZAR TURNS THE KAISER DOWN

Morning Post Report From Rome Says Germany, Alarmed at the Russian Success, Made Preliminary Overture

(Canadian Press Despatch Exclusively to The Intelligencer)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A Rome despatch to the Post says:—

"Germany, alarmed at the Russian success, has made preliminary offers of peace to the Russian Government, which have been rejected."

FIGHTING RESUMED WITH SEVERITY

PARIS, Nov. 11.—An official statement this afternoon says fighting was resumed Tuesday morning between Nieuport and the River Lys with great severity, the Germans taking Dixmude and the Allies recapturing Lombaertzede. The Allies still hold approaches to Dixmude along the canal from Nieuport to Ypres which has been firmly occupied. The British troops attacked at several points and succeeded everywhere in stopping the enemy. On the entire front, with the exception of slight advances for the Allies at two points the situation shows no change.

CASUALTIES LARGE IN EASTERN ARENA

PARIS, Nov. 11.—A Havas Agency despatch from Petrograd says it is estimated that during recent fighting in East Prussia the Germans lost 70 per cent. of their officers. From Oct. 23 to Nov. 5 the total Russian captures amounted to 323 officers, 21,730 soldiers, four mortars, 52 cannon, 32 quick-firers and a large amount of munitions of war, including provisions.

OFFENSIVE MOVEMENTS GRADUALLY WEAKENING

LONDON, Nov. 10—The British press bureau in an announcement to-night says there were many signs that the German offensive in France is gradually weakening all along the line. Many train loads of German artillery are leaving Lys Valley for Ghent. German headquarters moved back to Alost near Brussels.

AUSTRIANS EVACUATING PROMINENT POSITIONS

PETROGRAD, Nov. 11.—A despatch reports that the Austrians have evacuated all their positions southeast of Lemberg. The entire Austrian line from Stry to Chernoa; from Stry to Czernowitz is being abandoned.

King's Speech From Throne

(Canadian Press Special)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The King's speech of four brief paragraphs recited that Parliament has been summoned to take such steps as were necessary to forward the cause on which the whole Empire is united, the prosecution of the war to a victorious issue, that since the previous session the area of the war had been enlarged by the entrance of the Ottoman Empire, contrary to the counsels and entreaties of the allied powers, that the British army and navy are maintaining their glorious traditions and that the whole Empire is determined to secure the triumph of British arms at whatever sacrifice. Parliament would be asked to make financial provision for the conduct of the war and only war measures would be submitted for their consideration.

CAPTAIN OF CRUISER MADE PRISONER

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Admiralty announced that Capt. Mueller of the German cruiser Emden, and Prince Franz Joseph of Hohenzollern, one of his officers are prisoners of war, both unwounded. The unofficial report of the casualties aboard the German ship are two hundred killed and thirty wounded. The Admiralty directs that the officers of the Emden be permitted to retain their swords and the survivors to receive all the honors of war.

THREE KILLED FOR EVERY ONE MUSSLEMAN

ABEIRUT, Nov. 11.—A despatch says the Turkish commander has warned the British and French Governments that for every Mussulman killed in bombarding unfortified Turkish ports, three British or French subjects will be executed.

FOOD DID NOT LIE ON LONDON DOCKS

Hon. George H. Perley Gives Denial to Late Story from England

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Hon. G. Perley informs us that there is no truth whatever in the report published recently in a London paper that Canada's food contributions have been lying neglected on docks, owing to failure to provide sufficient accommodation for storage. This report appeared in a paper possessing an unenviable notoriety nowadays for the unreliability of its special information. But despite this, it was cabled out to Canada that Hon. Mr. Perley resents the circulation in Canada of such stories, which, besides being quite inaccurate, can only engender bad feeling amongst workers in philanthropic causes both in Canada and in England, who hitherto have been pursuing good offices. Perfect cordiality exists backed up by extreme efficiency, he says. All those assisting the local Government Board without exception, says Hon. Mr. Perley, have dealt promptly with all cargoes from Canada, which at the outside, have only remained in dock for a few hours. As an example it may be mentioned that arrangements have already been fully made for dealing with the farmers' contribution expected shortly.

INDIAN TROOPS LOSE HEAVILY IN FLANDERS

Twenty-Six British and Eight Native Officers Were Killed

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A heavy casualty list of officers of the Indian army issued by the press bureau today emphasizes the fierceness of the recent fighting in which the Indian troops have been engaged in West Flanders.

The list includes twenty-six British and eight native officers killed; thirteen British and twelve native officers wounded, and three British and three native officers missing.

A further list of casualities to officers in the British army included six killed and 16 wounded. Among the latter is the Marques of Tweeddale, a lieutenant in the First Life Guards.

FRANCE WINS SLICE OF CONGO LOST TO ENEMY IN 1911

German Forces Scattered After Two Days of Fighting--Belgians Help With Boat and 150 Troops

BORDEAUX, Nov. 10.—It is officially announced here that in the region of the Sanga River in the Congo, French troops cammanded by General Aymerich succeeded in driving the Germans from the larger part of the territory lost in the 1911 convention. The military post of Nzimou was retaken after two days heavy fighting on October 29. The Belgian Congo placed at the disposition of the French forces the steamer Luxemburg and 150 soldiers.

On October 22nd, the announcement continues, a column commanded by Col. Hutin captured Nola and made prisoners of several officers and many sharpshooters. Four quick-firing cannon and munitions were also taken.

The operation, it is stated, assures to the French the possession of the town of Basanga.

Emden Was After The Troopships

German Cruiser's Objective in the East--Does Damage to Cable Office

SYDNEY, Nov. 10.—It is clear that the Emden's objective was both the eastern cable station and the troopships of the expeditionary force. The fact that she was foiled in both objectives is attributable to the excellent manoeurvring of the Sydney. When the first news arrived of her presence at Cocos Island it was expected that the Emden would emulate the exploits of the Nurnberg at Fanning Island, but this was evidently prevented by the timely arrival of the Sydney. Eastern cable traffic is maintained throughout. The Emden arrived at Cocos Islands at 7 o'clock Monday morning and was able to damage the cable office before the arrival of the Sydney, but did not prevent the maintenance of communication. It is also reported that she disabled the wireless station.

GLASS EYES ARE SCARCE

None of Them Has Come from Germany Since the War Began

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Glass eyes are getting scarcer and higher in price according to The Crockery and Glass Journal, with no prospect of an increased supply while the war continues. The authorities in trade say that more than 3,000 people in this country wear glass eyes, and keep on buying them from time to time, as the eyes usually wear out within a year or two.

This city is the centre of the glass eye trade in the United States, and the wholesalers say that all their imported eyes come from Germany. The importers also manufacture some eyes here, but all the material used comes from Germany. No shipment of eyes or material for eyes has been received since the war began. The present supply of manufactured eyes, the wholesalers say, will last only a few months. The material used in making eyes now on hand in this country will hardly last the remainder of the year, according to the trade reports. Even after the war ends there will be much delay before new supplies are available.

These reports say that all of the glass eye factories have been shut down, the workmen having joined the armies. If the workmen receive even the slightest injury to one of their fingers they cannot make any more glass eyes, because these men require especially nimble and sensitive fingers.

CUT OFF THE HANDS OF FORTY CHILDREN

TORONTO, Nov. 10.—Mr. A. Creig, general manager of the Standard Chemical, Iron & Lumber Company, Toronto, has received from the company's manager in France a letter, of which the following is an extract:

"To give you some idea of the German 'kultur,' please note that a well-known lady, a relative of one our directors in my Pyrenees business, has in the section of a hospital which is under her care at Rheims, 40 children, mostly boys, with the hands cut off at the wrist. Our doctors declare that this must have been done by experts so that the children would not die, but surely live as invalids. In other words they want to destroy our works, our houses, steal our works, our houses, steal our money, and, then on top of it leave us some invalids to take care of. You can say that to any of our friends. It is the exact truth. I swear to it. It is only an example of 40 children, but how many others are everywhere and about which I do not know. I do not say anything about the thousands of women and children they have killed outright."

BRITISH PARLIAMENT OPENED TO-DAY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Parliament opened today without the usual brilliant display of scarlet and gold uniforms, and sober khaki was in evidence everywhere when the King made his military progress through the streets. One hundred and five Unionist members were prevented by war business from taking their seats and thirty-two Government supporters are actually at the front and many more are absent on Government business.

"Erin Go Bragh!" And Green Flag Turned The Day

Irish Regiment, Hard Pressed, Cheered When Soldier Produced Standard with Harp

CHARGED DOWN THE ENEMY

Germans Turned and Fled From Bayonets of Men Shouting Ancestors' War Cry

LONDON, Nov. 10.—A letter from Corporal J. J. Cunningham of the First Irish Guards, to a friend at Loughton, Essex, says: "You may be surprised to hear that the Irish flag I bought from the pedler before parting with you I still have got. At——(name censored) when the fate of the day seemed to waver in the balance, that faded flag turned a threatened defeat into a decisive victory.

"On our left were the Munsters and on our right the Leinsters and Connaught Rangers. All were hard pressed and were about to retire when suddenly from the firing line one of our comrades rushed out flourishing the old green flag and shouting 'Erin Go Bragh.'

"With a mighty cheer that seemed to rend the heavens, and that rose and swelled even above the din of battle, those hard pressed sons of Erin charged down on the advancing enemy with fixed bayonets.

"The Germans turned and fled in all directions, completely routed and wholly disorganized."

FRANCE MOVING ON TOWARD PROHIBITION

Decree Against Sale of Absinthe and Similar Drinks Strengthened and May be Permanent

PARIS, Nov. 10.—Permanent prohibition of the sale of absinthe and kindred alcoholic beverages in France may be a result of the war. Transportation and sale of absinthe were forbidden when the war began, but traffic in other intoxicants was continued.

The Government has now supplemented its original order with another forbidding the sale of any alcoholic drinks similar to absinthe. There is a marked movement in all parts of France tending to perpetuate this prohibition.

The best varieties of absinthe contain between 70 and 80 per cent. of alcohol. The United States prohibits its importation.

After absinthe the principal liquers made wholly or largely in France are benedictine, chartreuse, creme de menthe, kirsch and vermouth.

France is rated as the largest consumer of liqueurs, although the statistics available do not show the amount of alcohol consumed in this form. In 1912 a total of 1,541,406,000 gallons of wine were consumed in France and 70,903,000 gallons of alcohol.

Heavy Firing Off Coronel

Message from Chilean Cost Suggests Second Naval Battle

LIMI, Peru, Nov. 10.—Heavy cannonading was heard at sea yesterday off the Chilean seaport of Coronel, according to reports received here from Chile. Coronel, is a seaport about about three hundred miles south of Valparaiso. It was off Coronel that the German squadron under Admiral Count von Spree engaged the British squadron, commanded by Rear-Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock on November first.

EIGHT ORPHANS FROM BELGIUM

Will Now be Cared for by Their Grandmother in Ottawa

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—Eight Belgian children have arrived in Ottawa, and will live with their grandmother, Mrs. Rievers, who resides on Montreal Road. The mother of these children died a year ago, and the father was killed in battle, leaving the children, some of whom are very young, with no one to look after them. The grandmother cabled instructions to send the children to her, and she met them in Montreal. They made the trip across on the boat unaccompanied, but arrived safely and well.

If a man has no friends he doesn't deserve them.

ABUNDANT EVIDENCE OF GERMANS' BRUTAL BEHAVIOR

Militia Minister Says Nothing Could Atone for Treatment of Belgian Women--Terrible Butchery--During Desperate Conflict was Most Horrible Even to Experienced Soldiers

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—General the Hon. Sam Hughes arrived back in the capital last evening, and immediately was in conference with the members of the militia staff, learning what had been done during his absence.

Speaking to the press he said that the Canadian troops at Salisbury Ulains had juts begun shooting, and the first regiment made an average of 87 per cent. He was sure that the Canadians would win distinction because of their markmanship.

One of the things that had impressed him most in England was what was learned of the terrible butchery now going on in the desperate conflict between the Germans and the allies. A wounded officer had given him a graphic description of the effect on the German ranks of the murderous British fire, and the ghastly scenes scenes during bayonet charges. Even to experienced soldiers it was horrible beyond description.

There was abundant and convincing evidence also of the brutal treatment of the Belgians by the Germans. Nothing could atone for the treatment of Belgian women all over the country. The killing of Belgian civilians was often due to their efforts to protect the women.

Canadian Car Co. To Defer Dividend

Preferred Dividend Likely to be Deferred, Common Likewise to be Passed

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.--Special— At a meeting to be held to-morrow it is understood the directors of the Canadian Car & Foundry Company will decide to defer payment on the company's $7,000,000 preference stock due on the 25th of last month.

The day the payment of the dividend fell due the President, Hon. Nathaniel Curry, in an interview, stated that if certain business negotiations for which were then in progress, was secured, the dividend would be declared. It is understood that this business has not as yet materialized, and that therefore in order to maintain the company's strong position the directors will decide not to make payment of the regular quarterly preferred stock disbursement. If this action is taken the fate of the common stock dividend, which is usually declared at the annual meeting held early in December, will be sealed in fact; for some time past the discontinuation of the common dividend has been looked upon as a foregone conclusion.

Berlin Volunteers Gallant Fighters

Their Efforts to Gain Evacuated Ground Made Vain by the Allies

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—(Special.) —Reports from Belgium state that the Berlin volunteers have fought with contempt for death. Althought Nieuport, Ramscapelle and Dixmude have been evacuated, these volunteer corps have tried to retake them, relying on their own attacks, while the veterans fought at Ypres. Thus occurred the murderous collisions by the Nieuport bridge, Dixmude and Ramscapelle, of which the two latter places the German volunteers, aided by marines, occupied, only to evacuate an hour later, after an attack by the allies' cavalry. The Germans lost near Dixmude, Nieuport and Ramscapelle many guns and prisoners, and thousands of killed. French and British reconnoissance and the devastating artillery, which rendered the German naval guns useless. A great German troop movement is in progress. Troops lately arrived at Bruges have been sent to the front between Ypres and Dixmude.

CAPT. SAYS GERMANS SET SHIP AFIRE

Vessel Had 800 Horses Aboard Bound for the French Army

NORFOLK, W. Va., Nov. 11.—(Special.)—Only seven of the 800 horses carefully selected for the French army and on their way to France on board the steamer Rembrandt were alive late this afternoon. Carcasses of the dead animals were thrown overboard, one at a time, for hours during the afternoon by members of the crew, fast off the Virgina Capes.

The flat charge that the ship was set on fire in Baltimore by Germans was made by the Captain. He said he heard threats while there that the ship would be blown up before she reached France.

Toronto Girl Goes As Nurse

Miss Boultbee, Niece of Sir Wm. Mulock, is Off to Paris

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—(Special.)— The interest of several well-nown Toronto families in the war was enhanced yesterday by the contents of a letter received by Mrs. William Boultbee from her daughter, Miss Rosamond Boultbee, who has been for some time in London, England. Miss Boultbee, who is a niece of Sir William Mulock, stated that her fiance, M Ladislay de Zboromirski, who is at the front with a Russian cavalry regiment has been decorated with the Cross of St. George for conspicuous bravery in the campaign in Galicia. This decoration, it is said, corresponds with the Victoria Cross in the British army. Miss Boultbee further announced that she herself was leaving at once for Paris to serve as a Red Cross nurse.

MAJOR-GENERAL HUGHES IS AGAIN IN CHARGE

There was a Cabinet Council meeting this afternoon, but the Minister of Militia did not attend it.

In addition to five brothers and a sister in Ireland, he has a brother and sister in Kingston, as well as his father. One of the brothers, William, is a drill instructor in Dublin.

Hearing is Restored To Deaf

Without Mechanical or Artificial Hearing Devices. Deaf hear With Their Own Ears. A Wonderful English Discovery.

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered a little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread interest throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Belleville and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or headnoises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

Important.—In ordering Parmint always specify that you want Double Strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St. Montreal, P.Q., who make a speciality of it.

Boy's Work Conference Nov. 27, 28, 29

The different churches in the city are uniting in their efforts to make the forthcoming Boys' Work Conference a tremendous success. It is to be hoped that in addition to the 350 visiting delegates, Belleville Sunday Schools and different organizations will send 75 local delegates. This is a mighty opportunity to stimulate Sunday School work by sending delegates to this conference who will get the latest and most up-to-date ideas of Sunday School work. Every pastor, Sunday School Superintendent and teacher should plan to attend as many of the sessions as possible. Mr. John L. Alexander of the Chicago Sunday School Association, Mr. Chas. W. Bishop, Gen. Sec'y of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Frank Yeigh of the National Advisory Committee for co-operation in Boys' Work, Mr. P. G. Orwig, of the Ontario Sunday School Association, and Mr. Taylor Statten, Boys' Work Sec'y for the National Council Y.M.C.A., are the men who will present the most modern and up-to-date methods of work with boys in Sunday Schools and kindred organizations.

In order that this great delegation of boys from the ages of 15 to 20 may be properly billeted and entertained during the conference, the several different churches should try to accommodate delegates as follows:—Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church, 10; Bethel Hall, 5; Christ Church Anglican, 20; St. Thomas Church Anglican, 20; Victoria Ave. Baptist, 30; West Belleville Methodist, 30; St. Andrew's Presbyterian, 40; John Street Presbyterian, 30; Tabernacle Methodist, 60; Bridge Street Methodist, 90.

FIGHTING AGAINST ODDS.

Indian Troops Have To Contend With Many Disadvantages.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The Indian forces in France have made good, but have achieved none of the daring and extraordinary exploits attributed to them, according to a statement issued by the official press bureau last night, under date of Nov. 10, written by "An Observer with the Indian corps."

Above all the account emphasizes the difficulties under which the Indians are fighting by reason of their ignorance of the French, German and English languages. Repeatedly they have been subjected to tricks on the part of the Germans. "The Germans are full of resource," says the account, "and it is one of their favorite plans to lure the allied troops to attack them by various devices, especially by an indication of surrender. If this description is successful a skillfully concealed machine gun turns a murderous fire upon those who have advanced either to attack or accept surrender.

"Under all these circumstances it is a subject of great satisfaction that the Indian troops have so finely fulfilled the high expectations which were formed of them. A word of caution should be uttered with regard to the amazing adventures and exploits attributed to them — recommendations desired neither by the officers nor the men.

"It need hardly be said that the conduct and example of British officers, who have undergone precisely the same hardships as the men, have been worthy of the highest traditions of the service. In loss of officers and men Great Britain has paid, is paying and will continue to pay a cruel and constant price for the liberties of Europe and her own existence as a world-wide power."

Of the situation in France the statement says:

"Little change has taken place in the general position. There are, however, not wanting signs that the violence of the German offensive, which has been as resolutely pushed as it has been stubbornly met, is gradually spending its strength."

TURKEY TO BLAME.

British White Paper Reviews Events Prior To War.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The British Government issued last night another "white paper," reviewing the incidents which preceded the declaration of war against Turkey. It deals in the main with the Goeben and Breslau affair, and sets forth that the Grand Vizier all along was at least ostensibly against dragging Turkey into the conflict, but was either powerless to resist Enver Bey and his associates, or, while outwardly opposing them, was winking at the fast approaching crisis, while the Turkish and German preparations went forward.

The Grand Vizier, according to a despatch from the British Embassy at Constantinople, dated Aug. 16, admitted that Germany was doing her utmost to compromise the Turkish Government, but gave solemn assurance that Turkey's neutrality would be maintained. This assurance was frequently repeated, and so impressed the British Ambassador, Sir Louis Mallet, that he wrote to Sir Edward Grey that he was convinced of the Grand Vizier's sincerity.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

French War Office Reports Progress at Several Points.

PARIS, Nov. 11. — The following bulletin was issued by the French War Office last night.

"At the north the battle continues very violent.

"There is nothing to report on the other part of the front."

The afternoon bulletin said:

"The action continued all day yesterday with the same intensity that has characterized the previous fighting between the sea and the region of Armentieres. The encounters were of particular violence, for the reason that the opposing forces are alternately taking the offensive. Summing up, it may be said that the day was marked by the checking of a German attack in considerable force to the south of Ypres, and by perceptible progress on the part of the French forces in the vicinity of Bixschoote and between Ypres and Armentieres.

"Equally on the front of the British troops all the German attacks were repulsed with energy. Along the major part of front from the Canal of La Bassee, as far as the Woevre, our troops made secure the results attained in the course of the past few days. There should be reported also our progress in the region of Loivre, between Rheims and Berry-au-Bac. In Lorraine there is nothing to report. In the Vosges fresh attacks on the part of the enemy directed against the heights to the south of Mount Sainte Marie and to the southeast of Thann all have been repulsed."

AT THE FRONT

Nothwithstanding that the majority of cases that come to the Chiropractor are considered incurable or other methods of restoring health failed to do more than give a little temporary relief, the Chiropractic permanently cures a greater percentage of cases than any other science. How? By removing the cause.

Chiropractor is not a theory or belief, but a proven fact that pressure on the nerves where they emit from the spinal cord is the cause of disease. That being the only place where nerves pass between two hard or bony surfaces that are movable.

The human brain is the dynamo where life currents are concentrated. The spinal cord and nerves transmit the life current from the brain to every part of the body.

Obstruct the electric current between the dynamo and where electricity is expressed and there will be a lack of expression. Obstruct the life current between the brain and where life is expressed and there will be a lack of expression.

Where there is a lack of expresion (dis-ease) there must be an obstruction, otherwise expression would be perfect. (health).

If you are suffering from any mental or physical disease you may be sure that it is a lack of life current going to those parts.

We can prove Chiropractic is right and applicable to your case. Think it over. Consultation free.

What Dyspeptics Should Eat

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine time out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well fed body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a good meal of any food or food which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly. Bisurated magnesia is no doubt the best food corrective an antacid known. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation which inflames the delicate stomach lining it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine. As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of dosing an inflamed and irritated stomach with drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisurated magnesia from your druggist; eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisurated magnesia as directed above and see if I'm not right."

CABLE FROM LONDON TO COL. PONTON

Colonel W. N. Ponton received a cable from Lieutenant Richard Douglas Ponton from London with this characteristic message: "All well and feeling tip-top. Love to all."

Enclosed in letters also received giving a vivid account of the work at Salisbury Plain and his visit to London with the Officer Commanding the regiment, Lieutenant Ponton sends pictures of "F" Company, including the boys of the XV., also of the champion tug of war team of the brigade in which theer are no less than three Belleville men namely, Bradley, Vance and Gorman. Captain Abell, in charge of the Company, is a veteran of the South African war and a splendid type of soldier. Lieut Ponton has been given command of one of the Platoons, the system under which field manoeuvres are now conducted. Charlie Gibson was discovered by Major Perry Goldsmith, who is in command of a division of the army medical corps, at the Druid Altar at Stonehenge, convoying to their proper location in Salisbury Plain a squadron of cavalry and "owning the whole of England." The Belleville boys were about to go on picket duty for 18 hours guarding the aeroplanes on the day following that on which the letter was written. They are having the severest tests of endurance and efficiency.

A LETTER OF SYMPATHY

Chicago, Illinois, U.S.A.,
October 23rd, 1914.

To the Rt. Rev. Philip X. Eldridge, D. D.

Dear Brother,—The Thirty-fourth Council of the Synod of Chicago, which adjourned on Thursday, October 22nd, has directed the undersigned to express to you the deep sympathy felt by every member of the Synod for our brethren in the British Empire, under the distressing conditions imposed by the great European war.

We cannot but remember that in many, if not all, of your parishes, young, brave and patriotic men have torn themselves away from their homes and their beloved ones, to face the perils of the battlefield, and not improbably to lay down their lives for their country.

Our hearts go out to you, shepherds of the flock of Christ, and to the anxious and bereaved in your churches. We daily pray that God will comfort you, and that His interposition may bring an honorable and stable peace to you and to the world.

Faithfully, your brethren in Crist,
CHARLES EDWARD CHENEY,
Bishop of the Synod of Chicago.
SAMUEL FALLOWS,
Coadjutor Bishop of the Synod of Chicago.
ALEXANDER S. TAYLOR,
Secretary of the Synod of Chicago.

Dear Mr. Editor: The above clipping is from the pages of the Episcopal Recorder of Nov. 5th. This kind expression of fraternal sympathy from the Reformed Episcopal Church in Chicago, to the Reformed Episcopal Church in England will be appreciated by the people of Canada, as well as by those of the Motherland.

Miss Lena Philips spent Sunday at home with her brother.

Mrs. R. Rogers, and daughter Mabel of Stirling, are the guests of her mother, Mrs. J. Tweedy.

The remains of Mrs. Albert Beatty Saskatoon (who was killed in a runaway) are expected here on Monday evening, and will be taken to Mr. Sam Sherman's residence.

Letter From R. G. Buck

Salisbury, Oct. 23rd, 1914.

Dear Mother and all:—We are all writing from Salisbury Plains, where we are camped along with other Canadian militia. We are in tents at present, but as soon as it becomes cold will move into huts, which are being built.

Everything is quite green here except the leaves on the trees, which are beginning to turn brown. The weather has been very nice and warm except the last day or two, which has been rainy.

Well, mother, the Canadians arrived here safely after tweny-three days on the water, fourteen days sailing. I sailed on the Saxonia. We got a welcome reception at Davenport, where we landed, near Plymouth.

In Plymouth harbor there are many battleships being fitted out for sea. Coming into Plymouth we passed many dreadnoughts and cruisers, also the Impregnable, an old Frigate of war, now being used as a training ship.

These cities and villages certainly look queer. Funny built houses with thatched roofs, quaint inns in the villages with quaint names, such as the Black Horse, Three Witches, etc.

The people are very hospitably here, especially to the soldiers. You can get a meal at any farm house for nothing. Nearly every family has one or two sons at the front or in service.

This is a funny country to one who has never seen it. On the road from Amesbury to Salisbury Camp there are the ruins of a stone temple built by the Druids. Everything is so old and looks so quaint. I wish you could take a trip through it; perhaps you will some day.

Well, mother, this is an awful war. You hear more about it here than in Canada.

A battery of Royal Horse Artillery, L. Battery, were caught in the fog, and all killed except three men. I was talking to a fellow who met a wounded Dragoon, who was on that charge, and he says it was something horrible; a mere patch on the Boer war. I tell you if some of the accounts that some of the wounded give are true, this war is some war, and England is up against one of the greatest problems she has ever had.

Kitchener says three years, and he is about right. In England you see soldiers everywhere, in the villages, in by-roads, inns, ships, on the plans, in the air, all over. You see five or six aeroplanes in the air here at once. England was never in such a state before. In this war the artillery men are up against it. I am going on pass next Tuesday with another fellow, perhaps to London. I don't think we will see the front before three or four months, perhaps six. It all depends on how badly they need fresh troops. I will send you some papers and postcards soon. You can send this onto Spurgeon if you wish, but I will write four or five more letters tomorrow. Lights out now, so will close.

Yours with love.
R. G. BUCK.

WEDDING BELLS

ROLUFS-STEWART

On Wednesday, Nov. 11 at the Tabernacle Parsonage by Rev. W. G. Clarke, Leo Lawrence Rolufs and Ethel May Stewart, all of Point Ann were united in marriage. They were attended by Mr. Ira Cook and Miss Margaret Stewart. The happy couple left for the States on their wedding trip.

A Pleasing Address

The special services being conducted in Holloway St. church by Miss K. Morton were seasons of great blessing last Sunday. Large congregations were present at each service and the singing of many gospel hymns by the choir who were assisted by a number of Albert College students was much enjoyed. The evangelist gave two practical heart-searching sermons which won their way to the hearts of many.

Miss Morton spoke to the Sunday School at 3 o'clock with such tact, affection and earnestness that the whole school got a lift heavenward in that consecration hour.

Few evangelists have mastered the art of conducting a meeting better than Miss Morton, who says and does the right thing at the right time. Sunday was a red letter day for the Church, when quite a number came out for Christ. The interest is increasing. The services of Monday and Tuesday were very impressive.

BELGIANS FOR ALBERTA

Mr. J. S. Dennis of the C.P.R. makes the definite announcement that that company is taking steps to bring Belgian refugees to Alberta and give them a start on the land there. As some of the best farmers in the world are undoubtedly to be found among them, there can be no more useful and patriotic work than to enable them to begin life anew in Canada.

In the Old Land the people have come to their support in a whole-hearted way and the example is one that can never be forgotten. But it does seem a shame to keep them where they must be an economic burden when half a continent is crying for the services of such men to aid in its work of development.

The C.P.R. is in a position to grapple with the problem immediately and is not likely to be content with any half-way measures. Its whole policy of late has been to get experienced farmers on its land and this is an exceptional opportunity to further its plans. The assisting of Belgian immigration will not only be in the interests of the company and of the Dominion but at the same time a genuine service in the cause of the Allied nations of humanity as a wole will be performed.

THE SOLDIER'S REMUNERATION

Canada's pay to the soldiers of her contingent who have gone to Europe is, from a Canadian point of view, none too large but it is much higher than the pay of the soldier who enlists in the United Kingdom. It is not surprising suggests a prominent exchange that the English Tommy becomes envious of his Canadian comrade, who, when on leave, has an amount of pocket money which the Englishman does not possess. These things suggest a serious difficulty in the pay question. The Canadian's pay is naturally fixed with regard to the ordinary rates of pay for working men in Canada. Even the most patriotic soldier may be permitted to attach some importance to the pay question. If the rates of pay for the Canadians had been placed at lower figures probably the volunteering would have been less active. On the other hand the pay of the soldier in the United Kingdom is fixed with regard to the labor conditions there. When the two men are engaged side by side in a common cause the difference of pay creates unpleasantness. One suggestion offered is that a part of the Canadian's pay be deferred. This would give him less money to spend when on leave, and thus a part of the contrast that annoys the English soldier may be removed. But when considered from a broader view, the question is more of loyalty than remuneration. When the call came to Canadians their first thought was of the Empire's safety, trusting the Government to do its part in the matter of pay, which it certainly has done in a liberal sense.

CURRENT COMMENT

According to the United States bureau of education, several Southern states spend more money on their jails than their schools. And the lynching states don't make any too much use of their jails, either.

Hamilton Herald: "The new Australian fleet has already justified its existence. In overhauling and putting out of action the Emden, the most enterprising and successful of the enemy's commerce-destroyers, the Sydney has done signal service for the Empire. Although she outclassed her antagonist, her heavier armament would have availed her but little if there had not been men behind the guns who were capable of utilizing their advantage. Evidently the crews of the new Australian vessels have been well trained.

Yesterday is the anniversary of the great storm which took so large a toll of life on the great lakes last year. It appeared to be a frightful calamity then, and so it was; but how trivial in comparison with what is now going on in Europe!

New York World: "With Germany and Austria-Hungary cut off, American exports for the last week in October were the greatest since March. Compared with last year the total was up $9,000,000. Some startling items are shown in a review of a longer period. Wheat exports for three months ending Sept. 30 were the largest on record. In September we sent 2,500,000 bushels to Canada; and the exports of refined sugar were thirteen times as great as last year, of corn twice as great, of oats thirty-four times, of rice seven times. Cotton exports will soon be almost normal, going even to Germany by way of Italy."

WAR NOTES

The statement in an Irish paper that there are now five hundred widows in Tipperary as a result of the war shows that the town has fully earned the prominence which recent months have brought to it.

While the entrance of Turkey into the war appears to have had no perceptible effect in the English and French colonies as yet, it has stirred up revolt among the Arabs of Tripoli against the Italians. But probably the Germans do not care what misfortunes happen to Italy now.

It grates on the sense of justice to read that the Germans seized quantities of flour and provisions in Antwerp which they are now using for their armies, while the people of Belgium, now under German rule, have to depend on American generosity to save them from starvation. It may be military necessity, but it is hard.

Some of those who are trying to discount the achievement of the Canadian Government in sending so large a body of men to Europe so soon after the outbreak of the war would do well to ponder for a moment over the fact that there were more men in the first Canadian contingent than there were British troops engaged in the whole course of the American War of Independence.

ECONOMIC EPIGRAMS

Dr. Samuel Johnson defined patriotism as "the last refuge of a scoundrel." The man who gets his income from this country in a time of war and spends a good share of it in another, is the last kind of scoundrel that could be considered a patriot.

Buying Canadian-made Goods is not a fad. It's organized common sense. Only foreigners can afford to ignore a policy that means our National prosperity.

Every dollar spent for the goods your fellow-country-men make is as important just now as every Canadian bullet sent into the rank of the enemy.

What do you think of the man who draws his pay in one country and spends it in another? Leave that to the Chinaman and the Italian.

It's as much the duty and to the advantage of every Canadian to buy goods made in Canada as for a Canadian soldiers to fight for his own country instead of going over to the enemy.

Grand Trunk News Items

"MOVIES" WILL SHOW BEAUTIES OF CANADA AT PANAMA EXPOSITION.

A cinematograph hall, it has been decided, is to be a feature of the Grand Trunk Railway System's Pavilion at the Panama Pacific Exposition opening San Francisco, February 20th, 1915.

The hall will seat several hundred people and moving picture exhibitions will be given throughout the day to the visitors. The scenic beauties of Canada and of the Alpine Wonderland opened up by Grand Trunk in particular, will be shown on the screen.

At the private exhibition of these films given in Montreal the other day they were declared by experts to be among the best travel pictures ever shown. "That is Mount Robson" enthusiastically declared one of the official present at the private view when a magnificent snow robed mountain, with other giants nestling at its base came into view. The highest and most majestic peak in the Canadian Rockies kept appearing and re-appearing as the train swept on, presenting itself to the traveller at every possible angle. A remarkable clear and life like picture of the driving of the last spike on the G.T.P. at Nechako Crossing was also shown, with the exciting competition between the track laying gangs for the honor of finishing their allotted half mile in record time. Scores in Prince Rupert's great harbor; the incomparable lakes of British Columbia, reproducing in their shawods the mountains rising on their margin; and wonderful vistas of the new agricultural territory awaiting the settler in this part of the Dominion make an exhibition that will fascinate the visitors from the four corners of the Earth who gather at San Francisco next year.

A Clean Mouth Promotes Health

Oral hygiene is quite properly focusing the attention of the medical profession as well as the laity. A noted authority is quoted as saying: "There is not one single thing more important in the whole range of hygiene than hygiene of the mouth."

In the precess of sterilizing the mouth—destroying disease germs—dependence may be placed on Absobine, Jr. This germicidal liniment has made good under severe laboratory tests and its use as a germ destroyer and preventive is becoming quite general. It is unlike the usual germicide because it is non-poisonous and is safe and harmless to use.

Prof. J. D. Hird, Biological Chemist, Washington, D.C., after an extensive laboratory examination of Absorbine, Jr., reports: "Four or five drops of Absorbine, Jr., to an ounce of water is sufficient to thoroughly cleanse the mouth and teeth of injurious bacteria, without injurious action on the teeth." (Complete report mailed upon request).

HE LIKES KINGSTON

Thomas Davis Did Not Obey Orders Of the Magistrate

KINGSTON Nov. 10.—Thomas Davis arrested as a vagrant and who appeared in the police court on Saturday morning, was ordered by the magistrate to return to his home in Picton. Davis evidently likes Kingston, however, as he did not leave. On Monday a police constable accompanied him to the wharf and made sure that Thomas started out for Picton. He was arrested by Constable Jenkins, and is charged that he was "holding up" people for money. The register at the police station shows that he paid a visit to Kingston just about a year ago.

TOLD CHOLERA WAS IN PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 10.—German prisoners recently taken near Roye stupified their captors by sticking to the old assertion that the only reason Paris was not captured was not captured was because cholera was devastating the city.

Latest statistics show that Paris was never healthier, the deaths for the last week being 6 per cent. below the average. According to the figures Paris is actually the healthiest town in France.

ABOUT CONSUMPTION

Picture to yourself a young man who instead of feeling the throb of pulsing life in his veins is doomed to watch the passing hour with feelings of despair and gloom. His hours are numbered. He is another victim of the dread "white plague." Hope is dead. Nothing is worth while. Each hour weakens his hold on life.

Such was the condition of Mr. M. J. Hamilton, of 4 Tiverton Avenue, Toronto, before he heard of Copeland's medicine. He procured one bottle, then another and another until he had so far recovered as to be able to write as follows:

Mr. W. R. Copeland,
511 Pape Avenue, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—Your wonderful medicine is giving me back my health and strength. I thought it was all up with me, but now I am feeling fine. Am working hard every day and can eat anything, which was an impossibility a few months back. I will be pleased to tell anyone, troubled with lung troubles, what it has done for me.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) M. J. HAMILTON.
4 Tiverton Ave., Toronto.

To-day, life holds prospect to Mr. Hamilton. Like others in vigorous life, each hour has its fulfilment of conscious work, pleasure or rest. The difference was caused by a medicine—the medicine that he needed—the medicine that fought his disease and strengthened his vital powers.

He is still living in Toronto and for the good the medicine did him he welcomes the opportunity to tell others what "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" did for him.

Maybe you, or your child, relative or friend are not so far gone as Mr. Hamilton was. Still, there is weakness, distress or pain. Try this medicine as he did. It can do you no harm: it is more than likely that it will be found to do you a world of good. Try it.

Several letters have been received from people who have taken this medicine for bronchitis. Two of these cases resisted for over 30 years every effort of medical men and medicine to benefit them. "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" achieved complete victory.

If you suffer from this distressing ailment, send us your address and copies of these letters will be forwarded to you.

This medicine is procurable at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle, or it can be had, at the same price, in a plain wrapper, direct from the Copeland Medicine Company, Limited, 511 Pape Avenue, Toronto. 5-14

KAISER'S SOLDIERS ARE SHOT IF THEY FLEE

German Private Tells His Captors His Own Side Wounded Him--Praised by the British--Col. Swinton's Official Report of Ypres Fighting Pays Tribute to Their Bravery

The official press bureau of London has issued the following account of events at the battle front as witnessed and written by Col. E. D. Swinton, of the Intelligence Department of the General Staff. The recital is dated Nov. 1 and says:

"Friday, Oct. 30—I have witnessed a renewal of the efforts against our right which were without success to the enemy. In the centre the bombardment was heavy. Indeed, so many shells fell around our positions that telephone wires frequently were cut. The attack in the direction of Ypres generally were renewed. Southeast of that town it was pressed in great force, and in places our line was again forced back a short distance. But on our left the oncoming Germans were stopped by our entanglements, under a close rifle fire, and after two efforts to advance, they gave way.

"On Saturday, Oct. 31, a most determined attack was made upon our left and our left centre, the pressure being especially severe against the latter portion of our position. Part of our line was driven back temporarily by the sheer weight of metal and numbers, but it was almost all recovered again before night. Against our centre the enemy did not advance, while against our right they were not nearly so active as they were farther north.

"So far, with the assistance of the French, who have been co-operating most effectually, we have succeeded in maintaining our line and in retaining possession of Ypres, upon the capture of which by the end of October the Germans had set their heart.

"A Soldiers' Battle

"As may have been gathered, the fighting of the last five days has been of the most desperate nature. It has been eminently a soldiers' battle, and without exaggeration of any undue self-congratulation, it can be said that our men have behaved splendidly in the face of heavy odds and against the repeated onslaughts of great masses which were continually replaced by fresh men and backed up by the almost continuous fire of immense guns. They have, by their dogged resistance, well upheld the reputation of our army.

"Heavy as have been our losses, we have taken a far heavier toll from the enemy, and we have prevented them gaining the object upon which all their energies have been concentrated. And not only have our troops maintained their traditions, but our French allies have been fighting with all the dash for which they are famous. Judging from all accounts they have made at Dixmude and along the Yser a name for themselves which will never die. The Belgian army, likewise, has resisted the furious onslaughts of the enemy with the utmost gallantry.

"The German troops also have won our respect for the way in which they have advanced. Whether it be due to patriotism or to the fear induced by from discipline, the fact remains that they steadily press forward to what in many cases must obviously have been certain death.

"That they are sometimes forced to go on is shown by the following answer to an interrogation put to a wounded German prisoner

"'I was enlisted in October of 1913. On mobilization, the weakly and those backward in training, to the number of about 60 per cent. of the company, were withdrawn from the active regiment to form the nucles of a reserve regiment which was completed by men from Baden and Wurttemberg belonging to the second section of the Landwehr. We received new gray uniforms. After ten weeks of hard training we travelled for three days and two nights, from Thuringia up to Aix-la-Chapelle, where we remained in reserve. We were told that our nearest enemies were the English.

Germans Shot by Their Officers

"'On the 17th and 18th of October we performed such fatiguing forced marches that many men fell out on the way. On Oct. 19 we each received 285 rounds of ammunition and had our first taste of fire. Although we were told that there were only sharpshooters in front of us, I saw French cavalrymen and no other foes. From this day onward the fighting was uninterrupted. On Oct. 20 my section received orders to go forward to attack, and our officers warned us that if we gave way fire would be opened upon us from behind. This threat was carried into effect when the losses we suffered compelled us to retire. Indeed, it was by a German bullet that I was wounded.

"'Having fallen to the ground, I remained between the lines without food or care for two days, at the end of which time I dragged myself to a ruined house. During all this time German shells, which were short, were falling about my shelter, located a few hundred paces from the French lines. The French having advanced on Oct. 24, I myself moved forward and called out to a passing patrol and surrendered.

"'We have received no distribution of food since our arrival in France. The commandant of my company was a reserve Lieutenant, 28 years of age. The Colonel, whose name I do not know, also belonged to the reserve, as did all the other officers of the regiment. The officers told us that if we fell into the hands of the French we would be sent to the Foreign Legion, and that we surely would be massacred by the Moroccans.

"'I saw only one man shot. He was a priest, who they said was a spy.

"The results of the inundation to the north of Dixmude have been observed by our aviators, who have seen numbers of the enemy collected in groups on the dikes which intersect the flooded area where, according to report, some German heavy artillery is bogged. Our airmen have also been able to harass advancing hostile columns by bomb-dropping and machine-gun fire.

Germans Use Motor Buses

"The tactical transfer of troops behind the German front line is now carried out to a great extent by motor omnibuses, of which long lines are visible from above. During the past few days large numbers of refugees have been streaming back along the roads from Belgium and crowding the empty trains returning from the front upon which the French have, most humanely allowed them to travel. In these trains whole families may be seen jostled together in horse-trucks and having with them what few household goods they have been able to carry away. But the less fortunate have to trudge the roads, making use of any shelter they can find.

"The inhabitants of the district within our zone of operations also line the roads from morning to night and listen to the sound of the guns, there being nothing else for them to do. As the dull roar waxes and wanes, so does their confidence die away or return, and in such alterations of fear and hope is each weary day passed. All this traffic to and fro of civilians entails the utmost vigilance in order to guard against espionage."

The LAPSE of ENOCH WENTWORTH

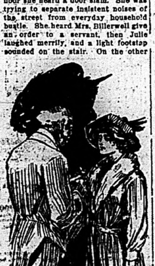
A gilt clock on the mantel struck seven. Dorcas rose, opened the door, and stood listening. On the lower floor she heard a door slam. She was trying to separate insistent noises of the street from everyday household bustle. She heard Mrs. Billerwell give an order to a servant, then Julie laughed merrily, and a light footstep sounded on the stair. On the other side of the wall a servant was preparing a room for her. She heard the girl slam a window and begin to move furniture about, while castors squeaked rebelliously. Then she fell to sweeping, and Dorcas counted absently each quick scuff of the broom. Once the maid dropped it and the stick fell on the floor with a startling rap. Occasionally her dragging footsteps clattered across a bit of bare floor or she paused to thump the pillows vigorously. Dorcas was roused from her reverie by the imperative call of the telephone. She listened while Mrs. Billerwell answered it. Then the doorbell rang and she heard Merry's voice. She began to grope about the dim room in search of matches to light the gas. She was still in darkness when he tapped at the door.



"Fo' de Lawd's Sake, Take Me Wid Yo', Missy."

Andrew seated himself in a shadowy corner beside the window. A glimmer of light from a street lamp fell upon the girl's face. In her eyes was an appealing loneliness which he had never seen before.

"Miss Dorcas," he began with grave gentleness, "what can I do for you? You know me fairly well. There is nothing heroic about me. I doubt if I could fight a duel. It makes me shiver even to touch a pistol—but I am ready to stand up to be shot at if it will make things easier for you."

"I believe you would," said Dorcas with an unsteady laugh.

"I swear I would," he assured her with simple gravity. The girl felt deeply moved.

"There will not be any shooting, and I don't know exactly what you can do for me. I don't even know what to ask you to do. I thought of turning to Mr. Oswald at first. I didn't. I felt I could come to you more easily."

"Thank you for saying that." An eager happiness flushed into the man's face which seemed to warm each feature beneath the surface.

Dorcas stood before him trembling and irresolute. "It is so hard—loving my brother as I do—to sit in judgment on him or to discuss him, even with you. You love Enoch, or rather—you did once?" she asked quickly.

Merry nodded.

"Since things went wrong between you," Dorcas hesitated for a moment, "since that time he has changed; you cannot realize how he has changed. Still, we were together and alone, and I kept thinking that the old happy days would come back."

She stopped short and Merry's brows wrinkled into lines of perplexity. "What has happened? What can I do to help you?"

"Yesterday," she began hurriedly, "when I went home after the matinee, Jason stood waiting in the vestibule for me. He did not say a word, but I knew that something had happened. I pushed him aside and ran upstairs. I could think of nothing but that Enoch had been taken ill. As I passed the hall rack I noticed the queer umbrella Miss Paget carries. It has a tiger's head for a handle—you remember it? Even in my anxiety I thought how strange it should be there. When I reached the library she sat beside the fire, reading a magazine."

"Where was Enoch?"

"In his little study, with the door locked. He came out when she began to talk to me."

"What did she want?"

"Andrew," the tears sprang to the girl's eyes, "that woman has come to live in our home."

"To—live—in—your—home!" Merry's voice had an incredulous tone in it. "Enoch has not—married Zilla Paget?"

"I do not know. I cannot understand. I think that Enoch hates her."

"Then why is she there?"

"I do not know."

"He didn't explain?"

"No. He looked like a thundercloud. She talked. She said she had come to live in our house. Her clothes were unpacked. She has taken the spare room. Her things, a lorgnette, and a scarf and gloves were scattered about the library."

"Enoch must be—insane!"

"Oh!" cried Dorcas. Sudden horror flashed into her face. "Oh! you don't think—that?"

"No. I'm a beast to have frightened you. It is not that. Enoch is as sane as you are."

"Then what has changed him?" Her eyes searched his face with a piteous scrutiny. "You know. Won't you tell me?"

"I think it is—" The man hesitated for a word which would not hurt. "Yes, he has changed. He is not the same old Enoch. I cannot account for this. He promised me faithfully to drop her—for keeps."

"Months ago. He has kept his promise until now. I know he has. The strange part of it is, the woman herself hates him. She says vile things about him."

"To you?"

"No; not to me!" cried Merry quickly. "She never speaks to me. We have reached the freezing point in our acquaintance."

Dorcas rose and walked to the window with her hands clasped tightly together. There were grave questions to be decided and burdens to be lifted—strange, unaccustomed burdens. She began to speak in a strange, toneless voice.

"I don't know what I'm going to do. Ever since I was a little girl there was Enoch. I never had anybody else belonging to me, only I never missed them, for I had him."

She stretched out her hands as a child might have done and raised her face to the man beside her as if in appeal for help and guidance. He took her fingers between his own with a swift grasp, caught her in his arms, and kissed her.

"Dorcas, tell me, tell me the truth. Do you love me?"

Their eyes met, and the girl understood. A bewildering happiness which transfigured life throbbed through her heart and body. Merry's face was luminous, his eyes shone, he seemed transfigured, in one abrupt moment, from a listless visionary to a man—alive with manly vitality.

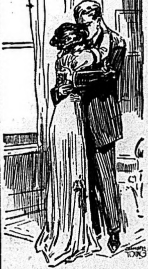
Dorcas heard the moments ticked out by the little gilt clock on the mantel. Time did not count. The world had changed. She realized what happiness meant, a happiness which closed a door upon every intolerant thing in the world. She remembered how in the play she had simulated, night after night, the joy of a woman as she met her lover. She had spent days in working up that semblance of radiant gladness. She had played the scene many times to an outburst of applause, now she smiled, it seemed so pale and ineffectual to her today.

Andrew put his fingers under her chin, raised her face, and looked into her eyes.

"Dearest," he asked, "are you sure—sure that you love me?"

"Yes," she whispered.

"Listen, don't answer for a minute. I want you to understand. I would not be satisfied unless I have everything. I want you to trust me, to believe in me, and to love me as a woman like you could love a man. One night, months ago, I had it in my heart to ask you this. That night I felt like a man who, lonely and cold, tramps through the streets of a city looking into firelit, happy homes. That night I wanted your love, your faith—yourself. You know the night I mean, when you pulled me out of hell and set my feet on the high road. Then you might have given me pity, perhaps—"



Caught Her in His Arms and Kissed Her.

Dorcas interrupted him. She put up her hand and pushed aside the lock of hair which had strayed over his forehead.

"I do not think, then, it would have been pity—alone," she confessed.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Marriage Licenses issued by P. Harrison at The Intelligencer Office, or at residence, Lewis Street.

Another Shipment To Supply Demand

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking up First Allotment But More On The Way

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Intelligenecer's distribution of the greatest Bible ever published. It did look for a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Intelligencer recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles ever published. "Illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying test matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait but bring in your certificates and get your Bibles. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

ALLIES ARE ADVANCING

Slow, Steady Progress Is Observed in Ypres Region.

Terrific Struggles Continues Hand-to-Hand With Both Sides On the Offensive, But Allies Are Making Headway — Other Successes Are Reported From Soissons District and From Alsace.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—France's campaign against the German has developed new success in the three principal zones of conflict near Ypres, Belgium, north of Soissons, France, and in Alsace. In the Ypres region, the slow but steady advance of the allies was continued with hand-to-hand fighting of fierce character, the feature. In this district it is estimated that 600,000 troops are actively engaged, while each of the opposing armies has a reserve of approximately 150,000.

By seizing the fortified heights north of River Aisne and occupying Soupir, Chavonne and Vailly, the French have given the allied armies the key to the entire territory of the Aisne and now the retreat of the Germans from the angle between the Aisne and the Oise rivers is threatened.

Paris claims that the allies have maintained their positions between the Lys and Langemarck, at the same time making appreciable progress between the latter place and Dixmude.

Berlin claims to have inflicted a defeat on the Russians in East Prussia and reports the capture of 4,000 men and considerable munitions of war.

A despatch to the Centarl News from Amsterdam says:

"Trainload after trainload of German artillery are leaving the Lys Valley in the direction of Ghent.

"The German army headquarters has been transferred to Alost."

The town of Alost is 15 miles west of Brussels and 40 miles east of the fighting area around Dixmude.

According to the latest list of killed published in Vienna, the Hungarian aristocracy had a considerable loss in the battle around Lille, France, to which district they had been sent to aid the Germans. The lists show that 867 hussars belonging to noble families were killed.

Many despatches speak of the movement of German troops eastward from Belgium as forecasting the necessity of reinforcements along the eastern frontier, but neither the French nor German official statements yesterday afternoon indicated any slackening in the violence of the German attacks in West Flanders. In fact the French statement says that between the sea and Armentieres the opposing forces were both acting on the offensive. As to the outcome of this double offensive, the rival contentions are absolutely contradictory, the Germans claiming slow progress near Ypres, and the French asserting that the German attack there was beaten back. In view of what seems to be a sustained and concerted German effort in this region, the reports of the German retirement are hardly borne out, although it is said they have moved their headquarters still farther east, this time from Ghent to Alost.

The situation along the battle line in France proper, from the standpoint of the allies, was summed up in a despatch from an "observer with the Indian corps," who says there has been no marked change anywhere, though he sees a gradual weakening of the German attacks.

"TURKEY IS FINISHED."

Turkish Official Says Declaration of War Spells Ruin For Porte.

ROME, Nov. 11.—Ifram Bey, head of the staff of Essad Pasha, the Albanian Minister of War, who is here to negotiate for the lending of assistance by Italy to Albania, said yesterday concerning the situation created by Turkey entering into the war:

"Turkey is finished. As a Mussulman I am sorry, but in reality I know the Caucasus and am convinced that Turkey cannot oppose serious resistance to the Russians. At Erzerum, Turkey claims she has 300,000 men to resist the Russians, but her forces there are far below that number, while Trebizond is in even a worse condition.

"Essad Pasha also thinks that a fight under these conditions is folly, and that Turkey should have remained neutral, asking in exchange some compensation from the Triple Entente. Now she rushes toward ruin. When the Mussulmans know that the power of the Caliph has been sacrificed to German interests and a few politicians summary justice will follow, but it will be too late."

Danish Newspapers Stopped.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11. — Heimdal, the Danish paper in Sleswig, has been stopped for five days by the German military censor, because it did not mention in its columns the birthday of the German Empress.

Another Danish paper published in a little town near the frontier, has been prohibited by the German military censor, for some unknown reason from passing the frontier.

The Norwegian paper Verdensgang, in an editorial proposes that the Nobel committee give this year's Nobel peace prize to the Belgian refugees.

German Consul Goes To Trial.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — The grand jury of the Durham Assizes has returned a true bill against Nicholas Ahlers, the German consul in Sunderland, on the charge of high treason. According to the indictment Mr. Ahlers was naturalized in 1905. After the declaration of war, he engaged in helping German reservists leave England for Germany.

SPY IS EXECUTED IN LONDON TOWER

LONDON, Nov. 11. — Karl Hans Lody, German spy and pseudo-American, who recently was court-martialed in Middlesex Guild Hall and condemned to death, was shot in the Tower of London last Friday morning, it has been learned.

The statement concerning the execution is brief, saying, "Sentence was duly confirmed."

It is understood that Lody died bravely, refusing to the last to reveal the name of the superior officer from whom he received his instructions to spy on the British navy.

This was the first execution in the Tower of London since 1700. The scene of the execution was the tower barracks, not far from the spot where Anne Boleyn and other persons famous in English history were put to death.

Lody was about 28 years old.

For a while Lody stayed around Scotland and kept tabs on ship centres, accumulating a mass of details about armament and the location of British fighting vessels.

His former wife testified against him through the mails.

THEY EXPECT CAPTURE.

Officers of Karlsruhe Say They Are Under Orders to Make Trouble First.

EDINBURGH, Nov. 11.—An officer of the freight steamer Pruth, which was sunk by the German cruiser Karlsruhe off the coast of Brazil, has arrived here. He says the Karlsruhe is using an island called Rocas Reef as a coaling and supply base and that there the Germans have a large quantity of coal and stores.

"Officers of the Karlsruhe told me," said this officer, "that they expected to be captured by the British fleet before long, but that meanwhile it was their painful duty to do as much damage as possible to the enemy's commerce.

"They were very polite and gave us twelve hours to leave our ships. Then they took off the provisions and the ship's papers and blew up the Pruth with dynamite. We were transferred to the Crefeld, which was one of five cargo boats accompanying the Karlsruhe, which she was using as scouts."

RAILWAYS DISLOCATED

Russians Have Played Havoc With German Lines.

Train Is Captured South of Koenigsberg and Have Blown Up Several Bridges — Troops Are Now Being Rushed To Thorn and Posen to Stem Advance of Russian Centre —Inhabitants Are Fleeing.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The following Russian official statement was issued yesterday in Petrograd:

"In Eastern Prussia the right wing of the enemy, who has been stubbornly resisting in the region of Lyck, has been driven back towards Mazourie Lake.

"East of Neideburg (24 miles south of Koenigsberg) near the Muschaken railroad station a Russian cavalry force defeated a German detachment which was protecting the railroad. The Russians captured a train and blew up the railroad bridges.

"On Nov. 8 Russian cavalry, meeting a cavalry division of the enemy, forced it to retire towards Kalisz.

"On the route leading to Cracow we have attained Miechow (a town 44 miles southwest of Kielce).

"In Galicia our troops have traversed the River Wisloka. They now occupy Rzeszow, Dynow and Liske."

The Russian light columns which have crossed and dislocated the outer line of German strategic railways running around northern and central Poland, report feverish activity. They have been able to arrest German movements on the railways nearest the frontier, but farther back the German lines are crowded day and night by trains bringing troops and equipment, especially artillery, from East Prussia to positions behind Thorn and Posen.

The excitement among the German railway staff has thrown the civilian population into a panic. Many thousands of German families have hastily packed their portable belongings and fled behind Posen fortress, fearing the Russian invaders may avenge German cruelties in Poland. Others are abandoning their homes and making for Breslau and Dresden. It is evident the German General Staff feels it has again been outgeneralled. Their experts were convinced that when the Russians had repulsed the movement on Warsaw and the Vistula and had turned the Germans back as far as the frontier the real campaign of invasion would be conducted through East Prussia.

They considered it absolutely impossible for the Russians to bring a great combined army with impedimenta for a winter campaign across Poland in November. This has already been done, hence the Germans are now concentrating at high pressure all their available forces from fortresses, garrisons and reserves in Silesia, Saxony and Prussia.

The Austrian evacuation of the positions to the southeast of Lemberg, in South Galicia and in Bukowina is reported in Petrograd yesterday to be continuing. There are also indications here that the entire Austrian line from Siryl to Czernowitz is being gradually abandoned.

It is announced at Petrograd that the Emperor, while en route from Kholm to Siedice, received a report from Gen. Avonoff, commander-in-chief of the army of the southwest. Gen. Avonoff with his staff was invited to the Imperial breakfast. At the station at Siedice the Emperor received Gen. Rouzsky, commander-in-chief of the army of the Northwest.

CRUISER EMDEN GONE

Terror of Indian Ocean Destroyed by One of Australian Fleet

The Cruiser Sydney, After a Running Fight, Overtakes and Drives German Warship Ashore, Setting Her on Fire — Sydney Had Superior Speed and Heavier Guns—Capt. Muller Is Saved From Wreck.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — News that was received here yesterday with rejoicing was to the effect that the Geman cruiser Emden, the "Flying Dutchman," terror of the Indian Ocean since the opening of the war, had been beached and burned by the Australian cruiser Sydney, in the Bay of Bengal, and at about the same time the German cruiser Koenigsberg was being bottled up at Mafia Island, off the coast of German East Africa, by the blocking of the channel to the harbor.

The Emden was outclassed in the running fight and the Sydney's shells set her afire before she was run aground. The loss of life among her officers and crew is reported to be heavy.

The Emden carried a complement of 361 men. She had destroyed 22 ships of the allies, her most daring feat being the destruction of the Russian cruiser Chemtchoug and a French torpedo-boat destroyer in the harbor of Penang, in the Straits of Malacca, after having shelled the city of Madras and inflicting great damage. The Koenigsberg, which had assisted the Emden in terrorizing British commerce on the Indian Ocean, had disabled the British cruiser Pegasus and accomplished other notable offensive work. It is with a feeling of great relief that the populace learns that these two ships are out of the running.

The Sydney, which carries about 400 men, has a main battery of nine 6-inch guns against the Emden's ten 4.1-inch guns, a decided advantage. The Emden's speed was 24.5 knots; that of the Sydney is 24.7 knots.

It was early Monday morning that the Sydney, in scouting, came upon the Emden. The German cruiser, immediately after sighting, and apparenting recognizing the Australian, made off at high speed. Although much heavier than the Emden, the Sydney knew her speed and lost not a moment in scudding after the German. Rounding her up the Sydney poured shell after shell at her. Unable to escape, the Emden stood off by Keeping, in the Coco Island group, and gave battle stoutly. After a sharp fight, in which the Emden was badly damaged by the Sydney's shells, the German cruiser ran ashore, blazing from the Australian's fire. Before making off the Sydney pumped a few more shells into the stranded boat. The Emden was completely destroyed and the loss of life was extremely heavy. It was reported that out of the 361 men aboard only 20 survived.

The casualties on the Sydney were three killed and 15 wounded. Among those saved from the Emden was Capt. Karl Von Muller.

With the exception of the German squadron now off the coast of Chile, the whole of the Pacifics and the Indian Ocean is now clear of the enemy's warships.

The First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, has sent the following message to the Sydney and to the Navy Board of the Australian Commonwealth:

"Warmest congratulations on the brilliant entry of the Australian navy into the war and the signal service rendered to the allied cause and to peaceful commerce by the destruction of the Emden."

The claims of the contending armies in the eastern and western theatres of the war, especially as concerns the situation in west Flanders, dove-tailed in so few respects last night as to leave but one big fact on land or sea undisputed. That was the destruction of the German raider Emden and the trapping of the German cruiser Koenigsberg, the latter in a palm-lined East African river.

The British marine insurance rate was almost instantly cut in two. Cheers broke forth at Lloyd's on the announcement, and for the moment the struggles of the armies in Belgium, France, Russia and elsewhere were forgotten.

VICTORIA CROSS AWARDED.

Sergeant-Major White of Army Service Corps Is First to Win Honor.

LONDON, Nov. 11. — Sergt.-Major White, of the Army Service Corps, is the first man to get the coveted Victoria Cross in the present war.

The gallant act for which this soldier was awarded the cross occurred at Lecateau where White, after his corps had been driven back by German cavalrymen returned in the face of a hail of bullets searching for his wounded captain. He was successful and carried the officer to safety.

The sergeant-major was shot in both legs.

White won the distinguished conduct medal in South Africa for carrying Lord Robert's son, who was mortally wounded, from the danger zone before Colenso, and who was awarded the Victoria Cross for his gallantry in that action.

QUARTETTE CAUGHT.

Four Fugitives From Central Prison In Jail In Bracebridge.

TORONTO, Nov. 11.—John Spence, D. McLoughlin, J. Mulhall and E. Schweirer, the four men who escaped from the Central Prison four weeks ago after murderously assaulting Guard Sangster, are, according to Provincial Bailiff John Ryan, in custody at Bracebridge, where they are to be tried for a robbery committed at Gull Lake.

Bailiff Ryan had occasion to visit the jail recently and identified the men. The authorities at the Central Prison have been notified. The men will be tried at Bracebridge and then brought to the Central Prison, where they will be dealt with for jail-breaking.

The escape at the prison on Oct. 14 was, according to the prison officials, engineered by Mulhall. He made his way to the guard's quarters by telling the guard that he intended to fix a pane of glass. Taken unawares the guard fell under a rain of blows from a piece of lead pipe.

"Later the airship was reported over Harwich.

"Firing was heard on the eastern cliffs between two and 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning."

Harwich is the extreme northern coast point in Essex, on the North Sea, and Sheerness is in Kent, at the mouth of the Thames, about thirty-five miles south of Harwich and about the same distance east of London.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10—Wheat opened ⅛c to ¼c lower, oats unchanged to ⅛c down and flax 1c lower. An easier tone generally prevailed and Liverpool cables, which were ½d up from Saturday, had little or no influence. The continued heavy primary receipts in the States and more favorable news regarding the Argentine crop were the bearish factors. Cash oats were quiet. Barley was in good demand at slightly higher prices. Inspections Monday were 626 cars, as against 1237 last year, and in sight were 750 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—The demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat this morning was good, and sales of 25 loads were made, but owing to the weaker feeling in the Winnipeg market, and the decline in prices of over 1c per bushel, late cables came weaker at a decline of 3d to 6d per quarter, which naturally tended to check any further business being done.

There was no change in the condition of the local market, the demand for all lines of coarse grains being still somewhat limited. There was some demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour today, and, as the prices bid for the lower grades were in line with millers' views, sales of several round lots were made, but the bids for export patent were 9d to 1s per sack out of line.

The local trade continues quiet, but firm. Demand for millfeed continues good, and the market is more active, with a larger volume of business doing than for some time past.

The trade in butter is quiet, and principally of a local character. Cheese is firm. Eggs active and strong.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 61c to 65c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 41½c to 45¾c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $5.90; first clears, $4.75; second clears, $3.70.

Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Nov. 10.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.18¾; No. 1 northern, $1.17¾; No. 2 do., $1.14¾; December, $1.15¾.

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal sub-divisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10.00 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

Deputy Minister of the Interior.

German Potato Salad.

The Germans excel in the art of preparing potato salad in a variety of combinations. Their first consideration is the potato, which must be just right. They use a hard little potato, which boils tender, but does not crumble. These potatoes may often be bought in delicatessen shops in your city and are usually called German salad potatoes or Hamburg potatoes. Blend them with onions, green peppers, beets, string beans, radishes, okra, carrots, cucumber, tomato, parsley, cress and lettuce for a vegetable salad.

With salt or smoked fish, shrimps, salmon, sardines, oysters or scallops you may have a different potato salad every day, so well do they combine with other good things to eat. All cooked meats, fresh or salt, make most excellent salads combined with potato. Poultry and fresh fish, except those mentioned, are an exception.

Potato salad is the one exception to the rule of serving salads as cold as possible. They are very good served hot and ofttimes should be served in this way, particularly for luncheon or supper with cold meats, or, if combined with meat, as a warm supper dish. Potato salad should never accompany a regular dinner of roast and vegetables, as it is too hearty a dish in itself.

Dried Fruit.

Unquestionably sun dried fruits and vegetables are better than most preserved foods. Yet the many difficulties in drying them out of doors in this climate prevent most people from considering it. But nothing is easier if you own a hotbed, such as where you start vegetables or flowers. Lay a door on top of the earth; spread a clean cloth over the boards and put the fruit or corn, peas or beans on this. After placing the articles to be dried in the frame put the covering sash back on it, taking care to raise both ends about two inches to give free circulation of air over the fruit, for the air carries off the moisture and prevents the fruit burning. Insects cannot stand the heat in this frame, and rain cannot reach the fruit, although it is advisable to put the sash tight on the frame in case of storm.

DISTINGUISHED CANADIAN MET GERMAN FOE

Was One of Three to Greet German Officers--Had Thrilling Experience

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—When Antwerp fell, a distinguished Canadian, who has been in Belgium since the start of the war, Hon. Dr. Beland, was on the spot and rendered a useful diplomatic service to the Belgian Burgomaster. Letters received from the ex-Postmaster-General in the Laurier Administration tell of his experiences during the siege and capture of Antwerp by the Germans last month, while he was there attending to his duties as an active member of the Belgian Hospital Corps. Dr. Beland came through the awful experiences of that siege without a harm, as he had previously come through the siege of Liege. After the entry of the Germans he was allowed to proceed to Holland with his wife, and reached there in safety. According to the last advices from him, he expects to be able to join the Canadian Medical Corps at the front.

THE ELUSIVE LILLE; WHO HAS IT NOW?

PARIS, Nov. 11.—A citizen of Lille, who left that town last Thursday and got through to the coast with great difficulty, says that the town was captured by British troops on October 20, but could not be held. The Germans re-entered on October 23, and since then the city has been repeatedly lost and recaptured. In the course of successive bombardments there has been great destruction, the St. Sauveur quarter, situated between the passenger and goods stations, and the City Hall, the oldest and most populous part of the town, being entirely destroyed. Altogether 1,200 houses have been destroyed by cannonade or fire.

Watch Baby's Breathing

A mother should begin to train the baby to breathe through its nose at once. This advice seems threadbare with repeating. But there are new babies and new mothers in the world every day.

The habit, once formed, is likely to continue through an individual's life. To try and train a good-sized child, or, worse still, a grown person to breathe through the nose is a problem.

The nose is a better filtering plant than man has been able to invent. It not only filters the air, but it also warms and moistens it, preparing it for contact with the lungs. Pure air is just as necessary to the lungs as pure water is to the stomach. Therefore breathe only through the nose.

If you find trouble in breathing this way, or the child seems unable to breathe through the nose while sleeping, adenoids or some other obstruction may be causing the trouble. Such a difficulty should always be a warning to the mother to have the child's nose and throat carefully examined at once.

Woman So Weak and Nervous Could Not Stand Her Children Near Her—Vinol Changed Everything for Her

Plant City, Fla.—"I wish I could tell everybody about Vinol. For nine years I was in bad health. I got so I could not sleep, and I could not stand it to have my children come near me. I could not even sew or do any heavy housework. I was simply tired all the time. I tried so many medicines I could not recall them all, but nothing did me any good. One day a friend asked me to try Vinol and said it was the best tonic she ever saw. I did so, and soon got the first good night's sleep I had had for a long time. Now I sleep well, my appetite is good, my nervousness is all gone and I am so strong and well I do all my housework and work in my flower garden without feeling tired or nervous. Vinol has made me a well and happy woman."—MRS. C. H. MILLER, Plant City, Fla.

GERMS ON BREAD

Much Disease May be Carried on New Moist Loaf

Bread is a practically universal article of diet! It is usually handled by several persons, often exposed to flies and street dust, and sometimes tossed about under very uncleanly conditions. This is particularly true of baker's bread, which is obviously liable to pick up dangerous bacterial contamination. Yet in his search for germ-carriers and disease-breeders, the bacteriologist has said little about this common food product.

However, it is well to know and remember that if bread is handled by a typhoid carrier, it is possible for typhoid bacilli to be smeared on the outside of the loaf. And since bread is usually eaten without heating, and very often soon after it reaches the consumer, it may readily be the means of conveying infection. In a recent number of the Journal of the American Medical Association appears a paper on the bacterial contamination of bread. The writer says that out of a hundred loaves of unwrapped bread purchased from as many different shops in the city of Chicago, 14 per cent. were each coated with more than 10,000 bacteria. As might be expected, loaves purchased at clean shops, where all the surroundings are favorable, have not nearly so many germs clinging to them as those kept under generally dirty conditions. While eleven wrapped loaves obtained from clean shops bore on the average only 371 bacteria each, more than half of the unwrapped loaves (62 per cent.) were coated with over 1,000 bacteria.

Still, it is said to be difficult to obtain a sale for wrapped loaves in certain city districts, where the prospective purchaser insists on testing the quality of the bread by pinching the loaf with thumb and finger.

The fact that bread is a germ-carrier should not act as a scarecrow to the housewife, nor cause her to attempt to lessen the bread supply. It should cause her to take more care in selecting the place from which she buys baker's bread and to look with more favor upon the wrapped loaf.

Ringworm Remedy

Ringworm is an unsightly disease and frequently defies the most persistent treatment. It should be taken in hand at once, and the greatest cleanliness observed to prevent its spreading. If it gets into the hair, as it does sometimes among children, it is even more difficult to cure.

A ringworm is a scaly, ring-like patch with a tendency to head at the center. The quickest and safest cure for it is iodine. Paint the sores with it, then rub with sulphur ointment. Sometimes several applications are necessary, at intervals of two or three days.

If the ringworm is on the head, eliminate as much hair as possible.

Inasmuch as the disease is catching it is always wise to keep away from any person known to have it.

Why You Snore

Snoring is often an indication of the presence of a foreign substance in the nasal cavities. Its immediate cause is using the nose and mouth to breathe with.

A person who is snoring is usually lying with the mouth wide open, and often on the back. The soft palate caught between the two currents in nose and throat flutters back and forth. Many cures have been offered at different times. Frequently sleeping on the side helps. It is not a bad plan to wake persons who are snoring loudly, and get them to change their position from back to side, or from side to side.

Sometimes it is necessary to remove spurs or polyps from the nose. Some people resort to nose closing devices but the objection to these is that the mouth would get dry.

Offers Inducements

Was it an exasperated English husband, one wonders, who concocted this advertisement calculated to gain the consideration of the most blase cook, which recently appeared in The London Times:

"A good cook is offered a magnificent view from kitchen window to main thoroughfare, with constant arrests, small accidents, ambulance calls and other interesting incidents at all hours of the day and evening."

What is Adam's Apple

An Adam's apple is merely a prominence of a bony shield for the windpipe. To develop the muscles of the neck by proper exercises will make it less prominent if it is so large as to mar the symmetry. To get fat will usually cover it up altogether.

Occasionally what is believed to be an abnormally large Adam's apple is an enlargement of the thyroid gland—a goiter.

Montreal: "With the idea of the Prince of Wales at the front no one will seriously disagree. Fighting, with the Czar, the Emperor of Germany and his sons, and the Royalties of Belgium, Servia and Montenegro in the battle line is a royal game once more."

THE CALLOUS KAISER

The German Kaiser, with an almost incredible callousness, has had the leisure of mind and the want of sense of decency and compassion to commission a painter to paint the fields of blood which he has created!

But the world turns from such scenes with loathing. If he wants subjects for his painters let him look at that long line of terror-stricken and woe-begone refugees who fly from his presence and that of his soldiery as from a pestilence. Let them be painted in all their anguish. And one could wish no more terrible punishment for the Kaiser than that they should haunt his soul forever, or till remorse has purged his soul.—Public Opinion.

RESCUED FOUR COMRADES

Self-sacrificing Action of Infantryman Won Him Victoria Cross

A vivid story of the battle of the Aisne, and of the gallant deeds which led to his being recommended for the Victoria Cross, was told to a press representative by Private J. Warwick, of the 2nd Durham Light Infantry, in the Manchester Military Hospital. When it came to the point of giving details of his bravery Private Warwick was very reticent. "I do not wish to speak of myself," he said. Gradually, however, he was led to unfold the following graphic story:

"The Germans were entrenched not eighty yards away on the other side of a hill, their trenches being far more formidable than ours. We had not very long to wait before shells and bullets began to fly about us in all directions. Our men tried to rush up the hill, but first one and then the other fell under the hail of fire.

"The Germans were at least twelve to one, but our men held their own, fighting as I have never seen men fight before. We had a great leader in Major Robb. He led the men splendidly. Lieutenant Twist, one of our number, tried to advance with a company up the hill, but he was quickly shot down. I saw him shot, and although the shrapnel was flying and bullets were coming like rain, I made a dash and brought him back to the trenches.

"Then I saw Private Howson, a Darlington chap, fall, and I succeeded in bringing him from the firing line. The poor chap was shot through the neck and the shoulders, though I believe he is still living. I then went back and succeeded in bringing Private Maughan. My last journey was the most difficult of all. I had to travel over the crest of the hill to within thirty yards of the German trenches, and how I escaped being killed I really do not know. I crawled on my stomach and got along as best I could, and I am glad to say that I succeeded in bringing Major Robb back right, as it were, from the very noses of the Germans. It was a hard job to get him, and in my effort I was shot through the back and fell."

GERMAN TREACHERY

Feign Surrender and Then Resort to Murderous Tactics

Corporal W. Hastings, of the Guards, in a letter which he sent home, told a friend at Wrotham of the treachery of the Germans.

"It's an insult to Zulus to compare these square-heads to them for treachery," he wrote. "Some of them fight fair and square, but there are thousands of others who are devoid of all human feeling. What do you think of this? Near the banks of the River Aisne they had attacked and been driven back, and they came again and again, but they were brought down by rifles and machine-guns. A small detachment of the Northamptons were in a trench when 400 or 500 of the Germans held up their hands. The 'Cobblers' were ordered not to fire, and an officer asked in French and English if they surrendered. They came on in skulking manner, and some threw down their rifles. In every way they showed they were giving themselves up as prisoners.

"The 'Cobblers' were priding themselves on the capture; but when the Germans were three or four yards away they poured a murderous fire at the poor fellows. They had not a dog's chance, and nearly all were knocked over. The devils then tried to get back, and ran for their lives, but our battalion was soon after them. Before they got many yards a machine-gun ripped them up, and scores of them rolled over. Some got away, but our battalion got them in the rear. Our lads were simply furious at such treachery."

Cinching a Recruit

An enthusiastic Englishwoman, who took the role of an amateur recruiting sergeant, told in a London paper how she managed to enlist a loafer (so she called him) at a cost to her of 5 shillings and a penny. First of all, the man could not get the certificates of his marriage and the births of his children, without which his wife could not get the separation allowance while he was away. So she went herself and got the certificate, price 2 shillings 2 pence. "His next excuse," she said, "was that he could not go to the barracks without a shirt and socks. Bought these for him—price 2 shillings 6 pence. Then he said he could not go unshaven and unshorn. Fearing that if I advanced the money it would go for beer, I took him to the barber shop and paid for him to be trimmed. Then he said he could not go without a bath. He had not been able to afford one for weeks. I trotted him off to the public baths, paid 3 pence for him to have a really good hot and soapy scrub. The improvement was marvelous. Finally I marched him up to the barracks gates—it was sundown by this time—and left it to Kitchener to do the rest!"

PATRIOTIC LIFE OF COUNT OKUMA

Modern Japan Owes Much to Splendid Statesmanship of Man Who Studied Needs of Country

Among the statesmen of the great powers now occupied with the heavy responsibilities connected with war there is none whose personal history is more romantic or whose ability more remarkable than the Prime Minister of Japan, Count Okuma.

Okuma, now 77 years of age, was born of a ruling caste, trained to war for 700 years, to participate in the aristocratic privilege of defending the country. He was brought up to enjoy the immunities of feudalism. His family was steeped in the ideas of national seclusion, by war if necessary, in blind hatred of all foreigners, and fanatical condemnation of their religion. Okuma threw overboard the aristocratic principles of his childhood training, his benefits of class, his instinctive distrust of the alien—everything but patriotism. As soon as he was old enough to be admitted into the Government he accepted a minor office. He had a sacred mission to perform, and took his training for it. He was inspired by the homely Japanese proverb: "The timid rat will find courage to bite the cat before submitting to death." His sacred mission was to rescue Japan from the death sentence of the foreigner.

He saw the effect upon his country of the enterprising and insolent Westerner, locating his legations in the ancient temples if he took the fancy, scoffing at the venerable religion as "heathenism," ignoring the ceremonious etiquette which was the symbol of centuries of ideals, and preparing to appropriate whatever wealth the country possessed to milk it dry. He saw the fire of native resentment break into flame with attacks upon the foreigner for which the people had to pay exorbitantly $3,000,000 tribute to England, France, America and Holland in 1864; $500,000 in addition for the life of one British trader.

That Japan was saved to herself, that the powers her Emperor unwittingly signed away to the foreigner were regained through a revision of the rights and privileges enumerated above the signature on those first scraps of paper that the people of Japan have learned to defend the sovereignty they so nearly lost, and change their position among the nations from one of condescending toleration to one of admiration and commanding respect is due to a small band of high-minded patriots of whom Okuma takes a pre-eminent place.

He helped to eliminate feudalism; he used his rare gifts of eloquence to persuade the aristocracy to give up its privilege of alone defending their land, to admit the commoner and the peasant into the army.

Of giant physique and strong, athletic build, Okuma is quite unlike the typical Japanese.

BRITAIN USES CORDITE

This Explosive Has Given Great Satisfaction For Twenty Years

Cordite is the explosive most generally used by the British army for both big gun and rifle ammunition. The cordite now used is known as "Cordite Md.," that is, cordite modified, and it is superior to the older qualities. Its name is due to the fact that it looks like stout string or cord; it is made of gun-cotton, nitro-glycerine, and vaseline, which materials after thorough mixing are forced through small holes in a steel plate while in a pasty condition. The cord-like substance thus obtained may be twisted in ropes or cut into sections, according to the size of weapon in which it is to be used. Its color is brown, and the pattern used for heavy guns looks like nothing so much as old and much-used rope. It does not explode when set on fire, provided it is not in a confined space, and it does not readily detonate when it is struck with a hammer. Bullets can be fired through it without any unpleasant effect. It does not deteriorate when exposed under water. It has been employed for more than twenty years in the British services, and in that period there has never been a magazine explosion, such as destroyed the French battleship Jena. When fired in a big gun Cordite Md. gives an intensely orange or scarlet flash and a dense cloud of smoke, which, however, instantly disperses.

Modesty of Heir to Throne

There is an amusing story going the rounds of an incident which occurred at a London West-end military tailor's establishment. A number of army officers were waiting to try on their khaki uniforms, when a slight youth walked in and somewhat timidly asked one of the assistants if he could be attended to. He was curtly told that he would have to wait his turn, while one of the waiting officers inquired, in a loud voice, "Who made that boy an officer?" Meanwhile the youth had turned to another assistant and was heard to ask: "Do you know who has the Prince of Wale's cap in hand?" And amid the confusion that followed the Prince of Wales—for it was no other—quietly proceeded to the fitting room.

The Spurned Appeal

On Sept. 8 the "Frankfurter Zeitung" appealed to the Kaiser to spare the holy places of France. It said: "Let us respect the French Cathedrals, that of Rheims in particular, which is one of the finest in the world. Since the middle ages it has been especially dear to the Germans, as Bomberg drew from it inspiration for many of his figures. We regard these grand churches with veneration. We shall respect them as our forefathers did in 1870."

There are said to be only two females left in Heligoland; both are hospital nurses.

Bordeaux was the birthplace of Richard II.

Another effect of Turkey's entrance into the war is that Great Britain has taken a very useful coaling station near the entrance to the Persian gulf.

THE SIX O'CLOCK MAN

The Farmer's Hired Man Should Think of Employer's Interest

Did you ever notice that the man who sits on the fence for ten minutes waiting for the hands of his watch to get around to seven o'clock before he starts the day's work on the farm, and the man who would unhitch his horses at the far end of the field when the bell or whistle announced the hour of six p.m., are usually the poorest men in the field between the hours of seven and twelve and one and six? No man who is taking the interest he should in his farmer employer's work is so particular to a few minutes morning or evening. Do not think for one moment we are advocating long days. Not at all. As a general practice they are a detriment to progress. No one can blame men for not wanting to work from daylight until dark. Just be reasonable. Quit at six as a general rule, but do not object to an hour or two later if conditions demand it.—Farmers' Advocate.

The Largest Apple

The largest and heaviest apple ever grown in the world, says an English paper, was raised last summer in England. It was a Gloria Mundi, and was produced by the same grower who a few seasons ago raised the famous giant apple of the same variety, which measured 26 inches in circumference and weighed 27 ounces. Sent for sale in Covent Garden on October 19, 1909, it realized the astonishing price of $70 by public auction, breaking all previous records. The new record-breaker weighed no less than 32½ ounces. This wonderful apple was grown in an 11-inch flower pot, the tree producing six mammoth fruits at the same time. It was this very tree which bore the giant of 1909.

Wellington Campaign Plans

The map found on a captured Uhlan, marked with the prearranged marches of the German troops reminds one that Wellington distrusted fixed plans of campaign. Asked on one occasion how he managed to capture Napoleon's marshals one after the other, he replied: "They planned their campaigns just as you might make a splendid set of harness. It looks very well, it answers very well, until it gets broken and then you're done for. Now, I made my campaign of ropes. If anything went wrong, I tied a knot and went on."

THE CHINESE VIEW OF CHRISTIANITY

Pupils Eager to Avail Themselves of Educational Advantages—Change of Faith Said to be Doubtful

To counteract to some extent the attitude of bigotry and prejudice exhibited in the West against everything Chinese, a new Review has been founded in London. It is the "Chinese Review," which is edited by two Chinamen.

Writing of the Chinaman and Christianity, J. Wong Quincey, one of the publishers, says:

There probably has never been any antagonism in China against Christianity itself. Missionaries have occasionally suffered, not for their religion, but rather from a misunderstanding of their real purpose and mission, and from acts of indiscretion committed by the missionaries themselves. Although there is no indigenous faith in China that could offer any opposition to the Christian appeal, the Chinese temperament and outlook upon life constitute a serious obstacle to the vital and rapid spread of Christianity.

It can serve no honest purpose to minimize the excellent work achieved by missionary endeavor. The result so far obtained can call forth nothing but admiration. Statistics of church membership, however, are obviously misleading in that they do not offer any guide as to the inward intensity of belief in the case of professed converts. There is no question of sincerity; but it is open to doubt whether the Chinese nature lends itself easily to that mystical abandon and absolute resignation to the supernatural which is the "sine qua non" of a living faith in Christ.

The average Chinese is too wide awake, too tantalizingly calm and self-controlled, too easily satisfied with small mercies, and with the pursuit of the concrete good to be emotionally led away from the steady paths of "terra firma" to soar with uncertain wings.

Of Chinese admiration for the moral tenets and practice of Christianity there is no lack; but it is only a tribute to "what is excellent and lovely, to what is good." To the Chinese mind the supernatural appeal is not so much unconvincing as unnecessary; and the restless attitude of spirit involved in the Christian injunction to "watch and pray" is somewhat irksome and foreign to the easy-going Chinese temperament. All this being granted, the Chinese are exceptionally alert to anything which is calculated to help in the building up of sound character.

Parents and guardians who cannot be suspected of personal leaning towards Christianity are most anxious to send their young charges to educational institutions which are avowedly and aggressively Christian. This openness of the Chinese mind has profoundly influenced the policy of Christian missions during the last few decades. Incalculable good has been, and is being done, by these institutions in the matter of spreading among the educated ranks of China Western ideals which have have been inspired directly or otherwise by the Christian religion. It is questionable, however, whether these efforts have been successful in making many real and permanent converts to Christianity.

POULTRY KILLING KNIFE

Best Instrument For the Purpose Made From Old File

For killing poultry a special knife may be made, according to the following directions by a Government expert.

The knives in common use in bleeding and braining poultry are not suited to their purpose. The blades are too broad and too long, and the curve at the point should be on the back instead of on the cutting edge. The handle is so large that the killer is encouraged to use too much force in making the cut to bleed, whereas a light touch of the sharp knife, properly directed, is all that is needed to cut the blood vessels. The knives are also insanitary in that dirt collects at the junction of the blade and handle.

The knife which is to be used to bleed and brain poultry should be small, with a narrow blade; stiff, so that it does not bend; of the best steel, so that it can be kept sharp and is not nicked when used in braining; and the handle and blade should be in one piece. Such a knife, with the aid of the emery wheel or grindstone and oilstone, can be made from an 8-inch flat file.

To make this knife the handle of the file should first be ground off. Then the blade should be shaped from the small end of the file. It should be 2 inches long, one-fourth inch wide, and one-eighth inch thick at the back. The curve to make the point should slope from the back downward. A blade of this shape reaches the blood vessels to be cut more surely than does a blade on which the point curves upward. After the blade is made the ridges on the file should be ground down, leaving just enough roughness to prevent the knife slipping in the hand of the killer. The length of the knife, over all, should be 7 inches.

Origin of Old Expression

When William Rufus, second of the Norman kings, ruled in England he made a law that gave freedom to a man condemned to die, providing the convict proved he could read.

The first verse of the 51st Psalm in Latin was the test. If it was read correctly the magistrate announced that the condemned man "read like a clerk," and he was liberated. He was given the benefit of learning, or the benefit of clergy, which in that day meant learning.

RETAIL MERCHANTS AND "MADE-IN-CANADA" POLICY

Patriotism and Self-interest Prompts Sale of Home Made Articles—Reduce Unemployment and Charity

Practical action by the Quebec branch of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada was taken at a meeting held in Montreal immediately after the outbreak of the war. The following letter from the Quebec Secretary of the Association, Mr. J. A. Beaudry, offers good advice to the retailer and his customer alike. Every Canadian housewife should bear in mind this timely statement when she goes into the corner store to make her next purchase:

For years past, millions of dollars worth of goods have been imported into Canada from the countries involved in the war. These importations have now practically stopped, and may not be resumed for a very considerable period. The consequence is that the price of all imported goods has very materially increased, and will continue to increase in proportion to the excess of the demand upon the supply, and we shall not be surprised to see the supply completely exhausted within a very short time. This fact is creating some concern in the minds of the public, who seem to believe that the merchant is responsible for such an increase.

We think it would be advisable for you to point out to your customers that in their purchases they should give preference to goods made in Canada, which would avoid paying such high prices, and would help to keep the Canadian factories busy, thereby giving employment to Canadians who, at this particular time, are so much in need of earning as much as possible.

To encourage home industries is a good policy at all times, but should be acted upon at this trying period for self-preservation, and we strongly suggest that you co-operate with your customers in this matter, thereby doing your share in educating the public to this end, and by so doing, greatly oblige.

Yours truly,
The Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, Inc.
J. A. Beaudry,
Secretary for the Province of Quebec

Every dollar the Canadian householder spends for Canadian goods will lessen the demands from the unemployed for relief during the next few months.

"MADE-IN-WINNIPEG"

Simple Maxims Which Every Western Community Can Adopt For Its Use

During the "Made-in-Winnipeg" week, organized by the enterprising Industrial Commissioner of the Western metropolis in May last, many "slogans" were used with good results by the keen business men of Winnipeg, whose co-operation made the exhibition such a huge success.

The following are a few mottoes which can be adopted with slight change for use in every Western community:

It isn't always the sky-scraper that makes the city. A factory with a big pay-roll will do twice as much.

Become impressed with the real, true downright duty you owe your city in patronizing home industry. After all is said and done, the full dinner-pail is the prosperity sign of a live city.

Winnipeg believes self-preservation to be the first law of nature, and therefore welcomes the "Made in Winnipeg" Week, advocating home industries, the first law of a city's solid development.

Winnipeg believes that no city can continue growth upon sound foundation without industry. It is the city of manufacturing that forges ahead.

Winnipeg knows that the way to build up a local industry is to buy of its wares. It is a duty citizens owe to the community. Buy the product of home labor, home capital and home industry.

Winnipeg realizes that there are eighteen thousand people employed in manufacturing goods right here in the city, and that if we can double the number and have the money that these people earn spent right here, it goes to help the prosperity of all.

Winnipeg knows that the purchase of every $1,000 of goods, "Made in Winnipeg" instead of purchasing outside, means the addition of one person to the city instead of supporting him elsewhere.

"Anything that is produced in Canada from Canadian materials, by the application of Canadian brain and labor, will always have first call with me. And it's only good business on our part that it should."

"Business as usual" is a great motto, but hard to live up to if everyone is filled with fear. Each should do his part to keep up trade.

QUESTION OF WORK AND "MADE-IN-CANADA"

Economic Situation of Grave Concern to Canadians—Co-operation From all Sides to Give Work

The war has had a sudden and pronounced effect on the "Made-in-Canada" movement which has been carried on in Canada during the past few years. Hitherto the educational campaign, to promote the sale of "Made-in-Canada" goods, has been viewed pretty much as the concern of Canadian manufacturers, and has, for this reason, been denied the sympathy and support of a section of the people. The war has changed all this, and to-day the "Made-in-Canada" policy is no longer looked upon as a matter of sentiment and patriotism, but is regarded as an economic necessity. The manufacturers and other large employers of labor are being appealed to by press, pulpit and public men generally to provide the maximum of employment with a view to relieving the distress caused by the closing of many factories as a result of the war. Obviously Canadian factories cannot be operated unless there is a demand for their products. Hence the appeal on every hand to Canadians to patronize the goods made by their fellow-citizens in Canadian factories. It is admitted on all sides that there will be considerable unemployment, and consequent suffering during the next few months in Canada, but if every Canadian would, as far as possible, patronize home industries, orders would come in to many Canadian factories that have hitherto been placed abroad, and instead of a slackening in factory activity the wheels of industry might be operated with accelerated speed during this period of trial.

Manufacturers and other large employers of labor have agreed among themselves to maintain their working staffs as fully as possible even if they operate at cost or in some cases below cost. In so doing they are not actuated by any desire for profits, welcome as these would be, but solely with a view of relieving the distress which unemployment always brings. They feel that it is far better to furnish a livelihood for Canadians through honest work and honest wages than to dole out a pittance through charitable institutions. "Made-in-Canada" is, therefore, more than ever a practical business policy to-day. Every Canadian housewife, in fact every purchaser of goods in Canada should practice it and encourage others to do likewise. About fifty cents of every dollar spent on the product of a factory goes to the workingman. All interests are, therefore, combining in Canada during the next few months to increase employment by distributing as much as possible in the form of wages to the Canadian workmen in the Canadian factory. The campaign of the Canadian Press Association in this direction is most commendable, and will do much to restore confidence in the business and industrial community.

Points of Merit

"There's one thing I will say for my first two husbands."

"What's that?"

"They always paid their alimony promptly."

THE OUTLOOK IN CANADA

Handicap For Some Industries—Increased Activity For Others

Truly, it is an ill-wind that blows nobody good. One Continent's "down" is another Continent's "up." The industries of Europe are, generally speaking, at a standstill, and matters will be worse before they can be better.

The whole world is looking to the North American Continent—to Canada and the United States—for much of its provisions, machinery, textiles, boots and shoes, beverages, vehicles, cement, brick, earthenware, fancy goods, furs, glass, garments, paper, soap, tobacco, wood products, and much else. Canada must get ready to meet the demand made upon her. We have continued prosperity ahead of us if our manufacturers and merchants rise quickly to take advantage of their opportunity.

Encouraging Manufacturers

Last week was "Made in Winnipeg" week in the Manitoba capital, and manufacturers, retailers and citizens generally co-operated to bring the products of local industries before the public and, to urge Winnipeg people to help build up a bigger and better city, by using goods made in local factories. The object is a most worthy and commendable one, and the response which has been made by the citizens shows that western cities, as well as the older cities of the East, are developing a civic pride and a local patriotism that will be for the good of the community."—From "Grain Growers' Guide," May 27, 1914.

PRIZE RING TRICKS

A Peep at the Subtle Side of Some Famous Fights

There are more tricks of the trade in prize fighting than are actually seen by the onlookers, and a clever and active brain quick to appreciate a point of strategy and simultaneously to act upon it has often proved more valuable than the possession of a ready fist.

Perhaps the craftiest boxer that ever lived was "Kid" M'Coy. He reduced trickery to a science. One of his little games used to consist of strolling amiably round the ring, talking pleasantly to his friends and all the time wiping his feet on the rosin heap scattered about the canvas floor and collecting it until he had a good deal more than his share in his own particular corner. Then when his seconds crowded round him to fix on the gloves one of the "mittens" was certain to fall on a little heap of rosin, and a glove with a coating of this substance can be made to cut the skin like a whip-lash.

The trickeries of M'Coy's art were numberless. He it was who hit upon the ingenious idea of putting a heavy layer of bicycle tape upon his hands, so that his knuckles were protected with iron-like bands; but this became too obvious, and pugilists are now much more careful about the hand bandages of their opponents than they used to be.

M'Coy coached O'Brien when he boxed Fitzsimmons in San Francisco. "Bob" by that time was almost a spent force. "Tread on the old man's feet; they're bad," was the advice given by "Kid," and O'Brien, acting upon it, won the fight.

Barry requisitioned the services of "Kid" as coach in his fight with M'Vea in Paris. First of all Barry was admonished to "grind the negro's toes," which he did with the utmost good will, but for all the effect it had he might as well have tried to grind his opponent's hard head.

M'Coy was quick to appreciate this. He could see that unless Barry adopted some other trick he was going to be a beaten man. So "Kid" told him that he would not be disqualified for one foul blow low down and as soon as this was delivered to rush in and drive home another of the same. Barry acted on instructions; the referee ignored the foul, the men clinched, and Barry got in another. M'Vea was dazed, and Barry had only to deal an ordinary blow for the knockout when he started butting with his head and was disqualified!

DOOIN'S POOR START

Made Four Errors in His First Game in Fast Company

Charles S. Dooin, veteran of 1,000 major league contests, was advised by Charles A. Comiskey to stick to the tailoring business after a brief trial in 1889 with the St. Paul Club, of which Comiskey was owner at that time.

Comiskey does not recall the incident, but Dooin tells the story on himself.

Although he had been a member of five teams, Dooin had not participated in a dozen professional games when he became a regular with the St. Joseph Club of the Western League in 1901.

When Charley, then a stripling weighing in the neighborhood of 115 pounds, tremblingly entered the office of the St. Joseph Club to report for spring practice, he found a jovial-looking man sitting at a desk reading a newspaper. Enquiry revealed it was McKibben, his manager. Dooin stood there uneasily, twirling his hat and waiting for the manager to say something. Finally, the great man broke the silence by asking, "What can I do for you, sonny?"

"I'm Dooin, your new player," stammered the youth.

McKibben slowly laid down his paper in surprise, got up from his chair, walked around the recruit once or twice while surveying him from head to foot, then calmly remarked: "Why, my boy, I want a catcher, not a jockey."

Injuries to the regulars, however, gave Dooin his chance, and he was put in to catch "Big Jam" Wiggs.

Dooin was not only a catcher in his first game, but thrower as well. He threw to first and the ball nearly took off the baseman's foot. He threw to second and the baseman there would have needed a stepladder. He threw low to third, and then, with the game in a critical stage and the bases full, he threw to third again to catch a runner off. The left fielder running over to pick up the play, nearly caught the throw on the fly. It emptied the populated sacks.

When the weird session was over and Dooin was charged in the score with four rosy errors, he walked to the club house and began to pack up his things.

McKibben came along, and said: "What are you doing?"

"Gettin' ready to quit before I'm fired."

"Just unpack those duds," said the manager. "Your nerve deserves something, hanging probably, but you get another trial."

Dooin stuck, and caught almost every game that season. In the fall he was sought by several major league clubs.

The Footballer's Boots

The all-important part of the footballer's kit is his boots. These, when new, should be quite tight, even to the point of pinching.

Indeed, the professional footballer, when trying on a new pair of boots, does so in bare feet, and he will not have the boots unless they fit closely, although, of course, he "breaks them in" before actually playing in them. The wise player has two pairs of boots, one with long studs for wet, heavy grounds, the other with short studs when the pitch is hard and dry. —"Answers."

When in doubt don't hurry for in that case you might have all the farther to retrace your steps.

His Method

Mrs. Brown stood in the doorway of her suburban home and eyed the tramp critically.

"Are you willing to work for a meal?" she asked at last.

The tramp extended his hands expansively as though work was the one thing in life he hankered after; and his apparent sincerity overcame Mrs. Brown's last scruple.

She retired into the house and presently returned carrying a large plate of food and a businesslike-looking hoe.

When the tramp had eaten the food she handed him the hoe, and, pointing towards the garden path, remarked:

"Now, I want you to clean out that gutter. You see it's filled with mud."

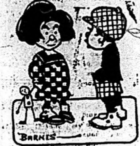
The tramp glanced at the gutter, then at the hoe.

"I never use a hoe," he said, "when cleaning out a gutter."

"Never use a hoe! Then, what do you use? A shovel?

"No," said the tramp, as he moved towards the gate. "My method is to pray for rain!"

Naturally



"Do yer know why false eyes are always made of glass, Willie?"

"Sure! How else could a fellow see through them?"

One Good Effect

He was a lover of music who had just been to hear one of the great operas, and he was expatiating upon its beauties to an unresponsive friend, whom he observed to yawn. The music-lover was hurt.

"Look here, John," he protested, don't you think music is of some practical benefit in life?"

"Oh, yes," said the unresponsive one. "Why, judging from the portraits I have seen of eminent musicians, especially pianists, I should say that music is great to keep the hair from falling out."

Money no Object

"Yes, sir," said a pompous ignoramus. "I believe in education, sir—the best education that money can buy. My father spared no expense on my schooling, and I shall spare none on my children's."

"Then I suppose you will give them all an academic education?" remarked his friend.

"Yes, sir," was the reply; "of course I will. That's the kind of education I got, and if it takes every shilling of my fortune my boys and girls shall all be macadamized as their father was."

Slight Disappearance

A man purchased some red flannel shirts guaranteed not to shrink. He reminded the salesman forcibly of the guarantee some weeks later.

"Have you had any difficulty with them?" the latter asked.

"No," replied the customer; "only the other morning, when I was dressing, my wife said to me, 'John, where did you get that pink coral necklace?'"

Not Much

"My good man," said the clergyman to a bareheaded man breaking stone on a very hot day, "don't you know that the sun will injure your brain if you expose it in that manner?"

"Don't worry!" came the unruffled answer. "D'you think I'd stick at this rotten job if I'd any brain?"

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG FILLED MANY POSTS

Had a Brilliant Career at Military College and Made Cavalry Tactics a Special Study

Cameron Brig in the Kingdom of Fife has been well acquainted with the Haigs for many generations, and it was there that Sir Douglas, Commander of the First Army Corps in the British Expeditionary Force, was born in 1861. In due time he went to Clifton and from there to Brasenose College, Oxford, but the army was his love. He entered the Royal Military College, and very early in his career gave promise of what was to come, for he passed first out of Sandhurst, gaining the highly-prized Anson Memorial Sword.

In 1885 Haig was gazetted to the 7th Hussars, and four years later was lucky enough to get on the Soudan Expedition, where he was present at Atbara and Khartoum. In that campaign he was mentioned in despatches, as well as getting the Egyptian Medal.

Sir Douglas is believed to be a very scientific soldier, and has written a book called "Cavalry Tactics." His authorship gained for him the name of "Von Haig." He duly passed the qualifying examination for entrance to the Staff College and then had to go before a medical board for fitness. The board announced he was color blind and although he got specialists both in England and France to prove that he was not color blind, the board was obdurate. It seemed certain that he would never be able to write "P.S.C." after his name, when the late Duke of Cambridge, hearing of the matter, gave him the Commander-in-Chief's nomination, which exempted the recipient from all examinations. The situation was saved. Haig went to the College and passed out brilliantly.

On the outbreak of the South African War, Captain Haig was appointed staff officer to Sir John French, and was at Elandslaagte, Colesburg, the relief of Kimberley, Paardeberg, and after the cavalry division was broken up, had command of all the different columns in Cape Colony. The work was tremendous; but apparently it agreed with him, for the harder he worked and the less he slept the fitter he seemed to keep.

After the war he went to India as inspector-general of cavalry. There was much grumbling over the appointment. The India cavalry thought he was much too young, and that he knew too little about India. They shortly acknowledged they were wrong. Though he succeeded that brilliant cavalry soldier, Sir Edward Locke-Elliott, Haig was a great success and only returned home in order to become the director of military training at the army headquarters.

SIR DOUGLAS HAIG

Five years ago he became chief of the staff in India, and on General Smith-Dorrien going to the southern command General Haig succeeded him at Aldershot. Smith-Dorrien had done much for Aldershot. Haig did more, and it is certain that the troops there were never so efficient as under this young and brilliant soldier. But he made sad the hearts of many by publishing a very strong order on the subject of cigarette smoking.

THE COST IN HUMAN LIVES

More Men Killed in Modern Warfare But Percentage Much Decreased

The toll—counted in human lives—of the great struggle against German militarism is going to be terribly heavy. Modern warfare is conducted by such greatly increased numbers that the casualty lists must necessarily be far higher than in bygone days, but it is some consolation to know that the percentage of combatants who fall has decreased considerably as compared with the battles which were fought under more primitive conditions.

Although the loss of over 2,000 killed and wounded sustained by the British Expeditionary Force in its first engagement with the Germans was the largest in a single battle since November 5th, 1854, when 2,357 British soldiers fell at Inkerman, it represented merely a percentage of between two and three per cent., for it is certain that close upon 100,000 British soldiers took part in the fighting. But at Inkerman the British losses were 31 per cent., as only 7,300 men were engaged.

The highest British casualties in any one day's fighting in the South African War were at Paardeberg, where 1,262 men were lost out of 15,000—a loss of 8 per cent. On the the other hand, at Waterloo the actual British losses were 6,932, or 25 per cent.

General Joffre is well known as a distinguished mathematician.

When some men fail to make a hit they try to fix the responsibility on the hammer.

VILLAGE OF MARMORA STRIKES PATRIOTIC NOTE

Rousing Gathering in Town Hall Last Evening—Departing Volunteers Substantially Remembered—Belleville Orators and Songsters Participate—Wrist Watches and Money Presented

That the residents of the village of Marmora are enthusiastically patriotic was evidenced last evening when the spacious new town hall was filled to the doors with men, women and children. The object of the gathering was two-fold in its character, namely, as a patriotic rally and to bid good-bye to and honor fourteen young men and one married man who have enlisted as members of the 49th Hastings Regiment for the second overseas contingent. It was in every respect a great gathering and one that will be impressed upon the hearts of all who were present for some time to come. The hall was most tastefully decorated for the occasion with flags, bunting and flowers. The addresses and songs rendered were most patriotic. Col. Ponton and Mr. J. Elliott of this city were the principal speakers and their addresses were listened to with rapt attention and frequently punctuated by applause. Mr. John McIntosh of this city delighted the audience with songs.

Mr. W. H. Hubbell, Reeve of the village and Warden of the County, occupied the chair tnd filled that position in a most acceptable manner. Associated with him on the platform were the speakers of the evening, a number of the prominent residents of the village and the noble band who have volunteered their services in defence of the Empire.

The chairman in a few well chosen remarks outlined the object of the meeting, namely, to do honor to those who had volunteered to go to the front to fight the battles of the Empire and our battles. It was by no means a picnic they were going on. At the present time all political and religous feelings were forgotten. The speaker referred in a complimentary manner of those who had come from the city of Belleville to assist in the evening's entertainment.

Mr. McIntosh, being called upon, sang "The March of the Cameron Men," in a manner that captivated the audience.

Mr. Geo. McQueen, being called upon, spoke briefly and to the point, complimenting those who had volunteered to go to the front. Marmora, he said, was proud of these young men, and they would be proud to be associated with the allies. The speaker referred to Belgium and the sufferings the inhabitants of that country were undergoing. Too much praise could not be given to the soldiers of that country, for what they had done. He also referred to the British navy and what it had accomplished in protecting commerce. In concluding, Mr. McQueen said the allies were bound to win, as the Lord of hosts was upon their side.

The next item was interesting. A dog hitched to a cart was shown and was surrounded by seven girls and boys representing Belgium children. They were: Marguerite Pearce, Marguerite Lynch, Madeline Bertram, Crawford O'Connor, Willie Sweet and Forest Dennis. After they had performed their part, little Miss Pearce presented to each of the volunteers a white flower.

The song "O, Canada," was then rendered by Mr. McIntosh, and Mr. Frank Pearce sang "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," all present joining in the chorus.

Mr. John Elliott, being called upon,

"NOTORIOUS LIAR" SAYS UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR

Warm Words on American Journalist for Pro-German View—Munsterberg Shown up by One Who Knows Him—Prof. Humes Lecture

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—(Special.)—German-American defenders of the Teutonic phase of the European war, and at least one prominent American journalist, now in Europe, were mercilessly criticized last night by Prof. J. G. Hume, Ph.D., head of the Department of Philosophy and Psychology at the University of Toronto, at College Street Presbyterian Church, when he delivered an address on "The War, Its Causes, and the Defence by the German Professors."

"Instead of the usual calm, dispassionate, professorial survey of an issue, Professor Hume delivered himself of a speech full of passion and almost fiery zeal. So intense were his feelings when referring to the "truculency of Germany and its chief defender in America"—Professor Munsterbery of Harvard University—that he seemed to be consumed with passion, and at times the audience hardly knew whether applause was opportune or not. More significance is added to the remarks of Dr. Hume when it is known that he holds a German degree, and studied under Munsterberg in Germany.

German Defence Destroyed.

Hastily tracing the early history of the war, Dr. Hume pointed out that it is a good sign for the future that none of the belligerents want to claim responsibility for commencing the hostilities. He eulogized Sir Edward Grey for endeavoring to maintain peace, and severely criticized the German theologians, etc., including Harnac, Eucken and Wundt, for seeking to defend Germany by issuing a documentary defence, in which no reference was made to the invasion of Belgium. "That was a tremendous omission," he declared. "It destroyed the defence."

"Following the issuance of this document comes the statement of a much less respectable group," declared the speaker. "Professor Munsterberg is very versatile, and is aways breaking out in new places in the American press. He is soliciting American support for Germany, by endeavoring to embroil her in a way with the Orient by dragging in a yellow peril, which is nothing but a nightmare."

"A Notorious Liar."

"Other audacious falsehoods have also been permitted to be published in America, and the evasion of the real truth by Mr. Samuel Blythe of The Saturday Evening Post is none the less important. He has only told half the truth, and by so doing he tells the blackest of lies. This man is a notorious liar when he says that there was a cast-iron agreement between France and Britain to keep Germany out of Belgium, and omits to state that Great Britain had signed a similar pact with Germany. If he was totally ignorant of the situation he could be forgiven. If he is possessed of the real truth, then he is guilty of audacious falsehood.

"More Vile Slanders."

"Munsterberg and Blythe have charged that Great Britain is jealous of her commercial competitors. If everybody were aware of the facts, it could be passed over as rubbish and balderdash. Thinking people know that the commercial policy of Great Britain is dyametrically opposed to any such attitude. The principles of free trade are that her prosperity is her customers' prosperity. Instead of lying in wait to strangle her vival she has opened her markets to the world; and under these circumstances I am here to refute such vile slanders, and Munsterberg's actions in endavoring to ferment trouble in America and the Orient are both calamitous and wicked."

Just The German Way

Accepted Ransom but Yet Blew Up Historic Buildings

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Official Press Bureau tonight made public a communication dated November 8, received from Professor Bernard Pares, the British Government's representative with the Russian army, narrating the incidents of the Russian campaign.

He says that at Szidlewice (Siedloe, Russian Poland), the German commander threatened as the Russians approached to blow up the Florentine Town Hall and the 600-year-old Gothic Church, but that the inhabitants of the town offered to ransom them by a contribution of $25,000. This, according to Prof. Pares, was accepted, but twenty minutes later the Town Hall was blown up and the church soon followed it.

"The three weeks' fighting following the German repulse at Warsaw," says Prof. Pares, "was of the characteristic Russian style. The bayonet attacks were kept up for two hours. The small units eagerly attacked larger hostile ones.

"In general, the Russians outflanked the enemy, but in one case they broke through his centre.

"I am told on good authority that at Kalisz, Russian Poland, when a German soldier defaced a portrait of the Russian Emperor the Polish officials struck him in the face. The German for his act was bound to a telegraph pole for two days and then taken down and shot."

Prof Pares adds: "The theatre of the recent operations is of crucial importance. Here Austria and Germany join hands and serious reverses would compel them either to retreat on diverging lines or to expose one or the other of their capitals. Either event would have political consequences of the highest military significance.

CONCERTS TO REVIVE WAR-HIT APPETITES

LONDON, Nov. 11.—One of the biggest hotels in London plans to give frequent concerts in an effort to dispel the gloom of the war and improve the appetites of its patrons. An official of the hotel said today that whereas some carefree Americans were able to eat $9.25 dinners the English seldom spent more than $1.75. Especially among the women had the decline in appetite been noticeable he said. This he ascribed to worry and lack of exercise, the latter the result of remaining too much in their own rooms knitting for the soldiers. Another substantial element was a desire to be economical.

It was explained that the concerts would draw the women out of their rooms to a place where they could knit in a musical atmosphere. This in turn would invigorate the appetites of the women—"and when women eat it is a sure thing the men will not be outdone," the hotel man explained. Incidentally good music would dispel the prevailing depression.

SELLS SECOND MILLION

Provincial Treasurer Authorizes Further Bond Issue

TORONTO, Nov. 12.—Special—Hon. I. B. Lucas, Provincial Treasurere, is taking advantage of the favorable reception given to the issue of $1,000,000 five-year 5-per-cent. Treasury bills recently to place another block of like amount upon the market. The decline in Provincial revenue and the accumulation of capital expenditures during the fiscal year just closed, has made it necessary to keep a large amount of ready cash available. The accommodation afforded by the banks was of short duration, and for only a limited sum. Before leaving for vacation, Mr. Lucas consequently made arrangements to continue the sale of Treasury bills until another million dollars had been disposed of.

HORSES NOT ALLOWED TO CROSS NIAGARA RIVER

May go From Either Side to the Middle of Bridge and Transfer Loads

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 12.—Special—A rigid ban against horses crossing either the upper or lower steel arch bridge here or the Suspension Bridge at Lewiston is in effect today.

Hackmen on both sides of the river are arranging a co-operative plan of transporting their tourist fares to scenic points on both sides of the river. Inspector Watson has consented to allow horses drawing vehicles to proceed from the other side to the centre of the bridges, there to transfer their loads to vehicles from this side, but requires that a neutral zone of thirty feet in the centre of the bridge be maintained, separating the animals from the different shores.

GERMANS FEAR DENMARK

The Forces Have Been Feverishly Watching Frontier

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11.—There has been great nervousness recently among the German forces watching the Danish frontier. German guards have been reinforced considerably and any other language save German over telephones in frontier districts is prohibited. The presence of German spies in the Danish capital is common talk.

There is also an ever increasing number of German buyers of food and horses in Copenhagen. Some of these buyers tried to place large orders with a Scandinavian firm for iron wire. No firm, however, would accept the order and this despite the fact that it is not on the list of articles prohibited for export.

ARREST EX-MAYOR AS GERMAN SPY

WELLAND, Ont., Nov. 11.—By the detention of a man giving the name of James Driscoll by the police and military authorities at Welland on suspicion that he was a German spy, it was found that Welland was harboring unawares a former mayor of Geneva, N. Y.

He came to Welland some weeks ago and was staying at the Dexter House. Investigation today showed that his real name was Herendeen and that he was for four years mayor of Geneva.

At the present time he is being sued for divorce and his attorney advised him to seek some quiet place in Canada where the papers could not be served. He was released from custody last evening.

JAPANESE SQUADRON IN THE ATLANTIC?

MONTEVIDEO, Nov. 12.—(Special)—It is stated here that a Japanese squadron composed of three battleships and two cruisers is approaching this port, where it will coal and then go to the Pacific and pursue German vessels there.

A steamship just arrived reports that the German cruiser Karlsruhe is surrounded by hostile vessels between Cape Verde and Pernambuco.

The Karlsruhe is now convoying several captured vessels which she will have to abandon or sink.

Montevideo is the capital and principal seaport of Uruguay, on the east coast of South America, between Brazil and Argentina.

Tributes to Von Muller

London Press Admires Commander of the Emden

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Among the seventeen officers who served under Captain Karl von Muller, aboard the Emden, was Lieut. Prince Francis Joseph of Hohenzollern, who is the second son of the reigning prince, William of Hohenzollern, and 27 years of age.

The Daily Telegraph says it is almost in our heart to regret that the Emden has been captured and destroyed. We certainly hope that Commander Karl von Muller has not been killed, for, as the phrases goes, he has shown himself an officer and a gentleman. He has been enterprising, cool and daring in making war on our shipping, and has revealed a nice sense of humor.

He has, however, shown consideration to the crews of his prizes, so far as is known. He destroyed over seventy-four thousand tons of shipping without the loss of a single life. There is not a survivor who does not speak well of this young German and the officers under him, and the crew obedient to his orders. War on the sea will lose something of its piquancy of humor, and of interest now that the Emden has gone, but she had to go because she was expensive.

The Times says: "We rejoice that the cruiser Emden has been destroyed at last, but we salute Captain von Muller as a brave and chivalrous foe. We trust his life has been saved, for if he came to London he would receive a generous welcome. Our maritime race knows how to admire daring and resourceful seamen and there are few episodes of modern naval history more remarkable than the meteoric career of the little Emden."

The Morning Post says: "The conduct of Captain von Muller, who seems to have been brave without brutality, is something to set against the inhuman and beastly cruelties practised by the German army and especially by the officers on the civil population and North France."

FARM EMPLOYEE HANGS HIMSELF IN A TREE

Only Motive Suggested is Despondency Over His Wife's Illness

SIMCOE, Nov. 12.—Special—After being missed from the bedside of his sick wife since Tuesday morning, William Richards was this morning found dead swinging from the limb of a pine tree on the property of his employer, Sylvanus Culver.

After helping with the milking yesterday morning, during which operation he is said to have exhibited signs of extreme nervousness, he left the dairy house without being noticed. This morning, when Elgin Beck, while hunting, discovered the body, Coroner McIntosh was called but thought an inquest unnecessary.

No motive is given for the deed, except that the man appeared depressed at his wife's illness. He was twenty-six years old, and besides his sick wife leaves three children, the youngest of whom was born Sunday.

NO APPEAL TO CANADA

Lady Jellicoe Denies Authorizing Any

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Lady Jellicoe, when seen by a newspaper representative today, concerning any appeal to Canada for gifts of clothing for the men of the fleet, said no appeal was being made beyond the British Isles by her authority. She had received some parcels of clothing from Canada, and supposed they came from people who had read the appeal in the London papers or through appeals from individuals, but no newspaper or organization in Canada had been requested to ask the Canadian people for gifts. Money contributions would be more appreciated, as some of the parcels received contained clothing which could not be offered to any self-respecting man.

FULL EQUIPMENT READY FOR EIGHT BATTALIONS

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—Special—The Militia Department reports that full equipment is now ready for the eight infantry battalions now mobilizing for the second contingent. This includes rifles, ammunition and clothing of every description. The uniforms are now being distributed, and at some points rifles have already been issued to the men.

SOUTH AFRICAN FARMING STOPPED BY REBEL LEADER

Agricultural Pursuits by the Peaceful Inhabitants Suspended—Feeling is Strong Against De Wet and His Followers

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 12—Special—The chief object of the rebels appears to be the looting and damaging of private and State property. Would-be adherents of the rebels herald their entry into villages by commandeering horses, carts, rifles and ammunition, looting the stores, sjamboking the storekeepers and reluctant farmers, and bringing the ordinary business of the towns and the farming operations of the northern Orange Free State to a standstill.

General De Wet, by the vigorous use of the sjambok, has compelled many to join him.

The captured rebels to date are: Maritz commando, 631; Beyers' followers, 831. Total 1,462.

Although the country generally is exercising the greater possible forbearance, everything points toward an immediate demonstration in force against De Wet.

The Last Warning.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—It is officially announced at Pretoria that the rebels have been given until November 21 to surrender, according to a Reuter despatch from that city. All so surrendering will not be criminally prosecuted, but allowed to return to their homes, on condition that they taken no further part in the rebellion.

The leaders of the rebellion and those who have acted contrary to the rules of civilized warfare are excluded from the amnesty. Those refusing to surrender will be dealt with according to the rigor of the law.

FIGHTING CONTINUES WITH MUCH ENERGY

PARIS, Nov. 12.—An official announcement this afternoon says:

"On our left win gthe fighting still continues with violence and has been conducted with alternate advances and retirements without importance.

"Speaking broadly, the battle front has not varied since the 10th of November.

"In the Craonne region we silenced and destroyed several of the enemy's guns.

NISH, Servia, Nov. 12.—Six battalions of Austrian infantry with quick-firing guns which crossed the Danube near Szderevo under cover of artillery fire on November 9th have been annihilated by a Servian counter attack, according to official information given out in Nish to-day. "All the men not killed, wounded or drowned in the Danube, fell into our hands," the Servian announcement continued. "We made 2,000 prisoners and captured two quick-firing guns."

POPE TO TAKE A HAND FOR PEACE

The relief ship, Tell Us, chartered by the American commission for Belgian relief, landed twelve thousand tons of food in Rotterdam today. A Copenhagen despatch says the Pope will initiate proceedings for peace by issuing a pastoral letter. It is believed the Italian Government will oppose this. Premier Asquith stated in parliament today that the war will not last as long as first feared.

ADMIRAL ACQUITTED

WEYMOUTH, Nov. 12.—Admiral Troubridge, second in command of the Mediterranean fleet, was today acquitted by court martial of neglect in permitting the escape of the German cruisers Goeben and Breslau, at the beginning of the war. Admiral Milne, formerly in command of the Mediterranean fleet, was previously exculpated from similar charges.

TURKISH CRUISER GOEBEN INJURED

RED CROSS NURSE IN ROYAL GALLERY

An Unprecedented Event at the Opening of the House of Lords

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Special—The King's entry into the House of Lords was as brilliant as ever. There was no curtailment in the magnificence of the scene, as in the parade, which was materially toned down. The Royal gallery, which leads to the Lords' ante-room, was crowded, every space being taken. In one specially reserved corner were six wounded Belgian officers. One had an armless sleeve, another sat flat on the floor, his back against the wall, until the Royal procession came. Then he rose to his feet and interestedly watched the whole performance. They had a Red Cross nurse with them in uniform. The Royal Gallery certainly never saw a pretty British miss with a Red Cross insignia before.

BAYONET DUELS ON ROOFS

Fierce Fighting Between Arras and Lille Described

LONDON, Nov. 11.—A Daily Mail correspondent in Northern France, describing the battle on the land between Arras and Lille, says there has been bayonet duels on the roofs and in the cellars, and as the soldiers have been driven from one house they have retired to the next. After such a terrible succession of duels, it has often been found necessary by one side or the other to destroy the houses, especially those of coal miners, with shell and fire, which has buried the dead with bricks. This combination of action has absolutely prevented any full burial or adequate sanitation.

Much of the populace in the neighborhood north of Arras is quite unapproachable, and the terror of pestilence is added to the other horrors of the war. Sanitary reasons alone make a quick advance impossible, and in some districts the regimental doctors forbid what the officers may desire to do. The correspondent considers that in view of these facts the coming of strong west winds has done as great service to that portion of the Allied force as strong reinforcements.

GERMANS IN DIXMUDE

Allies Relinquish Position After Desperate Resistance.

Tremendous Offensive of Enemy Results In Gain, But Everywhere Else the German Assaults Have Failed and Allies Control the Territory — Kaiser Seeks to Reach Coast Before Going to East.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — After ten days of persistent and desperate battling, Dixmude has fallen into the hands of the Germans, the French still holding the western environs of the city and the approaches to the town on that side.

The railroad lines between Nieuport and Dunkirk centre in Dixmude, and Dunkirk is but a scant 25 miles away. This marks the first appreciable gains of the Kaiser's armies in the second drive to the French coast. It is one that cannot be over-estimated.

That the town fell only after a desperate resistance is indicated by all reports, but it was finally relinquished Tuesday evening.

British, French and Belgian forces participated in the fighting to save the point, but the allies were finally thrown back by sheer weight of men and metal. A tremendous artillery fire from hundreds of guns was concentrated on the town, and the German masses moved forward in a tidal wave that came steadily on despite all losses. Finally it swept over the outer earthworks, and the deluge of men drove back Dixmude's defenders.

It is cheering, however, to know that at Dixmude only has the last tremendous offensive of the invaders made an impression. Both east and west of that point the allied lines hold steadily, and the British have distinguished themselves, especially around Ypres—the storm centre of the German assault.

The line of the canal from Dixmude to Ypres, except for a few rods on either side of Dixmude, and all of the roads in this zone are controlled by the allied troops. French and Belgian troops have retaken Lombaertzyde. This place has changed hands a number of times in the past three weeks. Further progress has been made along the channel in the direction of Ostend. Every effort of the Germans to take Ypres has been frustrated by British forces.

It is the opinion of both French and British military authorities that the Kaiser is bent on a herculean effort to reach the channel coast, or, at least, establish himself in positions which are impregnable in the west before turning back numbers of troops to meet the oncoming Russians.

The country between Dixmude and Ypres, where the belligerents have been engaged in violent attacks and counter attacks for weeks past, and where the losses have been heavier even than those in the battle of the Yser, is again the scene of a battle which for fury has seldom, if ever, been equaled.

At other points along the battlefront in France, the French official communication claims such successes for the allies, but the German headquarters staff declares that all attacks have been repulsed.

It is considered quite certain that with the enormous forces required for the effort to get through to the coast and to protect their own country from Russian invasion the Germans will not be able to throw any additional troops into the lines which stretch through northern France and along the Franco-German border.

On the other hand, the French, whose army is growing daily, might attempt an offensive against Lorraine or Alsace as a diversion, which would relieve the pressure in the west.

COMPARES GERMANS WITH THE ALLIES

More Scientific, but Physically Inferior to the Belgians, French and English

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Henry Savage-Landor, the explorer, who has recently returned to London from an official mission in Belgium, which kept him in Antwerp or its environs from September 1st until after the bombardment of the city had begun, said today.

"In the course of my work I was several times within the German lines, and I have also been amongst many German prisoners. The physique of the German soldiers is very poor, and does not compare with the physique of the Belgians, French or English. It is still further below that of the Russians, who I consider the hardiest soldiers in Europe.

"I admire the way in which the Germans carry on military operations. I mean the scientific way in which they cut trenches; the wonderful accuracy of their artillery, and their astonishing methods of obtaining precise information.

"But my stay at the front in Belgium convinced me that the Belgians as a nation are the bravest people whom I have had the good fortune to know. The greatest is their King, at once the most heroic and most modest of European rulers. I am going to give lectures in aid of the Belgian relief work and then return to the front. I think the war will be a long struggle with the Germans gradually driven out of France and out of Belgium. Then while the war in the west is waged, on the Rhine the Russians will do the rest."

Village of Marmora Shows Patriotism

spoke as follows. He said it was with feelings of pride he appeared before a Marmora audience. Marmora had reason to be proud of the young men who were going to the front to fight for the Empire. He was proud of England, a nation that is engaged in a war not on her own account, but because of the action of Germany in fighting for little Belgium. The powers behind Great Britain are great and the allies will win a great victory. The allies will never stop until the Union Jack flies over Berlin. (Loud applause.) We are today as one fighting for the citizenship of the mother land. The speaker then reviewed his recent trip to the old land, and the view he had of many battleships on the Clyde. Little was it thought then that those boats would be call into action within a month, but such proved to be the case. The Germans accepted the hospitality of Edingurgh, and what was their object? None other than to spy out that place. Whilst in London it was apparent something was wrong and in a few days war was declared between Germany and Belgium. There was no doubt that the Kaiser thought Great Britain had its trouble with Ireland, but when Great Britain declared war with Germany, the people of Ireland said, "Withdraw your troops and we will give you thousands of soldiers." The Irish question was settled. In speaking of sacrifices made by those who are fighting our battles, Mr. Elliott said we are not aware of the sacrifices being made. If Ireland is willing to send 230,000 to fight against Germany out of a population of 4,280,000, what will Canada do? We will do our part, and one thing we can do is to furnish foodstuffs for the mother land. Let us not be discouraged. Let us not be discouraged; there is a just God over-ruling this war and in the proper time He will deliver the enemy into our hands and we will have everlasting peace.

Col. Ponton was tendered a hearty reception upon rising to speak and he gave an address worthy of the occasion and worthy of the speaker. He said that all hearts were vibrating with the same sentiments at the present time. We were under a great shadow and sorrow was great but the spirit of unity was intensified. Every one was sharing his thoughts with others. In referring to the Canadian contingent the Colonel said that 31,900 sons of Canada went over to the mother land in the first contingent, and what a sight it was as they went away inspired by the thought that they were convoyed by British men of war. The men gone and those going was the sacrifice of service whilst those left at home were feeling the sacrifice of service. In referring to the fact that British navy was keeping open commerce on the vast expanse of water, the Colonel said that some morning soon we would awake to the fact that the British navy had struck for King and country. (Applause). There was a certainly that the Canadian boys would go into action, and there was also a certainty that they will do their duty. The flag they were fighting to defend is associated with religions and all other liberties we enjoy. The boys would fight for that glorious Empire of which we form a part. Our boys want that which speaks louder than words, namely deeds, something that will be for their comfort, and this can be provided by the girls, young women and elder ladies, in the making of something for their comfort whilst upon the battlefield. That all would pay the debt of memory, love and hope there was not the slightest doubt. What a motto was the brave boys—Glad to live, but not afraid, if need be, to die. Memory of loved ones, love of comradeship and a hope was theirs. This triune is made mighty through the manhood of humanity. The Colonel in referring to the colonies of Great Britain said that to the Australian ship Sydney was due the credit of putting out of commission the German cruiser Emden, and the New Zealand battleship had also done valiant service. The gallant charges of the brown men in color was spoken to who were fighting with the allies as representing the British Empire. We were linked together in battalions as one united country in defence of that flag which is dear to all. It was a wonderful time to live in at present. We have a wrong to right, and that wrong will be righted, not for the glory alone but for the right.

Col. Ponton read a poem composed by Mr. J. Nevin Doyle of this city, the reading of which was received with much enthusiasm.

Mr. F. S. Peace referred to the fact that the men were going to the front and that they were remembered by the [illegible] of Marmora.

Each of the volunteers was then presented with $5 and a wrist watch will also be given to each. An insurance policy for $1,000 was presented to Mr. Johns, the married man, and he was assured that his wife and family would be well cared for during his absence.

During the evening Mrs. Thompson rendered a solo, as did also Mr. W. A. Sanderson.

The children did well their part in singing the choruses and a choir in the gallery was all that could have been desired. Instrumental music of a patriotic nature was furnished by a well balanced orchestra.

A vote of thanks, moved by Rev. Mr. Harris and seconded by Mr. W. E. Foster, was unanimously tendered to those from the city and the same was suitably acknowledged by Col. Ponton.

The singing of the National Anthem closed the interesting proceedings.

Fine Programme At Local Lodge

Lodge Rose of England, D.O.E.B.S., held their monthly meeting last night at which two new members were initiated, making a total of 43 members. Following lodge business the ladies entertained Lodge Oxford and Lodge Lydford, S.O.E.B.S., and a very enjoyable time was spent in which the following brothers and sisters gave an impromptu programme, the president of Lydford, Bro. Keyes, occupying the chair in a very able manner: Bro. Harman, piano solo; Bro. Scriven, piccolo solo; Sis. McDowell, song; Bro. Savage, song; Sis. P. Lewis, song; Bro. F. Rolls, song; Bro. Sneyd gave a good address; Sis. Coeuret, song; Sis. Folwell, song; Sis. P. Lewis, song; Bro. Lennox, address; Bro. Douch, song; Bro. Rolls, song; Bro. Savage, song; Bro. Folwell, song. The social was closed with the National Anthem.

Pleasing Address

A very instructive address was given by Miss Bradley, Deaconess of Bridge street church, before the members of the Women's Institute of Queen Aleandra School on Monday afternoon last.

Miss Bradley dealt with the social conditions in Belleville, and suggested that Queen Alexandra school and grounds be made a social centre for all the boys and girls of the section. She was of the opinion that the mothers of the city should interest themselves in the class of pictures that are shown in the motion picture play-houses. The housing problem is a very serious proposition in Belleville and Miss Bradley was of the opinion that a room in Queen Alexandra School should be provided for young people, where they could spend a few hours in the evening for uplift work, both socially and educationally.

A vote of thanks to Miss Bradley was unanimously passed concurring in the views expressed.

The women present were of the opinion that steps should be taken to have an open air skating rink in connection with this school.

Unique Gift

To the Patriotic Fund From J. A. Culverwell

Our generous townsman, Mr. J. A. Culverwell, has given a cash donation of one hundred dollars to the Patriotic Fund. To help along this same worthy object, Mr. Culverwell invited a large party to the Patriotic Concert last evening, including the Clergy and their wives, ninety Boy Scouth, the Firemen and their wives, the young ladies of the Bell Telephone office and others. This numbered about one hundred and fifty and when it is considered that it is all for the same cause, the Patriotic Fund, Mr. Culverwell has nearly duplicated his previous subscription of one hundred dollars—Port Hope Guide.

CURLERS RIFLE ASSOCIATION

The Kingston Curling Club has ordered the supplies necessary for the formation of a rifle club among its members, but the arrangements for securing the rifles have not yet been completed. The idea was to use the curling rink for rifle practice until the curling begins. A meeting of the executive of the club has been called for Friday evening, at which the final arrangements for the coming season will be made.

ADVANCE IS UNIMPEDED

Russians Closing in on Germany at Rate of 14 Miles a Day.

They Are Now Near Lake Mazourie, In East Prussia, and Close on Cracow In Austria—Crown Prince Is Supreme Head of Eastern Armies—German Retreat Unparalleled Since Napoleon's Retreat.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The following official announcement was received from Petrograd last night:

"In East Prussia our troops are approaching the eastern outlets of the region around Lake Mazourie.

"In the vicinity of Goldap, Mlawa and Soldau engagements have occurred, which have been in our favor.

"In Galicia we are continuing a vigorous offensive."

The Petrograd Messinger Armee prints a story to the effect that the Germans are constructing various kinds of barriers to impede the Russian advance, especially in the region of Czenstochowa (Russian Poland), and are working night and day on the fortifications at Thorn.

Martial law has been declared at Cracow and the civil population has evacuated the city.

The Germans, according to Petrograd despatches, have suffered a more serious defeat on the East Prussian border than the official statements have disclosed. Advices from the Russian capital yesterday stated that in the recent fighting there the Russians have captured more than 20,000 prisoners, together with quantities of guns and munitions.

The Russian advance in Poland, which has been at the rate of 14 miles daily, has astonished the military experts, and it is not surprising to hear that they are picking up many footsore and weary German stragglers. This advance of horse, foot and artillery has continued for 18 days.

In the face of the continued disasters, the Crown Prince has received supreme command of the eastern German armies, it is reported from several sources. The Kaiser is said to have presided at a war council when this step was decided upon. Gen. von Hindenberg, the leader who drove back the Czar's hosts in their first invasion, has been superseded, but continues in command of the left wing, while Gen. Dankl, the only Austrian officer of high rank who holds German confidence, is in charge of the right wing.

Military authorities here who have been inclined to look with some scepticism on the reports of overwhelming Russian victories and the precipitate flight of the Germans, are now beginning to credit the full import of recent despatches. A message received late last night by Petrograd says that the Germans are falling back as rapidly as their condition will permit from Radom along a line to Rzheyem and toward Klugutsko.

It is declared that the Kaiser's men are in a terrible state, many of them being without overcoats or shoes, the marches of the last fortnight having exhausted the supply. Some of these men are walking barefooted across plains covered with ice and snow, leaving a bloody trail behind them which stretches for miles in every direction. Nothing like the scenes which confront the Russians have been witnessed in Europe since Napoleon fell back from Moscow. It is a weird coincidence that just a hundred years have passed since then, and that again the rigorous Russian winter is taking heavy toll of an alien foe.

However, stubborn fighting is in prospect for the Czar's legions. The Germans are rushing men eastward from France, and preparations are under way to erect important fortifications at Mstow, where heavy artillery is being concentrated. The defenders' lines along the Warthe are steadily strengthening, and the fortresses in Posen, notably at Thorn, are ready to withstand siege.

It is believed that by this time the Russians are actually under the walls of Cracow. Last reports from that city report the inhabitants in flight and a feverish state of excitement among non-combatants and military as the invaders come hurtling on. They were last reported only 25 miles away.

EGYPT NOT INVADED.

British Press Bureau Denies Constantinople Falsehood.

LONDON, Nov. 12. — An official communication from Turkish headquarters, issued at Constantinople, transmitted by way of Berlin and Amsterdam, is denied by the British official press bureau.

The communication reports that the Russians in the Caucasus have retreated on their second line of defence, suffering great losses, and that the Turkish troops have crossed the Egyptian frontier and have occupied Sheinzar and Fort El Arish and captured four British field guns and field telegraph material.

The press bureau says, with reference to this statement: "It appears to consist of false information deliberately spread abroad in Constantinople, under German instructions."

German Attitude a Crime.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—The Herald says editorially:

"If it is true, as cabled from Amsterdam, that Germany has threatened to prevent the American relief committee from distributing food and other supplies to suffering Belgians the defenders of 'kultur' in this country will have more defending to do.

"Germany's attitude toward and action in Belgium is a crime against civilization. Now to their vandalism they add threat of preventing the distribution of supplies to the needy.

"The spectacle is one that not even the greatest admirer of German prow-

NO AGREEMENTS

The Liberal press desires to prevent the people's registering a verdict upon the important events now agitating the people. The Toronto Globe assumes that one political party can force a truce, and that party the weaker and the one in danger of annihilation. The Globe, in answer to Hon. Robert Rogers' statement of fact that no arrangement has been made between the political parties not to hold an election during the war, says that "Neither is there any agreement between the parties not to steal each other's sheep or cattle. Agreements in such things are not usually regarded as necessary."

Nor, judging by the Liberal party's attitude toward political agreements, are they of any particular restraining force. Events prove, as the Toronto News points out,—

"There was an agreement between the parties upon redistribution for the House of Commons and an increase of Western representation in the Senate. When the constituencies for the Commons were adjusted to the satisfaction of the Liberal Opposition the portion of the contract affecting the Senate was repudiated. There was an agreement between the Canadian authorities and the British Admiralty to add three Dreadnoughts to the British navy. The Liberal Opposition forced Canada to repudiate the contract.

"There is no agreement between the Canadian parties concerning a general election. It is not likely that the Opposition will be asked to decide when Parliament shall be dissolved. It is true, however, that two years ago the Opposition undertook to dissolve Parliament, and for months attacked the naval proposals, to the desperate inconvenience of the Government, the humiliation of Canada and the dismay of the Mother Country."

The Liberals' assumption that a party on the run has the right to call a truce, and also to say when that truce will expire is not the rule in political or actual warfare. If it were, majority rule in Parliament would cease, and the representatives of the majority of the people would have to acquiesce in the wishes of the minority.

CURRENT COMMENT

An English newspaper writes of the "pronounced Canadian accent" of some of the men now on Salisbury Plain. An exchange asks: "What is the Canadian accent, anyway?"

Montreal News: "Mr. Bourassa, in a letter to the Winnipeg Tribune, declares he is not in favor of Pan-Slavism. Is there any other angle left from which this gentleman can favor Germany in his characteristic oblique fashion, after objecting besides to Canada's participation in behalf of the allies, accusing Sir Edward Grey of treachery to France, and representing our soldiers who went to Europe as a drunken lot?"

The Canadian Minister of Justice has been at work on several reforms he hopes to accomplish in regard to the more humane and helpful treatment of penitentiary prisoners. One reform already instituted is to stop the visits of ordinary visitors to penitentiaries who have no other object than merely to look at the prisoners. The needless indignity of being gazed at by touring strangers is no longer thrust upon the men behind the bars.

John Thelwell, of Toronto, will spend the next six months in the central prison, meditating on his antics. His studies will be punctuated by twenty lashes, ten in two months and ten more in four months. Thelwell attacked Mrs. Silk and tried to choke her, and struck her viciously about the head and chest. The woman in the court presented a pitiable spectacle. She was too weak to stand up, and was terribly bruised. Served the ruffian right. There has been too much leniency in punishing these wife beaters in the past. A little of their own mode of punishment will do them good.

ECONOMIC EPIGRAMS

This is the kind of world struggle where the last ounce of real fighting strength is going to tell. Every ounce of goods made in Canada that you buy will be as telling as a bullet on the ranks of the enemy. It adds to our resources and depletes theirs.

When you meet the man with the tin pail at six in the evening, can you look him in the eye when you know you are helping to drive him out of a job by refusing to buy the things he and his fellow-workers are making?

The Canadian soldiers, given equipment and training is as good as any soldier in Europe. Don't you think the Canadian mechanic that lives in yourn own town is as good a workman as the man who helps to support some other flag? Why not buy what he makes.

It isn't necessary to feel benevolent over buying things made in Canada.

THIN FOR YEARS--"GAINS 22 POUNDS IN 23 DAYS"

REMARKABLE EXPERIENCE OF F. GAGNON. BUILDS UP WEIGHT WONDERFULLY.

"I was all run down to the very bottom," writes F. Gagnon. "I had to quit work. I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds in 23 days."

"Sargol has put 10 pounds on me in 14 days," states W. D. Roberts. "It has made me sleep well, enjoy what I ate and enabled me to work with interest and pleasure."

"I weighed 132 pounds when I commenced taking Sargol. After taking 20 days I weighed 144 pounds. Sargol is the most wonderful preparation for flesh building I have even seen," declares D. Martin, and J. Meier add: "For the past twenty years I have taken medicines every day for indigestion and got thinner every year. I took Sargol for forty days and feel better than I have felt in twenty years. My weight has increased from 150 to 170 pounds."

When hundreds of men and women—and there are hundreds, with more coming every day—living in every nook and corner of this broad land, voluntarily testify to weight increases ranging all the way from 10 to 35 pounds, given them by Sargol, you must admit, Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Thin Reader, that there must be something in this Sargol method of flesh building after all.

Hadn't you better look into it, just as thousands of others have done? Many thin folks say: "I'd give most anything to put on a little extra weight but when someone suggests a way they exclaim, "Not a chance. Nothing will make me plump. I'm built to stay thin." Until you have tried Sargol you do not and cannot know that this is true.

"Sargol has put pounds of healthy "stay there" flesh on hundreds who doubted and in spite of their doubts. You don't have to believe in Sargol to grow plump from its use. You just take it and watch weight pile up, hollows vanish and your figure round out to pleasing and normal proportions. You weigh yourself when you begin and again when you finish and you let the scales tell the story.

Sargol is a tiny concentrated tablet. You take one with every meal. It mixes with the food you eat for the purpose of separating all of its flesh producing ingredients. It prepares these fat-makin elements in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily absorb and carry all over your body. Plump well-developed persons don't need Sargol to produce this result. Their assimilative machinery performs its functions without aid. But thin folks' assimilative organs do not. [illegible] food now goes to waste through their bodies like unburned coal through an open grate. A few days' test of Sargol in your case will surely prove whether or not this is true of you. Isn't it worth trying?

If you want a beautiful and well-rounded figure of symmetrical proportions, if you want to gain some solid pounds of healthy stay there - flesh, if you want to increase your weight, go straight to your druggist today and get a package of Sargol and use it as directed. Sargol will either increase your weight or it won't and the only way to know is to try it. A single package of Sargol easily enables you to make this test. Sixty days' use of Sargol according to directions is absolutely guaranteed to increase your weight to a satisfactory degree or your druggist will refund all the money you have paid him for it. Sargol is sold by leading druggists everywhere and in Belleville and vicinity by J. S. McKeown Drug Co.

Plump, well-developed man and women attract attention at the beach as well as in the city.

Another Shipment To Supply Demand

Great Distribution Rapidly Taking up First Allotment But More On The Way

Somebody asked, "When is it going to end?"

"Why, it's just begun," is the answer.

Referring, of course, to The Intelligencer's distribution of the greatest Bible ever published. It did look for a while as though some of our readers would have to be disappointed, but additional shipments are now on the way and everybody will be supplied in time.

The Intelligencer recognizes the fact that there are numerous "illustrated" Bibles ever published. "Illustrated" Bibles offered to the public. But they contain merely pictures of Biblical scenes taken at random from various sources and inserted without regard to subjects or chapters. Some New Testament scenes are inserted in the Old Testament and vice versa. Thus they entirely lose their educational value. In this Bible there are more than 600 illustrations printed with the type, so that they make plain the verse which they accompany. Those who are not familiar with the Bible will catch many a new meaning aided by these illustrations. Then this Bible also contains full page color plates from the wonderful Tissot collection, each of which has been selected with the same object of explaining the accompanying test matter. So with all respect to other Bibles, the fact remains that this is the only really illustrated Bible.

No difference how many other Bibles you may now have, this one explains and makes clear the many subjects illustrated; and even though you may have no religious beliefs such a work will be found an invaluable aid to education.

In addition to the educational helps, the copious marginal references and the beautiful colored maps, every proper name in this Illustrated Bible is separated into syllables and marked for pronunciation, being treated the same as in a dictionary, so that mispronunciation is impossible. This is one of the most important features of this great work and is of immense value to both young and old who find it difficult to pronounce Bible names.

Don't wait but bring in your certificates and get your Bibles. Today's certificate is printed on another page.

A MYSTERIOUS LETTER

Prof. O. F. Gummer, Union street, a short while ago received a very peculiar communication through the mails. He was sent a catalogue post-marked from England and insde of the catalogue was a stamped and sealed envelope addressed to a German in this country. The stamp was one of the old Victoria head type. It is supposed that the letter was sent in the catalogue and the sorter thought that Prof. Gummer would repost the envelope, seeing that it was stamped and addressed. The letter was sent to the local postoffice and the postmaster is looking into the matter.—Kingston Whig.

IGNORING THE RETAIL MERCHANT

(From Canadian Grocer).

When Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, decided to advertise Canadian apples for Canadian consumption he ignored the retail trade entirely. But the smaller city papers got none of it. Advertising was a new phase of business to him. He called in an advertising agency who told him the proper thing to do was to give them the money and let them spend it in the leading daily papers. No effort was made to explain the situation to the retail trade. The result has been that the retailers were placed at a disadvantage as the public were not properly informed. They understood that apples were unusually plentiful this year and could be bought cheap. So they can, but apples of fine quality, such as leading grocers sell, cannot be bought from the farmer at low prices. When retailers who give more thought to their reputation and the value they give for the money were asked to sell apples at about $1 a barrel—the price they were led to expect from the advertising—for which they paid the wholesaler or farmer, $2 or $3, the consumer naturally believed the retailer was robbing him. Right across Canada in consequence the feeling has gone that the retail grocer, who has probably the smallest margin of profit of any dealer in the country, is making enormous profits and is the man responsible for the high cost of living. Letters are pouring in to the newspapers, and some are being published from indignant consumers, who refuse to believe the explanations.

The Canadian Manufacturers decided upon a campaign to urge Canadians to buy Made-in-Canada goods, and $30,000 is being expended under the direction of another advertising agency. Again, the retail trade are ignored, and so are practically all the important weekly newspapers, and the local weekly paper is as carefully read in the smaller cities, towns and villages as is the Bible. The manufacturers now complain they are not getting the results from their big expenditures they anticipated.

The theory of the advertising agency is that if an article is strongly advertised the retailer has got to handle it whether he likes it or not, but this has not worked out in practice. The fact is that no article has ever been forced on the retail trade permanently. The average advertising agency is not equipped to deal with the retail trade. They do not understand questions from the retailers' standpoint and advertising agencies that ignore the retail service are not giving intelligent service to their clients. As manufacturers learn more about advertising they realize that the most important factor, an absolutely essential factor, in selling goods, is the co-operation of the retail trade.

The National Drug and Chemical Co., who are members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, are to be congratulated upon coming out strongly on this point. They pay an annual subscription of $70 to the Manufacturers' Association, but announce, in a circular to members, their willingness to appropriate $250 or $500 a year towards a proper advertising compaign, provided that the retail trade is not ignored. In the circular they have sent to members of the manufacturers' Association they say "to get the full benefit of the newspaper advertising, it is necessary that each manufacturer should make every effort to interest the retailers in the movement, in order to get them not only to use their influence towards educating the public by means of effective window displays of Made-in-Canada goods, but also to get the retailers to really push the sale of goods. Therefore, too much stress cannot be laid * * * * * * * while at present the public take a faint interest in the Made-in-Canada movement, it would with the retailers' co-operation take a very decided interest in the movement and would be anxious to purchase Made-in-Canada goods." As large advertisers themselves, they say further, "that unless the manufacturers are successful in interesting the retail dealers and getting them to co-operate in the important movement of developing the sale of Made-in-Canada goods that the money now being expended in the public press will, while creating some slight attention, be ultimately lost," and again in the circular they say, "to bring the present movement to a successful issue will require not only enthusiasm but continuous hard work on the part of each manufacturer with the retail dealer."

These two national experiences are of great value in opening the eyes of all manufacturers to the absolute necessity of securing the co-operation of the retail trade in promoting the sale of any article.

Advertising agencies are a very useful adjunct in national selling campaigns. There are some able and brilliant men associated with the agencies in Canada, though unfortunately many of them lack a real experience in, and grasp of, business affairs.

Some of them recognize this and are honest enough to tell the manufacturer frankly they are not equipped to handle campaigns to the retail trade, and advise him that this feature of selling is of chief importance and should be directed by the manufacturer himself or his general sales-manager.

WAR NOTES

Gunner Waler Pendleton, a Montreal member of the heavy battery of artillery, has died on Salisbury Plain under ragic circumstances. His body was found in a secluded portion of the camp. How he came by his death will form the subject of an inquest.

How long the German people can bear up under the psychological strain of the terrible losses they are sustaining, both on sea and on land, is one of the most interesting questions pertaining to the war.

The prompt execution of Carl Lody, the German spy, after court martial had convicted him of sending out information about the British navy, may have the effect of dampening the ardor of other treacherous persons who are trying to assist Germany by Lody's methods.

German cartoonists represent the English at Antwerp as trained "sea-dogs" jumping through a hoop, while a Teuton ringmaster cracks the whip. Those who know the British tars' "non-jump" qualities will question the truth of the representation.

SIGNS AND TOKENS

(By Walt Mason.)

The Autumn days will soon be over, the winter tempests soon will roar; among the flowers and in the clover the busy bees are seen no more. Out in the woods the nuts are dropping; the coal is poured in yawning bins; and we should haste to do our shopping before the Christmas rush begins. Across the seas the cannon thunder, Death's harvesting a mighty crop; to-day we see an army under, to-morrow it may be on the top. But here at home no shells are popping, there is no struggle, born of hate, and we can do our Christmas shopping before it is too doggone late. In Mexico all things seem quiet, but quiet there's a thing of doubt, for any hour may bring a riot, to turn the country inside out. The generals are always swapping their threats of death, with ugly leer, but we may do our early shopping, and none will dare to interfere. The fall is with us, gentle reader, the crops are garnered on the farm, the turkey hunts the highest cedar, the goose is viewing with alarm; the football coach is wildly hoping, his victims hear him rant and rate; and we should do our Christmas shopping before it is too all-fired late.

QUITE A COINCIDENCE

KINGSTON, Nov. 11.—(To the Editor): A friend drew my attention to a peculiarity about the names of General Joffre and French, which he considered a good omen of success. Write Joffre's name and exactly under it place French's, then draw a line downwards dividing the names eually. The two left halves spell Joffre and the two right ones French.—W.

ANY DYSPEPTIC CAN GET WELL

By Taking "Fruit-a-tives" Says Capt. Swan

Life is very miserable to those who suffer with Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach and Biliousness. This letter from Captain Swan (one of the best known skippers on the Great Lakes) tells how to get quick relief from Stomach Trouble.

PORT BURWELL, ONT., May 8th, 1913.

"A man has a poor chance of living and enjoying life when he cannot eat. That was what was wrong with me. Loss of appetite and indigestion was brought on by Constipation. I have had trouble with these diseases for years. I lost a great deal of flesh and suffered constantly. For the last couple of years, I have taken "Fruit-a-tives" and have been so pleased with the results that I have recommended them on many occasions to friends and acquaintances. I am sure that "Fruit-a-tives" have helped me greatly. By following the diet rules and taking "Fruit-a-tives" according to directions, any person with Dyspepsia will get benefit."

H. SWAN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Quite So!

The judge was a kindly old fellow, and the young barrister was nervous. It was his first appearance before a jury, and nervousness had him by the throat.

He rose to address the twelve good men and true on behalf of his client:

"My unfortunate client—" he began, in a quaking voice and a dry throat, then stopped.

Fumbling amongst his papers with a trembling hand, he began again.

"My unfortunate client—" Again his throat dried up, and his voice trailed off to a hoarse whisper and became silent.

Despairingly mopping his brow with a handkerchief, he made another attempt.

"My unfortunate client—" But it was no good. His tongue stuck to the roof of his mouth, his vocal cords became paralyzed.

The judge, smiling down at him in a kindly way, said:

"You may proceed with your statement, Mr. Blank. The court, so far, is in entire agreement with you!"

He took her in his arms again. "A man ought to have pride and manliness enough," he said passionately, "to want his wife to love him without one touch of pity. And yet, I have wanted you so long. I have not a host of friends, like some men. I am lonely. Life has been so empty for me. I want a home, where a wife is waiting to welcome me—and little children, dear." He lifted her hand and kissed it. "You would think me a foolish fellow if I confessed the dreams I have had. I have dreamed of you opening the door of our home, of you coming to meet me with a smile and outstretched arms. I have dreamed of feeling your kiss upon my lips, of holding you close to my heart as I do now. I have been dreaming foolish dreams like these," he laughed tremulously, "since that night in November, and I have scarcely dared to hope that you even believed in me."

Dorcas smiled into his eyes. "I have always believed in you. I never lost faith in you or in your genius for one moment. And," she paused as if making confession, "I have loved you for a long time, ever since that night, the same night, when you came back and I was so happy."

"That night," said Andrew, "was the miracle moment of my life."

"Was it so wonderful as that?" she whispered.

"When I think, dearest, of what you have stood for to me, it is a miracle."

"It is an everyday miracle!"

"There are no everyday miracles," said Merry. Then he kissed her again.

She turned away from him to stare out at the window again. On the sidewalks the rush of city life went on tumultuously. Half an hour before she had thought the street sordid and ugly. It had changed. The street lights, now clear and white, were circled about by lovely halos. The voices of the children were sweeter and gentler. Next door the servant who was still at work, sang a lilting Irish ballad. Through it ran a constant iteration of "My own sweet lad."

"Dorcas," Merry spoke hesitatingly, "you said you trusted me?"

"I do." The girl raised her head with a quick gesture.

"I cannot explain now," he began. "I cannot ask you to be my wife until something which looks like an utter tangle has been straightened out. Can you go on trusting, even if I cannot explain?"

"Yes," Dorcas laughed. "I can go on trusting you indefinitely."

"Don't," he cried, "don't say—indefinitely. I want you now, darling, and—forever."

CHAPTER XXI.

From the Top Gallery.

On the same night that Zilla Paget took up her residence in the Wentworth home Grant Oswald sat beside his desk, dictating letters to his secretary. He listened while the tinkle of the overture ceased.

"Has Mr. Wentworth come in yet?" he asked when an usher entered with a telegram.

"No, sir; we're watching for him. Nobody has seen him."

"Ask him to come here as soon as he arrives."

None of the employes of the Gotham recognized a man beside the stair of the upper gallery, where a steep iron railing jutted out upon the side street. The rain fell softly and he was muffled to the chin in a drab overcoat. A felt hat was drawn over his eyes. He emerged suddenly from the shadow to lay his hand upon the arm of a boy who went springing up the grated stair.

"Here, do you want to sell your ticket for a dollar?" he asked.

"Sure," cried the boy emphatically. "Say, mister, why don't ye buy one fer yerself? They're fifty cents, if yet git in line at the window."

"I don't want to stand in line."

The boy thrust the slip of pasteboard into Wentworth's hand, seized the money, and fled to take his place at the end of the line which straggled round the corner from Broadway.

Enoch waited until a throng began to press its way up the steps. He pulled his hat down close about his forehead and the rim fell to his eyes. When he reached out his hand to the attendant at the door, the man did not look at him; he was trying to stem a tide of human beings and make certain that each one had paid his way.

Wentworth moved inside the door and glanced at the gray coupon, then he passed to an end seat in the third row. He laid his hat upon the floor, pulled off his damp coat, and waited for the curtain to rise. Although the clatter of voices about him was insistent, he heard them like a dull jargon. Once he rose to allow two girls with their escorts to pass, then seated himself again with his body hunched forward, watching the musicians clamber through a low door below the stage. The leader lifted his baton and the overture began. A man who pushed unceremoniously past aroused Enoch from his listless mood. He turned and stared at a girl who sat beside him. The lines on her wan face were etched, not by the years she had lived, but by a girlhood spent in airless places amid the roar of machinery.

He sat watching her with an impassive stare. A dreamy look crept into her face. The orchestra began to play an inconsequential thing in which there was the trip of dancing feet and a sway of lithe bodies. He could see the lines smoothing out in her careworn face. Her ungloved fingers beat time to the music with perfect rhythm. Then her hand went out in an unconscious caress to the thin, shabby lad who sat beside her. He clasped it and turned to her with an eager smile. Wentworth sighed.

The curtain rose. People who sat close under the roof listened with a tense stillness, which was never disturbed by the rustle that occasionally ran through the orchestra. The story of the play had grown old, threadbare and uninteresting to Wentworth, but it moved these men and women to the quick. During the first act the girl beside him turned to her sweetheart and spoke in a tremulous whisper: "She's a cruel devil!"

Her eyes were bent with hatred and scorn upon Zilla Paget, who stood looking down at Merry. His guilt had been discovered. He sat beside a table with his face hidden in his outstretched arms, while the wife hurled upon him a torrent of bitter contumely. Once his body shook with a half-stifled sob. Little Julie clasped his hand, but her terrified eyes were turned upon her mother. Wentworth had seen the woman in a towering passion; now she threw herself into the fury of her role as she had done in real life, pacing the floor like a caged tiger. She paused at Merry's side half exhausted.

"Think of the child," he pleaded miserably.

"The child—to perdition with the child!"

Into Enoch's memory leaped a scene long forgotten. Upon the edge of a battlefield, after a bloody encounter, he had once been pressed into hospital service. Anesthetics were not at hand and he had helped by main strength to hold a mutilated soldier while the surgeon amputated a shattered bone. The agony of a groan, which the man tried to stifle, haunted Wentworth for months. Some time in his life Merry must have heard such a sound and was repeating it. Then the woman upon the stage laughed.

"Damn her!" whispered the lad, who sat holding the girl's hand.

Wentworth smiled absently. He watched Dorcas make her entrance. Something stately and high-mettled, like an unconscious hauteur, had been added to the dignity which was his sister's great charm. This dignity constantly put Zilla Paget at a disadvantage; she was coarsened by it, brutalized, and cheapened to a degree. The contrast dawned quickly on a gallery audience.

"Ain't Miss Wentworth sweet?" whispered the girl by his side.

"Sweet?" repeated her escort. "She's a peg higher 'n sweet. She's game, game clear to the spine. The peroxide liddy's a bruiser. I'm aching to bat her in the snoot."

"You hold your hands off her, Charley," answered the factory girl with a giggle. "She could lay out your runty little carcass with one swipe."
